HERE IS A SPECIAL VALUE IN LADIES' PURE SILK HOSE

CHIFFONS
For Dancing Feet

It is probably safe to say that we have sold many hundreds (perhaps thousands) of pairs of "Blue Crane" Silk Hose.

Up to the present time they represent the very best value we have ever found in an all silk hose to sell for one dollar.

Exactly the same quality of silk is used as in those which sell for $1.00 and $1.95.

And they are made with the "pointed heel" which has been and still is very popular.

If you have used these hose and want more, or if you never have used them but would like to know how very good they really are, here is an opportunity for you to buy them for 75c a pair.

It will give you a chance to know their good qualities, and it will also give us a chance to learn if advertising in The Bulletin is worth while.

CONNOLLY DENIES GRAFT IN QUEENS SEWER CASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—In testimony that continued through most of today's session in the Queens sewer trial, Maurice E. Connolly, former president of Queens borough, defended himself against charges.

Doing all the talking while his co-defendant, former sewer design Engineer Frederick Seely, sat silent, Connolly made blanket denials, long explanations and disclaimers of all responsibility for the letting of sewer contracts when he was head of Queens borough.

He denied he had anything to do with the Queens sewer pipe specifications, through which, the state alleges, the late John M. Phillips, sewer pipe expert, was able to have a monopoly on pipe used in that borough. Connolly said he never talked to Phillips about the latter's patented lookjoint pipe.

Queens grew so rapidly in population after he became borough president, in 1911, he related, that sewers were badly needed and a $20,000,000 system was built.

THE PLATT AMENDMENT

President Machado of Cuba is anxious to have the Platt amendment terminated. He has told the Spanish-American war veterans gathered in Cuba for the observance of the 30th year of Cuba's freedom that the usefulness of it has been outlived.

The Platt amendment bears the name of the late Senator Platt of Connecticut. It was an amendment to Cuba's constitution which was required by this country and accepted by Cuba back in 1901 when Cuba was determining what relations should continue between the United States and the new republic which it had just set up. By the provisions of this amendment Cuba was bound not to incur debts which were not warranted by her revenue, to continue the sanitary administration undertaken by this country during the occupancy following the war, to lease two naval stations to the United States and to recognize the right of the United States to intervene, if necessary, in the affairs of the island. This intervention right concerns the protection of Cuban independence, the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty and for discharging the obligations with respect to Cuba imposed by the treaty of Paris on the United States and then being taken over by the government of Cuba.

It is easily recognized that there are provisions of the amendment which amount to nothing now for the naval stations have been leased to us, the sanitation system has been followed and for the present Cuba appears to be able to take care of its financial situation. But Cuba of today doesn't necessarily represent Cuba of tomorrow any more than it does the Cuba of past years.

The amendment is unusual in international relations but there have been two occasions when it has been necessary for this country to intervene in Cuba, and under different governmental guidance than now possessed there might be reasons for such action again. The United States recognizes its responsibility toward Cuba. It would no more tolerate the existence of harmful conditions there any more than in some of the other island republics, even if there were no amendment. But with intervention legalized and Cuba knowing that advantage has never been taken of it to the detriment of Cuba, the plea for its removal will make little headway.

NIGHT SCHOOLS

Notification that the night schools of the town have been opened for the 1928 season should be all that is required by those, who need the benefit of such instruction as is there offered, to help themselves.

They provide an opportunity for those who never had the schooling that they should, those who desire to get out of the illiterate class and those who have come to this country and want to know more about the English language.

Many beyond school age are anxious to better themselves through additional instructions. They are able in many instances to do much for themselves through text books but that method is slow and unsatisfactory in comparison with the help that they would get through teachers who are equipped to give them valuable and needy assistance.

Night schools have done much for a large number of people. Those who have attended can point with pride to their accomplishments. Many have been able to read and write as the result of a winter's effort. Others have improved their education in other directions and all have found such instructions an aid to better citizenship.

The night schools are not maintained for the few but for as many as are interested. Such advantages ought not to be overlooked either by those who need such training or by those who know friends who should get the benefit of such additional education. For those who have little knowledge of our language it affords a golden opportunity. The rooms should be filled to the limit at every session. It can be safely said that those who have been through night schools are not only happy at the result but eager for more.

MUSCLE SHOALS

Mr. Hoover spoke in one of the southern states. In the south there is particular interest in Muscle Shoals. Mr. Hoover did not mention Muscle Shoals but later admitted that what he did say in his speech and was interpreted as meaning Muscle Shoals meant just that. Then he directed attention to the fact that he is opposed to the extension of government ownership in competition with private enterprise.

He recognizes the fact that the government already possesses Muscle Shoals. It has already invested $130,000,000 there. It was a war proposition, but not completed in time to be of service and now it remains for the government to determine what will be done with it. In the interest of national defense it is the belief of Mr Hoover that the government should retain possession of that plant, use it for the benefit it can be in the production of cheap fertilizer for the farmers and then employ the surplus of water power there "on such terms and conditions as will safeguard and protect all public interests."

When Mr. Hoover said at Elizabethton, Tenn., "I do not favor any general extension of the federal government into the operation of business in competition with private enterprise," he was setting forth his general policy in regard to government ownership. Inasmuch as we have Muscle Shoals we should make the best use of it. If it were a question of starting now to undertake the development that has been made at Muscle Shoals he would be opposed to it as being an extension of the federal government into competition with private capital. He would however see that the government's investment already made as a defense measure be protected and turned to the benefit of agriculture.

This is a statement of the situation which reiterates his attitude in regard to government ownership and operation. It is consistent with the stand which he has previously taken and when it comes to the utilization of Muscle Shoals it can be realized that Mr. Hoover is the man who worked out the best kind of a solution with the interests of the country fully safeguarded.

FLYING ACCIDENTS

According to the record which has been kept by the department of commerce there were 390 accidents in civilian flying during the first six months of this year. That seems large in view of the amount of flying that is done but the record is undoubtedly correct. The part which halts attention, however, is the fact that this represents 190 more than in the corresponding period of last year.

Flying is on the gain and so are the accidents. The situation is not any different than that which prevails on the ground, for as motor vehicle traffic has increased in volume so have the motor vehicle accidents. There is this difference, nevertheless, that while most of the motor vehicle accidents are due to collision in some form those in the air include a collision only as a secondary matter. Occasionally there are planes which come together in the air, but for the most part a different cause stops the engine, or the plane gets out of control, and the plane comes down. Invariably it means the wrecking of the plane and more or less serious injuries if not death for the fliers, but the situation has not as yet developed where such accidents can be attributed to a collision of the air.

It is inevitable that there should be a demand for a reduction in flying accidents. Better conditions surround flying than in previous years. There are better and safer planes and it is to be expected that there will be better aviators, everything considered. Perhaps if greater stress were laid upon safety while flying instead of upon stunts there might be a reduction in aviation accidents quite the same as it has been figured care will reduce the accidents in the highway.

One cause for satisfaction in connection with the flying accidents this year lies in the fact that while there were 164 deaths as the result of the smaller number of accidents last year, there have been but 153 in the same period of this year. That indicates, until something upsets the reasoning, that such efforts as have been made for greater safety in flying have borne good results.

BROWN'S NEW PRESIDENT

Brown university has reached a time which was bound to come—the time when it must release one pilot and take on another. That it does so reluctantly can be readily understood for Dr. W. H. P. Faunce has done much for that institution in the 30 years he has been its president. He is an educational leader whose influence has extended far beyond the walls of Brown university which, though it accepts his resignation and sees another take up his work, knows that even by this change there is not going to be lost the advice which he will continue to give from the post of president emeritus. Dr. Faunce has reached the age of 70 but that to a great many men means years of conspicuous usefulness ahead, and there is no reason to suppose but what it will be the same with him. Such at least is to be sincerely hoped.

As his successor as president of Brown, the trustees have selected Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, president of Rochester-Colgate Divinity school at Rochester. It is to be supposed that this choice was made in the belief that he possessed the right qualifications for taking up and carrying on the work which Dr. Faunce has so admirably directed. This in fact seems certain from the fact that Dr Barbour is a graduate of Brown and has been one of the university's trustees during which time he has had opportunity to demonstrate his interest in its work and his fitness for dealing with its problems. He has by his record displayed his peculiar ability as a desirable successor to Dr. Faunce and a conspicuous career may be anticipated in that position. As one of the leaders in the policy of development at Brown, Dr. Barbour will now have the responsible task of directing it.

AS HANDSOME DOES

Marianne pressed the keys that shot the exactly correct change down a little metal chute toward the waiting palm of the customer.

"Thank you" she sang in the tone that she employed for those words hundreds of times each day. The customer pocketed the coins and turned away.

From her dignified perch within the cage she cast a hopeful glance along the soda fountain. Before it sat the usual mid-afternoon crowd, sipping their "choc malts" and eating their "double chocolate pecans, with a lotta whipped cream." The boy on the second stool from the end was kind of nice looking. Cute hair. Nose was a little big, though.

Her attention was suddenly caught by a man's voice close to her. The owner of the voice had just entered the store. Turning to him, her eyes suddenly opened wide. Oh! Handsome!

The man had to repeat his request for cigarettes, and he did it in a distinctly friendly voice. As she moved over to the tobacco counter her heart did several somersaults in the region of a string of "five-and-ten" pearls.

"Thanks sister," he said with a smile. He took his time about opening the package and Marianne noted with a thrill that he was eying her with very apparent interest. Second inspection showed he was as handsome as first glance had indicated. Not too well dressed, though. But that reckless gleam in his eyes, that smile, that rakishly tilted hat! Marianne sighed and completely forgot the nice looking boy on the second stool.

The handsome man moved up to the cage and tendered her a quarter for the cigarettes. With a whir the coin shot down the chute.

"Thank you," she said, and this time the voice dripped honey.

"Oh, not at all, sister," said the man. He showed a disposition to linger. "How's business" he asked with a grin. Marianne knew that flirting with a customer was cause for dismissal. However, the store manager was out, and this man was so handsome.

"Jes' fine," she answered breezily.

"That's good. A pretty girl like you ought to draw business." The man lolled on the counter, hands in pockets, eyes gazing at her appraisingly. A customer came up and a look of annoyance flashed over the handsome man's face. He moved away, stood for a moment undecided, then walked over to the fountain and ordered a drink.

Slyly Marianne watched him while he was served. At first she was piqued that he was no longer paying attention to her. His eyes roved about the store and Marianne jealously saw them fasten on one of the waitresses in the rear.

It took him a long time to finish his drink, and Marianne said many "Thank you" before he arose and came toward her, flipping the soda check between two fingers. Her heart did another turn. Perhaps he would ask her for a date! They wouldn't be interrupted this time, for the only persons in the store had just come in, and they were still busy with clerks or with glasses. The handsome man tossed his check down upon the counter.

"I'm giving you lots of business today," he said. He turned, glanced around the store to make sure that no one would interrupt and leaned forward confidentially.

Marianne shot his change down the chute and glanced boldly upward to meet his eyes. They were cold, narrow, glinting. Her own eyes fell, and her blood seemed to freeze within her as she saw the black barrel of an automatic pistol peeping over the edge of the counter.

"Sorry to do this, sister," a grim voice said, "but I advise you to pass over the dough and not raise any fuss. One chirp out of you and this little thing might go off." By a tremendous effort she stifled a scream and forced her trembling hands to reach into the cash drawer. They came up loaded with soiled bills.

"Hurry!" he growled. She pushed the money into his hands and he stuffed it into his coat pocket. The easy smile returned to his face.

"I sure have to take advantage of you, sister," he said. "But the wife and kiddies gotta eat. Well, I'm going. Better keep quiet for a couple of minutes." Swiftly, but without suspicious haste he was out the door and around the corner. Then Marianne found her voice.

"Help!" she screamed, jumping down and racing to the door. "Stop that man! He's a bandit! He just held me up!" Clerks and customers gathered around her. A policeman appeared, but the handsome man had vanished. Trembling and tearful, Marianne told her story. The crowd listened sympathetically and tried to console her.

"He got every cent in the drawer. Oh, I was so frightened!" she sobbed aloud. But within her there was a deeper sob and a voice that said, "I wonder if he really does have a wife and kid"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 — The sad experience of Senator Borah in Nebraska attracted attention in Washington.

The question arose immediately as to who was going to be the ultimate loser due to the enterprise and activity of the hotel sneak thief who looted the senatorial pocketbook and annexed $400 while the Idaho statesman was recuperating in slumber from the rigor and vigor of his pro-Hoover campaign. Would the loss be set down eventually in the financial records of the republican war chest, or would Borah add it as a contribution to the Hoover cause? Nobody knew.

Fishing for Wallets

The Idaho senator is not the first person high in American official life to pay tribute to deft-handed hotel thieves. The story goes that Minister Eberhardt in Managua, when he went to that post several years ago, suffered a similar raid en route.

The minister had arrived at Corinto, entry port for Managua, and been duly received with all customary circumstance for newly arrived diplomatic representatives. He was not to proceed to the Nicaraguan capitol until next day, the intervening night being spent at a Corinto hotel.

Now, it's usually hot in Corinto. Following tropic custom, partitions between sleeping rooms are just half portion affairs in this hotel, running up only part way to the ceiling in order to leave room for circulation of air. The minister turned in, tired from the round of reception festivities. Something woke him in the early daylight hours, however, and he observed the astonishing phenomenon of his official ministerial trousers ascending the partition wall, apparently of their own motion and vanishing over the top.

By the time he could rustle up covering and dash out to look into the mystery the trousers flopped casually back over the partition. They were minus the roll of bills that had bulged one pocket. Naval officers who have frequented the hotel could have told the diplomat of anglers who employ fishing rod, line and hook to extract the clothing of unwary guests.

Clothes Lifted from Train

Much the same experience has impaired the dignity of other American diplomats. The compartment sleeping cars of Europe are stuffy to folks accustomed to the airy freedom of an American sleeper. They are tempted to heave up the window and leave it up, despite signs which warn against that rash disregard of the abilities of the dishonest.

On retiring the American traveler spreads out his duds on a shelf-like affair provided for that purpose. But in doing so he fails to reckon with a fish-hook armed lurker beside the track at some way station, on watch for just such a heaven-sent opportunity for pillage. There are no window screens as a rule because most travelers on European trains don't want the windows open, anyhow. So in pops a stick shod with a hook and out go coat, trousers and what-not while the train speeds on its way with the victim still peacefully dreaming.

One high, dignified American secretary of legation bound for Constantinople arrived there minus all his outer clothing and his purse. He was forced to drape himself in a blanket to reach a hotel and his luggage.

Stories That Recall Others

Taking Precautions

Mrs. Brown had lately moved to the country, and was very much interested in raising chickens, but knew very little about them.

One day she was greatly distressed to find two of her fine hens sick, and was at a loss to know what to do for them. Just as she was coming out of the chicken yard, a ten year old neighbor boy came along and Mrs. Brown asked him what his mother did for her chickens when they got sick. "She sells them as quick as she can," promptly replied Howard.

Paddle Your Own Canoe

Two business men went on a fishing trip. They went for the week end and hoped to get in two days angling. One morning they started early. There was a dense fog, but they found their boat, climbed in and started rowing. After about 30 minutes of strenuous exercise Bill glanced up to find they had forgotten to untie their barge and that all their effort had been for nothing.

HOW VALUABLE ARE CANNED FOODS?

By Emily L. Ketcham

The question is often asked: "How do canned goods compare with the fresh products and how valuable are they?" It has been learned that, from the angle of preserving the original value of a food, there are correct and incorrect ways of preserving and canning just as there are correct and incorrect ways of cooking. Since 1924 research has been directed on commercially canned and home canned foods so that this question may be answered intelligently.

1. Canned foods are cooked. In this way the tissues are softened and the food is made more readily digestible.

2. The caloric value of a food may become more concentrated if much water is evaporated in the process. The addition of sugar or oil to the canned food increases the calories.

3. The mineral content of a canned food depends on the method used. The old-fashioned "Open Kettle Method" decreases the mineral content by nearly one-half of its original value, while the newer methods, of sterilizing in sealed containers, as the "cold pack method" or "oven sterilization," preserves the minerals.

4. The vitamin content of canned food also depends on the method used. The "open kettle method" means a great loss of the more perishable vitamins while heating the food in sealed jars or cans to just as high a temperature and for the same length of time will not destroy these vitamins. Because it is done in sealed containers, less of the vitamins are lost in commercially canned vegetables than in home canned vegetables, though heated longer and at a higher temperature. Fruits and vegetables contain an acid which acts as a protection to the vitamins against destruction by heat. When you add soda, to preserve color or to neutralize this acid, you expose all the vitamins to destruction by the heat of the cooking. The use of copper kettles in cooking vegetables and fruits rich in Vitamin C will tend to destroy Vitamin C; while tin-lined or enameled or aluminum kettles do not destroy this vitamin.

To sum up the nutritive value of canned goods versus fresh foods:

1. Fresh green vegetables and fruits grown in the summer sunshine are best.

2. Green vegetables and fruits properly canned, are next best. Recognized, standard brands of canned goods are more expensive than those not recognized as a standard, because: Only foods in good condition are used and greater care is taken to preserve the minerals and vitamins. Knowing this, it is easy to see that such a product is well worth the difference in price.

3. Fresh green vegetables and fruits grown under glass, as winter hot-house products, take third place.

Do not forget that dried fruits, such as dried peaches, apricots and prunes, are excellent foods and are less expensive than the same foods canned.

It is quite important when using canned goods that you be sure they are in no way spoiled before you eat them.

Notice the following points, and you will be quite safe:

1. Any can that bulges at the ends, before being opened, should be discarded.

2. Home canned foods that have changed color, or that have a suspicious odor, should not be used.

3. After opening a tin-container, remove the food from inside the can.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

Tirana.

Albania, for eight years a republic has crowned President Ahmed Zogu its king, reversing the trend of most European nations.

Thus Tirana, capital of Albania, will join the ranks of European royal cities. The modest "white house" will become a palace, and "Mr. President" will be properly addressed "His Highness."

"Until a few years ago Tirana was as little known as the rest of Albania is today," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Boat loads of tourists drifted down the Albania coast, stopping now and then at some picturesque island, or at a coastal village, but they seldom ventured far inland.

"At Durazzo, former capital, and now Tirana's seaport, they took one glance at the impassable roads to the interior and another glance at the springless ox-carts and donkeys which were then the only Albanian taxis. Then most of them decided to see Tirana when conditions were improved.

"The capital has changed, however, since President Zogu established government headquarters there in 1925. Bus service on the new road from Tirana to Durazzo brings increasing numbers of travelers and the once quiet little Moslem city is making splendid progress.

"The mosque, domes and minarets that once dominated the city's skyline are being encroached upon by modern government buildings and legations of foreign governments who recognize Albanian sovereignty. Hotels are also poking their upper stories above the red roofs of old Tirana's mud-walled structures, and new avenues, parks and public gardens have been laid out for the enjoyment of the city's inhabitants and guests.

"Albanians are not a traveled people. Their first railroad now is under construction between Durazzo and Tirana, and save for a narrow rim along the Adriatic seaboard, there are few roads with the country's boarders. But the social aspect of the capital has changed with the coming of representatives of foreign governments. At the new Sports club Albanians rub elbow with resident diplomats and the Albanian women now compete against the ladies of the legations on the tennis courts.

"The Tirana market place is one of the few spots in the city that has not been disturbed by the newcomers and here, among the vegetables and fruits piled on the cobbles roam folk of the surrounding mountains and valleys, apparently unmoved by the changes taking place in their capital.

"Both the Ghegs of the north and the Tosks of the south crowd the 'aisles.' Mingling among the lively throngs, one sees a bewhiskered Moslem holy man whose somber robes sharply contrast with the flaming colors of the natives' garments. The Ghegs, three-fourths of whom are Moslems, can be singled out from the rest of the crowd by their gray half-size fezes which resemble the aluminum lids which keep pancakes warm on American restaurant tables. They also wear loose-fitting, sleeveless, buttonless jackets, tight-fitting trousers and home-made sandals of ox-hide.

"The Tosks are less conservative than their northern compatriots. They like ornamentation, and their costumes are colorful. There may be enough silver and gold in their regalia to pay a first-class passage from Durazzo to New York."

DOYLE GOLDEN WEDDING AT NEW BRITAIN WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Oct. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. James L. Doyle of No. 29 Washington street, observed their golden wedding yesterday. In celebration of the anniversary they had a dinner at their home in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Doyle were married October 10, 1878, at St. Peter's church, Hartford, by the Rev. Paul McAlenny.

JAMES L. DOYLE

Mr. Doyle is a native of Norwich. Mrs. Doyle was born in Hartford and was Miss Mary A. Langdon.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle came to New Britain in 1883 and Mr. Doyle took over The New Britain Record of which he is the owner and publisher. Under his direction The Record has grown yearly. He is the dean of New Britain newspapermen. The Record also has a job printing department, which has grown remarkably under his leadership.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle received many gifts, messages of congratulation and calls during yesterday. They have two sons, Edmond J. and Walter J. Doyle, both associated with their father in business. The young men and their wives assisted in welcoming the friends who called during the day and evening.

James L. Doyle is a notable example of a self-made man, who came from Norwich with not much more capital than his trade as a printer, backed up by industry, ambition and good habits. He has won success solely on his own merits and through his own exertions; and the congratulations which he is receiving on the golden anniversary of his happy married life are all sincere, and the tribute of friends and business associates to his worth as a man and a citizen.

Years ago, Mr. Doyle had the vision to see the possibilities of Ocean beach, New London, purchasing land there and erecting several sightly cottages. He has since disposed of these, with the exception of the cosy summer home on Park street, which he and his family occupy every season. There Mr. and Mrs. Doyle find pleasure in entertaining their friends; and in his enjoyment of vacation days there the former gets the reward of quiet and recreation after his exacting and fruitful years of faithful devotion to business. Mrs. Doyle shares her husband's happiness in extending hospitality to their friends; so that many in New London and in Mr. Doyle's native Norwich will join their New Britain acquaintances in felicitating them on reaching the golden milestone in their happy wedded life.

MADE GOOD TIME IN SCHOOL FIRE DRILLS

As a part of the local fire prevention week programme fire drills were held at the Elizabeth and Mt. Pleasant street schools Wednesday, by Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft of the local fire department. The 500 pupils at the Elizabeth street school left the building in two minutes and 15 seconds and the 200 children at the Mt. Pleasant street school left the building in one minute and seven seconds.

Paper Company Group Insurance

The Robertson Paper Box Co., Inc., of Montville, has arranged, effective October 11, for accident and health insurance for its employees in connection with the group life insurance.

The plan covers sickness from any cause starting with the eighth day of disability, and non-occupational accidents, starting with first day. The amount of weekly benefit depends on average weekly pay ranging from $10 to $20 per week. The cost is shared by the company and employees—the employees paying 70 cents per month for $10 per week benefit. The case was arranged by the Norwich office of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co.

LOCAL CHAMBER'S ANNUAL REPORTS SHOW YEAR OF MUCH ACTIVITY

Innocuous Nebulosity will be discussed by John H. Walters of Bridgeport at the annual meeting of Norwich chamber of commerce, next Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel. Members of the chamber are being urged by the chamber secretary to give this matter serious thought. Mr. Walters has made tremendous hits at chamber meetings, Rotary club gatherings throughout Connecticut.

In a letter addressed to the chamber membership, Arthur M. Brown, first vice president of the chamber, urges all members of the chamber to attend the meeting.

J. W. Griest of Chicago, Ill., who is to be here next week, conducting the merchants' institute is to be the principal speaker of the occasion. While Mr. Griest is a keen student on the problems of the retailer, he is also a noted speaker on other subjects. His address Tuesday evening will be on Our Community Assets and Liabilities. To date the reservations for the meeting are well over 100.

The annual reports of the various committees of the chamber are to be submitted to the membership in printed form in the chamber magazine, Norwich Progress. A resume of the reports follows:

Finance

Perhaps one of the most outstanding changes in the financial structure of the chamber of commerce took place last fall when the directors voted to change from the plured membership plan to the sustaining or budget plan.

In the former case a bank or manufacturing plant might subscribe to ten memberships, giving them to employes or others who might never take an active part or interest in the work of the chamber of commerce.

The sustaining fund plan provides that the same organization will take only as many memberships as might be required to have the company represented by its officers and the additional amount is made in the form of a subscription to the budget fund. This plan has operated very successfully. While the chamber derived the amount of $10,000 directly from membership dues income, it has had the additional amount of $1,500 on more through the subscription to special activities.

The Merchants bureau fund amounts to the sum of $3,600. This coupled with the income from the Progress exposition and the interest on bank balances, miscellaneous income, etc., made the total income for the year over $16,700, nearly twice the amount raised during 1926-27.

The chamber's bank balance has throughout the year been kept well over the thousand dollar mark.

The budget for the direct operating expense of the chamber was adopted at the beginning of the year, amounting to $11,010. Since that time, due to the increased income, the directors have authorized various increases in the budget until it now totals $11,785.

Publicity Report

In his report as chairman of the publicity committee, Max Hanover says:

The publicity committee has been continuously active throughout the year. At the first meeting, held last fall, a program was adopted which provided for the publication of 10,000 booklets which contain views and data descriptive of Norwich. Also it was felt at that meeting that some definite activities should be carried on to better acquaint Norwich citizens with their home town.

During the course of the year several meetings have been held, checking on the progress of this program.

After reviewing the Norwich Progress exposition, Mr. Hanover says:

The committee has also given considerable thought to the matter of road signs during the course of the year. Conferences were held with Mayor Waters and later with Mayor Robbins.

It is with much gratification that this work was finally arranged for through the co-operation of the city officials. Norwich now has road signs which indicate to the stranger the direction of the different roads.

The Credit Bureau

The credit bureau report, made by A. Curland, president of the Norwich Credit Rating Bureau, Inc., says:

The Retail Credit bureau has practically doubled its activities during the course of the current year. At the close of 1927 about 25 members were interested in this part of the chamber's program. After consolidating with the merchants' bureau during the campaign in January a new interest was evidenced and a total number of 46 members are now both rendering and obtaining credit information on approximately 18,000 accounts.

The files have been completely renovated, information brought up to date, and the service is now being handled with much more rapidity. The schedule of calls handled during recent months is as follows: January, 148; February, 213; March, 247; April, 218; May, 215; June, 212; and July, 148.

All information handled by this department is in code and confidential. No one but the operator ever has access to the files.

The Industrial Survey

Plans for the promotion of a community or industrial survey were adopted by the chamber in September, 1927. An appropriation of $1,000 was secured from the directors on the current year's budget. This amount was raised through subscription, to activities in the campaign last fall.

Immediately the committee gave their careful consideration to various ways in which the survey might be completed with the least possible expenditure of money. It was finally decided to award the job to the Babson statistical organization.

The Babson people sent an engineer here who went carefully into the various phases of our economical life, interviewed several hundred business men, manufacturers, etc., and tabulated all of the facts, so secured, in these conferences. This survey has very completely pointed out many of the assets as well as recommendations for the correction of liabilities.

The first recommendation to be followed through to completion was for a revaluation in all taxable property. The need for more adequate hotel facilities is under investigation at the present time. The recommendations for revision of city charter and for the adoption of a modern electrical and plumbing code have been taken up by the city officials and are now under consideration by a special committee of citizens.

The particular value of the survey is its use in informing prospective industries about local conditions. Many favorable factors were made available for use in publicity channels.

Merchants' Bureau Report

This organization has been most active during the year just past. In December a consolidation with the credit bureau was effected and a budget of $3,600 adopted for the current year. A campaign was completed in January and the total amount raised under the leadership of Herbert B. Cary.

The Merchants' bureau now has a total of 185 members, 42 of whom are active and interested in the Credit bureau. Their program has included many activities.

Two Dollar days, two Suburban days and the spring and fall opening events comprise the program of special sales events during the year. The success of these promotions are attested to by the unusual crowds which are always seen on the streets during their progress.

A quiet and effective advertising campaign which endeavored to bring the house to house peddler problem fairly before the minds of the Norwich housewives, was in process during the spring months. A series of advs. were run in the local papers.

The merchants bureau has continued its program of monthly meetings throughout the year. On several occasions special speakers have come from out of town and the attendance has been particularly good.

The summer closing hours schedules were carried out as usual through the cooperation of the many merchants.

At the beginning of the year the merchants bureau had a total of about 85 members and the credit bureau had 25, many of whom were also members of the merchants' bureau. The budget of the merchants' bureau in the previous year approximated $1,500 and was assessed on the sliding scale ranging from $6 to $150 each, according to the size of the store. The credit bureau's 25 members were each paying $30 per year, which was totally inadequate for maintaining the bureau, whose expenses approximated $1,200. Therefore, a budget of $3,600 was adopted which included the cost of all of the merchants' bureau activities along with those of the credit bureau.

The campaign was organized and, under the leadership of Herbert B. Cary, 40 merchants succeeded in securing the total amount from 185 new members, all of whom are now entitled to the privileges of the credit bureau. The activity in the credit bureau has practically doubled since this reorganization was effected.

The Nominating Committee

Edwin A. Harris, chairman of the nominating committee, in his report says:

Early in the year members voted at a special meeting to adopt the nominating plan of electing directors instead of the primary system.

This plan has the advantage over the former in that a careful study is made (by a special committee appointed by the president none of whom are members of the board of directors), of the entire roster of the chamber and a selection is made of six names agreeable to all members of the committee.

Members who have been most active and interested in the chamber's program, or who, for their prestige and influence in the community, seem to be particularly well qualified to serve on the board of directors, are usually selected.

Possibly no better qualified board of directors could have been selected than were selected this year by the nominating committee. Under the primary system quite frequently men are elected because of their prestige and influence in the community without any consideration of their desires, interest or aptitude for participating in chamber affairs, and often many refusals are made. Last year no member refused to accept the nomination.

Monthly Business Survey

With regard to the monthly business survey, Henry D. Johnson, chairman of this committee says:

The need for a tabulation of facts of interest about the commercial and industrial progress from month to month and year to year has been expressed many times by different members of the organization. Many chambers have a whole fund of information of this character at their command.

With the hope of making a start in this direction, the first monthly business survey of Norwich was made in November. A special committee was appointed by President Larrabee and this committee has continued to obtain the necessary data from the banks, post office, public utilities, and city officials, so that a report has been possible each month.

The work has been co-ordinated with that of the state chamber in securing similar information from cities throughout Connecticut. Facts regarding building permits, gas and electric consumption, telephone installation, savings bank deposits, bank debits and post office receipts have been compiled and published monthly in The Chairman Magazine and by the state chamber.

Fire Prevention

Two thousand home inspection blanks were distributed and filled in by the school children, says Walter F. Lester, chairman of the fire prevention committee. This information was compiled in summary and referred to the fire department.

Our hundred and fifty Fire Prevention Week posters were displayed by the merchants; a fire prevention dinner, addressed by Major J. H. Howland of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, was held in October; a proclamation was issued by Mayor Mitlo R. Waters.

All of the foregoing comprised the major portion of the Fire Prevention Week program carried out through the efforts of a special fire prevention week committee.

We are fortunate in Norwich in having a fire chief who takes such a keen interest in the value of fire prevention work.

The Aviation Project

Mr. Lester, who is also chairman of the aviation committee reviews the activities of this committee as follows:

Aviation—that subject which is receiving such enthusiastic and aggressive consideration in communities all over the United States and particularly in New England, where the problems of locating suitable fields are much more difficult, was brought to a definite head in April when the board of directors authorized President Larrabee to appoint the aviation committee.

This committee has undertaken a comprehensive study of the problems involved. The work has been divided into four sections:

Compilation of data on available sites. Estimated equipment necessary and cost of development of these sites. The probable utility of an airport in Norwich based on its geographical location. Publicity program to increase local enthusiasm and consideration of the subject.

This committee has already devoted considerable time to the subject and has visited several sites. While it is felt that no definite move will be made immediately, a report will be made within a few months recommending definite action.

Solicitations Committee

Early in the year the president appointed a committee to consider application for approval of solicitations and program advertising. An unusual number of requests have been submitted for its consideration.

After careful study on the subject of program advertising, the committee declared themselves opposed to this type of investment, regardless of its nature.

A copy of their opinion and decision has been handed to every would-be solicitor of advertising.

Many projects involving the solicitations of funds and likewise proposals to solicit ads for programs, have been avoided through the careful work of this committee.

Outside of the Y. M. C. A., Salvation Army and similar well known local agencies which are generally approved in advance, the committee has endorsed only one fund raising project this year—that of the W. W. Backus hospital which recently campaigned for the benefits of their X-ray department.

Legislation

Reporting for his committee Nelson J. Ayling, chairman of the committee on legislation says:

Several bills pending before congress and referenda number 50 and 51 from the U. S. chamber of commerce, formed the program for the work of the legislative committees, during the year 1927-1928.

Subsequently their recommendations were considered by the board of directors. The chamber went on record as opposed to:

Federal taxation. Under referendum number 50, the chamber voted in favor of immediate reduction and repeal of the federal taxes.

Mississippi flood control number 54. The chamber went on record as opposed to the federal government absorbing the entire expense of the flood control in the Mississippi valley.

Railroad consolidation. The Fess-Parker bill, designed to remove obstacles to railroad consolidation met the approval of the officers.

Bill H. R. 6526. This bill met the approval of the chamber's committee. It sought to increase the allowance of retired war veterans to $30 per month instead of $15.75.

Swing-Johnson bill had to do with the government taking over the business of manufacturing and selling power in connection with the Boulder dam project. The committee went on record as opposed to government ownership of utilities.

Several meetings have been held and careful consideration and study made of each subject before reporting to the board.

A great deal of credit is due Charles V. James and Charles S. Eaton for the complete and thorough way in which they analyzed the two U. S. referenda referred to their respective committees.

Later during the year President Larrabee appointed a new committee who have since handled other legislative questions.

U. S. Veterans Hospital

There is also a report by the U. S. Veterans' hospital committee of which William G. Park is chairman. In his report, Mr. Park says:

Early in the spring, Senator Bingham asked the various communities in Connecticut that were interested in the proposed location of a new government hospital, to cost $1,000,000, to write to Major-General Hines in Washington, advising of sites which they recommended.

Accordingly, a special committee was appointed by President Larrabee to handle this matter for Norwich. Two or three meetings were held, attended by representatives of the government and owners of property of various sites and various members of the committee. The advantages of the Winslow Williams property in Yantic and the Gager property in Montville were brought to the attention of government officials by the committee.

The Gager property consists of about 200 acres, located on the Norwich-New London highway, about five miles from the city, has a good elevation, commands a magnificent view of the surrounding territory, and was priced at $20,000

The Winslow Williams property consisting of 360 acres, is located at the branch of the Willimantic-Colchester highways in Yantic, is handy to the Yantic station of the Central Vermont railroad and was priced at $27,500.

It is believed that both properties would admirably fill the requirements of the government.

FUNERALS

Miss Nellie Lucy

Many relatives and friends were present at the funeral of Miss Nellie Lucy, which was held Thursday morning at 8:15 o'clock at her home, No. 149 Cliff street, and at 9 o'clock there was a solemn high requiem mass at St. Mary's Memorial church. Rev. William A. Keefe was celebrant of the mass, the deacon was Rev. Frederick M. Coholan and the sub-deacon, Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault. Mrs. M. J. Farrell presided at the organ and at the offertory sang Pie Jesu. The waiting hymn was Jesus, Lover of My Soul, and at the recessional Mrs. Farrell played Chopin's "Funeral March.

The interment took place in the family plot at St. Mary's cemetery and Rev. Father Keefe conducted the committal service. The bearers were James and Patrick Hayes, James Wood, John Driscoll, Mathew Delaney and William Mahoney. There was a wealth of very beautiful floral tributes. Undertakers Cummings & Ring had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Dwight Hinckley Hough

A prayer service for the funeral of Mrs. Dwight Hinckley Hough, formerly of this city, was held Wednesday at Terrace View, Norfolk, Conn. The body was brought to Norwich Thursday and at 1 o'clock in the afternoon the burial took place in Johnson cemetery, Bozrah. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, conducted the service at the grave. The bearers were Arthur H. Patterson of Norfolk, a son-in-law; Horace I. Briggs of Providence, Leonard A. Hough of Norwich Town, a son, and Carl W. Brown of Gales Ferry. Relatives and friends were present at the burial, which was private.

Miss Mary Lyons

The funeral of Miss Mary Lyons was held Thursday morning at 9:15 o'clock at the home of her niece, Miss Mary Flynn, No. 58 Greene avenue, with a large attendance of relatives and friends, including mourners from New York, Boston, Hartford, Jewett City and other places. At 10 o'clock there was a solemn requiem mass at St. Patrick's church. The celebrant of the mass was Rev. Myles P. Galvin, the deacon was Rev. John J. Reilly and the sub-deacon was Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ. At the offertory, Roderick F. Sullivan sang De Profundis and as the waiting hymn the choir sang When Evening Comes, with chime accompaniment. The processional was Chopin's Funeral March and the recessional was Nearer, My God to Thee. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and the committal service was conducted by Rt. Rev. Msgr. May.

John T. Flynn of Hartford, James J. Flynn of Boston, Thomas F. Flynn of Detroit, Edward J. and Daniel F. Flynn of this city and William Riordan of New York city, were the bearers. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertakers Cummings & Ring had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Jerome F. Conant

There was a large attendance at the funeral of Jerome F. Conant, which was held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his home, No. 132 Broadway. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, conducted the service and the burial was in Maplewood cemetery. The bearers were Harry Sherman, Benjamin Lamphere, Paul Glasbrenner and Fred G. Thumm. Rev. Mr. Abbott conducted the committal service. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Henry G. Aurello

The funeral of Mrs. Henry G. Aurello was held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her home, No. 32 Peck street and the service was conducted by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and there were numerous and beautiful floral tributes. During the service, Mrs. Reuben P. Potter sang several hymns.

The burial was in Yantic cemetery and Rev. Dr. Pitt conducted the committal service. The bearers were Arthur P. Wyman, N. Eugene Smith, Emory H. Davis, Norman M. Collins, Warren F. Burt and Harold S. Burt. Undertakers Church & Allen had charge of the funeral arrangements.

ASHLEY T. BOON OBSERVES HIS EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

Ashley T. Boon, the well known locksmith, was 80 years old Thursday. Twenty of his friends helped him observe his birthday anniversary in the evening, at his home, No. 39 Franklin street. It was a surprise gathering and the evening proved a very pleasant one. Music and cards were followed by a birthday supper. There were two birthday cakes, one large one with 80 candles and a small one bearing the word "Eighty" and the figure "Eight," in frosting. The latter was a gift from the girls at the Providence bakery and the former was presented by Mr. and Mrs. John Bell.

ASHLEY T. BOON

At cards Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Crowell won the first prizes, John Bell won second gentleman's prize and Mrs. George Crosby the second ladies' prize. The consolation prizes were awarded Mr. Crosby and Mrs. George A. Hisley.

Mr. Boon is a life long resident of Norwich. He was born on Park street, October 11, 1848. He purchased his present home 65 years ago and has made his residence there since 1900. Mr. Boon is a prominent and active member of the Connecticut Spiritualist association and for years served the association as president. He is well known throughout the city and town and his many friends expressed the wish that they may have the privilege and honor of helping him celebrate his 100th birthday anniversary.

WEDDING

Storms-Wind

Miss Dorothy E. Wind, 2 Ethan Allen street, Worcester, daughter of Rev. H. Wilson Wind of Buffalo, N. Y., became the bride of Alfred Prentice Storms, 18 Dale street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Storms of Norwich, Conn., on Wednesday, Oct. 3, at 7 o'clock in the evening, in the Concordia Lutheran church, Worcester. Rev. W. J. Wiltenburg, pastor of the church and a brother-in-law of the bride, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. H. F. Wind, city missionary of Buffalo and brother of the bride. The church choir sang "O Perfect Love," by Barnby.

Members of the wedding party were: Matron of honor, Mrs. D. A. Kraft, New London, Conn., sister of the bride; maid of honor, Miss Christine Stephan of Worcester; flower girl, Miss Carol Wiltenburg, niece of the bride; best man, William P. Storms, brother of the bridegroom, and ushers, C. Leroy Storms of Roselle Park, N. J., and Rev. D. A. Kraft of New London.

The bride wore a bouffant model of ivory satin and lace with a full-length veil in duchess lace caught in a cap shape with orange blossoms. Her flowers were a sheaf of lilies.

Mrs. Kraft was gowned in a model of yellow taffeta and carried a sheaf of gladioli shading from pale yellow to deep orange. The maid of honor wore green taffeta and carried a sheaf of gladioli shading from pale pink to rose. The flower girl wore a ruffled frock of pink taffeta and carried a basket of variegated flowers.

Following the church ceremony, there was a reception in the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. W. J. Wiltenburg, 2 Ethan Allen street. On their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Storms and his bride will live at 3 Mt. Pleasant street, Worcester.

Miss Wind, whose home was formerly in Chicago, was a student at the University of Chicago. Mr. Storms is a graduate of Worcester Polytechnic institute, class of 1924, and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

KEPT LOOT IN "DUMMY'S" SHACK AT GARDNER LAKE

Walter E. Hubert and George E. MacFarlane of Montville and Willard La Clark of this city, who were arrested early in the week on the charge of burglary, have been bound over to the superior court from the East Haddam town court and are in Haddam jail to await trial.

The men were found by state police officers in a shack at Gardner Lake, which for long was the home of a deaf and dumb man known as "Dummy" Walden, who died several years ago.

It is believed these three young men are responsible for a number of breaks and thefts, the loot from which was found hidden away in the shack. These are the men, it is believed, who recently broke into the store of W. M. Sisson at North Plains. They are also believed to have stolen tools and an outboard motor from Arrigoni & Sons, contractors, who are doing road work.

"Married Life" Not Worth While

Blames Wives' "Nerves"

"Weak nerves," said a New York doctor recently, "in my estimation wreck more happily married lives than any other cause."

Besides making the sweetest disposition sour and irritable, nervousness is a terrible drain on your vital forces—it saps your youth and your strength and dulls your beauty. What a difference from the bright-eyed, vibrant girl he married. No wonder married life seems unbearable!

But you can get rid of your nervousness—speedily too—and become the steady-nerved, radiant woman you once were. Take a teaspoonful of Tanlac after meals and before going to bed and if it doesn't soon make a new woman of you—doesn't rid you of that tired, strained feeling—go back and get your money.

Go to your druggist now and get a bottle of Tanlac. Millions of folks have started back on the road to youth, health and happiness with this world famous tonic and there is no reason why you, too, can't begin today to rebuild your worn-out tissues and revitalize your entire system.

YALE TEAM IS BADLY HANDICAPPED WITH SICKNESS AND INJURIES

NEW YORK Oct. 11—(AP)—Injuries by the wholesale are handicapping Mal Stevens in his efforts to get his Yale eleven ready to repel boarders when Georgia invades New Haven this Saturday.

The Elis displayed plenty of faults in downing Maine in the opening game last week but so many of the first string men have been injured that Stevens has been unable to put his team through the scrimmages necessary to correct these mistakes. Only three of his first-string team are in a sound condition of health and so actual scrimmages have been out of the question. Unless there is an abrupt change for the better tomorrow Stevens will send his team against Georgia without a single practice scrimmage. Georgia, triumphant over the Bulldogs, 14-10 last year, goes to New Haven with a veteran aggregation and with high hopes of making it two in a row.

Bill Roper made two more changes in the Princeton lineup for the Virginia game, sending Jack Reguardt to one of the first string halfback posts in place of Frank Jones and Stew Hockenberry in Bob Moore's place at tackle.

A team of mediocrities at Harvard used Notre Dame plays against the varsity in a dummy scrimmage although most of the afternoon was spent drilling on fundamentals.

After the light running drill, the Navy squad, 27 strong, boarded a train for Chicago where Notre Dame is to be met at Soldier's field in one of the outstanding games of the week. Pitt, which crushes with West Virginia by another feature tray, took only a light workout.

Coach Hawley seems to think Dartmouth may be beaten by Allegheny. He held his warriors that the Pennsylvanians would be seven touchdowns stronger than Norwich which the Green defeated 39-6, last Saturday.

A shake-up in Pennsylvania's squad saw John Smith, one of the country's outstanding tackles last year, shunted to the second team, Gene Kuen, a Philadelphian, taking his place. At the same time, John Ball, of Wilmington, replaced Joe Olexy at one of the end positions. Pennsylvania meets a pretty good Swarthmore team next.

ABOUT $200,000 WILL BE REFUNDED TO THE FANS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—The world series was over today for everyone concerned except the business office of the Yankees. Clerks in the counting house of the world champions will be busy for weeks mailing checks to ticket holders for the unplayed sixth game.

The purchasers of box and reserved seat tickets for the game that would have been played in New York if the Cardinals had made it necessary will have their money refunded by sending their tickets in by registered mail.

The club will have to refund $200,000. Last year when the refund was made on the fifth game tickets, $170,000 was returned. The tickets began to arrive at the baseball offices today. Secretary E. G. Barrow reported "several bushels" already on hand. The rush will be made in about three weeks but the task will not be completed until the end of the winter if last year's experience may be regarded as typical.

Members of the world champion Yankees have asked that their official emblems of supremacy be wrist watches and in accordance with custom Baseball Commissioner Landis will present each player of the winning team with a watch, in addition to their checks. The watches will be purchased from the share of receipts set aside for the commissioner. In other years rings, watches and charms have been agreed upon.

Bob Shawkey, former Yankee pitcher now with Montreal in the International league, is in New York on his way to the Pacific coast to join Ty Cobb and other players in a tour of Japan. It was understood that several major league players wished to join Cobb on the invasion of the Orient but ran into the rule forbidding major leaguers playing after October. Five or six players will be in the party, not enough for a full team, and they will be distributed among contesting teams in Japan.

Announcement was made today at the Yankee baseball offices that there will be no public sale for the Army-Notre Dame football game at the Yankee stadium November 10. The Notre Dame and Army organizations have taken all the tickets. It has not yet been determined if there will be a public sale for the Army-Stanford game December 1.

O'BRIEN TAKES CLOSE DECISION FROM KONCHINA

HARTFORD, Oct. 11—(AP)—Frankie O'Brien fought strongly, to win Referee Billy Conway's decision over Frankie Konchina, of New York, in the feature ten-round bout of the opening indoor professional card at Foot Guard hall tonight. O'Brien used a one-two punch effectively, especially in the last three rounds. O'Brien weighed 136 1-2 and Konchina 137 1-2. Summary of the other bouts: Johnny Roberts, Springfield, 138 3-4, won on a technical knockout in the second round over Jack Slattery, 137 3-4, of New Haven; Mickey Travers, 138 1-2 of New Haven, won a decision over A. Mattera, 136 1-2, of Bristol, in six rounds; Frankie Marchese, 127 1-2, of New York, won on a technical knockout in the fourth round over Chris De Levo, 124, of Springfield; Vic Morley, 146 3-4, of Hartford, knocked out Billy Johnson, 151 1-2, of Deerfield, Mass., in the third round. Hop Wah, 120 1-2, of New York, won the decision over Del Pezzot, 119 1-2, of New Britain.

MEADOWBROOK WINS POLO TITLE OF UNITED STATES

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—The Meadow Brook four today won the United States open polo championship, defeating a crack army aggregation, 5 goals to 5, in the finals on International Field at the Meadow Brook club.

Winston Guest, back of the United States "big four" which defeated Argentina last week for the championship of the Americas, again played a leading role in Meadow Brook's victory. Playing at No. 2, he scored thrice as did C. V. Whitney, No. 1. Capt. C. H. Gerhardt was the high scorer for the Army four, tallying three goals.

The match not only was regarded as the final of the open championship but also as a preliminary match in the Monty Waterbury cup competition, a handicap affair. With its five goal handicap, the Army four was declared the victor in the cup competition, 10 goals to 8.

In another preliminary of the Waterbury cup play the Sands Point team defeated the Eastcotts, 12 goals to 11.

YALE OUT TO AVENGE 1927 DEFEAT BY GEORGIA

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 11—(AP)—Yale is expected to line up against the Georgia eleven Saturday without the aid of a single scrimmage session since the Maine game last week. This is the first time for years that the regular varsity squad will face a hard opponent without at least one scrimmage before the game.

Today it was necessary again to omit scrimmage on account of illness and injuries to the first string men. It had been planned by Coach Mal Stevens to put the regulars through intensive scrimmage sessions three days this week to iron out the weaknesses that showed up in the opening game last week with Maine. With all but three of his regular varsity squad out, either in the infirmary or on the sidelines with minor injuries, Stevens has had to forego any heavy workout. With the strength of the Georgia eleven that is composed of nearly all veterans of last year's squad, the eleven that beat Yale and the only one last year, Stevens faces a real conquest Saturday.

While Yale is not composed of green material this season, there are still a number of weak points that should be strengthened, but it is probable that the eleven that faces the Georgia gridders will enter the field without a single heavy workout or scrimmage as a unit.

The first team today had a light workout and Stevens contended himself with having the men kick and catch punts and passes. It is probable that the regular first string men will be able to enter the Georgia game Saturday, with the exception of Johnny Hoben, the quarterback. He will be laid up for at least another week. Today saw a semblance of the first string men at the light workout and McEwen and Oldt were back in uniform. The first team was made up as follows: Ends, McEwen and Oldt; tackles, Murting and Eddy; guards, Miner and Spiel; center, Charlesworth; quarterback, Ellis; halfbacks, Decker and Loud; fullback, Hubbard.

The services of Johnny Hoben will be sadly missed this week as he is the only passer Yale has this season. Ellis is fast but not as steady as Hoben in the aerial game.

RENE DEVOS DECISIVELY BEATS K. O. PHIL KAPLAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Rene Devos, Belgian middleweight, battered out a decisive victory over K. O. Phil Kaplan, one of the few remaining obstacles in his path toward a shot at the 160-pound crown. A sharp left hook spilled Kaplan for a count of two in the second round.

Kaplan fought gamely, smashing constantly at Devos' body, but could not match the punching power of the brilliant invader. The New York star ran into a barrage of head punches in the ninth and tenth rounds that rocked him and nearly closed both eyes.

Fighting for recognition in New York as the outstanding challenger for Mickey Walker's title, Devos displayed speed cleverness and punching power. The Belgian war veteran is matched to battle George Courtney here in a match to decide Walker's challenger. Devos weighed 160 1-2; Kaplan 161.

Maxie Rosenbloom, another New York middleweight, walloped Tiger Payne, Australian Negro, into defeat in a ten-round semi-final. Rosenbloom weighed 166; Payne 170.

Jackie Fields of Toronto won the decision from Mickey Terry of New York, in a six rounder. Each weighed 144. Joe Barlow of Boston, 174, nosed out Frank Morris of New York, 167 1-2, in the opening four-round bout.

LANDIS MAILS CHECKS TO VICTORIOUS YANKEES

CHICAGO Oct. 11—(AP)—Financial echoes of the world's series reverberated from the office of the baseball commissioner today as Kenesaw Mountain Landis signed over checks totaling $175,569.37 to the victorious New York Yanks.

The commissioner disposed of the Yankees' division of the spoils in checks ranging from $369, the amount given Mrs. Urban Shocker, widow of the former Yankee hurler, to $5,883.29 the sum received by 26 players, coaches and Manager Miller Huggins. From the bat boy to the mighty Babe Ruth there was something for all every player that figured in the Yankees' pennant climb was remembered. Wilcy Moore, the hero of the 1927 series, came in for a full share, although he was released before the close of the season because of a sore arm. Stanley Covaleskie, Albert Shealy and Rosy Ryan, who saw only part time service with the champions, were given half shares of $2,906.60, as did Mathews.

It was the largest cut ever received by a team winning the world series. Three-quarters shares, amounting to $4,359.90 were given to Mark Roth, traveling secretary, and Albert Woods, trainer.

Six clubhouse boys and the bat boy received $4,306 in amounts ranging from $750 to $1,000.

FORMER FOOTBALL STAR SENTENCED TO PRISON

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11—(AP)—Johnny Hawkins, former captain and quarterback of the University of Southern California football team today was sentenced to serve 5 to 75 years in San Quentin prison after pleading guilty to five counts of second degree burglary.

Hawkins made a plea of leniency declaring that an injury to his head, suffered in a football game four years ago had caused him to suffer daily headaches and was responsible for his burglaries.

After questioning Hawkins concerning circumstances of his first burglary the court denied the probation plea and imposed the sentence.

When Hawkins was arrested he led detectives to various caches of his loot, taken from more than a score of homes.

BROWN SQUAD HAS STIFF DRILL FOR DAYTON

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 11—(AP)—The Brown varsity football squad, preparing for an intersectional game with the University of Dayton here tomorrow afternoon, had a long dummy scrimmage today, with Tuss McLaughry's A and B teams, working on a defense against Dayton formations.

McLaughry is still undecided who he will start at quarterback against the Flyers, and today sent Dick Marsan, flashy sophomore halfback, on the field to pilot the first string eleven. Marsan is a fine receiver of forward passes and is a strong defensive player but has had no experience as quarterback.

The Dayton team is expected to arrive in Providence at noon tomorrow and will go immediately to the Brown stadium gridiron for a workout.

AGGIE TEAM OFF FOR GAME WITH MAINE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 11—The Connecticut Aggies terminated a short practice week with a signal drill this afternoon as the final preparation for the Maine university contest at Orono this Saturday. A squad of twenty-two players making up two full teams left this evening for Norwich from where they will entrain for the home of the Pine Staters.

The two first string elevens have completed a week of thorough drilling on the fundamentals of the forward passing attack and are confident of giving Maine close competition on that score. Head Coach Sumner A. Dole has also instituted in the week of practice a few new plays and formations that will be tried out against the strong Maine team that defeated the Nutmeggers last year by a close score of 14-12. The men who made the trip this evening are as follows:

Ends—Wilson, Tombari, Murphy and Goebel; tackles—Hawkins, Sayers, Levson and Chubbuck; guards—Colacurcio, Gilman, Ruffkess and Libutzke; centers—Knaut and Stangle; quarterbacks—Ryan and Lamoureux; backs—Fisher, McCoombs, Grout and Haversat; fullbacks—Flydal and Harger.

At the close of practice the team was found in excellent shape physically and Captain Sayers, especially, who had been on the injured list with a sprained back, is in condition to start against Maine. His inability to play would have been a hard blow on the Nutmeg chances because he is a highly inspiring leader when under action.

The game with Maine is each year one of the most objective of the season and proves a very close one as either team is just a mite better than the other is or much more luckier in the matter of "breaks" as was evident last year at Storrs. The Blue and White machine had a very good chance to tie the score at 14 all but on the kick for the extra point, one of the Aggie guards was off-side although the boot went clearly between the posts. The game between the two interstate elevens should prove one of the most interesting this week in that section of the east.

ELKINS SIGNS TO PLAY PRO FOOTBALL

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11—(AP)—Fait Elkins, former national decathlon champion, today signed a contract to play professional football with the Frankford Yellowjackets of the National league. He will play his first game on Saturday against the New York Yankees.

Elkins, who is a full-blooded Iroquois Indian, returned yesterday from Europe, where he had been on a barnstorming tour with members of the United States Olympic team. A pulled tendon prevented Elkins from participating in the Olympics.

Elkins was a star all-around athlete at Haskell university. He won the national decathlon championship in 1927.

HARVARD SQUAD HAS ONLY LIGHT WORKOUT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 11—(AP)—The Harvard football squad held a light workout today in preparation for Saturday's game with the University of North Carolina. As the southern college has been scouted, a team of ineligibles used North Carolina plays in a dummy scrimmage against the first team.

Punting fundamentals claimed a great deal of the afternoon. The kicking machine was used until Graves, a substitute halfback, hit it so hard he broke it.

It was definitely announced that Gidea Potter and Davis, all injured, have no chance of getting into Saturday's game, while Douglas, Dorman, Harper, Mason and Batchelder may see service for a few minutes.

YALE AND PRINCETON CLASS TEAMS TO PLAY

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 11—(AP)—A series of football games between the championship class teams of Princeton and Yale has been arranged with the first game to be played at New Haven Nov. 16 it was announced today. The series will be an annual affair and will be played each year at the college which is not the scene of the varsity encounter. No definite length has ben set for the series.

SHEIK LEONARD SCORES TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT OVER BERNIE McQUADE

Professional boxing returned to Norwich last night at Olympic hall after a lapse of two years, and although Ernest Fakoury did his best to give the local fans plenty of good boxing, the crowd was exceptionally thin. The card was scheduled for 38 rounds of boxing. Three bouts went the limit and the other three ended in knockouts. The return of Sheik Leonard to the ring and his K. O. of Bernie McQuade aroused the most interest of the evening, and although the blond haired boy did not show that he is the same Sheik that fought and beat the best in his class in the state a few short years ago, he fought a good, heady fight and looked very good in his comeback.

The other main go between "Tiger" Sylvia of Fall River and Eddie Paul of New London went the limit and Sylvia had no trouble drawing the decision. In the eight rather monotonous rounds, Sylvia just ducked, side-stepped and out-fought Paul to a fare-you-well. The Fall River lad fighting at 141 3-4 about four or five pounds over his regular poundage, took it easy a good part of the way, and could have fought Paul off his feet if he wished. He did drop the New London boy in the final round both times for no counts and easily won the fight.

The first bout lasted only about two minutes. Babe Janis of New London who has only recently turned pro dropped Johnny Ryan of Meriden with a right to the stomach after setting him down for a six counts. Ryan was wild swing, while Janis cool and collected crossed his hard right to the body, which was more than Ryan could stand. If Janis goes along as well as he did in the amateur ranks, he should be quite popular. Both boys weighed 130 pounds.

After a slow start in the first round, Vic Darr got to work and with his lefts and rights, which Johnny Debs of Worcester couldn't get away from, he drove the Worcester lad to the ropes in the third round and had him swaying and ready to drop when the towel saved him. Both lads took the first round to feel each other out. Both missed several wild swings, but one of Vic's caught Debs and set him down in the first round. Debs hopped right up, but just couldn't solve Darr's style, and was on the way to slumber land in the third. Vic weighed 134 and Debs 131.

Battling Eurk of Westerly took the lead in the first round and held it all the way against Young Belizel of Bridgeport, to win a verdict in the third round. With all his aggressiveness and hard punching he failed to even dent Belizal's pugnaciousness, and the latter was fighting back every minute. Eurk tipped the scales at 131 and the loser 127 1-2.

Rene Lubear of New Haven who has been going great guns in his three professional fights, two of which were fought against Norwich boys, Young Pecheeni and Young McCarthy, from whom he won both, had his hands full last night with tough Micky Roberts of Meriden. No matter how hard Lubear would drive in his rights Micky was right in there fighting back and just when it seemed that Roberts was about to go down he would tear into Lubear fighting harder than ever. Lubear won the decision all right, but he knew he had been in a fight. Roberts turned his ankle which tended to slow him up to some extent. This was a hard fought battle and one of the best, if not the best, on the card. Lubear weighed in at 128 and Roberts 126.

The Sheik at 150 pounds is some slower perhaps than he was at 145, but by using a good left jab and a hard right cross and by keeping on top of McQuade he finally dropped the Worcester lad three times in the fifth, and at the bell was sitting down in the middle of the ring quite some bewildered. Jigger McCarthy called a halt to save Mac from further punishment.

Sheik found McQuade a tough boy and a glutton for punishment, and made sure that the Worcester boy didn't get his hard right in too many times. His aggressiveness kept McQuade on the defensive and gave the blond boy the honors in every round. McQuade weighed 153 1-2.

There is no question who would be the winner if Eddie Paul and Eddie Corbett ever get together again. Those who saw them both facing each other in the last card at New London could guess the outcome if the fight had continued. "Tiger" Sylvia substituted for Corbett at the last minute and consequently had to come in over his fighting weight. But at that he easily won every round and with plenty to spare. He could have dropped Paul about any time if he wanted to, it seemed, but was content to outbox him. A better drawing card would be between Sylvia and Corbett. Paul weighed 141 3-4 and Sylvia 141 3-4.

Of all the losers the team of Fakoury and Burns took the worse beating. With two hundred and some odd paid admissions. They will have to get quite some better support to rehabilitate their treasury and their spirits. It seems to be some problem with the promoters how they can run pro fights in New London and make money and how amateur fights in Norwich will draw. But when they try to put on a card of pro fights here they just can't seem to get over the "hump" as it were.

GENARO SCORE TECHNICAL KAYO OVER BABY DOLL

WATERBURY, Oct. 11—(AP)—Mickey Genaro, of this city, defended his Connecticut junior lightweight title here tonight, when he scored a technical knockout over Baby Doll, also of this city in the main bout of Waterbury A. C. card at Buckingham hall. Referee Jack Watson, of Hartford stopped the bout in the fifth round to save Doll from further punishment. Genaro weighed 132 1-2, Doll 133 1-2.

Paul Sykes, of Jersey City, scored a decision over Silent Frank Moran, New Haven, in the six round semi-final. Sykes weighed 137, Moran 163.

Danny Curtin, of Jersey City, pounded out a six round decision over Tony Lucci, of Portland, Me., in another six rounder. Both weighed 137 pounds.

UNCASVILLE BOXING SHOW PUT OVER TO TUESDAY

Owing to the holiday, the amateur boxing show slated for Pappas hall, Uncasville, under the auspices of the Uncas club, this evening, has been postponed to Tuesday evening, Oct. 16. The matchmakers, Arthur Kumpf and Harold Talbot, have a fast collection of boys slated for the show and plenty of action is expected.

HARVARD HARRIERS WIN FROM HOLY CROSS TEAM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 11—(AP)—The Harvard varsity and freshman cross-country teams defeated the long distance runners of Holy Cross college here today. The varsity won, 18 to 38, and the freshmen, 20 to 43.

Capt. Jimmy Reid of Harvard won the varsity race over the five-mile course in 28 minutes and 56 seconds. The other point scorers finished as follows: Fiskiman, Harvard; Aldrich, Harvard; Madden, Holy Cross; Thatcher, Harvard; Casson, Holy Cross; Taurber, Harvard; Gatzenmaier, Holy Cross; Hyde, Harvard; Dean, Holy Cross, and Kiley, Holy Cross.

McGinley Wins

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 11—(AP)—Johnny McGinley, this city, tonight won a decision over Pancho Dencio, of the Philippine Islands in ten rounds.

Walter Lippman, of the New York World over WJZ and National Broadcasting chain at 10.30 p. m.

GOOD WEATHER ALONG COURSE OF THE "GRAF"

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Observers at the United States weather bureau here said tonight that reports from steamers in the North Atlantic indicated "pretty good" weather along the course of the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin between here and the Azores.

The fringe of a low pressure area east and north of Newfoundland may send rain into the airship's path, but that possibility is remote, they said. A blow to the eastward of Newfoundland is not widespread, ship reports indicated, and is not likely to extend to the southerly course the Zeppelin is to follow.

West of the Azores, along the 40th parallel and in the approximate course of the Zeppelin, the observers said, the weather is good, although opposing westerly winds prevail over the area between 40th and 50th parallels.

WAS ROBBED OF $5,000 IN JEWELRY AND HIS TROUSERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Minus his trousers, Bernard Edelstein, a jewelry salesman, rode up to a police station in a taxi-cab late today and reported he had been robbed of $5,000 in jewelry and his trousers and left blindfolded in a garage by two men.

Edelstein related he was on his way fro mhis home to the subway, to take the jewelry to a prospective buyer when a sedan drew up alongside him and a man ordered him, at the point of a pistol, into the machine. He said he was then blindfolded and robbed of a wallet containing the jewelry. The robbers left him in the garage after removing his trousers, he told police.

DR. ARTHUR T. HADLEY TO SUPPORT GOV. SMITH

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Chairman John J. Raskob, of the democratic national committee, made public tonight a letter from Dr. Arthur Twining Hadley, president emeritus of Yale university, in which he announced his decision to support Governor Smith because of "his courageous stand on the prohibition question," and his qualities of "a true statesman."

Five Million Pledged To Curtiss For Aeronautical Research

Glenn H. Curtiss, noted aviation pioneer, who it is reported will head a $5,000,000 project to re-establish in Hammondsport, N. Y., and experiment association for research in the field of aeronautics. The project will have a broader scope than the original association which was backed by the late Alexander Graham Bell. The old shop, where aviation got its start in 1902, will be re-constructed and used as a museum.

Burgess Bedtime Story

A Provoking Tail
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Who dot a warning fail to heed
For sympathy should never plead.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Reddy Fox never has had any love for Jimmy Skunk. The same is true of Mrs. Reddy. Just now they felt that they not only didn't have any love for Jimmy but that they hated him. Jimmy was badly upsetting their plans. Yes, sir, he was badly upsetting their plans. He was interfering. He had gone over and joined Johnny Chuck and Jerry and Mrs. Muskrat, one or more of whom they had hoped to catch. Now with Jimmy Skunk there, how could they possibly catch one of the others. They couldn't and they knew they couldn't. Mrs. Reddy had lost her temper and presently Reddy lost his.

"I have more than half a mind to kill you for this," he growled

Reddy drew nearer. He showed all his teeth in an ugly snarl. "I have more than half a mind to kill you for this!" he growled.

"Try it, do try it," replied Jimmy Skunk pleasantly, and that big plume of a tail of his stood up almost straight.

At the first movement of that tail Reddy backed away hastily. All his courage vanished. You see, Jimmy Skunk's tail is a signal flag and all the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows know the signals. When it was held as Jimmy was holding it then it was a warning to be heeded. Johnny Chuck laughed right out, which of course made Reddy more angry than ever.

Jimmy had been much surprised to find Jerry and Mrs. Muskrat up there in the carrot patch, so he inquired how they happened to be there. They told him how they had been flooded out, by the great rain, which had caused the Laughing Brook and the Singing Pool to overflow their banks. They told him too they had been hungry and now, due to the rising water, the nearest food supply had seemed to be these carrots.

"But now we want to get back to the water," said Jerry.

"Well, why don't you go?" inquired Jimmy.

Jerr, looked over at Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy. "How can we with those two ready to jump on us?" he protested.

Jimmy looked over at Reddy and Mrs. Reddy and his usually rather dull eyes twinkled. "I haven't anything in particular to do just now," said he. "I might go your way for a short distance if you don't object to my company. Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy don't seem to care for it much."

Johnny Chuck chuckled. "If you don't mind, I'll go along, too," said he. "Somehow I don't fancy being left behind with Reddy and Mrs. Reddy in their present temper. The four of us ought to have a very pleasant walk. What do you say, Jerry?"

"We'll be tickled to death to have your company, Johnny, and the company of Jimmy Skunk. Shall we start now?" said Jerry.

The others agreed. Jerry and Mrs. Muskrat were in such a hurry that they began to run. Now Jimmy Skunk almost never runs. He didn't run now. He just ambled along behind and Johnny Chuck stayed with him. Reddy and Mrs. Reddy were quick to see this separation of the friends and they started to circle around, one on one side and one on the other. You see, they hoped that Jerry and Mrs. Muskrat would get so far ahead that there would be nothing to fear from Jimmy Skunk. Johnny Chuck whistled sharply. Jerry Muskrat heard it and stopped and so did Mrs. Muskrat. Jimmy Skunk began to shuffle over toward Reddy Fox and once more Jimmy's tail began to go up. It was a most provoking tail. At least, that was the way Reddy Fox regarded it. Reddy stopped and came no nearer, not even when the funny little procession moved on again. He couldn't keep his eyes off that provoking tail. You see, that tail meant so much—so very much.

"LILAC TIME"

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

Callers at Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood's Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bitgood and daughter, Lila, of Pachaug, Lawyer Charles James and wife and three children of Norwich. Mr. and Mrs. Bitgood had not seen Mr. James for a long while. They were well acquainted with his father, grandfather and great grandfather. They lived at one time in the neighborhood where Mr. and Mrs. Bitgood live.

Mr. and Mrs. James Congdon had over the week end Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Congdon and son, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Congdon and son and Ethel Congdon of Jewett City and Bernie Congdon of Plainfield.

Winifred Moran is back with Jefferson Barber again.

George Green and grandson, Herbert August, spent the evening recently at Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood's. He took his violin with him and they had some nice music. Mr. Green gets there just the same.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tanner of Voluntown called on Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood Monday. Mrs. Tanner is looking fine.

Mr. Hikeman of Beach Pond was at Mr. Bitgood's cider mill recently with apples.

James Church was at Oneco Sunday calling on Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington. While there he and Mr. Remington went to Moosup.

Joel Barber and Clifford Bugbee of Jewett City were at William Bitgood's Tuesday evening and put in a new battery in his radio.

Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway of River Point, R. I., called at Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington Sunday.

Elisha Bitgood and daughter, Evelyn, and Mrs. Emma Chaffee and three children of Hope Valley, visited with his aunt, Mrs. Kenyon, and sister Bernie Bitgood on Sterling Hill Sunday.

Wedding bells have been ringing at Oneco this week but don't hear any at Voluntown. Guess the rope has worn out so can't ring it. Am sorry, would have liked to have heard them ring once more.

UNION

BUILDING LOG CABIN ON THE HILLSIDE

John M. Wells of Southbridge, Mass., is building a log cabin near the cabin which his father erected a few years ago in the hillside, southwest of the Capt. Chauncey Paul homestead. The new cabin is to be 26x40 feet and the workmen come from Maine, up near the Canadian border. The foreman, Ira Sesley, is the man who built the first cabin on the hillside. Work started on the John M. Wells cabin this week, and it is expected the building will be covered by next week.

Sunday last Rev. Henry A. Coolidge began holding evening services at 7 o'clock in the North Ashford church. The church has been closed for quite a long period. Mr. Coolidge has a very busy Sunday as he holds morning service and has a Sunday school class here in Union, goes to Westford for Sunday school and afternoon service and then to North Ashford for evening service.

Mr. and Mrs. William Crawford of Lexington, Mass., have been guests at the Thayer homestead.

Mrs. Louisa Thayer, Mrs. C. A. Proulx Mrs. Ann Young and Harold Linsley have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peck in South Lyme.

Miss Julia Heck made her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Heck, a short visit and returned to be on duty at Springfield hospital Sunday afternoon.

PRESTON

The grange held its meeting Tuesday evening with Worthy Master Muttart in the chair. The lecturer's program was in charge of Brother John Holdwell and was as follows: Song by grange; piano solo, Doris Crary; stereopticon lecture by Prof. Knight of Storrs on Water at the Kitchen Sink; talk, Brother J. Kellogg Hall, on The Advantages and Disadvantages of the Tuberculin Test. It was announced that the next meeting would be Neighbors' night, with Myrtle and Franklin granges giving the program. Visitors were present from Pachaug. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Hall, accompanied by Miss Jessie Hyde of Norwich, motored to Meriden Tuesday and were guests of Miss Ethel Havers.

Miss Alice Palmer is at Stonington, caring for her uncle, Charles Davis. Mr. Davis was a former resident of this town and friends here are glad to learn that he is improving, following his serious illness.

An interesting program being arranged for the C. E. social to be held Friday evening includes an historical pageant appropriate for Columbus day.

EKONK

(STERLING HILL)

There was no session of school Friday, to enable the teacher to attend an institute in Lisbon.

There was a good attendance at the annual agricultural institute held in Ekonk Grange hall Thursday, Oct. 4th. All enjoyed the program.

Those from here who attended the 100th anniversary of the founding of Packer church Monday were Enoch Douglas, Florence Douglas, Edward Freeman, Mrs. John Frink, Mrs. Emma Love, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Gallup and Mrs. Byron Gallup.

Enoch Douglas is making repairs to and having his house painted.

Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Frink attended Brockton fair Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Frink called on Mr. Frink's sister, Mrs. John Place, in Greene, R. I., Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gallup were recent visitors in Danielson.

DANIELSON

DEMOCRATS NOMINATE GALLUP AND HALL REPRESENTATIVES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 11—The democrats of Killingly nominated John W. Gallup of Dameson and Amos E. Hall of South Killingly as their candidates for representatives at the party caucus in the town hall tonight. The caucus endorsed the nomination of Judge Sabin S. Russell, republican nominee, to succeed himself as judge of probate. The justices of peace nominated were Arthur Vlenn, Frederick E. Bitgood, Clayton F. Wright, Stephen Douglass, Patrick Riley, John Welch, John Z. LaBell, John Higgins, Henry H. Oatley and Arthur A. Wells. F. E. Bitgood was chairman of the meeting and A. J. Cavanaugh of Dayville was clerk.

After the caucus there was general exodus of local democrats to attend the big party rally being held in Putnam.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING TO APPOINT AUDITOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 11—Holding a special town meeting this afternoon, the selectmen of Killingly arranged for a special town meeting to be held on Friday of next week to pass upon a petition for the appointment of an auditor outside of the official family of the town to go over the town records, and to make an appropriation to meet the cost of such an audit.

It will be recalled that numerous persons signed a petition for such a special town meeting a few weeks ago and desired that it be held during the week just preceding the annual town meeting. That particular petition started a series of explanations from various members of the board of selectmen as to why the meeting was not called in respect to the wish of the petitioning citizens, but that is a matter that is now over the dam and needs no elaboration here in view of the fact that these citizens will have their wish on Friday of next week.

It has never been clear to the public at large by the petitioners or the spokesmen for them just why a special audit of the town accounts is desired, but that matter likely will be adequately explained to the voters present in the special town meeting next week. It may be made a part of the record, however, that up to now no opposition to such an audit has made itself manifest, and likely the only opposition that may arise will be due to the cost of carrying it out. Someone, it was agreed this afternoon, will request the petitioners to justify their demand that the town spend a very considerable sum of money to follow up the reports of the town auditors and town accountants in rechecks of the reports they submitted to the citzens in the annual reports, in printed form, distributed at the annual town meeting.

This afternoon at the South cemetery in Brooklyn a committal service was conducted for Arthur J. Morton, 78, by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church, Danielson. Mr. Morton died October 6, at Morganton, N. C. He was a resident of Brooklyn many years ago and for a long time had been in the south. The bearers were E. M. M. Marlor, Judge Oscar F. Atwood, Waldo E. Tillinghast and Ray Whipple, A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Last evening W. Arthur Barnard was elected commander of Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, at the annual election of officers. The other officers for the ensuing year are: First vice-commander, Joseph Beaudoin; second vice commander, William Harrington; finance officer, Alfred L. Reed; chaplain, Joseph Cudworth; post service officer, Lieut. Ira A. Warren; sergeant-at-arms, Nicandro Mazzarelli; executive committee, Joseph Cudworth, Charles Reynolds and Walter Pester; auditors, Bernard Casey, Ira A. Warren and Almon Grenon.

John M. Dowe was named as a member of the committee of arrangements for the community Christmas tree party and other activities that are annually sponsored by the Legion at holiday time. The post also has planned an Armistice day dance.

In the town court this morning Peter Anis of Lewis boulevard was assessed one of the heaviest penalties imposed here in a long time for violation of the liquor laws. Annis, at whose home a raid was conducted by state officers and intoxicants seized last Saturday night, pleaded guilty to keeping with intent to sell and with an actual sale. He was fined $200 on one count and $100 additional on the other count, and costs, by Judge W. Fenner Woodward. Annis made a court appearance about fiv years ago for violation of the liquor laws.

Only one application for attendance at an evening school has been received by Supt. W. E. Parker of Killingly's schools. During September Supt Parker made known through the press that applications would be received from persons who wished to attend an evening school. The solitary response resulted It may be taken from this that there is no great interest in maintaining such a school here during the present fall and coming winter, and such a school cannot be started unless a sufficient number will attend to warrant the expense.

Fire Marshal A. P. Woodward has his inspection of the business section about 80 per cent. completed, as to health and fire hazards. He said this morning that he was agreeably surprised at the general conditions found, and evidence that many are cooperating to keep their premises in order. Mr. Woodward will continue to make inspections until he has covered every piece of property in the borough limits. Residential sections are to ge inspected after the work is complete in the business district. The present inspection is the first and is to be regularly followed by others.

Charles T. Thayer of Putnam is at the head of a crew of employes of the Southern New England Telephone company that is to go through the territory of the Danielson division cutting away limbs and clearing lines of other obstructions. Similar work has been underway in the Putnam division for a number of months. What is to be done is in the interest of better service for telephone subscribers, inasmuch as the material that is to be removed will clear lines and make them less noisy.

Fire in a construction shack of the Arborio company near Main street where the new Providence cut-off starts out caused an alarm to be pulled in from Box 25 at 1.50 this afternoon The firemen used extinguishers in overcoming the blaze, which made no great progress. It is understood that some oil that had ben stored in the building was removed before the fire could reach it. The recall sounded at 2 p. m.

It was said here today that an effort will be made the coming spring to urge upon the interested parties—the state of Connecticut, the town of Killingly and the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company—the undertaking of the long deferred project of improving Railroad street northward to the Hutchins street crossing. This matter has been "in the works" for several years. The railroad becomes interested because it represents an opportunity to eliminate a dangerous grade crossing at no great expense. The Hutchins street crossing is not used a great deal, but there is danger of serious accidents there, as there have been in the past, for it is of the "blind" type and has been stated to go for a long time. The state's interest lies in the fact that a better approach for the armory is desired, and the town comes in through responsibility for the proper condition of its streets and highways.

Fire hose that has been in use for the past fortnight at a dump on Mechanic street to which the fire department was twice called out was rolled up and returned to the central station today.

Collector Sidney H. Perry said today that he received $23,000 in tax payments on borough property up to the time limit for paying yesterday This year's rate book calls for collection totaling $26,000, so Mr. Perry's showing to date is an exceptionally good one, equal to the best records of the past up to this time of year.

The selectmen and town clerk look forward to a hard day next Saturday when new voters will be admitted in the town of Killingly. The officials expect to be busy from morning until 8 o'clock at night.

With the coming of early darkness there is a renewal of complaints from motorists and pedestrians about owners of bicycles riding the machines on sidewalks and riding them without lights.

Louis Wold of Boston has been spending a few days visiting with friends in Danielson.

Delinquent taxpayers are receiving from Town Collector James R. Walsh statements as to the interest that will be charged them under the 1927 lien law as follows: First six months at the rate of 9 per cent.; second six months at the rate of 10 per cent.; after one year at the rate of 12 per cent. Under the first six months arrangements interest charges will be due October 16.

JEWETT CITY

ELECTRIC SHORT CIRCUIT BURNS JOHN HANSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 11—John Hanson is suffering from burns on both hands, and his eyes are affected, by being burned with electricity. He was at work in the Ninigret Co., mills this morning about half past one, when he started to investigate a short circuit on a warper. As he could not find the trouble there, he went to where the main line enters and when he opened the box, he was nearly knocked off the stepladder by a burst of flame. The short circuit caused the main switch at the substation to kick out and the whole borough system went out of business, until the trouble was located.

MRS. EARL M. SWIFT DIES FROM CEREBRAL HEMORRHAGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 11—This community was shocked Thursday at the news of the sudden death of Mrs. Helen Brown Swift, widow of Earl Myron Swift. She appeared to be in her usual health in the morning, but died in the afternoon from cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Swift was born in Griswold, the daughter of Shepard and Martha Browning Brown. She was for years a teacher in the grammar school when it was located on Soule street. She married Earl M. Swift, principal of the schools for twenty-five years, he having passed away nearly twenty-one years ago. Mrs. Swift was a member of the Baptist church and its organization, being particularly devoted to its missionary interests. She was one of the prominent women of the church, giving her most devoted attention to all its affairs. She was a woman of keen business acumen, her advice often being sought and was one who never failed to give her best thoughts for the welfare of others.

In her family relationships, she will be missed more than in any other place as she has given her unstinted devotion to the welfare of many relatives. Mrs. Swift had travelled widely in this country and abroad.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Lydia Church of Jewett City, two nieces, Mrs. A. D. Tripp of Jewett City and Mrs. Walter Truesdell of Summit, N. J., and by four nephews, Benjamin H. Palmer and Shepard B. Palmer of Norwich, Shepard and Arnold Brown of Malden, Mass. Mrs. E. H. Hiscox of Jewett City is a step-daughter and Arthur E. Swift of Providence a stepson.

NORWICH MAN IS CUT WHEN CAR OVERTURNS

Francis J. Brennan of Norwich was driving his Overland machine from Glasgo to Norwich, early Wednesday evening, when in turning the corner at the top of Gardiner hill, the car ran up on the bank and upset. Mrs. Brennan was thrown out, and had a cut on her left temple, and scalp which required three stitches by Dr H. T. Thurber at his office in Voluntown. The other three occupants of the machine were not injured. The machine was towed to the Adams Motor Co garage.

Rev. E. P. Ayer of Branford is expected to occupy the pulpit at the Congregational church Sunday morning and evening. The pastor of the church will be in Plymouth.

Next Sunday in all the churches, offerings for the Red Cross will be received. At the Baptist church all the money not in the envelopes will be given to the Red Cross for the relief of the Porto Rico hurricane sufferers. October 21st, there will be an offering received for distinctly Baptist losses in Porto Rico, 17 chapels, 2 parsonages and 1 rest have have been destroyed, with a loss of $50,000.

PUTNAM

MRS. AZUD GETS LIGHT FINE FOR LIQUOR VIOLATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, September 11 — Mrs. Susan Azud, a home brewer of Mechanicsville, after a raid had been conducted at her farm in that village yesterday afternoon by State Trooper Donald E. Geddes and Patrolman Joseph Page of the Putnam police, was before Justice P. P. Tourtellotte of North Grosvernnale this afternoon and pleaded guilty to a charge of reputation.

She was defended in court by Attorney Irving H. Miron, who succeeded in having her released with a slight fine of $10 and costs of $22.

Mrs. Azud, it is alleged, has been manufacturing her intoxicating products for several months and through the past summer months has had many sales, as she was successful in running through a police gauntlet during that time, but failed to escape Wednesday as the Danielson state policeman accompanied by the local officer swoped upon the Azud home and took possession of all alcoholic beverages made and those about to be brewed.

Though a telephone conversation Wednesday evening the name of Representative William E. Pechie, nominated by the republicans at their caucus last evening was misinterpered and appeared in this column Thursday morning as William P. Shea. Friends of Mr. Pechie requested this correction today. Mr. Pechie if elected this fall will enter upon his third term as a legislator from Putnam.

An injunction was served Monday morning on the newly organized Worcester-Norwich-Putnam bus transportation company which began operations over that line about a week ago. It is alleged that the line commenced operation over a route for a franchise held by another corporation making regular trips.

Frederic Parker of Lynn, Mass., has been appointed as junior drafting instructor at the State trade school in Putnam. Mr. Parker is an experienced engineer, receiving his training at the General Electric company in Lynn, in the engineering course and has had several years experience in drafting and machine designing and comes with a good preparation. With this addition to the staff the school will be better enabled to carry on in a practical manner the subjects related to the various trades being taught. Mr. Parker will be detailed to the machine shop and electrical drafting.

Friday, October 12, will be observed throughout the country as Columbus Day. Although this day has been called to the attention of the general public through a proclamation of the governor it is not a legal holiday and will warrant no general suspension of business within the town, with the exception of the banks.

An announcement was received from Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin this afternoon, stating that the public schools all over the city will close at the end of the morning session, in observance of the discovery of a new continent by Christopher Columbus.

The first meeting of the Yale university extension course, being conducted by the teachers of Putnam, was successful, as there were 45 scholars who had enrolled for the lectures to be delivered by the Yale professors. The first lecture was on Tuesday afternoon and was delivered by Dr. Alfred D. Mueller of Worcester state normal school, who for a number of years has been a Yale doctor and educator. His subject was "Psychological Principles of Teaching."

In addition to the number of teachers from Putnam, there were a number from North Grosvernnale, Pomfret and several of the nuns from St. Mary's parochial school and from St. Joseph's parochial school in North Grosvernnale.

The pupils of the sixth grade of the Israel Putnam school have within their number three youths who have recently returned from distant points both at home and abroad. Miss Marion Seder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seder of Grove street, with her parents was afforded a visit to the southlands of Florida during the blustry winter months of 1928. Henry Tuttle of Sunnyside avenue, with his mother Mrs. Wallace Tuttle has just returned from a trip to Colorado. The farthest globe trotter is Miss Florence Shann of School street, who returned in June from an extended tour of England. All three students have furnished their classmates with literature and travelogues of their trips.

Manager Daniel Trudeau of the Putnam Sporting club said today that he had been informed that a settlement is to be reached with the state boxing officials by the national A. A. U. and may result in the boxing cards being resumed in Putnam within the month. The Putnam Sporting club, when organized about two years ago, became affiliated with the Amateur Athletic union and was forced to suspend business and shows when the state boxing commission dispensed with the A. A. U.'s boxing board in this state, because of a death caused in Middletown several months ago, alleged to be been due to illegal boxing.

The commission on revision and codification of the school laws is to assemble in this city on October 15, for a public hearing for the purpose of hearing the recommendations of the citizens of this community so that their ideas may be contained in the revised code of school laws when they are presented to the next session of general assembly to be held in January 1929.

A letter has been received by Superintendent of Schools Leon N. Farrin, from State Commissioner of Education A. B. Meredith, inviting any number of citizens interested in the matter to be present at Putnam high school auditorium on October 15, to give any suggestions, offer criticisms, and to make any recommendations that might assist the committee codifying the state school laws.

William M. Citron of Middletown, minority leader of the house, who was slated to appear on Providence street this noon-time, in the heart of the city's textile industries and deliver a soap box oration to the textile workers as they were returning to the labor from lunch failed to be present Mr. Citron was unable to appear however, due to trouble he experienced with his automobile, somewhere between Putnam and Willimantic. The democratic town committee, who were prepared to give the firey campaigner a rousing welcome, announced the cause of his delay and stated that Citron would speak in Putnam to the textile workers on next Monday afternoon.

Judge Henry N. Benoit of the Putnam probate court, will be unopposed for office in the town fall elections it was said in democratic circles this afternoon, as the party leaders at their caucus will endorse the republican office holder at their caucus, who has already received the nomination of his party.

Many interesting facts concerning summer traffic over Connecticut highways are revealed in traffic checks taken on Connecticut bridges by the state highway department, and made public today by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. Salient among the highlights revealed in the traffic statistics is the fact that during the summer months, the Boston Post road between New Haven and Bridgeport is used by more than 20,000 cars per day!

The Post road figures show that at the beginning of the touring season in the early part of May, the number of cars passing over the Washington bridge connecting Milford and Stratford over the Naugatuck river, is about 11,490. This total gradually increases until the peak of summer traffic arrives on the Sunday preceding Labor day, on which day the total number of vehicles passing over the bridge was 21,415!

On the ordinary mid-week day in August, traffic attains its peak on the Post road between 8 and 9 o'clock in the evening during which hour about 1,800 cars pass, nearly 60 per cent of which are headed eastward in the direction of New Haven. Between the hours of 2 and 11 p. m. on the ordinary August day more than 100,000 cars per hour pass over the bridge The balance of traffic on the ordinary day runs slightly eastward, or toward New Haven. There is a vast difference on the Labor day Sabbath, however The peak arrives between 5 and 6 in the afternoon with an hourly total of 2,200 cars, nearly 60 per cent of which are headed west toward New York. On that day, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. the hourly total is between 1,000 and 2,000 vehicles, while from 3 to 8 p. m. it rises between 2,000 and 3,000 and from 8 p. m. to 1 a. m. it is more than 1,000 every hour.

Traffic checks over the bridge during the wee hours plainly show that many people take advantage of the Labor day rest to remain out most of the night before. Ordinarily at 2 a. m. the hourly total is about 125 cars the total dwindling to 77 cars between 3 and 4 a. m. On the night preceding the holiday, nearly 500 cars are passing at 2 o'clock and 400 or more during every hour of the night.

The Post road traffic over the Thames river bridge at New London passes at a rate of 10,200 cars per day during the summer months. The trend both on the normal and abnormal day is westward, that is toward Connecticut rather than toward Rhode Island. Ordinarily the summer traffic reaches its peak over the Thames between 4 and 5 p. m. with slightly more than 900 cars per hour On the Labor day Sunday, the peak came much earlier between 2 and 3 o'clock with 1,234 cars passing. A total of 15,148 vehicles passed the checkers that day.

At the Savbrook-Lyme bridge the average daily summer traffic is 5,200 cars showing that much of the Thames river bridge traffic stops in New London. The Savbrook-Lyme Post road peak is an hour earlier than New London's on the normal day, and two hours later on the abnormal day The trend is westward toward New Haven and New York on both days.

The Haddam-East Haddam bridge over the Connecticut river carries about 1,300 cars a day during the summer. While its peak is constantly between 4 and 5 p. m. its peak hour traffic more than doubles before the holiday.

About 5,700 cars pass over the Middletown-Portland bridge each August day and the total rises to 8,200 on the holiday eve. The peak comes between 7 and 8 at night with the flow of traffic evenly balanced On the big Sabbath, the peak occurs between 5 and 6 with a total of 860 vehicles and with the trend toward Middletown.

The Westport bridge over the Naugatuck river was checked over 12 instead of 24 hour periods. This span, also on the Post road is passed by an average of 11,000 vehicles between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m on summer days. The total on Labor day Sunday was 16,945 and the peak between 6 and 7 was 934 cars as compared with an ordinary 5 to 6 peak of 617. It is probable that on a 24 hour basis the traffic on this part of the Post road is equal to that between New Haven and Bridgeport.

Despite the difference between the peak hours in various parts of the state, the average of the peak hours on all bridges shows that in general traffic reaches its crux between 4.40 and 5.40 p. m. and that on the peak day of the year the peak hour is only ten minutes earlier.

Men! Dandruff Makes You Bald

Try This Sure, Easy Way To Clean Your Scalp and Stop Falling Hair

Dandruff chokes the hair and kills it. It combines with the oily secretions of the scalp and forms a sticky scummy mass that fits the head like a cap and causes unnatural sweating that rots the hair and makes it fall out.

Parisian Sage is the one quick acting hair and scalp treatment you can depend on to rid your scalp of dandruff. It ends itching at once—stops falling hair and is guaranteed to destroy dandruff or money back.

Parisian Sage is an invigorating, stimulating tonic that nourishes and promotes the growth of live hair — neither sticky or oily and not a dye. There is no substitute for this guaranteed hair and scalp treatment so be sure to get Parisian Sage today from Lee & Osgood Co. or your nearest drug or toilet counter.

THE BEST MONTH OF THE YEAR

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

My eastern windows look out across the meadow floor of a narrow valley against the face of a 2000 feet high mountain range.

Like most mountain ranges, this one does not rise sheer from the flat lands, like a huge furrow turned up by some giant's plow. It thrusts out before it foot-hills, breaking the straight line and sometimes projecting quite a distance into the meadow.

Such a foot-hill lies directly in front of me as I write. It, like the mountain which climbs behind and above it, is covered with forest trees, mostly hardwoods. A few of them have begun to show slight tinges of autumn yellow but most are still as green as during the summer. They are like a covering breastwork thrown out in front of the main mountain mass.

By some chance of nature a tall, slim swamp maple has grown up in the front rank of trees and, as nearly as my eye can judge at their very center. Unlike the tougher oaks and hickories behind, it has felt the touch of frosty October's fingers and has bourgeoned out into the mass of vivid scarlet. Even this color is accentuated by the contrast which it makes with the green forest mass behind it. It fairly dominates the whole landscape, not so much by its size—for many of the other trees are taller—but by the almost dazzling glory of its color.

At times it makes me think of a gorgeously-uniformed captain stiffly at attention before his massed company. At other times I seem to see in it a fixed flame burning out his own life, to be sure, but not endangering anything else. And, at other times, my imagination pictures it as a candle of God, lit at the entrance of His woodsy temple, to give warning of the approach of dark and dreary winter.

It will be only a few days, now, before the other trees will take on their characteristic fall dyes of orange and yellow and red or purple, thus dulling the present vivid contrast. It will be only a few days, too, before the slim maple's own scarlet dress will drop away from it, leaving it stark and bare, colorless and apparently lifeless.

Sic transit gloria mundi; so shall pass, one by one, here and there, on Lantern hill or Avon mountain as well as on my Taconics, the glory of October.

But, while it lasts, he must have a sadly impoverished soul who is not uplifted in some degree by its beauty.

Some years ago a neighbor had as visitors about this time of the fall, two farmer cousins from Nebraska. It was their first trip to the east. They had been born and reared on a corn and wheat ranch of the prairies, a country without hills, almost stoneless, and with only a few river-fringed cottonwoods for trees. Our multicolored forests were a revelation to them. Morning after morning they used to be up with the first rays of the sun to make pilgrimage down the country road to a stretch from which the mountain shrine was most clearly visible. Up and down it they would walk, sometimes for hours, seldom speaking but absorbing silently something of the magnificence with which nature was arraying itself for its last hours and, I am sure, devoutly worshiping the great Creator of beauty.

They had always theretofore thought of God as the gracious giver of goodly harvests. They had not thought of Him as also the Master Painter whose colors no artist's easel has ever yet rivalled.

As I think I have mentioned at various times, most of the old farms in this secluded valley have passed into the hands of city owners. These owners proceed at once upon taking possession to make over the old farmhouses into a near imitations of city flats or suburban cottages as possible. They turn the homely gardens into flower parterres. They roll and barber and manicure the meadows into tennis courts or croquet grounds or golf courses. They come up and swelter with us through the heats of July and August and then, as soon as kindly autumn has begun to temper the torridity and put a little tang into the air and start opening its annual beauty parlor, they pack up, shutter the windows of their imitation villas and chalets, and hike back to their city hives.

They talk glibly about the "bee-yew-tiful summer days," and turn their backs unconcernedly upon the grander and nobler realities of autumn.

It is "the thing to do," and they do it, thereby casting grave suspicion upon their own sincerity and even graver doubt upon the character of their own tastes.

It is curious—would be amusing if it were not so irritating—to note how many people, having eyes to see, seemable to see nothing except the backs of the leaders whom they slavishly follow into no matter what fad or folly.

I never saw an honest country-lover who actually enjoyed the par-boiling heats of mid-summer. Nor did I ever see one who was thoroughly happy in the grip of a mid-winter blizzard.

Nor can I remember ever knowing one who wasn't likely to start raving any minute over the unequalled glories and delights of a country autumn.

You and I, fellow-farmer, are too apt to look at things from the other side, which is equally wrong. We think of summer as a time to sweat and stew in our baking fields. We dread the coming of winter as a time when we are compelled to hug the old stove or wallow our hands working up refractory stove-wood or wallow our way to cold barns through swirling snow drifts.

And we look on the fall as simply a hurry-up harvest time, when we must work hard and late to save and garner the crops on which our winter survival depends.

Our occupation tends to stoop our shoulders and bend our backs and focus our eyes on the dirt underfoot. All the more reason why, as a mere chance of physical and mental attitude, we should at times square our shoulders and straighten up our backs and lift our eyes from the soil whence come our potatoes to the hills whence cometh our strength.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." All grubbing and grasping turns what might have been men into dudeilts.

If eyes were made for seeing,
Then beauty is its own excuse for being."

Those words were written not only by a fine poet but by the greatest philosopher America has thus far produced.

Because one is a farmer and has, perforce, to work dirt to get his living, does not mean that he must lower himself towards the level of the angle-worm which also works dirt for a living—and knows no other function of life.

We all of us get our hands dirty pulling weeds or digging potatoes or husking smutty corn. But we usually wash them before we sit down to eat. Our souls are likewise apt to get soiled in our enforced struggle with the sordidnesses of existence. So much the greater reason why we should open them to the clean airs of heaven for an occasional sweetening.

"What is so rare as a day in June?" asked Lowell, the poet. Well, if old John Farmer may be permitted to answer, he will say: "A day in New England's October." Then, if ever, come perfect days." The oppressive heats of summer are tempered by cool airs from the north lands. Yet the icy chill of polar winds hasn't arrived. It is usually—not always but usually—the finest month of the year. The skies are apt to be clear and sunny. The air is bracing and refreshing. The nights are cool but not cold. The sun rises through portals of roseate splendor and sets behind western gates of glory. The harvest fields are yellow in rich maturity. And every forest is robed in raiment of scarlet and purple and green and gold.

All for us who make the country our home and who love it, despite all its tantrums and all its too-often-recounted disadvantages.

Our farms aren't simply so many acres of soil, to be enriched for the growing of cabbages. They are reservoirs from which we may, if we will, enrich our own souls.

And really, no matter what one's religious belief or disbelief, no one will dispute that a man's soul is of more importance than his stomach. A resplendent spirit is worth more than even a full belly. More to the world at large; more to its personal owner.

You won't think me transcendental and hifalutin' in saying so, for you know that, over and over again, I have admitted and defended the necessity of having a sound physical sub-structure on which to build any tower of aspiration. We have to spread manure and plow and hoe dirt to keep soul and body together. But what's the use of keeping them together if the higher part is to be ignored, forgotten subordinated to the mere task of feeding the lower?

Old Man Waterhouse, my neighbor, and I were once picking up cider apples together. A gorgeously tinted cumulus cloud caught my eyes, as it majestically floated overhead. "Just look at that cloud," I cried. "It's actually edged with gold." "Humph," grunted the old man. "I'd rather see a five dollar gold piece lying on the ground under this tree."

He didn't find any gold piece under the tree, and he wouldn't condescend to satisfy his soul with a glimpse of the cloud-gold trailing across the blue. So, you see, he lost out both ways.

There are too many like him, not only in our own farm ranks but in all vocations.

I'll readily admit that cloud-gold wouldn't pass current with any butter and eggs dealer. But there is another Treasury where it may prove valid.

Else why was it made?

THE FARMER.

HANOVER

A play, "Just Plain Mary," given in the Parish house last Friday evening by the young people of the Lebanon Baptist church, was enjoyed by all.

The amount received for the hurricane sufferers up to the present time through the offering at the church last Sunday and subsequent additions is $59.10.

The meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. last Sunday evening was led by Miss Ruth Lee, one of the local delegates to the summer school at Storrs. Miss Lee reported in a very interesting manner certain parts of the work which was taken up there.

The name of a Hanover young lady who is a member of the lower middle class at Norwich Free Academy was omitted in the list of students from Hanover recently given—Miss Ruth Wight, who was graduated from Hanover grammar school in the class of 1927, and one of the most faithful students in the church school.

The work of the third quarter of the Ladies' Guild of the Congregational church, which has been under the direction of the chairman, Miss Caroline Gallup, was brought to a close with the play given in the parish house last Friday evening. The new chairman, who takes charge during the present (the last) quarter of '28, is Mrs. Roger C. Peck.

The Woman's Missionary society meeting for this month was held Tuesday afternoon with Miss Jennie Gallup leader and Mrs. W. S. Lee and Mrs. Webster Standish hostesses.

Friends of Storrs Lee, who have not been forgotten since his safe arrival on the other side of the water, have been enjoying a number of beautiful views which he has been able to pick up in his bicycle trips taken through the south of England, before he began his studies at Oxford.

Clothing is being collected this week for the assistance of needy ones at Atlanta university to whom distribution is made through Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Werking, engaged in educational work among the colored people there. Mr. Werking was at one time a member of the teaching force in Norwich, and has many friends in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter of Providence were over Sunday visitors at the home of Mrs. Potter's uncle, Edwin Tinkham.

William D. Pardee, a Yale graduate who is representing the Connecticut Temperance and Anti-Saloon league in this section of the state, will give an illustrated lecture in the parish house next week. The five reels, showing the value of temperance work, and the need of upholding it which he is presenting at this time, has been seen with a great deal of approval and enthusiasm in Windham county during the past week.

CHESTNUT HILL

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Davol with the latter's two sisters were guests last Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fuller, in New London.

Callers at A. S. Peckham's Sunday were Mrs. C. H. Peckham and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kingsley of Hartford, also Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Boothby and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bruce of Lebanon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Goodrich and family motored to Hartford the first of the week, Mrs. Goodrich remaining for a visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Kennedy and two children of Malden, Mass., spent Saturday and Sunday at Liberty club house. Mrs. Kennedy's mother, Mrs. Stiles returned home with them for a visit.

Mrs. George Chappell and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ames of Waterford, were visitors at Gurdon T. Chappell's Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Watson, of Guilford visited relatives here Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Peckham returned home with them for a visit of a week or two.

Blessedness in Service

Wouldn't you like to be off and away
When the waves wash a sandy beach,
And the sea-gulls flash as they swerve and dash
And strike the waves with a sparkling splash;
And far as your eyes can reach
The sea is a maze of blue and green,
And arrows of light, and silver sheen?
And you'd lie on the sand and quite forget
The workaday worry, and worry, and fret!
Wouldn't it be a joy? And yet—
It's rather fine to be here at your post,
Coping with brothers, a countless host!

Wouldn't you like to be climbing high
On a rugged mountainside,
Under skies of blue, with prospects new,
In a sweeter air, to a nobler view
Over the country wide,
Thrilled by the near companioning
Of great white billowing clouds that swing
Across the heavens in a wind that blows
From what far countries nobody knows,
While you breathe so deep? And yet—suppose
What life would be like if you couldn't work!
Did that bring your dreaming up with a jerk?

Wouldn't you like to be sailing far
Over a Summer sea?
The foam-wreaths break in your vanishing wake,
And watching the gleam to seem to shake
Your life from fretting free,
Every turn of the mighty screw
Taking you nearer to countries new,
And farther away from the every day,
And the commonplace, and the dingy gray
Of daily duty at home! But, say—
What if you'd no one who cared a whack
Whether you ever came sailing back?

—Minnie L Upton, in Christian Herald

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parker of Wormwood Hill have moved to Eastford for the winter, Mr. Parker being employed there at the factory.

The Women's society of the church served a supper Saturday nigt at which $13 was realized.

Mrs. Henry Hanks remains seriously ill at her home.

LEBANON

The Sunday morning services at the Centre Congregational church are well attended. Last Sunday morning the room was again filled to capacity. Many visitors are represented among the congregation, some, no doubt, are attracted by the old brick church because of its historic associations. The congregational singing is inspiring, the responses hearty and the whole atmosphere reverent and worshipful. Sunday the pastor is to preach on "The Meaning and Place of the Cross in the World."

"All-comers Adult Bible class" got a good start last Sunday with a good attendance. The class is studying the gospel by Matthew and has been asked to read the first chapters so as to be able to follow the lesson.

CLARK'S FALLS

Miss Lydia Kotch, teacher of the school, spent the week end at her home in New Haven.

Several from this vicinity attended Hope Valley grange meeting Saturday evening.

Mrs. John Davison, teacher of the primary Sunday school class, gave a party Saturday. There were eight boys and eight girls present. All had a very good time.

A large number was out to church Sunday.

READJUSTMENT PLAN OF THE VULCAN CORP.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Attorneys for the Vulcan Corp., of Portsmouth, O., announced today that they are submitting to creditors and stockholders a plan of readjusting the difficulties into which the concern was plunged by the discovery of a discrepancy of more than $1,000,000 in its inventory. The plan was drawn up by attorneys for the various interested parties.

The proceeds of the sale of $1,755,178 of preferred stock would be returned to the banking syndicate which purchased it. This syndicate instigated the investigation which resulted in discovery of the discrepancy, and obtained an injunction restraining the corporation from using the proceeds of the sale of the stock. The bankers would purchase $300,000 in bonds at par.

Note creditors and merchandise creditors having claims against the concern of about $1,000,000 would receive 20 per cent of their claims in cash and 70 per cent in bonds accompanied by three common shares of stocks for each $100 of bonds.

The company was incorporated last June to acquire all the business and assets of the Vulvan Last Co. It is a large manufacturer of shoe lasts and wooden heels for women's shoes, and for the past two years has manufactured golf clubs. It has 11 plants, one of which is at Brockton, Mass.

ZEPPELIN FORCED TO SOUTHERN ROUTE

Lehmann and Flemming who told the correspondent for the Associated Press that they thought it would take from 36 to 48 hours because of the heavy headwinds that had been forecast. This would bring the dirigible into Lakehurst sometime between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., Sunday.

Although the two other dirigibles, the British R-34 and German Zut-3 have spanned the Atlantic, the flight of the Graf Zeppelin was the first transoceanic commercial air voyage ever to be attempted. The huge ship carried 20 passengers, three of them Americans, and one woman, Lady Grace Drummond Hay, English society woman and one writer.

The Americans were Lieut. Commander Charles N. Rosendahl, commander of the Los Angeles who made the crossing in that ship in 1924 with Dr. Eckener; Robert Reiner, a textile manufacturer of Weehawken, N. J., and Frederick Gillian, an American resident of Switzerland. Commander Rosendahl was a guest of Dr. Eckener, but the other passengers paid $3,000 each for the privilege of making the trip.

Detail of the Take-Off

When the ship took off, she carried a capacity weight of 121 tons which included five tons of water ballast, four tons making up the weight of passengers and crew with baggage, 36,000 cubic metres of blau gas, the newly invented fuel, and fourteen tons of benzine, as reserve.

With such a weight, the dirigible after being taken from the hangar this morning ascended sluggishly but soon attained the necessary altitude.

By 7 o'clock the crew were promptly at their posts and within a half hour the 20 passengers began to arrive in quick succession. One of the first was Commander Charles A. Rosendahl wearing his United States naval uniform. He was soon followed by German officials and others of the passengers. Lady Hay was one of the last to arrive.

Five canaries had been presented to the ship by well wishers, but only one of them was chosen as mascot and this one began to chirp as soon as it had been placed in the passenger salon.

Captain Von Schilied, the chief navigator, was in charge of the embarkation, while Dr. Eckener and his other officers took a few moments for farewells. Suddenly the order was given for the take-off.

The ship was pulled from her hangar into the open and held down by a ground crew of 200 men.

"Let go!" came the sharp command and the next moment the ship rose to a height of 100 or more feet.

Pointing her nose sharply upward the ship gained another 100 feet, quickly circled over Friedrichshafen and then took a straight course to the westward along the shore of Bonensee and disappeared from sight.

NEWS OF THE ZEPPELIN SENT OUT FROM PARIS

PARIS, Oct. 11—(AP)—The big German dirigible Graf Zeppelin tonight was methodically putting miles behind her somewhere over the Mediterranean. She was, when last reported, headed toward Morocco, bearing to America the largest passenger list that has ever embarked for an air voyage over the Atlantic.

The weather was favorable for the journey from the time that the big dirigible slipped between the clouds that blanketed the Rhone valley all the way from Switzerland, and left the coast of France behind her. The last news received in Paris came from the wireless station of Saintes Maria Dela Mer, near the mouth of the Rhone. The ship was never in touch with the French weather bureau nor with the big wireless companies who have stations here.

It was stated tonight in Paris that the Zeppelin had already picked up American wireless stations. She ceased to communicate with Germany at noon, European time.

Local experts were confident that points on the eastern coast of Spain would furnish news because it seems certain that Dr. Hugo Eckener was heading his air liner for a vast high pressure area on the Atlantic, which would guarantee him good weather all the way from the Strait of Gibraltar to the North American coast.

The Paris weather bureau told the Associated Press tonight that it believed the dirigible would head for Morocco, skirting Spain and flying then toward the Maderia Islands, it was predicted that she probably would pass well south of the Azores.

The bureau said that its reports showed good weather over the entire Atlantic south of the 40th parallel.

They probably will be awakened tomorrow as the ship is quitting the ancient Mediterranean between the pillars of Hercules, the gateway used by the Phoenian sailors, the first mariners who were recorded as having dared to navigate on the Atlantic.

The passage of the Graf Zeppelin over France was reported with clock work regularity.

The dirigible crossed the Rhine in splendid weather but above Belfort she entered an area thick with clouds which oblized her navigators to steer wholly by compass.

The big airship did not get rid of the clouds until she left France. Before the difficulties of navigating under such bad conditions, which at one time were reported as causing considerable anxiety aboard the air liner, Dr. Eckener played safe. He kept closely to the valley of the Rhone flying only low enough to pick up outstanding landmarks as he steered a straight course for northern Africa.

A solid wall of rain clouds, stretching diagonally across France from Bordeaux to Basil, effectively barred flight by way of Bordeaux, Cape Finisterre, Spain and the Azores. Dr. Eckener had hoped to use this route in place of the shorter northern passage which he thought would allow insufficient daylight.

Behind this wall of clouds, tempests raged today and tonight along the French channel and Atlantic coasts. Even the hardy fishermen of Brittany took refuge near the shore. Multiple local storm centers, through which the airship had to feel her way, slowed her passage somewhat while she was over France, her best average being reckoned as 55 miles. Better air conditions may later allow Dr. Eckener to make up for this delay and bring him over New York on scheduled time next Sunday.

PRESIDENTIAL BATTLE BEING WAGED IN NEBRASKA

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 11—(AP)—To all appearances Nebraska is the major farm relief salient of the presidential battle.

Since Alfred E. Smith selected it to hear his first campaign speech the state has been bathed in a continuous fire from big guns whose dominant note has been the welfare of agriculture. There is every indication now that when the cornhuskers go to the polls within less than a month, the farmer and his problems will have most to do with allocating Nebraska's eight electoral votes.

Not that the other pressing issues of the day have been neglected, for Nebraskans have sampled every item on the campaign menu and all of them are expected by party leaders to be of decisive value, notably prohibition and religion.

When managers of Herbert Hoover's campaign take into consideration that the state usually is republican and dry by accepted standards, and hear reports that Governor Smith has lost favor with the farmers since his Omaha speech three weeks ago, they contend with more than their former confidence that Nebraska will stand by the party. Developments of the convention period and in the early days of the campaign caused the republicans some worry but they profess now to have every assurance of victory.

Democratic claims are no less emphatic, however, the Smith leaders depending upon a combination of circumstances to aid their cause.

The fact that Governor Smith has told Nebraska farmers that he approves the McNary-Haugen relief bill is being relied upon by his managers to draw support from those who originally fought for that measure and who wanted Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, as their standard bearer. They look also to the block of voters of foreign extraction to support Smith on the prohibition issue, but as everywhere else religion entered that field as a double-edged sword.

It was not remarkable that Nebraska, home of William Jennings Bryan, should quickly take up the debate on prohibition, an issue that is being depended upon by republicans to bring more women than ever before into the fold. Outside of the usual wet sentiment that may be found in any state, the democrats are hopeful of support chiefly among the German population, estimated to make up about one-third of the total vote.

Against the fact that the Germans once were normally democratic in this state stands another fact that most of them are Lutherans, who for age-old reasons might object to voting for a Catholic. With the Germans and other foreigners the twin considerations of prohibition and religion make up a situation whose exact analysis in actual votes neither side has been able to write down in more than general terms.

PUTNAM DEMOCRATS HEAR TWO PARTY CANDIDATES

PUTNAM, Oct. 11—The hopes of democracy in Putnam tonight mounted as 1200 citizens jammed the armory hall to listen to advertised addresses by Congressman Bolling of New York, Rev. George B. Gilbert, of Middletown, Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic, candidate for lieutenant governor, and William M. Citron of Middletown, candidate for congressman. However they were given only the opportunity to hear the latter two speakers.

Mr. Citron was the first to speak and in two distinct speeches vigorously attacked the tariff and prohibition questions. In addition to these he repeated himself on his newspaper stand courteously citing the Norwich Bulletin for publicity given him and urged that its representative present at the rally publish excerpts of his speeches as given tonight. Citron said that on the question of prohibition the democratic party had taken a clear forward step to solve one of the greatest problems facing the country today. He claimed that as a legal question it is solvable and can be dealt with only by the election of the democratic ticket the aim being to bring about such a solution. After attacking the prohibition question nationally Citron returned to his home state and said that he would continue Smith's policy on the question, if elected in November.

In attempting to comply with Mr. Citron's request for publicity extracts are herewith printed from his Putnam speech. Three questions which he hurled at his opponent, Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London, are as follows:

"1. Does his opponent favor modification of the 18th amendment and Volstead act?"

"2. If he favors modification, does he not think the best way to effectuate it is by voting for Smith for president and Citron for congress?"

"3. What has he done by word or deed to see that we have a more honest enforcement?"

Mr. Citron said that he had asked that these questions be printed in a New London paper "but it appeared they were cast into the waste basket when he did not find them in type on the following day."

The second speaker of the evening was Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic who lauded the principles of the party. The high light of his speech was the religious question and touching on it he termed it the most damnable point dragged into a campaign in an effort to secure a victory. He charged in his attack on religious prejudices that the only thing that can bring about a democratic defeat is the method in which the G. O. P. has dragged the religious question into the campaign.

STRONGER AND SLEEPS BETTER

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ogden, Kansas.—"For three or four months before taking the Vegetable Compound I was run-down, didn't feel like doing any work and could not sleep at night. The least thing would upset me. We live on a farm and I have my housework to do but often I could not do it. My mother told me of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done her so I am taking it. I am feeling fine, can sleep good and can do my work without getting over-tired. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and will answer letters."—Mrs. Lester Cummings, Box 331, Ogden, Kansas.

What Is A Bargain Anyway?

Once upon a time, the words, "Bargain", "Value" and "Sale," meant something to the buying public but their constant usage by advertisers, who thought that there was magic in the words alone, and who are probably of the opinion that "Barnum was right," has robbed them of their power, until the general public has long since ceased to get excited when they show up in print, to such an extent that these same advertisers are beginning to wonder if it wasn't Lincoln and not Barnum who was right, you know, "You can fool some of the people some of the time . . . . etc." Let US define these words for you—Value means extra measure for your money—A Bargain is QUALITY AT A PRICE, not just a low price, mind you, but a low price for high quality. A real Sale comes from an unusual situation or happening, and not from a created excuse. If these definitions seem logical to you, come in and see how closely we are living up to them.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL AND FIRE PREVENTION TALK TO LIONS

An appeal for support for the annual Salvation Army financial campaign to be held soon in this city was made by Elder J. McCabe, Salvation Army campaign director, in a five minute address at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Guests of the Lions included Burwell G. Loring, Waterbury, deputy district governor of the Lions International, Mr. Loring extended greetings from the Lions International.

President Kopland K. Markoff opened the meeting by presenting Rudolph Henschel as the presiding officer for the session. After the singing of America C. Edward Carpenter asked the blessing. Nicholas J. Spellman presided at the piano and William B. Frisbie was the song leader.

Announcement was made that the meeting next Thursday will be joint one with the Norwich chamber of commerce. Max Hanover, in behalf of the Norwich chamber of commerce, invited the Lions to attend the annual chamber of commerce meeting next Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel. The invitation was accepted.

Elder J. McCabe, campaign director of the Salvation Army, was the five minute speaker. In his remarks, Mr. McCabe thanked the Lions for the loyal support which they gave the Salvation Army in previous years. The speaker told the Lions that he was here to arrange for the annual Salvation Army appeal for the maintenance fund for Norwich. Mr. McCabe said that he was greatly pleased with the kind manner in which he was received by a number of prominent citizens in Norwich who promised to help the Salvation Army to raise the $5,000 which it needs for carrying on the work in the city during the year. Mr. McCabe said that he is in the hope that one of the most influential Norwich citizens will act as chairman of the appeal. An announcement to that effect will be made in the next few days. He also said that a committee of public-spirited citizens with whom he was in consultation as to the best way to carry on the appeal, suggested that in view of the high regard which Norwich people have for the religious and humanitarian service of the Salvation Army, the $5,000 needed for this year may be easily raised by a mail campaign. Such method of appeal has been tried in a number of cities in Connecticut and found highly successful. Mr. McCabe said that a letter of appeal sent by the Salvation Army does not land in the waste basket. It rather finds its way near the heart of the person receiving it and the response is usually generous no matter to what denomination the donor belongs.

Mr. McCabe's address was received with generous applause and with a promise of whole-hearted co-operation.

Vocal selections were given by Edward T. Connelly and M. J. Farrell, accompanied by Nicholas J. Spellman at the piano.

Address on Fire Prevention

Laurence E. Millea was the speaker of the day. His topic was Fire Prevention and in his talk he said:

Today, during your lunch hour, property valued at $547,487 will be needlessly destroyed by fire.

What are you doing to prevent it?

When we refer to statistics for 1926 compiled by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, we find some 80,000 casualties charged to fire during the year, together with a property loss of more than 560 million dollars, of which about 27 per cent. was recorded as strictly preventable, 28 per cent. as partly preventable, the remainder of some 252 million dollars having been classified as "causes unknown", but believed to have been largely of preventable origin.

It is said that the fire loss for last year, 1927, estimated to be $4,78,245,-$20, plus the upkeep of the fire departments, water supply, and fire alarm service, cost $1,112,000,000. The latest figures showing the entire "present net worth" of the United States is $365,000,000,000. It costs us last year one-three-hundredth part of all the nation is worth to pay for fire control.

By no process of reasoning can America's fire waste be justified. It is the common fire hazards that keep the fire department busy.

1927 Life Loss 10,000

The life loss by fire in 1927 is estimated at 10,000. This represents a reduction of one-third in the past four years, due largely to the extensive educational work carried on in the interest of fire prevention. The fire waste council of the U. S. chamber of commerce reports the following classification compiled by the committee on fire casualty statistics:

Of the deaths by fire, 30 per cent are from the country and 70 per cent. from the city.

Of the injuries from fire, 16 per cent are from the country and 84 per cent from the city.

One of the startling features of this record shows that 31 per cent. of the deaths from fire and 12 per cent. of the injuries are children under ten years of age.

Classification shows that 67 per cent. of the deaths and 45 per cent. of the injuries occur in dwellings.

Twenty-nine per cent. of the deaths and 16 per cent. of the injuries resulted in fires ignited from open flames.

Sixteen per cent. of the deaths and 11 per cent of the injuries follow fires originating from defective heating devices.

Twenty-three per cent. of the deaths and 26 per cent. of the injuries follow improper use of flammable liquids.

Over 60 per cent. of the number of fires take place in homes, which means a home fire occurs every four minutes. Each day of the year, on the average, 5 schools, 5 churches, 15 hotels, 1 hospital, 4 warehouses, 96 farms, 6 department stores, 2 theatres, 8 public garages, 3 printing plants, and 2 dry goods stores are burning.

I give you some figures from the report of the National Board of Fire Underwriters on individual causes of fires, giving only the six causes having the largest amount of losses:

The cost of carelessness in handling matches, cigars, cigarettes, etc., was $37,700,392.

It cost $28,889,523 to pay for losses occasioned by defective chimneys and flues.

Spontaneous ignition caused a loss of $19,373,515.

Sparks on roofs destroyed $17,716,-134.

Of all fires caused by carelessness with electricity 37 per cent. result from lack of care in the use of the electric flatiron. Much of the remaining electrical losses results from improper wiring and overloading of circuits. Only 4 per cent. of the electrical losses are found in buildings properly wired according to the National Electric code.

At least one serious student of our economic fire waste has referred to us as a nation of "unconscious incendiaries," pointing to our disgraceful annual fire record of nearly one-and-a-half billion dollars in property and about ten thousand human lives as sufficient evidence to prove the assertion. This is a severe indictment, but upon the record what else can we do but plead guilty? The only mitigating word in the indictment is "unconscious." It seems that we know not what we do. Fortunately for most of us the law of accountability has never been held to apply to the unconscious. It is not denied that our carelessness, thoughtlessness and indifference with respect to fire hazards are the chief causes of preventable fires. These causes are in action all the time, producing disastrous effects, and while we see the effects we appear to be unconscious of the causes.

Lack of Fire Conscience

This condition of the public mind we may term "lack of fire conscience." For instance, the good citizen who stops at some pleasant and pretty camping place, makes his fire, enjoys his lunch in the beautiful woodland. When his resting time is over he is careful to pick up all his belongings but when he drives away, he has forgotten something and when he returns again to that pleasant place which he has told his friends about he finds the charred stumps of a burned forest. No songs of birds, no perfume of flowers, just the stench of decay, and the silence of devastation. Yes; he is a good citizen, but certainly a citizen without a "fire conscience."

The man who builds a home and to save some dollars on the costs eliminates the fire stops, builds his chimney of brick on edge or laid on joists instead of brick laid flat from the ground up, who lets some amateur electrician wire the house because "anybody can string wires." He uses wooden shingles instead of fire-resisting shingles. And he has saved money, or so he says. But he starts up the roof caused by sparks from the chimney. Later a fire is discovered in the attic caused by flame reaching through that "brick laid on edge" chimney. Another loss. And then one cold winter night, a little fire started in one of the concealed spaces, crept along between walls and plastering, between floors and ceilings because he saved on fire stops. A neighbor discovered the fire, turned in the alarm and the family barely escaped with their lives. And the paper states that the loss was fully covered by insurance. He was another good citizen but he did not have a "fire conscience."

Then the fire prevention inspector comes to the merchant and finds dangerous volatiles improperly stored and handled. He finds trash, rubbish, sweepings of refuse in wooden boxes and paper cartons which remain in the buildings for days at a time. He finds, due to abuse and misuse, electrical wiring in poor condition throughout the premises. When these conditions are called to the attention of the owner of the business he is told that he has been in business for years and "he has never had a fire yet." He finally agrees to correct the conditions but when the inspector is gone he forgets about the matter.

Sooner or later a fire occurs and before it is stopped the block in which the business is located burns and the loss perhaps runs to one-half million dollars. He says to the newspaper boys, "I have no idea how the fire started. My loss is fully covered by insurance." The fire inspector who went over the property has no doubt in his mind but that the fire was one that was due to a preventable cause easily remedied, but that the owner was one "without a fire conscience." Examples like this may be multiplied indefinitely taken from the experience of American life without exaggeration.

Why not fight fires before they start? Why not so conduct your habits and so keep your premises that when the fire demon makes you a visit he will have to pass you by? Too often those who suffer from fire cry out that they are the victims of bad luck, when the fact is they are but paying the natural penalty for their own carelessness.

Do away with your fire hazards. Stop inviting disaster. If your neighbor is indifferent, remind him that should he be visited by fire you will have to assist in paying him what he loses and that he may burn you out besides.

Be a fire fighter. You don't have to wear a uniform and live at the fire station. The most successful fire fighters today are those who prevent fires.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

WESTERLY

THEORY THAT AIRPLANE STRUCK STUNNED HAWK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 11—A large fish hawk was picked up near the Boston Post road by Charles Rathbun in an apparently stunned condition. Given to Louis Panciera the bird was brought to the C. W. Willard store where it had apparently not sufficient strength to support itself upon the back of a chair.

Dr. Edwin R. Lewis, a deputy game commissioner, gave his opinion that the bird may have been struck by an aeroplane. He took it to his camp near the Meeting House bridge on the Pawcatuck river to see if it would not revive. The wings of the bird when spread reached as far as a man's arms could stretch. Recently when an aeroplane has been circling above Westerly crowds have stopped to view a large bird circling just above the plane and performing the same stunts as the birdman

BANKS, SCHOOLS AND P. O. TO OBSERVE COLUMBUS DAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Oct. 11—Columbus day will be observed today in Westerly by banks and public schools and the post office. The stores will be open throughout the day as usual. All of the banks and schools will be closed for the entire day. At the post office, a curtailed schedule will be in effect. There will be one city and rural delivery in the morning. All departments of the office will be open from 7 a. m. until noon, after which hour the place will be closed for the day. Mails will be received and dispatched as usual, however. At the library, the reading room and circulation department will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. as usual

WEDDING

Brady-York

Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock Miss Rhoda York, R. N., became the bride of Charles Brady, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Brady, Auburn, R. I. The ceremony was performed at Hillandale Farm, the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Selden M. Young, of Haverham. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, D. D., pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church. The bride was attended by an elder sister, Miss Hilda K. Young, as maid of honor, and by two younger sisters, Misses Marian A. and Frances L. Young, as bridesmaids. Marshall H. Nye of Auburn was best man. Miss Doris C. Burdick of Boston, a cousin of the bride, played the wedding march from Lohengrin for the entrance of the bridal party.

The bride wore white satin with lace and her veil was of embroidered tulle. She carried a bouquet of white roses and cosmos. The maid of honor wore pink crepe-back satin and carried lavender chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids wore flowered celanese voile and carried old-fashioned bouquets harmonizing with their gowns. The ceremony was performed before an attractive background of autumn foliage. Guests were present from Hartford, New Haven, Boston, Detroit, Woonsocket, Farnumsville, Blackstone, Auburn and Westerly. The bride is a graduate of Westerly high school, of Grace hospital school and Grace hospital, New Haven. Mr. Brady is a graduate of Rhode Island State college and is at present employed by the United States Rubber company in Bristol. After a week's trip into Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Brady will reside at 27 County Road, Hampton Meadows, R. I.

Wednesday evening when Westerly lodge of Elks met in their lodge rooms on High street, a class of candidates was initiated. Following the business meeting entertainment was furnished by Ray Beckett, blackface comedian, of Providence. Solos were sung by Maurice McGuinness, Joseph L. Lenihan and Dr. H. F. Doyle. Daniel Crandall was at the piano. After the entertainment lunch was served under the supervision of the social committee of which Edward J. Fenelon, Jr., is chairman.

The fourth political campaign banner will shortly make its appearance above the streets of Westerly. The Pawcatuck Smith-Robinson club has ordered a large banner which will be hung over West Broad street on the West Side. A joint meeting of the men's and women's Smith-Robinson clubs of Pawcatuck was held Wednesday evening in the court house on Liberty street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Phettyplace of Pawcatuck and Misses Elizabeth M. and Sarah J. Grant, of Westerly returned Wednesday evening after ten days' motor trip through the middle Atlantic states. They left Easton, Pa., early Wednesday morning and went as far south during their trip as Staunton, Va.

Miss Adele M. Martin, librarian of Westerly Public library, was in Providence Thursday.

The Home Circle of Pawcatuck Congregational church is to meet this (Friday) evening in the vestry.

Robert Brundrett was in Providence Wednesday evening.

The Girls' Friendly society of Christ Episcopal church, Miss Elton Sails president, met Thursday evening at the rectory on Elm street and observed Rector's Night.

Earl E. Saunders was a Providence visitor Wednesday evening.

Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M., Russell Hemphill, master, held a stated communication Thursday evening.

Miss Madeline Keefe has returned to Pawcatuck from a visit in Norwich.

Mrs. Charles C. Noyes is the guest of Hartford friends.

Mrs. Vinal C. Hastings has returned to her home in Bristol, R. I., after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Mills.

NOANK

SNAPPER BLUE FISHERMEN HAVE TO DRIFT ALL NIGHT

Shirley Morey and Percy Littleton hired a row boat to go over to Gates Island after snapper blue fish, Tuesday morning. They were unable to tie up at the island, but made fast to a small spile about 25 feet from the bank. The two young sportsmen were having fun catching the fish, like getting a downtown train in a city at rush hour at home. As they were getting ready to come back to the village late in the afternoon they found that the oars had drifted away and there was nothing to row with. Throwing the line off, taking a chance of being picked up by a fishing boat, they drifted all night in the darkness on the ocean. Not a boat was sighted. If they did not have heavy clothes they would have been exhausted from cold. Wednesday morning when boat Jessie was going out to the fishing grounds off Block Island the crew saw two fellows in a row boat waving a handkerchief signal. Capt. Jack Bright put on full steam ahead and soon landed the snapper blue fishermen aboard, taking the row boat in tow. After putting away several cups of coffee to warm them, they told the story of how the oars got lost and left them for 24 hours drifting around, calling for help, but no one answered. "We smoked 60 Old Gold cigarettes to pass the time! Never did we spend such long hours before; but we're glad to be able to tell the story and lucky to get picked up. We had 140 good-sized snapper blues and will try it again—but with two pairs of oars in the boat!"

FUNERAL

Charles Palmer

There was a large gathering of mourners at the Baptist church Wednesday afternoon, at the funeral services for Charles Palmer. This is the church where he was sexton 50 years. Rev. E. E. Gates of Hartford told of his useful life and Rev. E. E. Weise, pastor of the church, made an earnest prayer, and spoke of the great loss to the church in the death of Mr. Palmer always present every Sunday and on prayer meeting evenings. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him. Burial was in Noank Valley cemetery. The bearers were William Frazer, Lawrence Ashcroft, Percy Palmer, Dr. E. P. Fitch, A. Libby and Deacon R. P. Sawyer. There were beautiful floral forms.

Mrs. Charles Rogers and Lon Arleigh have arrived from Home Memorial hospital, New London.

Steeplejacks Get to Work

The two steeplejacks from Mystic got their tackle all ready and Billie Dunn, dare devil, was put in a boan's seat and pulled himself half way up the Baptist church steeple, Wednesday morning, a distance of 210 feet. A crowd gathered to watch them at work and with rope and straps about the steeple he slowly worked himself up to the top and said with a smile, "Here I am, fellows!" as the people below were holding their breath. It is Human Fly Billie's first job and something new to get so high up in the world. Foreman Watrous said, "Go to it, Billie! It is best to learn how to climb now!" The weather vane is to be taken down and fixed. Once the Human Fly almost lost his footing and came down a few inches and his boss said, "Hold everything!" The steeple will receive a coat of paint and the whole church will get a couple of coats, taking 50 gallons to do the job.

At the meeting at Uncas-on-Thames sanatorium Thursday, of the eastern section of the American Sanatorium association, Dr. Walter L. Rathbun, a former Noank boy, now of Cassadaga, N. Y., was down to deliver an address. Dr. Rathbun has not paid a visit to the village in ten years, and his friends would like to hear him speak. If Dr. Rathbun has time he will make a short visit in the village.

Mrs. Annie Tooker and Mrs. Anna Mahoney are spending a few days with Mrs. James MacGrath in Fitchburg, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Benoit are spending a week in Providence with relatives.

HOOVER-CURTIS RALLY AT WESTERLY TOWN HALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 11—The council chambers of Westerly town hall were filled tonight when President Thomas McKenzie called the Hoover-Curtis club to order for its first rally. Reports from officers and committees showed organization work progressing. Announcement was made that the next republican rallies would be held Oct. 17 and Oct. 31. Clifford W. Campbell, Frederick T. Mitchell and Harry R. Milner were named a committee to secure an Italian speaker. The first speaker of the evening was Rev. Mr. Erleson, former Providence clergyman, born in Sweden, who made a short address. The principal speaker was a former suffragette leader, Mrs. Jenckes, residing at one time in Rhode Island and later in New Hampshire. Mrs. Jenckes reviewed the careers of the republican nominees. Her conclusion was "We want and we will have Hoover and Curtis."

SMITH MADE ADDRESSES AT RICHMOND AND RALEIGH

GOV. SMITH'S TRAIN, En route to Tennessee, Oct. 11—(AP)—The first democratic presidential nominee to invade the "solid South" in years, Governor Smith today in two informal addresses at Richmond and Raleigh, the capitals of Virginia and North Carolina, told the people of Dixie that all sections of the country "belong to the one great big family of states that make up the greatest nation in the world."

Passing through the two southern states on his second campaign tour in his fight for the presidency, Governor Smith found large and enthusiastic crowds to welcome him at almost a dozen cities and towns. He conferred on his special train with the democratic chieftains of the two states, including Governors Byrd, of Virginia, and McLean, of North Carolina, Senator Glass of Virginia, and Josephus Daniels of Raleigh, former secretary of the navy, and received from them reports that indicated a satisfactory political situation.

The nominee in his addresses took as a symbol of the unity of the nation the blending of the tunes "Dixie" and "The Sidewalks of New York," which were played simultaneously at his receptions in the various places where his train was halted.

"I am entirely satisfied, from the cordial and I might say, affectionate greeting of the people of this section of the south, that the two tunes can be blended together," Governor Smith said, "because, after all, people are pretty much the same. I did not notice any difference between the people of Omaha and the people of the Bronx in New York city. I did not see any difference between the people of Milwaukee and those of the city of Brooklyn. I did not see any difference between the people of Raleigh and the people of Syracuse.

"We all belong to the one great big family of states that make up the greatest nation in the world, and we are all the same, no matter where we are to be found, provided we are well intentioned and we have our minds on the single objective of what is best for the greatest number.

"I appreciate your greeting; appreciate your kind reception. I am glad to be with you, and if you will listen in on Saturday night, I shall be talking in Louisville, Ky., on a very interesting subject."

Greensboro turned out with a large crowd to welcome Governor Smith. Flares and torchlights made the greeting one of an old-fashioned political character.

The nominee, together with Governor McLean and O. Max Gardner, democratic nominee for governor of North Carolina, then were taken for a brief automobile tour of the city.

Governor Smith exchanged remarks with his well wishers as he stood on the rear platform of his train and in riding through the city. He also gave the Greensboro citizens a good view of the brown derby which he waved frequently as he rode.

OFFICERS AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 11—(AP)—Mrs. Boyce Finkler, Jr., of Washington, Georgia, today, was elected national president of the American Legion auxiliary, succeeding Mrs. [illegible] Taylor Walbridge, of Petersburg, Va.

Mrs. Finkler, was unopposed. Also were the five regional vice president chosen. They included Mrs. George R. Murphy, Pleasantville, N. Y.

Mrs. Lawrence Donet, of Paris, France, was elected American vice president of the Fidet Auxiliary, the inter-allied veterans association.

Assistance in vocational and educational development of World war orphans was pledged by the auxiliary, a resolution declaring that children of men who lost their lives in France must receive good educations meeting with unanimous sanction. Enactment of a universal draft act was urged in another resolution.

Warm days like those of this week have started up a post-season demand at the soda fountains for fresh buttermilk.

A Message to Underweight Men and Women

The one supremely good health building tonic that is also the one great weight producer known to modern science the country over is McCoy's Tablets.

They build flesh where flesh is needed—sunken cheeks, neck and chest—and many a man and woman, skinny and scrawny, have thanked McCoy's after a few weeks treatment for the decided improvement in looks and figure.

Many times the increase in weight is astonishing—one exceedingly thin woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your money will be refunded.

Just ask for McCoy's Tablets at Lee & Osgood Co. or any drug store. Distributed by McCoy's Laboratories, Inc., also distributors of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil—there is none better.

U. S. STEEL COMMON WAS FEATURE OF HIGHER PRICE MOVEMENT IN MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Establishment of a new high record for all time by U. S. Steel common at 163 1-4 on buying influenced by unconfirmed reports of a stock dividend at the next meeting of directors, featured the irregularly higher price movement in today's stock market. Thirty individual issues were pushed into new high ground, some of them on extreme gains of 5 to 15 points.

A distinctly easier undertone in the money market was an important factor in the day's rally. Call money dropped from 6 1-2 to 6 per cent, with loans available in the outside market as low as 5 1-2. Time money was again on a flat 7 per cent basis, with a plentiful supply of funds available. The U. S. treasury announced the withdrawal of nearly $62,000,000 next Monday, of which $16,000,000 will be from the New York district.

A sharp break in Hudson, accompanied by rumors of dissension among operators previously identified with that issue, aroused widespread uneasiness in speculative quarters. Hudson broke from 94 to 88 1-4 but rallied back to 91 1-4, off 3 3-4 points net, on the appearance of organized buying support. General Motors closed unchanged at 216 1-2 after having sold more than 2 points above that figure. Chrysler showed a net loss of slightly more than 1 point at 182. Dodge Bros., common broke from an early high of 40 3-8 to 33 1-2, off 5 1-2 points net, on rumors that the stock exchange was investigating reports of a "technical corner" in that issue.

The weekly Federal Reserve statement of brokers' loans showed an increase of $79,905,000, bringing the total to another new high record at $4,589,823,000. Loans for the banks' own account dropped $63,000,000 but loans for the account of out-of-town banks and others increased.

Heavy accumulation of Steel common through brokerage houses previously identified with bankers for that corporation helped to rally the general market. Reports were circulated around Wall street that the stock would be split up 2 for 1 and the dividend increased. All steel company earnings have shown marked improvement over last year, due to higher prices and high rate of operations.

Spectacular advances again took place in several of the so-called "Blue Chip" issues. Montgomery Ward, which sold as low as 117 this year, ran up nearly 10 points to a new high record at 283 and closed at the top. Cushman's Bakery jumped nearly 15 points to a new top at 225. International Harvester soared 11 points to a new peak.

New peak prices for the year or longer were registered by such widely diversified issues as General Ice Cream, Federal Mining & Smelting, Simmons Co., Grasselli Chemical, Mallinson Silk, Goodyear Rubber, Cuyamel Fruit, International Nickel, Park & Tilford, Otis Steel and Brockway Motors.

Weakness cropped out in several of the sugar shares, American Sugar preferred, Punta Alegre and Cuba Cane preferred sinking to new low level for the year. Certainteed Products sank to a new low on selling inspired by fears for the safety of the dividend.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Sterling cables yielded slightly to $4.85 1-8. Japanese yen jumped 10 points to 45.86 cents.

Commodities displayed a firmer undertone. Wheat futures improved fractionally and cotton rallied $1.50 to $2 a bale on a resumption of trade demand. Coffee and sugar prices showed little change.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE RALLY HERE DECLARES TO SUPPORT HOOVER

A Colorado democrat who is to vote for Hoover because the republican presidential candidate is dry and a Michigan minister from Lansing were the principal speakers at the informal complimentary dinner given Thursday night at 6:15 at the Waureagan hotel by the manufacture and business committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America. There was an enthusiastic attendance of about 200 men and women, with Edwin A. Tracy, chairman of the local invitation committee, presiding and introducing the speakers.

Rev. Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, founder of the league, was the first speaker and explained what the league was doing through a series of meetings all over the United States to solidify the sentiment and action of those who oppose any tampering with the 18th amendment.

Rev. Dr. Russell was followed by Roscoe Vernon, state superintendent of the league, who spoke briefly.

A Colorado Democrat

Robert P. Carson of Colorado stirred his audience to enthusiasm and enlived his talk with frequent flashes of wit as he told why he was to vote on the national election with the republican party, which he said had done the unexpected thing of choosing for its standard bearer a progressive, dry, independent, while the democrats did the usual stupid thing of selecting a bad candidate for their standard bearer.

Mr. Carson spoke in part as follows:

I come to you as a democrat from Denver, Colorado, to tell you why I find it necessary to scratch my ticket in the national campaign this year. I want to assure you that I am still a democrat, but am unwilling to remain a still democrat at a time like this. I have not left my party, nor shall I leave it. I was born and reared a republican but I was converted and became a democrat.

I submit to you, my fellow-countrymen, that measured by every standard Governor Smith is not a democrat. A real democrat is one that believes in the principles, upholds the ideals and follows the leadership of his party. Measured by these standards I leave it to the fair-minded person to decide whether Alfred E. Smith is a democrat. The majority rule is, and always has been, and please God always will be the cardinal principle of democracy. Measure Mr. Smith by this standard. Did he follow the majority rule and carry that platform to the people as its standard bearer? No. Instead, he announced by telegram the next morning his intention of making one of his own. Let's measure him by the second standard. Is he upholding the ideals of his party? My party's ideals were set forth in their platform; he repudiated this platform and wrote one of his own, not one word of which is contained in the unanimously adopted platform of his party, the two essential planks in his platform being the modification of the Volstead act and the changing of the eighteenth amendment. These are but echoes of the expressed sentiments of one, Nicholas Murray Butler, (who has recently conferred a degree on Smith), who is a notoriously "wet" republican. The third plank in his platform is states rights. Not content with repudiating his party platform and setting up one of his own, he adds insult to injury by selecting one of the wettest republicans he can find to be his campaign manager. Therefore, I say again, that measured by all standards he is not a democrat. If a man rejects his party platform and writes one of his own borrowed from the expressed sentiment of a wet republican, and selects a wet republican as his campaign manager, by what right does he ask decent democrats to vote for him? That, my friends, is the first reason why I am compelled to scratch my ticket in the national campaign, and ask you to do the same.

I have no candidate for whom to vote. You republicans are more fortunate—you have two. Hoover represents the dry and better element and Smith the wet and lower element of your party. I have but one choice therefore, to vote with the dry or the wet wing of the republican party. I know, my fellow-democrats, I am asking a great thing of you in asking you to vote the republican ticket; but I also know that if you vote for Smith you are not supporting the democratic party nor its platform.

I am not responsible for the prohibition issue entering this campaign; southern democracy is not responsible; nor is the democratic party responsible; but only Governor Alfred E. Smith and John Raskob, his campaign manager. Having started this fight, he now asks us to withdraw our objections to it and fight it out on the old lines. He has made the issue, he will have to meet it the best he can.

There are three other reasons why I am compelled to scratch my ticket, and am asking you, my fellow democrats to scratch yours, in the national campaign this year.

First: The whole world is watching America, and if we should elect Smith, whatever might be the causes that entered into it, the enemies of prohibition would swear it was due to the fact that Smith ran on a wet ticket and would declare at once that America had taken a backward step and was tired of prohibition; second: We must let the vote in November serve as a notice to the democratic party that never again shall they dare nominate a wet man for the presidency; third: It must also serve as a warning to the republicans as to what their fate will be should they undertake to do so.

It is a crucial hour, my countrymen, in the life of the better element in America, and like the second battle of the Marne when the enemy rallied all her forces and were pressing hard a strategic point which if passed would mean the complete extermination of the French army and the end of the World war, Marshal Foche threw his forces into that narrow pass over which the enemy would have to come and shouted to the world, "They shall not pass," and the enemy was turned back and France was saved. So we today, friends, when the liquor forces disregard all party lines and press hard to regain their lost political and social power, must also disregard all party lines and present a united front as we throw ourselves into the breach and cry out to the world, "They shall not pass."

I ask you, therefore, to join with me in helping to carry out the Colorado slogan written by a democratic woman, "Dry Clear Smith With a Hoover."

George W. Morrow followed Mr. Carson, speaking upon the league's second campaign and explaining the need of the campaign because it must be realized that there is an organized attack upon the 18th amendment. The league, he said, is a non-partisan organization, and he told of what is being done through the movies, through radio and through publicity.

He made an appeal for financial support for the league and those present were given opportunity to make contributions over a period of two years to continue the campaign of education.

Speaker From Michigan

Rev. Frank Kingdon, D. D., of Lansing, Mich., was the concluding speaker, making an impassioned plea against any change in the eighteenth amendment. In reference to the claim that the working man wants his beer, he said that he lives in a congressional district which contains more laboring men than any other in the United States, but periodically returns to congress, by increasing majorities, the dryest man in that body.

Attacking Governor Smith's proposition on the liquor question, Rev. Mr. Kingdon said:

"Governor Smith has announced his panacea for all our liquor ills. It is a federal definition of what is an alcoholic beverage and then independent action by the states within that definition fixing the alcoholic content of liquor for themselves. This is an interesting scheme to ponder on when you take it in connection with Mr. Smith's whole philosophy of politics. For you must take it all in. Now an important article of his creed is that which says that when the officials of a state do not like a federal law they should ignore it. As governor of New York, he does not like the Volstead act therefore as far as he is concerned it does not exist. He is advocating a law which, by his own reasoning, is bound to lead to bootlegging. As a piece of sumptuary legislation his proposal is open to as many objections as can be lodged against the present act.

"In a practical way it is also full of hope for bootleggers. Some people are shouting that the bootleggers all vote dry for the sake of their business. That is the sheerest nonsense anyhow but in the face of Mr. Smith's proposition it is so ridiculous that nobody who even claims to be able to think should be guilty of repeating it. His scheme could not have been worked out more satisfactorily, for the bootleggers if it had been developed in the secret councils of their organizations. It would produce a chaos in which rum-runners would operate over every state line and illicit liquor selling would flourish beyon the wildest dreams of the most audacious bootlegger. Mr. Smith is either very innocent, very forgetful or consciously dishonest in putting out such a program as a serious attempt to deal with the liquor question.

"Under any circumstances what he advocates is easier access of the people to alcoholic beverages. That is his aim, and, if he is elected, he will use all of the resources of the presidency to reach it."

The speaker closed with a powerful appeal for united effort in opposition to those who would change the eighteenth amendment, so that its opponents may know they must face the Christian hosts who have decided that this country shall stay dry as long as the Stars and Stripes shall wave.

A verse of American and the benediction by Rev. Joseph Cooper brought the meeting to a close about 8 o'clock.

P. E. OFFERING OF $1,000,000 FOR MISSION WORK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—An offering believed to have surpassed $1,000,000 was made for mission work early today when the woman's auxiliary of the Protestant Episcopal church held its triennial thank offering in connection with the general convention of the Episcopal church.

The services took place in the choir of the partially completed cathedral, the first prayer book service to be held there, and was announced as the largest communion service ever celebrated in this country by the Episcopal church.

The Most Rev. John Gardner Murray, bishop of Maryland and presiding bishop of the church was the communion celebrant, assisted by the Rt Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, Rt. Rev. Arthur Selden Lloyd, suffragan bishop of New York, Rt. Rev. Middleton S. Barnwell, missionary bishop of Idaho; Rt. Rev. Robert E. Campbell, missionary bishop of Liberia; Rt. Rev. Thomas Casady, missionary bishop of Oklahoma; Rt. Rev. Frank W. Creighton, missionary bishop of Mexico; Rt. Rev. Walter Mitchell, missionary bishop of Arizona; Rt. Rev. Shirley H. Nichols, missionary.

LEADERS REPORT WEAVERS ON STRIKE IN PATERSON

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 11—(AP)—Revised figures at headquarters of the strike leaders tonight total 3,467 weavers and approximately 900 silk workers idle as a result of the broad silk weavers strike called yesterday. Fred Hoelscher, secretary to the Associated Silk Workers said tonight that he believed that negotiations toward a settlement of the strike would be made next week with the recognition of the union the big issue to be debated. He said that virtually all mills now operating were working on an eight hour basis and that he believed the manufacturers would agree to the price lists submitted by the union.

EIGHT INCHES OF SNOW IN NORTHERN UTAH

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 11—(AP)—The first heavy breath of winter blew over northern Utah today leaving eight inches of snow at Logan, an inch at Ogden, fifty miles south of there. At Salt Lake city, rain fell throughout the day following a flurry of snow early today which rapidly melted.

RED CROSS GAVE RELIEF IN 59 DISASTERS IN YEAR

The American Red Cross has given aid to more than a million and a quarter disaster sufferers during the organization's fiscal year, according to figures contained in its annual report and made public here by local Red Cross officials.

There were two serious disasters in Connecticut during the year of sufficient magnitude to require Red Cross assistance. One of these was a fire in January of this year at Union City which destroyed or damaged 14 buildings and following which the Red Cross gave assistance to 60 persons. The other disaster was the New England flood of November, 1927, which affected this state as well as Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and New York. The Red Cross gave assistance to approximately 17,000 persons in these states as a result of the disaster. A relief fund in excess of $1,200,000 was expended, of which more than $500,000 came from the National Red Cross treasury.

Relief was extended by the American society following 66 disasters in this country and 22 abroad and a total of 1,250,000 persons were helped. Seven hundred thousand of these were in the United States, while 550,000 were in the nine foreign countries where relief work was conducted, or in the insular and foreign possessions of the United States.

Floods raging over hundreds of miles, fires destroying whole villages, tornadoes and hurricanes sweeping over entire states, and death-dealing explosions combined to make the year one of great calamities.

Tornadoes lead the list of disasters in which the Red Cross gave relief, with 29. Fires run a close second with 24, while floods are third with 14. There were four earthquakes, four hailstorms and three mine explosions. The other disasters were miscellaneous catastrophies, including epidemics, shipwrecks, typhoons, famines, dam breaks, landslides and volcanic eruptions.

The two outstanding disasters of the year were the New England flood of November, 1927, and recurring overflows in the Mississippi valley. These overflows, together with continuing relief operations which have been necessary as a result of the great flood in the spring of 1927, have kept a large staff of workers busy in the valley.

In New England, where swollen mountain streams swept down with torential force and played havoc in 24 counties, the organization gave reconstruction aid to 3,504 families involving more than 17,000 persons. This disaster necessitated the expenditure of a relief fund in excess of $1,300,000, of which more than $500,000 came from the national treasury of the Red Cross.

While public attention has not been centered on the Mississippi valley floods this year, because of lack of dramatic or spectacular interest, nevertheless 130,000 persons have been affected and one-half as many countries have been inundated as were flooded in the spring and summer of 1927. The Red Cross has had 23 disaster relief workers, nurses, etc., in Arkansas, Missouri and Louisiana where tributaries of the Mississippi have been flooded since last May. Heavy losses in crops have necessitated extensive relief operations and will make necessary the continuation of activities in the valley for some months. Relief work has also been under way during the year at points in Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana and West Virginia, where the Big Sandy, Licking and other rivers have been in flood.

SHAUGHNESSEY OF POMFRET CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11—James Shaughnessey, Pomfret, was arrested late today by State Police Officer Peter Bush, charged with embezzlement. He was locked up at police headquarters, but shortly afterwards was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $3,000, the surety being Charles J. Ducy. Shaughnessey will be presented in the police court tomorrow.

The amount involved in the alleged embezzlement is about $1,000, and it is claimed that Shaughnessey collected the money, which was due his employer and then appropriated it to his own use. Shaughnessey was for several years employed as superintendent of the Griswold company, Groton, and it is alleged that it was while acting in that capacity that he sold goods of the company and instead of tendering the money to the company, he retained it. It is further alleged that Dec. 21, 1926, Shaughnessey, as agent of the company, collected $102.80 and kept the money. On Feb. 26, 1927, it is claimed that Shaughnessey collected $264, which he did not turn over to his employer. On June 8, 1927, the claim is that Shaughnessey received $31.48, which he applied to his own use through the sale of farm produce. On Oct. 25, 1927, the allegation is made that Shaughnessey received $481.25 for the sale of produce or the like from the Griswold farm and this amount he also retained. Nov. 8, 1927, it is claimed Shaughnessey collected $156.25 and failed to deliver the money to the cashier. Recently complaint was made to Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin and that Shaughnessey had stolen the money through his failure to deliver the payments to his former employer and his arrest was requested.

Shaughnessey, who was discharged from the employ of the Griswold company less than a year ago, was prosecuted in the Groton town court several months ago charged with theft, but was not convicted. It was claimed that Shaughnessey, who is the proprietor of a farm in Pomfret, diverted truck loads of property owned by the Griswold company to the Pomfret farm and used it in conducting the operation of his farm. Since that time, it is claimed, that the payments of the monies to Shaughnessey have been revealed and due to that fact he was arrested today.

THREE YOUTHS HELD AS FUGITIVES FROM JUSTICE

WATERBURY, Oct. 11—(AP)—Edward Duhamel, 19, and his cousins, Eugene Hamel, 22, and Lionel Hamel, 19, all of 18 Cole street this city, were arrested this afternoon on charges of being fugitives from justice and held for officials of Webster, Mass. The trio is alleged to have broke open the safe in the home of Edward Phoenix, of Webster Sunday and to have stolen $15,000 worth of negotiable bonds.

Mrs. Hamel, mother of two of the prisoners, heard details of the robbery broadcast over the radio yesterday afternoon police say. Knowing her sons to be in Webster and friends of the Phoenix family she connected them with the case. She soon forced a confession and obtained the entire amount of stocks and bonds which she brought to the office of Captain William P. Keegan, of the detective bureau here this afternoon.

Webster police clinched the case, they believe, by checking up finger prints they obtained from the safe with those here and in New Rochelle, N. Y. Police quote the trio as admitting their guilt.

SPLIT IN ORGANIZATION OF INDIAN WAR VETERANS

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 11—(AP)—Men who fought side by side against the Indians came to a parting of the ways here over election of a commander of the National Indian War veterans, and a separate organization, the United Indian War veterans of the United States of America, was formed today by those opposed to George W. Webb, St. Joseph, national commander.

The bolters drafted a constitution and by-laws for the new organization and elected H. E. Miskey of Santa Monica, Calif., as commander. He was national senior vice commander of the National Indian War veterans.

There were 22 camps before the split with 1,300 members. The new organization claims 600 members.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not satisfied after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

POETRY

A Cape Cod Antique Shop

Windows out of fairy tales
In a loft where men made sails
When the sailing ships did fare—
And a crooked, time-worn stair
Leading to a spacious room
Steeped in fascinating gloom
Relics from a Pharaoh's bier
Lie, beside the coral gear
Of a South Sea Island chief,
On a table come to grief
From a European court,
Ancient scones of every sort
Slumber in the window nooks.
Hill between them are the treats
Penned by Shelley, Burns and Keats.

On a mantel is a ship
Riding full rigged tip to tip
In a sea of liquid grace,
Prisoned in a bottle's space.

Gleaming teeth of whale and shark
Rest beside the prisoned bark.
Bits of painted chinaware
Risk annihilation there.
Grouped with sundry souvenirs
Of a thousand dusty years
Portraits of another age
When quaint costumes were the rage
Smile down on the gloomy place,
Wisdom in each fading face.
There's an air of secret bliss
That the ignorant can't miss
In that antique-laden room
Steeped in fascinating gloom.
With its panes from fairy tales
In a loft where men made sail
And where sailing men did go
Many, many years ago.

—Pat Costello, in the New Bedford Standard.

My Ambition

If I can live
To make some pale face brighten and to give
A second lustre to some tear-dimmed eye,
Or even impart
One throb of comfort to an aching heart,
Or cheer some wayworn soul in passing by;

If I can lend
A strong hand to the fallen or defend
The right against a single envious slain,
My life, though bare
Perhaps of much that seemeth dear and fair
To us of earth, will not have been in vain.

The purest joy,
Most near to Heaven, far from earth's alloy,
Is bidding cloud give way to sun and shine;
And 'twill be well,
If on that day of days the angels tell

—Helen Hunt Jackson (1831-1885).

KALEIDOSCOPE

There is an important relation between bacterial wilt and winter injury of alfalfa. Some of the most destructive outbreaks of bacterial wilt in the last few years have occurred in fields where the plants have suffered severe winter injury. It appears that the bacteria find winter injury wounds favorable points of entrance.

On July 21, during an Italian celebration at Paterson, N. J., Justice of the Peace Thomas J. Rubino sent up a toy balloon. A note attached to it asked the finder to communicate with him. He has received a letter from John Adams, of Albuquerque, N. M., who said that when he went to the roof of his home on August 5 to repair his radio aerial, he found Rubino's deflated baloon. The air distance between the two cities is approximately 1,760 miles.

Alphonse Dupuis, sixty-eight, of Worcester, Mass., and his wife had a narrow escape from death on the Mohawk trail when the automobile which he was driving left the road, went over the embankment, turned over twice and landed, wheels in the air, twenty feet below the road. Neither was injured. Mr. Dupuis' desire to motor waned immediately and he disposed of the auto for $25 to a young man living nearby. The latter hauled the machine back into the road and drove it to his garage under its own power.

Hubby—Who's likely to call this morning, anyway?

Wifey—Well-or-the truth is, there's a man calling who offered me $5 for it. —Philadelphia Bulletin.

Aunt Florence sent little Evelyn to the store one Saturday afternoon to buy some lace. After wrapping it up, the clerk said:

"There is one and a half yards of lace at 12 cents a yard; how much does that come to?"

To which little Evelyn pertly replied: "Well, I'm not going to tell. I have to study arithmetic all the rest of the week and I'm not going to bother my head with it on Saturday."—Los Angeles Times.

MYSTERIOUS "KEY WORKER" HAS AROUSED NEW BRITAIN

NEW BRITAIN, Oct. 11—(AP)—This town has become an unhealthy place for unidentified strangers, due to the activities of the mysterious "key worker", who is alleged to have burglarized more than 30 houses in the past month. Every day there are from one to five burglaries reported, all by someone who unlocks the door of a house during the absence of the family and ransacks the place, taking everything from phonograph records to jewelry. He ransacks thoroughly, even going through the pockets of clothes hanging in closets. The police have no clue as to the thief and orders were issued today to arrest any stranger, unable to give a clear account of himself.

MARRIED WOMAN WAS CROWNED QUEEN OF LOVE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 11—(AP)—Society was stirred here today when it was learned that Mary Ambrose Smith, who was crowned queen of love and beauty at the veiled prophet's ball last week, was a bride of two months and had broken a tradition that the veiled prophet's queen should be unmarried.

OBITUARY

John L. Brennan

John L. Brennan, 45, died suddenly last night from heart disease at his home, 23 Summer street. He is survived by his wife, eight children, James, John, Joseph, Mary, Ellen, Virginia, Christina and Gwendolyn Brennan; four brothers, Thomas and Joseph Brennan, of Bridgeport and James and Frank Brennan, of this city. Three sisters Mrs. Franklin Beebe, Mrs. Carl Burgess and Mrs. Edward Devine, all of this city, also survive. Mr. Brennan was employed as moulder by the Whiton Machine company for 17 years and was a member of the Whiton Benevolent association and Ancient Order of Hibernians. He went to work as usual yesterday, but during the afternoon complained of feeling ill and returned home. During the early evening he was stricken with a heart attack and collapsed in a chair. Mr. Brennan expired before a physician could reach his home.

An automobile owned by Fred Chello, employed as chauffeur by Walter Garde, was stolen last night from its parking place on Meridian street. The auto is a Ford sedan.

Several cases of drivers who violated the parking law were called in the police court this morning. They were Jamhes E. Torper, Wendcliff, N. J.; Francis W. Thwing, 333 Ocean avenue; Henry Jarisch, Holyoke, Mass.; Lucio DeBiasi, Noank; Paul B. Benson, Stamford; John Lavigne, Montville and Stanton E. Rockwell, 39 Summit avenue. All of the drivers failed to appear, so their respective bonds of $2 were declared forfeited.

John Luzzi, 95 Smith street, was charged with driving without a license and was fined $10. He was arrested yesterday by Traffic Officer Thomas Cavanaugh.

Two cases of intoxication were tried. A Groton man was sentenced to jail for 10 days, but execution of the sentence was suspended. The other was sent to jail for 30 days. Two Coast Guard sailors, who were arrested on Home street last night, intoxicated, were turned over to a shore patrol and taken back to the state pier.

Miss Helen Foley of Waterford entertained this week with a miscellaneous shower in honor of her cousin, Mrs. James Powers, of Crystal avenue, whose marriage with John J. Bowers of Saybrook will take place shortly. A feature was a series of exhibition dances by Anna Sullivan and Alice Reidy. At the conclusion of the evening refreshments were served by the hostess.

Members of the King's Daughters of St. James Episcopal church held their October meeting last night at the parish house. Plans were made for a food sale. The committee in charge is Mrs. Harold Green, Mrs. James Smith Mrs. F. B. Stewart, Mrs. Gertrude Hepburn and Mrs. John Manion. At the close of the business meeting the members sewed, following which refreshments were served.

At the meeting of Sorores club, held Tuesday night in the club rooms, Helen Parle and Mary Johnson, representatives at Camp Maqua, Poland Springs, Me., gave an interesting account of their experiences. The meeting was preceded by a supper served at the Y. W. C. A. by Cecelia Hill, Marie Cross and Marjorie Smith. Fifteen members were present.

At the annual meeting of the John Winthrop club, last night in the club rooms, Dr. Walter L. Douglass was unanimously elected president. After the election the evening was spent in hearing reports of the past year and discussing plans for the coming winter. Later in the evening, six tables of bridge were in play.

Members of Goff temple, No. 1, Pythian Sisters, are planning an elaborate party for Hallowe'en. At a meeting held last night in Union lodge rooms final plans were made. After business of the evening was transacted, pinochle and whist were enjoyed by members. Mrs. Jane Reed, most excellent chief, presided at the meeting.

At the weekly bridge party of Martha Winthrop club, yesterday afternoon at the club house of the John Winthrop club, prizes were won by Mrs. Fred Parker and Mrs. Harry Searle. Refreshments were served by Mrs. George E. Fisher, Mrs. William Guest and Miss Marjorie Dennison.

OVER 10,000 EXPECTED FOR COLUMBUS STATUE EVENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11—Everything is in readiness for the biggest Columbus Day celebration ever attempted in this city. The statue of Christopher Columbus, which is to be a gift from Italian-American residents of the city, arrived here this morning at 12:20. All day, workmen have been busily engaged in erecting it on the foundation in Tyler Park square, preparatory to the unveiling ceremonies tomorrow afternoon. It is expected that more than ten thousand will take part in the huge parade at 2:30. Following this the ceremonies will take place incident to unveiling the monument. At 5:30 a banquet will be held in the Hotel Mohican, and at 7:30 an elaborate fireworks display will be held in Morgan park. All public buildings and hundreds of privately owned ones are decorated with flags of America and Italy.

Early this afternoon power service in the neighborhood of Main and North Bank streets was off for a period of about 15 minutes, owing to a fuse blowing out on the circuit feeding the area.

Giam B. Musante, member of the firm of Leverone & Musante, is critically ill at his residence, Williams street. Mr. Musante's health has been failing for several weeks.

Miss Harriet Hewitt, formerly of New London now of San Juan, Porto Rico, who has been spending several weeks in this city, has left for Washington to remain several days before returning to New York and taking passage on a liner for the southern port.

A man who went to the pawnshop of Louis Lampert, Bank street, tonight, engaged in a wordy argument with the proprietor and abused Lampert so that the latter made complaint to the police. Patrolman Frank Philopena went to the store and arrested the man.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

EMIL FOX BRINGS UNIQUE FOUNTAIN FROM GERMANY

Patrons of the Providence bakery on Franklin street, who have been in the bakery during the past few days are exclaiming over the unique and unusual beauty of an electrical fountain which Mr. Fox brought from Germany. The fountain is known as the Lorelei fountain and is entirely operated by electricity. It stands about 40 inches from the floor and the standards, bowl and supports are gold. The bowl in which the water plays is 30 inches across and is illuminated by light projectors in the bottom. In the center is the fountain which sends up several fine streams of water to a height of 18 inches which fall back into the bowl in a cascade effect. A cunning arrangement of light projectors alternately throw red, purple, green, white and gold rays onto the falling water, making an exquisite color effect.

Around the bowl is a trough for flowers, ferns or whatever a person's taste may dictate. Otto Ernst has arranged a beautiful setting of ferns around the base of the fountain as well as filled the trough with pretty creeping vines that send their tendrils down to meet the ferns. A cluster of illuminated roses under the fountain add charm to the display. This is the first fountain of its kind in the city and is a work of art.

Palace Theatre.

Norma Talmadge officially becomes a United Artist with release of her new picture, "The Dove," which is now showing at the Palace theatre. In her debut as a United Artist, her role is that of Dolores Romero, a heroine of many moods.

"The Dove," has been directed by Roland West, who made "The Bat," and is known for original ideas in directing. West believes that closeups can legitimately be used in pictures as doctors use X-rays. A doctor must clearly see the subject in whom he is interested. So the audience must be able to see just as clearly the character which is being revealed in a story.

Roland West declares "I have no quarrel with the critics who object to the promiscuous employment of the close-to-the-camera action in motion pictures, but I do insist that it is impossible to tell a screen story convincingly without intimate shots of the leading players.

"However, the close-ups is like the unusual camera angle. Unless each really means something in the development of the plot, it might as well be left out. Punctuating a picture with a hodge-podge of close-ups and trick shots is not only bad taste but silly. It is only to increase the dramatic effect that a director should use the close-up or the novel camera angle."

Broadway Theatre.

What is the greatest social problem today?

The home!

Good or bad, he believes, parental influence guides young footsteps. The home is the mould in which modern youth is cast, he declares, and the atmosphere provided by parents is that in which the children's mental attitude is formed.

In directing "Our Dancing Daughters," which is now playing at the Broadway theatre, the director has brought to the screen a cross-section of the present generation and goes behind the screens in the family lives of three very modern young women for plot motivation.

"When a girl loses confidence in her own parents it is time to look for unfortunate consequences," Beaumont declares. "If parents have not surrounded growing children with a healthy and sympathetic environment, they are responsible morally, for the outcome of outside contacts and associations made by their children.

"It is the old proverb over again —'And as the twig is bent so inclines the tree'—Life, it seems, always has bee nthat way. But never before have elders been so prone to voice criticism of the younger generation. This is certainly not a healthy environment and is just so much as telling the children that their own parents do not believe in them.

"Personally, I see nothing wrong with the present generation. They are fun-loving and happy, in their young ways just as their fathers and mothers were. If there is anything to be censured the trouble may lie right in their own homes. Let the parents look themselves in the mirror of cold facts!"

W. T. Grant Chain Stores.

The Willimantic store of the W. T. Grant company has completed extensive preparations for participation in the observance of the 23rd anniversary of the founding of the company from Friday, October 12, to Saturday, the 20th. The anniversary week will be notable for unusual values to be offered the public. The local store, since its establishment about one year ago has gained a wide reputation throughout Windham county as the center of hundred-fold variety and unparalleled values.

In connection with the anniversary, Manager Barrett of the local store has given for publication the following article tending to show the tremendous contribution to New England industry given by the Grant chain which now numbers 200 stores: "The Grant company distributed $5,181,127 worth of New England made goods in 1927. People in 29 states spent over $6,000,000 in W. T. Grant stores for goods made in New England during that year according to a recent survey. There were 112 distinctly different made-in-New England items offered and 73 separate New England cities and towns shared in producing these goods. Of the six New England states, Massachusetts supplied the greatest share valued at $2,501,836. Other states share in the total as follows: New Hampshire, $129,969; Maine, $17,496; Connecticut, $1,408,733; Rhode Island, $117,417. These figures represent the retail valuation of merchandise.

"Because of the rapid growth of the Grant organization it is expected that the distribution of New England merchandise for 1928 will be considerably larger than in 1927. The W. T. Grant company was founded in Lynn, Mass., in the fall of 1906 by William T. Grant, whose personal capital consisted of $1,000. There are now over 200 stores and the annual business is considerably over $50,000,000, with thousands of people employed. It is interesting to note that the chairman of the board of directors, the president and all the vice presidents are natives of New England and that 15 of the executives and managers come from the New England states. Many more of the younger men in the Grant organization are New Englanders. The New England stores are under a special district under direction of J. E. Bliss, a native of Providence, R. I., and graduate of Brown university.

Breed Theatre.

"Lilac Time" is the sort of a story that motion picture actresses' dreams are made of, according to Colleen Moore, who comes to the Breed theatre commencing Sunday, in the screen version of Jane Cowl's stage triumph.

When Miss Moore and John McCormick, who produces her pictures, read the play manuscript of "Lilac Time," they both knew instantly it was the story of which they had dreamed, but hardly dared hope to find.

Its spirit of youth, its tenderness and its glowing romance gripped them as no other story had ever done; and McCormick immediately opened negotiations with Miss Cowl and Jane Murfin, co-authors of the play. The screen rights were purchased and Willis Goldbeck assigned to adapt the story for motion picture production, with Carey Wilson preparing the script.

"Lilac Time" is a George Fitzmaurice production for First National Pictures, and tells of the romance of a little French girl and a reckless young British war aviator. In the opinion of critics, it more than justifies the producer's judgment and the many months spent in filming it.

Happiness Boys at Elks Fair

Blaring brass bands, snappy jazz orchestras, high class acts and novelties, new and different each night, free prizes worth well over $5,000 and many other attractions, too numerous to mention, will feature the Elks' Charity fair at the state armory here, Oct. 17, 18, 19 and 20. While every attraction on the four-day program is well worth mentioning a feature is that to be presented on the opening night. The one and only "Happiness Boys," the pride of the entire radio world will appear in person at the state armory on Wednesday evening, Oct. 17, and will present the same program that millions listen in for every Friday night.

Their career is an interesting part of broadcasting history. In describing their inaugural experiences, they exclaimed the other day:

"The microphone looked like a tomato can and was suspended from a metal stand such as one might use to hang a parrot or canary cage."

They participated in one of the first programs of entertainment ever successfully broadcast in this country. It was given from the studio of W3Z in a corner of the Westinghouse factory in Newark, N. J., in October, 1921, and the concrete floor and canvass hangings were in decided contrast to the elaborate and scientifically equipped studio of today.

The radio officials of the Westinghouse company decided it was high time to add entertainment to their broadcasts and agreed that paid artists must be engaged. Jones and Hare, then known principally as individuals, through their appearances in musical comedies and vaudeville and through their phonograph records were selected and were the first entertainers ever compensated by radio.

For an hour and a half they sang 25 songs until their repertoire was exhausted and when the announcer, Thomas H. Cowan now with WNYC, begged for more they suggested their pianist be called upon for a solo. Cowan feared that a piano solo might not "come through" so well, but decided to try it and in a few minutes Westinghouse officials listening in another room sent word that it was "great."

This broadcast brought in so much mail that Jones and Hare were called back again and again to continue their entertainment.

In December, 1923, they were engaged for a series of weekly broadcasts over WEAF and these programs continued except for short breaks in the summer months, since. Jones and Hare were recently given an opportunity to extend their fame throughout the country when they were engaged to "command" the Fift Soldiers. But instead of one station, they were broadcasting over a chain of 23.

Sergeant Hare, who is a native of Norfolk, Va., was in musical comedies and vaudeville for years before he joined Corporal Jones. He was an understudy for Al Jolson's role while on tour for several weeks. Corporal Jones before entering a stage career with Lew Fields, in 1910, was a choir singer. Until he teamed with Sergt. Hare in 1920, he was in musical comedy and vaudeville. Sergt. Hare is married. Corp. Jones is single. They have the same birthdays, March 15, but were born in different years.

Rochester Clothiers Take Lease.

Announcement has been made by the World Built Clothes, Inc., Rochester Fashion Clothiers of 263 Main street, Norwich, that they have recently completed the leasing of the store at 13 Broadway, formerly the Lyoon's store, for a period of five years, with a privilege of five years for renewal.

All details for the leasing were taken care of by Bernard T. Kamber, who not long ago convinced the Norwich merchants that he was bound to locate in Norwich, and that he was not locating in Norwich simply for a short period.

The Rochester Fashion Clothiers also wish to thank their many friends in this vicinity for their patronage and trust that these pleasing times may be continued at the new store on and after November 1st. Two prices for two-pants suits and overcoats will prevail as usual, $16.50 and $22.50.

Pleasant Relief From Constipation

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets will save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion
Neutralize Acid After Meals With Bisurated Magnesia Instant Relief. Makes Stomach Feel Fine
Nearly nine-tenths of all stomach disturbance, indigestion, gas, sourness, heartburn, bloating, nausea, etc, are due to an excess of acid in the stomach. Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm.
An acid stomach needs a soothing alkaline to instantly neutralize acidity and permit proper digestion. Quickly prove this truth. Lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any reliable druggist a package of Bisurated Magnesia—either powder or tablets—and take some after your next meal. It is amazing how quickly all sourness, gas and pain stop and how good the stomach feels.
You take no risk in trying Bisurated Magnesia. Every druggist is authorized to return the purchase price to any user, who after using one full package, is not completely satisfied. Bisurated Magnesia is harmless, pleasant and convenient to use and non-laxative. Thousands use it daily.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT
IMPROVED COLD WEATHER PERFORMANCE Resulting from the

CROSS-FLOW RADIATOR
The cross-flow radiators in the cooling systems of the Pontiac Six and the Oakland All-American Six reduce to a minimum losses of water and alcohol. An automatic thermostat prevents water circulation until the engine reaches correct operating temperature. As a consequence the engine warms up quickly and less choking is needed, reducing dilution of crankcase oil. Because of the protection the cross-flow radiator provides against losses of water and alcohol, the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six require less attention in winter than other cars. This is only one of the many advancements which only the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six provide.

GREENEVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. William O. Sargent and daughter, Eva, of New London were visiting relatives in Greeneville Sunday.

Miss Jennie Lewon of Convent avenue, who underwent an operation for appendicitis Monday at the Backus hospital, is resting as comfortably as can be expected. Her many friends in this vicinity wish for a speedy recovery. She is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital.

The T. D. Sewing circle held the regular meeting Monday evening at the home of Miss Alice Smith of Roosevelt avenue, with a large number attending. Following sewing, a social hour was enjoyed with victrola, radio and vocal selections being rendered. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Mary Kirby, consisting of assorted sandwiche, fancy cookies, cake, ice cream and coffee. At the meeting it was voted by the members of the circle to hold a theatre party in the near future.

Mrs. William Carroll has returned to her home on Boswell avenue, after a recent visit to Southbridge.

Mrs. Edgar J. Caron entertained at her home, 182 Central avenue, recently, in honor of Miss Beatrice Caron, who left on Sunday for the French hospital, New York city, to enter the training school for nurses. Miss Caron is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Octave J. Caron of 582 North Main street, and is a graduate of St. Mary's parochial school. Miss Caron was the recipient of numerous beautiful and useful gifts, among which were a green gold Allendort wrist watch, alligator traveling bag and gold piece. A dainty buffet luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. Octave Caron and Mrs. F. Shallor. The party broke up at a late hour, wishing Miss Caron success.

At St. Mary's Memorial church Sunday, the 10:30 o'clock high mass was sung by Rev Fr. Emidorse Portelance, a Norwich boy, but at present stationed at a parish in Arkansas. Fr. Portelance was a recent visitor with relatives in Greeneville.

Mrs. Mercier Cole of New Haven and Mrs. C. H. Wainwright of Boston are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stebbins on Thirteenth street. They arrived here following a trip through the White Mountains.

Rev. J. Rees Jones, pastor of the Episcopal church in Danielson, was a caller in Greeneville Wednesday. Rev. Mr. Jones formerly was pastor of St. Andrew's Episcopal church.

NORWICH TOWN

GUSTAVE P. BOCHMAN TO SPEAK AT CONG. CHURCH

Under the auspices of the Good Citizenship committee of Norwich Town Congregational C. E. society, Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, in the chapel, Gustave P. Bochman of Hartford, chairman of the C. E. Citizenship committee of Connecticut, will give an address on "The Christian Duty as a Voter." All interested are privileged to attend. This meeting will take the place of the regular Y. P. S. C. E. service.

At the first meeting, Sunday last, of the Junior C. E. society of the Congregational church, Bruce Ladd, Elizabeth Browning and Richard Hellar were appointed a nominating committee to select officers for the ensuing year.

Members of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist church assembled for the October meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Fulton, Huntington avenue. Mrs. Fulton, vice-president of the society, was in charge of the meeting, in the absence of the president, Mrs. William Weaver. Mrs. George Warren Potter, wife of the pastor, offered prayer, also accompanied for the singing. At this first meeting for the fall and winter season, plans were formulated for the work to be carried on at the meetings each month. At the next meeting, Thursday, Nov. 8, at the parsonage, Mrs. Potter is to be the hostess. The session Thursday closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Mrs. Arthur Fulton returned recently to her home on Huntington avenue, following over a week's visit at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Hart, of Wethersfield. While there Mrs. Fulton, with her relatives, motored to various points of interest.

DEMOCRATS NAME AVERY AND CONNELL AS CANDIDATES FOR REPRESENTATIVES

CHARLES S. AVERY

Charles S. Avery and Patrick T. Connell were named candidates on the democratic town ticket for election as representatives in the general assembly at the democratic caucus. A contest developed when Meyer Blumenthal was nominated in opposition to Mr. Avery but the vote gave Mr. Avery 75 of the 104 votes cast and he was declared nominated.

There was an attendance of over 100 at the caucus which was called to order at 8 o'clock by William H. Callahan, chairman of the democratic town committee. On motion of Frank H. Quinley, Milo Waters was chosen chairman of the caucus. I appreciate the honor conferred on me, said Mr. Waters, as he assumed the chair. This is a time when we all appreciate the honor of presiding over any democratic caucus. Mr. Waters called attention to the fact that on Saturday the making of new voters will be started. He said it was up to everyone in the hall to make an effort to get as many applicants on the to-be-made list before the examining board Saturday.

On motion of Henry Gebrath, William H. Aldrich was named clerk of the caucus. After the clerk had read the call the chairman called for nominations for representatives.

Earl Mathewson, in nominating Charles S. Avery, said his candidate is a man who has had considerable experience in the legislature. He served two terms in the state senate, was city treasurer for years, and was endorsed by the democratic town committee for the nomination.

The chair appointed as tellers Frank H. Quinley and Robert J. Young and was about to proceed with the vote when Mr. Mathewson suggested that the vote be by acclamation. Mr. Blumenthal said he thought it was no more than fair to each candidate to take a vote by passing in front of the chair. The chairman announced that the vote would be taken as the voters passed from right to left in front of the chair. The result of the vote was as follows:

Necessary for choice	53
Mr. Avery	75
Mr. Blumenthal	29

The chair announced that Mr. Avery was nominated. As soon as the announcement had been made by the chairman Mr. Blumenthal was quickly on his feet. A year and a half ago addressed a city meeting as "Fellow Democrats," he said. I made a mistake then. I feel that I am making NO mistake now in moving that Mr. Avery's nomination be made unanimous. The motion was adopted and the nomination made unanimous.

Patrick T. Connell was then nominated for the second representative by Hermon J. Gibbs. Mr. Gibbs stated in his nomination address that Mr. Connell is well qualified to serve as representative. He served in 1918 and has served the town as selectman. He is a man of very high calibre and will fill this office to the satisfaction of every citizen of Norwich. I have known him for 25 years, Mr. Gibbs said, and have always found him square, honest and upright.

There was no opposition to Mr. Connell and he was unanimously nominated by acclamation.

The only other business before the caucus was the naming of candidates for justices of the peace. On motion of Henry Gebrath the following were named as candidates for justices of the peace:

PATRICK T. CONNELL

Mr. Gebrath then moved that the town committee be empowered to fill any vacancies that might occur on the ticket. The motion was adopted and the caucus adjourned at 8:20 o'clock.

HIGHWAY CLAIM TO GO BEFORE STATE REFEREE

At the short calendar session of the superior court in New London Thursday morning before Judge John Richards Booth, motion for an order of reference to state referee was granted in the case of Coffey, et al. against Macdonald, state highway commissioner, in which there is an application for re-assessment.

Papers were taken in the case of Young against People's Store, Inc.: first, semi-annual report; second, approval of sale of assets; third, compensation to receiver and counsel; fourth, dividend to creditors.

Papers were taken in the case of the Bottinelli-Ferri Contracting and Excavating corporation in which Attorney Max Boyer submitted for acceptance the quarterly report of trustees.

Motions Stand on List

The cases which stood on list were: State of Connecticut against McCook, executor, et al., argument of demurrer.

Woodward, et al., against Liebman, et al.; motion for finding of actual notice by defendant Salant; motion for judgment of foreclosure; motion for default against non-appearing defendant, Salant; motion for disclosure of defense.

The cases which went off were as follows:

Sanford against Fitzgerald, disclosure of defense, and if no defense, hearing and damages.

Carlson, administrator, against Wood, default for failure to plead.

KENNEDY DIVORCE SUIT BROUGHT IN WORCESTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 11—John A. Kennedy of Norwich, Conn., is being sued for a divorce by his wife, Mrs. Eva L. Kennedy of Worcester, a former resident of Norwich, in action brought at the Worcester county probate court.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy were married at Norwich on Sept. 1, 1917, and lived afterward in that city, Waterbury, Washington and Worcester. The wife charges that her husband subjected her to cruel treatment, and that he neglected to properly support her, and asks for the decree on these grounds.

58 TO BE MADES NAMES IN NORTH STONINGTON

Fifty-eight names of voters "to be made" were received by the registrars of voters of North Stonington when they met on Tuesday. The selectmen will be in session at the town hall on Saturday, Oct. 13 from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., to make voters, the last meeting for this purpose before election.

Had Hand Amputated

The friends of Walter Hildebrand, formerly of this city but now in California, will regret to learn that he had his right arm cut off just above the wrist as the result of an accident in his ice cream establishment. He suffered greatly from loss of blood and shock but is making good recovery. The accident happened about three weeks ago.

EXPECT 200 ATTENDANCE AT MERCHANTS' INSTITUTE

Indications at a meeting of the captains Thursday morning point to a record attendance at the opening session of the Retail Merchants Institute at 8:00 next Monday morning in the Wauregan hotel.

For several days the various teams appointed by Chairman James L. Case, have been busily engaged in careful preparations for the coming event and they report everything practically ready.

Thursday morning a total check-up revealed that there would undoubtedly be over 200 salespeople attend the morning sessions.

During these meetings there will be an opportunity to cash in on the experience of hundreds of business concerns in other cities. The great merchant prince, the late John Wanamaker said, "Every man starting out in business will have to go over a hard road and find out its burnings for himself. But he need not go over his road in the dark if he can take with him the light of other men's experience." You are traveling too fast today in the business world not to be guided by the "light of other men's experience." Merle Thorpe, editor of "The Nation's Business," in a recent editorial said that a business man today has to run like the devil in order to stay where he is. He must keep traveling to keep up with the procession.

The merchants bureau in arranging for the better business institute realized the importance of keeping business men and their employes posted on the best methods and ethics used by successful institutions throughout the States and Canada. The man whom they engaged to conduct the business institute, J. W. Griest, manager of the Retail Merchants Institute of Chicago, has spent the best years of his life in gathering data and correlating it in gathering data and co-relating it in such a way that it can be made specifically applicable to the business men and women and their employes.

Not only will Mr. Griest bring to the people of Norwich the experience or successes and failures of other business institutions throughout the country, but he will make local investigations of the business concerns, and, after diagnosing their business ills, will prescribe definite and specific remedies for them. Mr. Griest will, figuratively speaking, feel the pulse, take the temperature, sound the heart-beat and test the thinking apparatus of the human elements that serve the public in the trade territory of Norwich.

Before the opening of the Merchants Institute, investigations will be made by talking to the employes, and making purchases from them in order to observe their ability to greet customers, and to compare their strength and weakness with the best in the field in salesmanship. The results of this investigation will be passed on to the expert who will lecture each morning of the Merchants institute on the general subject of salesmanship and personal efficiency. The data gathered in this investigation will suggest the different phases of salesmanship to be discussed. How do you greet customers? Do you know your merchandise? Can you tell the selling points with effective results? Do you talk too much? Do you adapt your tone of voice to suit different types of customers? Do you recognize the psychological moment? Are you strong or weak in closing? Are you tactful, courteous, diplomatic and considerate? Do you sell merchandise, or do you just wait on customers? These points will be observed and noted, and when Mr. Griest talks to the sales people of Norwich they will realize at once that his lectures are not stereotyped, theoretical ideas, but that he is shooting straight from his shoulder to his listeners.

Even though local investigations are made in order that this Merchants institute be specifically applicable to business conditions in Norwich there will be nothing personal mentioned or local conditions in any one place of business revealed to the audience.

JUDGMENT FOR CHESTER AND FRED ODDIE FOR $3,831

Damages totaling $3,831 and costs are given to Chester J. Oddie and Frank L. Oddie of this city in their suits against Harry B. Ford, administrator of the estate of John H. Ford, in judgments handed down Thursday by Judge John Richards Booth of the superior court and filed with John H. Walker, clerk of the court.

Chester Oddie who was riding a bicycle on March 22, 1927, when it was struck by a motor truck belonging to the Ford estate sued for $25,000 damages. His father, Fred J. Oddie, sued for $5,000 damages for the loss of earnings and for expenses. Brown and James were attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Of the total amount of the judgment, the sum of $2,011 is for one doctor's bill, $250 for another and $586 for hospital bill.

In the case of Chester J. Oddie the only element of damage is the pain and suffering. On this point the physician testified that there would be no permanent disability and he should recover by January next. Under these circumstances judgment is rendered for $1,500 damages and costs.

In the case of Frank L. Oddie the damages consist of the injury and the loss of earnings. These latter amounted to $12 a week, totalling $984, from March 22, 1927, to January 1, 1929. Dr. Swett's bill is $250 and the hospital is $586.

Some comment was made on the physician's bill, which seems pretty large on the face of it, but there is no evidence which would justify my cutting it down in the face of the doctor's testimony, so it may be allowed to the amount of $2,011.

Judgment is therefore rendered in this case for the plaintiff for the sum of $3,831 and costs.

MRS. MURIEL GREENE IS NOMINATED AT HAVANA

Mrs. Muriel S. Greene, of Lord's Point, Stonington, formerly of Norwich, has been unanimously nominated as national senior vice president of the auxiliary to the United Spanish War Veterans at their convention being held in Havana, Cuba.

Mrs. Greene is a daughter of Frank Q. Smith of Laurel Hill and the late Mrs. Elizabeth A. Smith. Mr. Smith was 2nd lieutenant of Co. C. during the Spanish war, and is also attending the convention in Cuba.

Mrs. Greene was the first president of Major L. H. Almy auxiliary, No. 15 U. S. W. V. of Norwich and is now secretary. She was department president of Connecticut auxiliary in 1927-1928 and this year 1928-1929 holds the office of department judge advocate.

SIX DIVORCES GRANTED IN UNCONTESTED CASES

Six of seven uncontested divorce cases were granted and the other one was continued until the next short calendar term of the superior court by Judge John Richards Booth in the superior court at New London Thursday morning. Five of the decrees were granted on grounds of desertion and the other on grounds of habitual intemperance.

Irene H. Zimmerman of New London was granted a divorce from Henry C. Zimmerman of parts unknown and given the custody of a four-year-old child. The couple were married on March 5, 1922 and desertion was alleged since Aug. 15, 1924. The plaintiff was also granted permission to resume her maiden name of Irene H. MacGinnis.

Cora Fraser of Groton was divorced from Charles Fraser of parts unknown. The couple was married in Boston on June 7, 1922 and desertion was alleged since April 26, 1924.

Florence M. Drake of Mystic was granted a divorce decree against Kit Carson Drake of parts unknown on grounds of desertion. The couple were married on Jan. 6, 1915 and desertion was alleged from Sept. 10, 1920.

Pearl Lyden Stahler of New London was divorced from Daniel S. Stahler, Jr., of that city on grounds of habitual intemperance. The couple was married on Sept. 19, 1924. The custody of two children was given to Mrs. Stahler.

Winifred Prime Eldredge, of New London, was given a divorce from Myron L. Eldredge of parts unknown, on grounds of desertion. The couple was married on Feb. 14, 1925, and desertion was alleged from March 1925. The plaintiff was allowed to resume her maiden name of Winifred A. Prime.

SANATORIUM HEADS WILL ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

Officers will be elected at 9:30 o'clock this (Friday) morning by the eastern section of the American Sanatorium asociation which is holding its fifth annual fall meeting at Uncas-on-Thames. The business meeting will be held this morning, and will include the hearing of the reports of the secretary and treasurer and the reports of comittees. It was planned to hold the business meeting Thursday afternoon but owing to the lengthy programme, the business session went over when the meeting adjourned for the day about 6 o'clock.

There are about 80 physicians and specialists in attendance at the meeting which opened Thursday afternoon with the association president, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent of Uncas-on-Thames, in the chair.

A luncheon was held at 12:45 o'clock and was followed by a clinical programme at 2 o'clock. The programme for the clinic was as follows:

2:00 p. m.: Pregnancy as a Complication of Pulmonary Tuberculosis, Arthur H. Morse, M. D., professor of obstetrics, Yale university; discussion, Charles C. Trembley, M. D., Saranac Lake, N. Y., Harry Lee Barnes, M. D., Wallum Lake, R. I.

The Surgical Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis, Edward S. Welles, M. D., Saranac Lake, N. Y.; discussion, Samuel C. Harvey, M. D. professor of surgery, Yale university, Edward D. Churchhill, M. D., Boston, Mass., Lawrason Brown, M. D., Saranac Lake, N. Y.

Physicians and specialists from all the New England states, New York state, Pennsylvania and Washington, D. C. are attending the meeting.

WIFE DENIED DIVORCE FROM HUSBAND IN MAINE PRISON

Mrs. Margaret Young Post of New London is refused a divorce from Frederick L. Post, now in state prison in Thomaston, Maine, according to a judgment rendered by Judge John Richards Booth of the superior court. They were married June 4, 1904 and she sought divorce on the grounds of desertion on Jan. 2, 1923.

"In the instant case it appears that the defendant left the plaintiff in 1924, in this state, ostensibly to go to Maine on a business trip and about ten days later was arrested on a charge of manslaughter and sentenced to imprisonment in the state prison for not less than 10 years nor more than 20 years, which sentence he is now serving. Nowhere in the evidence does it appear that either at the time he left the plaintiff or since has he had any intention of abandoning or deserting her.

"One of the essential conditions of desertion is therefore absent, and for this reason the petition is dismissed."

Philathea Class Met

A meeting of the Philathea class of the First Baptist church held this week in the social room of the church, with supper at 6:30, had for hostesses Mrs. Harry Clark, Mrs. Charles Hamblen, and Miss Mary Dolbeare. There was an attendance of 19. A business meeting followed the supper.

Harry Townsend, a former resident, now living in north parish has purchased the farm of the late John D. Sanger at East Woodstock.

CHURCH RALLY DAY TO RAISE MONEY NEEDED

Sunday will be rally day at the McKinley Avenue A. M. E. Zion church. This drive as has been previously announced, through the press, was launched for the purpose of raising funds for the painting of the interior of the church. Since that time it developed that the roof on the parsonage leaked badly, and had to be covered immediately. This has been done at a cost of $97, $30 of which have already been paid, leaving a balance of $67. This with the original $300 which the church set out to raise would amount to $367. Of this amount through the help of friends, nearly half of this sum has been raised. The rally Sunday is a final effort to raise the required amount.

Three churches will unite with A. M. E. Zion church Suunday afternoon in the rally services—Mt. Cavalry Baptist, Grace Memorial Baptist, both of Norwich and the Bank Street A. M. E. church of New London. Rev. J. B. Wallace, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church of New London, will be the preacher at this service which will be at three o'clock. Rev. W. C. Pittman, of Mt. Cavalry and Rev. Milligan of Grace church, will have places on the program. A large attendance is expected Sunday if all reports are true coming from the various organizations co-operating with the church in this rally.

JUDGMENT FOR DEFENDANT IN DERRICK SUIT

Judgment for the defendant to recover costs has been rendered by Judge John Richards Booth of the superior court in the suit of Louis M. Young of this city against M. A. Gammino Construction company of Providence for $886.74 for rent of a derrick.

In the memorandum of decision Judge Booth says in part that the derrick was admittedly not used and the "weight of testimony shows that it was not suited to the work and was of no value to the defendant."

Sanford Doty, 22, died in the Litchfield county hospital when he was pinned beneath an overturned truck.

CONGRESSMAN FREEMAN SPEAKS TO REPUBLICAN WOMAN'S MEETING

Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London, re-nominated for that office by the republicans of this district, and Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson of New London were the speakers Thursday afternoon at 3 oclock at the woman's hour at republican headquarters on Broadway, presenting strong arguments for the support of the republican ticket in state and national elections.

Mrs. Frank I. Royce of the town committee introduced Mrs. Anderson as the first speaker who opened her address by saying that the personal characteristics of Mr Hoover and Governor Smith were so well known that she would spend no time enlarging upon these, but she desired her hearers to realize that Governor Smith, if elected, would be only learning during the next four years many things in which Mr. Hoover had already proved his ability to build along constructive lines. She declared she had no patience with all the talk about a whispering campaign, for she thought she had never heard so much broadcasting in her life and it was all with loudspeakers. Nor had she any patience she said, with men of the cloth who say that matters of civic and political importance have no place in the pulpit. Touching upon the 18th amendment she declared that she supposed laws were made for the protection of the law abiding and she asked how Governor Smith could be buildin along constructive lines, when he had announced that he had a destructive thing in his mind. His state rights remedy, she said was illogical and wouldn't amount to a picayune.

Speaking for the state ticket she said that it was important to re-elect Governor Trumbull to continue the worth while business administration he has given the state, and she endorsed Congressman Freeman heartily, saying that he had always voted in the affirmative for bills affecting the welfare of women and children, and that the interests of Connecticut would be well protected if Mr. Freeman were returned to congress. Of Mr. Wolcott, the republican nominee for United States senator, she said that he should have the fullest support for he will be an able supporter for Senator Bingham and a man of whom Connecticut will be proud.

Mrs. Anderson said she was a republican because she believed that the welfare of the people would be better cared for under a republican administration than under any other party, and she urged a straight vote on the republican ticket so that Mr. Hoover, the biggest man before us today, and every candidate on the ticket should be elected.

Congressman Freeman followed Mrs. Anderson and called attention to the campaign as one of surpassing interest and declared his belief that it would result in the election of Herbert Hoover, who, the congressman said, he believed would be as great a pilot of the ship of state as Lincoln had been at another crisis in the nation's history.

Mr. Freeman said that the women were showing great interest in the campaign and much is expected of them. The democratic party talks about a whispering campaign but it is conducting a whimpering campaign. The democratic party has been swallowed whole by the Tammany Tiger, whose candidate has decorated the dry plank in the party platform with a coat of wet paint.

We can be justly proud of the deeds of the republican party and the Coolidge administration, said Congressman Freeman. We know we have paid less and less in income taxes. Nearly three million people have been relieved from paying income taxes and yet the income receipts have been increased and the wise guidance of the republican leaders. There has been a net reduction of the public debt of seven billion dollars and an annual decrease in interest paid of 300 million dollars, enough to carry out a great program for waterways improvements. On the other hand in New York state, under Governor Smith, there has been an increase in receipts from 75 millions to 218 millions, but expenditures have even outstripped this and there has been no reduction of the state debt. Governor Smith's attempt to reorganize the state government has left much to be desired. This comparison, Mr. Freeman said, presents a strong reason for putting our national affairs into those who have already shown their fitness in administration.

Mr. Freeman spoke of the benefits to this country of restricted immigration and of maintaining the protective tariff, without which wages would drop and living conditions deteriorate.

He quoted from a New York World editorial in 1920 in which Mr. Hoover was declared to be the logical successor of Woodrow Wilson and the choice for the presidency outstanding above all others, and he went on to speak of Mr. Hoover's remarkable experience in international affairs, his service for the women and children of Belgium and Poland and his highly successful administration of the department of commerce in this government. Summing it up, Congressman Freeman said that Herbert Hoover possesses the best qualities of all our best presidents and he boned the nation would show their appreciation of this by rolling up the biggest republican majority next November.

Giant Dirigible is Headed For the Bermudas, Picking Its Way to Avoid Storm Areas—Had Been Sighted by Steamships in Favorable Weather and Making Good Time—The Azores Are 2056 Miles From Bermuda, and Bermuda is 821 Miles From New York—If Weather Continues Good the Dirigible Should Arrive at Lakehurst, N. J., Sunday Noon.

(By The Associated Press)

The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, making the first commercial trans-Atlantic air crossing, last night was pushing toward her goal at Lakehurst, N. J., on an apparently steady course which had carried her far past the Azores.

For the first 30 hours of her flight from Friedrichshafen, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the world's largest airship, had turned its nose south and again south to avoid storm areas. This deviation from the expected course had added hundreds of miles to the air distance to his goal.

From the Azores came a report that the dirigible was already 276 miles west by south of Horta at 2 p. m., eastern standard time. Earlier it had been thought that she might be sighted there in the late afternoon but the great ship after leaving Madeira apparently had taken a straight course for Bermuda

The Radio Marine corporation in New York reported interception of an unsigned message which said, "Heading straight for Bermuda. If weather continues good we expect to arrive Sunday noon."

If the report from the Azores was correct it may mean that Dr. Eckener expects to berth his airship in the hangar awaiting her at Lakehurst by noon on Sunday. The Azores are 2,056 miles from Bermuda and the latter is 821 miles from New York. If the dirigible maintains an average speed of 60 miles an hour it might be expected at the Bermudas by 5 p. m., eastern standard time, today (Saturday) and at Lakehurst about 24 hours later.

The uncertainties of air speed are multiplied in the case of dirigibles, however. During part of her early flight the Graf Zeppelin had made only 50 miles an hour and the unsigned message intercepted by the Radio Marine corporation said that her speed was then 85 miles an hour. An even greater variation is possible, depending upon the strength and direction of winds encountered.

During the hours when the Zeppelin was carefully picking its way to avoid the storm areas over southwestern Europe and its adjacent seas, it had been frequently sighted and reported both by land stations and by steamships. These reports became more scattering with the fall of night and with her continued progress over the open sea.

The dirigible had, however, apparently reached a point from which she could communicate by radio with either the United States or Europe, at least intermittently.

GRAF ZEPPELIN SAILING MAJESTICALLY TOWARD U. S.

NEW YORK, 12—(AP)—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, grimly bucking head winds that have steadily forced her to the south, tonight was far over the Atlantic bound for the United States on a course that may carry her past Bermuda with but little likelihood of reaching Lakehurst, N. J., before Monday noon.

Thirty-two and a half hours after putting out of Friedrichshafen the Graf Zeppelin was approximately 60 miles west of the Island of Madeira, steering west-northwest, a direction that would carry her midway between the courses to the Azores and Bermuda. At that time it was estimated that the entire journey would take her about 106 hours. If necessary the Graf Zeppelin should be able to stay in the air 126 hours. Before the ship left, it was estimate dthat the trip should take between 80 and 85 hours. The ZR-3 now the Los Angeles, in 1924, made the trip in 81 hours.

Inevitably the hazardous voyage of Columbus and his landing in the new world 436 years ago today was recalled to the minds of aeronautic officials in Berlin poring over charts of the Zeppelin's flight and it was generally felt that hearts less stout than that of Dr. Hugo Eckener and his crew probably would have turned back for Friedrichshafen as the Graf Zeppelin sailed farther and farther south in search of better weather conditions.

That the Graf Zeppelin can reach Lakehurst before Monday noon is generally doubted in aeronautical circles in Germany, while weather is reported good over the stretch between the Azores and Bermuda it is likely that adverse winds will impede her progress near the American coast.

Just what course Dr. Eckener planned to follow appeared dependent upon weather forecasts that he requested both from the Azores and the United States. This morning he notified Friedrichshafen that wind conditions made it advisable for hi mto strike for Bermuda, going south of the Azores, and then to proceed up the American coast. In fact he left the normal course between Gibraltar and the Azores early this morning and went as far south as Madeira Island. He passed over Funchal, Madeira, at 8:30 a. m., eastern standard time. A mailbag for the German consul was dropped and was found in the garden of a casino.

At Madeira, the airliner turned slightly toward the north and at 10:30 a. m. eastern standard time, she was sighted by the steamship Euclid going in a west-northwest direction. If continued, this course would carry her midway between the Azores and Bermuda. Horta advices indicated that the dirigible was heading for those islands and a sharp watch was maintained tonight for the great silver nosed ship of the air.

Little has drifted through the air of the twenty passengers aboard the ship, the only message being one picked up in the Azores saying that they were exceedingly air sick.

SEMINARIES CRITICIZED AT P. E. CONVENTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—The theological schools of the Episcopal church and the system of recruiting men for the ministry were criticized today at the general convention of the church by Bishop Paul Matthews, of New Jersey, the Rev. Leslie Glenn, national secretary of college work and other educationalists of the church.

The seminaries are "solely concerned in the intellectual progress of their men and neglect their moral and spiritual sides," Bishop Matthews told a conference of the commission of the ministry. Laying the blame for unsatisfactory ministers at the doors of the schools he said the bishops were too anxious to get any type of candidate.

Dr. Wallace E. Rollins, professor of church history at the Virginia seminary, said that on the other hand certain bishops had accepted men who had been discarged from seminaries on intellectual and moral grounds and actually ordained them in advance of their class mates.

Mr. Glenn said that "fifty per cent. of the ministers now at work are victims of mild melancholia" quoting in this connection Dr. William S. Keller, physician and prominent layman of the southern Ohio diocese. This, he said, is because the church has at times been forced to recruit its ranks from inferior material.

TEXTILE WORKERS TO ASK 5 1-2 PER CENT WAGE RAISE

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 12—(AP)—The emergency committee of the United Textile Workers of America, will begin a campaign immediately to secure a 5 1-2 per cent wage increase in all New England mills which have reduced wages 10 per cent during the past year.

The announcement was made here tonight by Thomas F. McMahon, international president of the textile workers, following a meeting of the emergency board of the organization in this city today. The emergency board voted to inaugurate a movement to secure the 5 1-2 per cent increase. Wage increases recently awarded in New Bedford and Fall River, led to the decision. In both cities, a former wage reduction of 10 per cent has been reduced.

BUST IN MEMORY OF DR. WILLIAM T. G. MORTON

BOSTON Oct. 12—(AP)—The memory of Dr. William T. G. Morton was honored today by members of the Associated Anaesthetists of the United States and Canada in the little dome room of the Massachusetts General hospital where, on Oct. 16, 1846, Dr. Morton gave the first demonstration of a surgical operation performed with the use of ether.

After a visit to Dr. Morton's grave, a bust of the surgeon was presented the hospital by Dr. Francis H. McMechan, secretary-general of the association.

HOOVER COMPLETING TARIFF AND FOREIGN TRADE SPEECH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Spending a second day in the quiet of his study Herbert Hoover today neared the end of his work upon the speech on the tariff and foreign trade which he is to deliver Monday night in Boston.

The republican presidential nominee spent but little time in his personal headquarters on Massachusetts avenue, returning to his home at noon to pass the remainder of the day in grinding out the address in which he will launch his second offensive upon the industrial east.

With Massachusetts described as one of the pivotal states in the election, the nominee probably will make his appeal for the Bay State electoral vote one of the strongest utterances he yet has made in the campaign. At the time of its delivery the final showdown will be but a scant three weeks away and Massachusetts leaders are placing much dependence in the power of the nominee to corral votes. Meanwhile they are building up a strong organization in the state and laying their plans carefully for a powerful drive during the final days of the campaign.

DEATH OF MRS. A. E. STETSON, CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, former leader in the Christian Science church and who claimed she was immortal, died here today after an illness of ten weeks.

Although she always had refused to tell the date of her birth, relatives said she was 86 or 88 years of age.

Death came to the woman, who resigned from the First Church of Christ in New York in 1909, after friction with the mother church in Boston in the hotel suite of her nephew, Major Harold Stimpson.

Mrs. Stetson was known to the general public for her efforts to abolish the third verse of "The Star Spangled Banner" maintaining that the verse was subversive to both peace and good will.

SEN. ROBINSON SUSTAINS SMITH'S VOLSTEAD ACT VIEWS

EN ROUTE TO SEATTLE, Oct. 12—(AP)—Senator Joe T. Robinson, speaking from the rear platform of his campaign train in northern California today, declared he was heartily in accord with Gov. Smith's view that the Volstead act gives no scientific definition of what constitutes an intoxicating beverage.

He declared that the change sought by Gov. Smith in the prohibition law and the contributory laws would give such states as desire them very light wines and beer.

All Aboard The Sub Ondine Are Dead

The French Under Sea Boat Was Rammed by a Greek Cargo Carrier Off Oporto.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The submarine Ondine, which was to have been the newest unit of the strongest arm of the French navy, is at the bottom of the ocean and her crew of three officers and [illegible] are dead.

The ministry of marine learned to its consternation tonight that the trained [illegible] about midnight October [illegible] the submarine was rammed [illegible] to by the Greek cargo [illegible] Caterini M. Goulandris. Word of [illegible] came in brief advices from the French consul at Rotterdam.

The ministry was totally at a loss to explain why the captain of the Greek steamer waited until today to report the accident. They were dumfounded too by the fact that he abandoned a search for survivors or wreckage within two hours after his steamer hit the Ondine.

By the captain's own admission, the night was clear and the sea was fairly calm.

COLD WEATHER IN THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN REGION

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 12—(AP)—Winter gripped the northern Rocky mountain region today wreaking havoc with automobile tourists, delaying the air mail and covering parts of Montana and Wyoming with snow more than a foot deep. The cold wave was spreading east and west of the Continental Divide, and even brought snow flurries to southern California.

More than 50 automobile tourists marooned on the Lincoln highway, were rescued early today as the result of the heroism of an unidentified woman who pushed through to Rock Springs, Wyo., and formed a relief party to go to the aid of cars stalled between Baxter Station and Bitter Creek, Wyo.

A score of volunteers in trucks fought their way through a blinding snowstorm to the tourists. The blizzard blocked the highway and caused intense suffering from cold. The rescuers worked for more than four hours to extricate the cars.

Wyoming bore the brunt of the cold wave offensive on autumn's weakening ramparts. Mail planes were held up at Rock Springs, and their cargoes sent on by trains, which themselves were delayed by the storm. Eighteen inches of snow fell at Lander.

Freezing temperatures in Montana were accompanied by snow in some districts. At Denver the skies remained overcast. Drizzling rains were general east of the Continental Divide. While temperatures were lower in New Mexico, the weather was mild. Nevada and Utah received snow in widely scattered sections.

Prizes for the event go to the first 30 finishers, with a team trophy also at stake.

FREEZING WEATHER TO FOLLOW HEAT WAVE

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(AP)—Summer today refused to be frightened from the Mississippi and Ohio river valleys by predictions that freezing weather, and possibly, snow will be experienced during the next few days. Summer staged another comeback in Chicago with a temperature of 78 degrees, one degree below the hottest October 12 on record.

YOUNG GIRL SEEMINGLY SUFFERING FROM AMNESIA

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP)—An 18-year-old girl who said she thought she was Ida O'Neill of Sound Beach, Conn., was taken to Bellevue hospital tonight, seemingly suffering from amnesia. A taxi driver who picked her up in a dazed condition in the Bronx drove her to a doctor, who ordered her taken to the hospital.

NOTED RUSSIAN BASSO MAY APPEAR IN VOCAL FILMS

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The "talkies" may gain a sian recruit in Feodora Challapin. The noted Russian basso told newspapermen in London today that he had received several offers to appear in vocal films. He indicated there was a chance that he might accept one of these tenders.

Leaders and Trailers.

In every gathering you can pick them out—the people whose clothes are always in style and who furnish their home with taste, and entertain artistically. They are the leaders.

At the other end of the line you pick out the trailers. They are always a little out of step and the last to hear the styles have changed.

What is it that makes the difference between front rank and rear rank families? Temperament partly, of course. But the real answer is that one group chooses to keep posted while the other is willing to remain in ignorance.

It is just as certain that the leaders in any social set read the advertising columns and take advantage of their suggestions as it is that the tail enders neglect them. The advertisements tell you how to get the most out of life.

S O S Call From British Freighter

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12—(AP)—An S O S from the British freighter Trojan Star was picked up at 6:50 o'clock tonight by the Mackay radio and telegraph station. The message said the crew was preparing to take to the boats, and gave her position as 47 miles west of Cape Mendocino on the coast of northern California.

The Trojan-Star left San Pedro harbor October 9 and is bound for British Columbia. Later she was in communication with three or four other boats. The nearest the steamer Makiki being about thirty miles to the north and speeding to her assistance.

The Trojan-Star reported her plight in an S. O. S. flashed at 6:45 p. m. and intercepted by The Merchants Exchange radio station here.

At least three vessels heard the Trojan-Star's distress call and were speeding to her assistance.

CHINESE DECIMATED BY FEUDS, DROUGHT, FAMINE

PEKING, China, Oct. 12—(AP)—Word of bloody religious feuds, drought and famine— all taking a toll of hundreds of thousands of lives—continued to come from Kansu province. The reports have reached the Kansu provincial guild, Chinese government officials and Mohammedan circles here.

The latest advices indicate that the unrest among Moslems, actuated by a desire for self government continues. Spasmodic uprisings take place despite the presence of numerous nationalist troops who find that no sooner quell disturbances in one locality than outbreaks in others.

In addition to a desire for independence, the unrest among the Moslems has been stirred up by clamor for permission to preserve old customs. Chinese authorities, attempting to restore their impaired authority, have interfered with these customs by introducing revolutionary forms.

Reports received at the Kansu guild state that 200,000 lives were lost in a wholesale massacre. Whether this refers to a recent development or covers uprisings which began last April is not clear. Guild headquarters, however, contain several members whose memory is still fresh of the Mohammedan rebellion of 1875 in which tens of thousands of Chinese lost their lives.

MISSING COAST GUARD CUTTER SMITH LOCATED

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12—(AP)—The coast guard radio headquarters here received shortly before six p. m. a message from the patrol boat 262, saying the missing coast guard cutter Smith had been located and was in no immediate danger. The Smith had vanished after calling for help off Point Arena last night.

"Cutter Smith is located. Not in immediate danger. Cahokia and CG 262 are proceeding to her. Smith has engine trouble. Not missing badly."

Coast guard officials here said they lacked the position where the Smith had been located.

WOMEN ROBBED OF $20,000 AND JEWELRY

GENOA, Italy, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Charles H. Hopkins, of Santa Barbara, and San Francisco, complained to the police today that she and her traveling companion had been robbed of a letter of credit for $20,000 and of some jewelry while staying at the Miamara hotel here. The police believe that the thief is one of an international band of "hotel rats" who operate in the French and Italian rivieras each autumn and winter.

Mrs. Hopkins and her travelling companion said that they suspected a young man who travelled on the same train with them from Switzerland. They left early today for San Remo, Italy.

TESTIMONY ENDS IN QUENS SEWER TRIAL

The jury will decide next week whether or not Maurice E. Connolly, sewer engineer, under fire last April as president of Queens borough, and his former sewer engineer, Frederick Seeley, are guilty as charged, of conspiracy to defraud the city through sewer contracts.

Court was adjourned until Monday after Max D. Steuer, chief counsel for Connolly, announced that the defense rested. Final arguments by the attorneys will be heard Monday.

STEAM WHISTLE GREETING FOR SMITH AT NASHVILLE

As the Democratic Nominee Approached the City Whistles Roared and Large Crowd at the Station Cheered—Train Was Escorted by Two Airplanes of the National Guard—In His Speech Gov. Smith Accused Hoover and Curtis of Evading Clear Cut Definitions of hte Important Issues of the Campaign.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 12—(AP)—Governor Smith arrived at 5 p. m. today at Nashville, Tennessee's state capital, where he will deliver a formal campaign address tonight.

He approached the city amid a roar of steam whistles while a large crowd at the station followed with cheers. During the last part of his ride from Chattanooga his train was escorted by two airplanes of the state national guard.

Through a throng at the railroad station the democratic presidential nominee was able to reach his automobile only with the aid of four husky policemen who pushed away people crowding in upon him on all sides.

Governor Smith then headed a long motorcade which proceeded through the streets.

The doors of Ryman auditorium were opened around 6:30, an hour and 30 minutes before the time scheduled for the governor's address.

In a few minutes the hall, which has an estimated seating capacity of 5,000, was filled and by 7 o'clock the street in front of the building was jammed.

Mrs. Smith, who, with her two daughters, arrived some time ahead of the governor, was cheered. The band first played "The Sidewalks of New York," and then "Dixie."

By 8:10 the governor had not appeared and from the packed galleries came shouts:

"We want Al," and "Where is Al?"

It was then discovered that the hour of the address had been erroneously announced, that 8:30 had been the hour selected by the democratic nominee.

The band started up again. It played "Dixie" for about the half dozenth time. The governor arrived at the auditorium at 8:26 p. m. Everybody was up and started shouting as soon as he appeared on the right of the platform. He was escorted by two policemen who had some trouble forcing him through the jam.

The governor walked to the front of the platform waving his brown derby. He was introduced by Governor Horton, who referred to him as "the most popular man in the United States today."

"I simply came to tell you that Al is here and to say to you to tell him that Tennessee is a democratic state."

The governor began his address by saying original plans had called for his passing through Tennessee, shaking hands and waving the brown derby.

"Keep it waving, Al," somebody shouted and the crowd roared.

The crowd cheered again a moment later when the nominee referred to the state as the home of Andrew Jackson.

CAMPAIGN ISSUES REVIEWED BY SMITH AT NASHVILLE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 12—(AP)—Charging Herbert Hoover and Senator Curtis with evading a clear cut definition of the important issues of the campaign, Governor Smith tonight reviewed his stand on the questions of farm relief, water power, immigration and prohibition and appealed to his republican opponent to talk in plainer terms if the American people on November 6 are to make their decision "with the full knowledge of all the facts."

In an address prepared for delivery in the Ryman auditorium here, the democratic presidential nominee said he had read Mr. Hoover's Tennessee speech and had failed to find any mention of Muscle Shoals. He said this was a timely campaign topic in Tennessee since this state would be "greatly benefited by public operaiton and control" of that project.

The republican nominee, the governor said, had found his reference to Muscle Shoals "so vague and ambiguous," that he subsequently felt oblized to issue two statements regarding it. He then found his position "more involved than ever," the governor added.

Mr. Hoover, he continued, had contented himself with the following general observation:

"There are local instances where the government must enter the business field as a by-product of some great major purpose such as improvement in navigation, flood control, scientific research or national defense."

"I do not know what he can mean by 'by-product' unless it is the generation of hydro-electrical energy."

Referring to another part of the Hoover speech declaring that violations of public interest by individuals or corporations "should not induce us to abandon progressive principles and substitute in their place deadly and destructive doctrines," The governor said he would like to know what his opponent meant by "deadly and destructive doctrines."

"Does he refer to government ownership and control of water power sites?" he asked. "If so, why not say it? What is to be gained by clothing it in ignorance that the man on the street is unable to understand? Is public ownership and public development of water power deadly? If so, why not let Mr. Hoover come right out and say, 'I believe in leasing or in selling or in disposing of, to private corporations for private development and for private profit, the great water power resources that belongs to the people?'"

"That would define the issue," Governor Smith declared, and then contrasted the republican administration stand on Muscle Shoals with his own promise to complete its "development under government ownership and control, which would reclaim to the government some fair revenue from the enormous expenditure already made for its improvement."

As for prohibition, Governor Smith reviewed his Milwaukee speech in which he called for restrictive sale of liquor under state control, with those states wanting to remain dry, maintaining this status under full protection of the dry laws. He charged Mr. Hoover with admitting the "abuses" that have grown up around prohibition, but instead of suggesting a remedy, "which he is either unwilling or unable to do, he expresses just the faint hope for its future success."

"I have definite ideas about the 18th amendment and the Volsted law, and, as a husband and a father, I have as much interest in protecting the American home as any man in the United States," the governor declared after quoting Mr. Hoover as saying "the purpose of the 18th amendment is to protect the American home."

"I ask that the prohibition question be treated in accordance with the Jeffersonian theory of states' rights," the democratic nominee continued. "This great section of the country through which I have been traveling for the past two days, during all of its history has been devoted to the Jeffersonian principal of states' rights. Why not apply it to this question? I think you must admit the great difficulty of securing cooperation from the rank and file of our people for a reasonable, fair and just enforcement of the prohibition law when large numbers of the people of so many states are out of tune and out of sympathy with the law."

Breaking into the farm question early in his address, the nominee said that ever since his Omaha speech when he endorsed in principle the surplus control features of the McNary-Haugen bill, "republican orators, the republican national committee, and for that matter, the republican candidate himself, have been very hard pressed to answer."

At the outset, the nominee said he had not contemplated making a formal campaign speech here, but that he "did not feel like leaving the state that gave the nation that great leader of democracy, Andrew Jackson, without saying something in appreciation of the warm welcome that I have received."

SMITH MADE INFORMAL TALK IN CHATTANOOGA

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 12—(AP)—En route to Nashville for a brief address tonight, Governor Smith made an informal talk in the memorial auditorium here today. It was explained that he had been requested by the democratic national committee not to make addresses during the day in order to conserve his voice, and Judge H. M. Allison in stating this said his position on all questions already is well known.

Gov. Smith declared that political campaigns are usually in the nature of a debate but he did not "hear anything from my opponent" on which to carry on a verbal contest.

"He only speaks every two weeks," he told his audience amid laughter, and added: "This would not be so bad if you could find anythin gto argue about with him when he does speak."

FRANCE OFFICIALLY THANKS AMERICAN LEGION

Four distinguished French veterans presented Edward E. Spafford, retiring national commander of the legion, with a plaque commemorating the legion convention in Paris in 1927. The ceremony, due to delays which the deputation met, came a day after the 1929 convention of the legion had closed, but it was carried out at a meeting of the legion auxiliary.

Jean Desbons, president of the French Society of Prisoners of War and Escaped, made the presentation

LOCATE MAN REPORTED KILLED IN WORLD WAR

PUEBLO, Col., Oct. 12—(AP)—Long distance telephone conversation gave what Pueblo police considered positive identification of a man held here as Harry Devlin, Canadian war veteran, missing since 1916.

From Toronto, Canada, "Billy" Wallace, boyhood friend of Devlin and now a reporter on the Toronto Star talked with the man here and together they recounted boyhood experiences that led S. L. Devlin, 67, of Toronto to believe he had found his son, who was reported killed in the World war in 1916.

COLCHESTER

S. P. WILLARD'S CANDIDACY MATTER OF WIDE INTEREST

There is keen local interest in the republican nomination of Samuel P. Willard for representative to the state legislature. Mr. Willard is one of the strongest candidates to be placed in the field by the republicans for many years.

At his own request, he is to retire December 1 from the employ of the state after 41 years of service. He is in charge of the department of accounts and purchases of the state board of education. Having joined the state board in December, 1887, he has seen the department grow from one assistant to over 40 employes at the present time. During all these years Mr. Willard has commuted to Hartford daily by train and since the discontinuance of the Air Line railroad passenger service he has patronized the bus line. His face was familiar to the commuters on the old "Black Diamond" express train for many years and during his time spent in commuting back and forth from his home to the Hartford office and in performing his state duties he made countless friends. In addition to his friends about the state, Mr. Willard's life-long residence in Colchester coupled with his amiable disposition and splendid character have earned for him the respect and friendship of the local people. He is a trustee of Bacon academy as well as the Crazin Memorial library and takes a particular interest in the progress of these two local institutions.

Mr. Willard's retirement was reluctantly accepted by the state board of finance. Colchester is now hopeful of being able to send him as one of its representatives to the state legislature.

In nominating Dr. Cyrus E. Pendleton and Samuel McDonald, the democrats are also putting some very strong candidates in the field for representatives to the state legislature. Dr. Pendleton, who moved here from Hebron a number of years ago, is highly respected by the townspeople. He has filled the office of town treasurer and agent of the town deposit fund for several years and his work in that connection is most commendable. Samuel McDonald has been selectman of the town during previous years, and is a man of practical experience, having been in the lumber business for many years.

Henry G. Koch and family have moved their household goods from the Gellert house on Gillette Hill to a house near the church on Dublin Hill.

Friday was an unusually warm day for this time of year, the mercury reaching 108 degrees in the sun at 1 p. m.

Harold Clark has commenced a house-to-house canvass for the names of all persons liable for a personal tax and military enrollment.

Morgan Stedman, who is attending Harvard university is at his home on South Main street for over the week end.

WESTERLY

LEGAL HOLIDAY FRIDAY—COURT CASES GO OVER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 12—In the Third District court, Judge Oliver H. Williams, no cases were tried Friday, the 12th of October, Columbus day, and a legal holiday in Rhode Island. Court matters were disposed of as follows:

New writ entered—(On Thursday in Hope Valley, where the court can hold discretionary sessions) automobile damage case, Ruby M. Mercier vs. Alvin R. Zeigler. Writ entered before the calling of the docket—James W. Burke vs. Thurman F. Eldredge. Continued two weeks. Civil docket—Charles H. Gavitt vs. Joseph A. Guarino. Continued one week. R. C. Duguid and Co. vs. Alvin Murphy. Continued one week. John O. Mills vs. Mabel E. Bickelhaupt and John Haas. By agreement of attorneys set down for trial Friday next.

Oscar Silverman et al vs. Pasquale Salemano et ux. Continued one week. Rockwell and Co., Inc., vs. Rose Joyce Wein. Continued one week. The Burr-Mitchell Co. vs. James Gencarella, alias. Continued one week. Just before Judge Williams directed Sheriff Mitchell to adjourn the court, he addressed the attorneys: "You will note, gentlemen, there is no criminal docket, though many officers (three members of the Westerly police department and three Rhode Island state troopers) are present!"

GREAT DISCOVERER HONORED BY ITALIAN-AMERICANS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY Oct. 12—The Columbus day observance in Westerly under direction of Italian-American residents of the town was ushered in with the explosion of an aerial bomb at 8 a. m. The Columbus day parade started from the junction of Elm and Broad streets, headed by Motorcycle Officer George Madison and two R. I. troopers, shortly after 2:30 o'clock and proceeded over Broad, West Broad, Morgan and Liberty streets, counter-marched to West Broad street, through High, Canal, Pleasant, Pierce and High streets, to Grove avenue to Wilcox Park.

Joseph Sisco was marshal and had as aides an honorary committee consisting of Samuel Nardone, Louis J. Rossi, Joseph Ruisi, Dr. John E. Ruisi, Michael J. Turano, Joseph S. Grillo, Angelo Gencarelli, James Naccarato and Dominic Turco. Also in the line were two sections of the Colonial band of Providence, a group of young white-frocked girls, four in number carrying a replica of Columbus and the landing party at San Salvadore. Then came three young girls bearing flags. Music was furnished by the Colonial band of Providence, 30 pieces, Prof. Joseph DiPalma, leader. Other marching bodies were Loggia Iolanda Margheritta, Ernesto Ruggerio, president, No. 342 Sons and Daughters of Italy; Foresters of America, Samuel Grillo, president; Cittadini Calabro Americani, Pasquale Pelligrino, president and the Italian Welfare club of Westerly, Crist Ferraro, president. At the conclusion of the march the Colonial band proceeded to Wilcox park where classical airs were played in a late afternoon concert from the band stand. At 7:30 the Colonia' band headed the committee in a march to Westerly Athletic field where a second concert was given. At 9:30 o'clock an elaborate and spectacular display of fireworks, consisting of aerial and set pieces, was witnessed by a large crowd including many who came in automobiles and parked at advantageous points.

The Columbus day holiday falling on Friday and with a Saturday half holiday following was the cause of exceptionally heavy motor traffic on Westerly thoroughfares Thursday night and Friday morning. Motor buses were run triple and double header and the number of Massachusetts plated private autos proceeding in a westerly direction was large and almost continuous throughout the night.

Westerly people on the holiday and many from points inland took occasion with the hot weather and the mercury between 70 and 80 to again visit their shore property at the beaches of Watch Hill, Misquamicut and Weekapaug. The sight in town of bareheaded and shirt-sleeved men was not unusual while top coats would have looked out of place.

Westerly police department is adding to its equipment in a measure to bring it up to date and recently secured a "straight-jacket" which is a rugged piece of police machinery. It will shortly add other equipment to its detention room the walls of which are to be painted white in an endeavor to make it more "attractive."

While the Columbus day parade was moving up High street about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon three large airplanes flying in formation at a very high altitude could just be discerned proceeding in a northeasterly direction. Had it not been for the hum of the motors the planes would probably have escaped notice.

Westerly High School Athletic association held its election, the past week, conducted by the student council. Only members of the Athletic association voted. The results were: President, Douglas Rae; vice president, Everett Green; secretary, Donald Bonner; track manager, Stanton Gavitt; baseball manager, John Edmund; assistant track managers, Russell Peckham and Carter; assistant baseball manager, Green and Peckham; assistant football managers, Frank Acolina and William Lawson.

Clayton Smith, a drawing instructor at Classical high school, Providence, was a Columbus day visitor with Westerly relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Ward Steddard, proprietors of the Mary Oliver Kennel in Westerly, were Columbus day visitors in Newton, Mass., making the trip by automobile. A Boston terrier, "Rushlow-by-Chance" was exhibited by them in the dog show held in the Middlesex county town.

Raymond D. Mullaney returned Friday to Providence.

Leo Ruisi was able to return to his barbershop duties on Friday after being confined to his home for a week by illness.

Lewis Solomon, who has been confined to his Elm street home by anaemic conditions, was reported improved on Friday after consulting a Boston specialist.

Offices in the Westerly Town hall were closed Friday for the Columbus day legal holiday.

Miss Jean Martin has returned from a visit in New London.

Miss Ruth V. Davis and Miss Elizabeth Ring are guests this week end of Miss Davis' sister, Miss Virginia Davis, in Northampton, Mass.

NOANK

LOCAL SPORTSMAN GETS TWO PHEASANTS EASY

Gordon Clark, a well known hunter of the village, with his dog, Dash, went out to the woods in Center Groton Thursday morning early, to try his luck at pheasant shooting. This was the second time she dog had a chance in the woods, and Hunter Clark wanted to see if Dash knew his onions about wild game. Soon a cock pheasant came from a large brush pile. The dog started barking and Eagle Eye Clark put his left arm up quick and landed Mr. Pheasant. It was a large bird. Two hours later another pheasant was seen leaving his hiding place. Again Gordon made a pretty wing shot and got a second bird from the pheasant family, making two for his day, all the law will allow any hunter to take in a day. Putting the birds in his hunting coat, he started up his Lizzie for the village. He is the first Noank hunter to bring in pheasants this season.

Fire Near Hose House

At 1:30 Thursday afternoon, Chief H. H. Park came over the store hill in his auto, calling to everyone, "A fire!". Not many Smoke Eaters were around, but the crowd was soon racing to the fire room to see where the blaze was. Ladderman Roy Scaplan and Hoseman Walter Willey, with brooms, were putting out a sawdust fire back of the engine house. Chief Park took charge, for a strong wind was blowing right toward the fire building. After working for 25 minutes the blaze was out. A small crowd gathered to watch the Smoke Eaters working so hard to save their home for the cold winter months. The fire was discovered by school children playing in the school yard, who told Harry Peters and he gave Chief Park a call, so as not to ring the fire bell.

Smelts Running Early

Smelts are running good in the North Cove and row boats are seen with two fishermen in each every day. It seems early for smelts, but the cool mornings have put pep into the little fish, making them bite the hooks. Stalling Jo Hyde, Jr., is high hook, the champion smelt catcher in the village so far, getting 400 smelts in seven hours fishing. One smelt weighed 1 1-4 pounds and was 11 inches in length, the largest smelt ever taken out of the North Cove. It was on exhibition at D. Oliver's market. Many old sea captains are wondering if the big hurricane in the south rushed the yellow fish up to Connecticut waters so early to begin the season.

The bonyfish steamer, George Squire, of Boston, has been put on the South ways at the local shipyard for a general overhauling and looking over. The engine was inspected by an engine expert of the yard, Almon Meister. He reported that the craft was in need of repairs and sent down two enginemen to do the job. It will take four days to fix the engine. Arthur Carson had charge of hauling out the steamer. Several steamers of that fleet will get their regular winter repairs, to get them ready for spring fishing off Georges Banks or Canada. Foreman Charles Butson has charge of the wood work and a small force will take care of the job.

CHAPLIN

A republican caucus held at the town hall Wednesday evening at 7.30 was largely attended, the assemblage including a good number of women. John F. Reed received the nomination for representative on the first ballot. Burton M. Welch was nominated for judge of probate by acclamation. Charles B. Russ, Charles C. Locke and Theresa Dauteneck were nominated for justices of the peace. George A. Reed was chairman of the caucus and Ross A. Moran was clerk.

STONINGTON

LEGION POST SPONSORS SHENANDOAH FLAG SYSTEM

James W. Harvey post, No. 58, American Legion, has voted to sponsor the uniform flag display for Stonington. This consists of flags on metal poles along the curb line in front of each store or residence throughout the borough. A committee was appointed to wait upon the merchants to secure their support in the movement.

Mrs. Albert Mason of New York is visiting here with her daughters, Miss Katherine and Miss Lucy Mason.

Joseph F. Joseph and family attended the funeral of their relative, Mrs. Henry Aurelio, in Norwich Thursday.

There will be a republican rally in the Stonington Town hall Monday evening, Oct. 22, under the auspices of the Groton and Stonington Hoover and Curtis club. The speakers will be Senator Frederick C. Walcott, candidate of the republican party of Connecticut for U. S. senator, and Senator Alice P. Merritt of Hartford, who is working among the women of the state in the interests of the party.

Neptune Engine company of Stonington sent a contribution some months ago to the Rescue Mission in Chinatown to aid in the work of the mission. Recognition of the gift was made over the radio Sunday and a musical selection requested by the company was given.

The members of the Stonington Fire Police had their annual theatre party and banquet in New London Thursday evening. The trip was made in the cars of the members.

Mrs. Bertha Belmer and daughter returned to Stonington Wednesday from a visit of two months in Germany.

Miss Elizabeth Carrington has returned from a visit with Philadelphia relatives.

Mrs. George W. Brown and children of Noank spent Thursday as guests of Mrs. Jerome S. Anderson, Jr.

DANIELSON

ATTAWAUGAN HOTEL SOLD; DEPT. STORE ON SITE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 12—W. W. Reimer today announced the sale of the Attawaugan hotel to Bernard Zelman of Boston for William S. Brown. It is understood that the sale includes an agreement that the hotel shall be torn down and the materials removed from the site within 90 days.

Information here today was to the effect that the hotel is to be replaced with a $100,000 department store building, construction of which will be undertaken within a few months. The new building will be but one tall story in height will occupy the entire frontage of the hotel property and extend back at least 100 feet. The promise is that it will be of ornate construction and ultra modern in its appointments down to the last detail.

All of the land owned by Mr. Brown in the rear of the hotel is included in the deal, which is one of the most important real estate transactions in Danielson in years. It is probable that the hotel will close its doors for the last time at the end of this month.

The plan to tear down the hotel means the passing of a land mark that has stood for well over half a century. It is a four-story frame structure with about 60 rooms, and in its hey-day was regarded as one of the best hotels between Norwich and Worcester. Its sale has been negotiated for several times in the past few years, but no agreement was reached. In these instances the prospective buyers were understood to be contemplating building a new hotel on the site of the present one, and in one instance there was talk of a combination hotel and theater.

Removal of the Attawaugan hotel will leave Danielson with only one small hotel—the Danielson inn—in its business section, and that fact immediately started speculation today as to the likelihood of some interest or other promoting in the near future the construction of a large and modern hotel in Danielson.

There are those who believe that Danielson now presents a better opportunity for such an investment than almost any other town of its size in New England as such a hotel would have practically no competition. In speculating over the erection of such a new hotel there were those who discussed available sites. The T. E. Hopkins estate is in the market, has been for two or three years, and is regarded as ideal for a hotel location at the new junction of the two trunk line highways in Danielson—the New London-Worcester, and the Hartford-Providence route. Other properties not distant from the business section also can be had, it is understood, for the erection of a hotel.

In any event, the sale of the Attawaugan hotel property forecasts additional important developments in Danielson's business section and is hailed with great interest.

OVER 5,000 TROUT RELEASED IN STREAMS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 12—Eight thousand trout were released today in brooks in the towns of Killingly, Brooklyn, Canterbury and Pomfret by members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club cooperating with employes of the state board of fisheries and game. The trout came from a hatchery at Plymouth, and were 3 to 4 inches in length. All of the fish excepting a very few were in lively condition when released in the brooks.

The streams to which they were consigned were Kit brook, Coffey brook, Mashentuck, Brickyard, Pine, White, Burdick, Cummings and Slater's.

George W. Kent of Elmville said this afternoon that he had hopes that the state might allow another consignment of trout for release this season. It is anticipated that the fish released today will be about legal size by the time the fishing season opens next April.

A. J. Cavanaugh, Dayville, chairman of the democratic town committee, announced this afternoon that there is to be another democratic rally—an open air one—on Railroad square Saturday evening. The speakers are to be Attorney William Citron, democratic candidate for representative in congress from the Second Connecticut district, and John H. Pickett, a former American Legion head in this state.

An appropriation of $2,000 will be asked at the special town meeting next week to meet the expense of auditing the town's accounts by some firm of certified accountants. It was explained today in the interest of the petitioners that the audit is desired as supplemental to the work done by the town auditors. It also developed today that the proposal will meet with opposition by citizens who believe the audit unnecessary and a needless expense, so the meeting that will pass upon the matter promises to be an interesting one.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department says he has learned that property owners are this fall having chimneys cleaned in greater numbers than ever before, this being in a line with a suggestion the chief has made each fall for the past decade. The great majority of Danielson's fires are caused by unclean or defective chimneys, and it is to reduce the number of such fires that Chief Woodward recommends the cleaning of chimneys.

Two rounders who made no secret of the fact that they wanted to go to jail were told today by Chief John McFarland that if he did accommodate them it would be for a year, and that this could be accomplished by placing a sufficient number of charges against them. One of them had represented that he was so weak and physically worn that he could not possibly travel farther and must have accommodations, but he made a prompt recovery, sufficient anyway to get out of town, when he was told what would be done for him, and how. Chief McFarland points out that it costs the town money to commit men to jail, and that he is opposed to spend any in the case of rounders who are merely looking for 30 to 60 days vacation at someone's expense.

An impressive candle light vesper service planned to be held at the Westfield Congregational church Sunday evening has been planned by the Tatapochon Camp Fire Girls and will be conducted exclusively by them. The Methodist Episcopal church is co-operating. Rev. Harding W. Gaylord will give The Message of the Embers.

The Fortnightly club is to meet next Tuesday with Miss Emma F. Pilling of North Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Wood of White Plains, N. Y., are visiting with Mr. Wood's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wood.

Christopher Andrews and Mr. and Mrs. C. Alton Frost of South Braintree, Mass., spent Columbus day with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Allen of Broad street.

Members of Rose of Lima council, K. of C., held a smoker at their rooms in the Gallup building tonight in observance of Columbus day, and a lunch was served. The committee of arrangements was made up of J. A. Goulet, Leo Pechie and Ernest Malo.

John M. Bessette, a former member of the legislature, is the democratic candidate for representative from the town of Brooklyn. Judge Oscar F. Atwood of that town has both the democratic and republican nominations to succeed himself as judge of probate.

The temperature took an amazing upward bound today, running the mercury up to 95 degrees in one thermometer that was exposed to the sun at the Puritan restaurant at 11 a. m.

A rehearsal for members of the new Community band is planned for next Tuesday evening. A very considerable amount of interest is being shown in this new organization.

Flags were flown here today in honor of Columbus, the banks were closed and the postoffice on holiday schedule for the day.

The convention of the Windham county Council of Religious Education is to be held at the Westfield Congregational church here next Monday, and will include delegations from various towns in this part of the state.

When members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R. meet next Thursday afternoon they will hear an address on National Defense by Mrs. Elizabeth Barney Buell.

Henry Kosmaler is in Cuba attending the convention of Spanish-American war veterans. Mr. Kosmaler is a resident of Attawaugan and a member of Colonel William H. Hamilton post of Danielson.

In reorganizing for another year the town school committee re-elected F. E. Bitgood as chairman and Mrs. Agnes H. Paine as secretary.

A four team basketball league is to organized from among the members of the Service battery.

Next Tuesday members of the Ladies' Prayer league are to meet with Mrs. Vera Reynolds of Mechanic street.

PUTNAM

LOCAL MAN BOUND OVER ON BURGLARY CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, October 12—Victor Lapointe of this city was arrested late Thursday evening by Officer Joseph Page of the Putnam police on a charge of breaking and entering the grocery store of Edward W. Mullan of Main street.

Lapointe's arrest was brought after he had stolen a tire off a Ford coupe owned and operated by William Murray of South Main. Murray reported the incident to Officer Page about ten o'clock, accompanied by a story that placed Lapointe under suspicion. The officer went to the Lapointe home on Main street and found the tire in his possession, and also discovered Lapointe had been driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. After placing him under arrest Officer Page took the man to the police station. While enroute to police headquarters the officer noticed Lapoint cast a small wad of paper out of the car and into the gutter. Returning to the place, Officer Page found $80 in bills.

After questioning Lapointe, admitted he had entered the store earlier in the evening, gaining entrance by means of a broken window.

In police court this morning before Judge Geissler, Lapointe plead guilty to the charge of breaking and entering and theft, the charge of operating under the influence of liquor being waivered. The court found him guilty and bound him over for the criminal session of superior court, and possibly will be given a hearing at a special session to be held on next Tuesday at Putnam. Lapointe was released from the police station this afternoon on bonds of $1,000.

Twenty-two barrels of wine were dumped onto the ground this morning by State Trooper Donald E. Geddes. The liquors constituted the evidence secured when a raid was conducted on Wednesday by state and local police officers at the home of Mrs. Susie Azud in Mechanicsville. Mrs. Azud was tried in Justice court in North Grosvenordale Thursday afternoon, but was charged only with reputation and was fined but $10 and costs of court.

Harold Jodoin of Thompson, arrested Tuesday morning by Lieutenant R. V. Urquhart of Danielson barracks and Captain William Jarvis of the Putnam police, after he had stolen an automobile from Mrs. Susie Azud of Mechanicsville, was presented in police court this morning before Judge M. H. Geissler. Jodoin pleaded guilty to the charge of theft of the car. Judge Geissler ordered that he be held for the criminal session of superior court and set his bail at $1,000, which he could not raise. He was taken to the county jail in Brooklyn this afternoon, to await trial. Like Lapointe, it was said today that he may be possibly afforded a hearing at the special session to be held on Tuesday at Putnam.

The selectmen of the town, town clerk and the registrars of voters will be in session tomorrow (Saturday) to make voters of the applicants who have filed their claims to cast ballots in the fall elections. The vote making party will also be in session on next week Saturday for the same purpose. After October 20, all those who will be 21 years of age between that date and November 6, through special application will be made voters.

Captain John J. McGarry, commanding officer of the headquarters company of the 43rd division of national guard of this city is in receipt of a general order from Brig. General George M. Cole, adjutant, informing him of the national guard appointments favored Connecticut for the United States Military academy at West Point for 1929.

Each year the national guardsmen are entitled to an appointment to West Point through a year's continuous service in the guard. All applicants will be given a preliminary examination before a board of examiners appointed by General Cole, at Hartford between the dates of Nov. 1 and 15. Those who successfully pass this examination will be placed in line for a series of competitive examinations to be held later.

Captain McGarry read the contents of Gen. Cole's letter to his company at a recent drill and there was espoused considerable interest by the local soldiers although none have filed the necessary application to permit them to go to Hartford to undergo the examination. Last year Sergt. Terence J. McGarry, son of the captain, took the examinations to the military academy and succeeded. In the final examination, he was defeated by another soldier from New London. Sergt. McGarry is a graduate of Putnam high school and might return to Hartford again for another opportunity to enter the academy.

Martin A. Chase of Bridge street, died at his home here Thursday evening at the age of 64 years. Mr. Chase was a life long resident of this city and was employed at the Reynold's leather goods shop here until a few days before his death. He is survived by his wife who resides in Putnam.

Columbus day, was observed today in the schools and by the banks of the city, who suspended business operations for the whole day, the schools of the city suspending the afternoon session. There was no public celebration of the day. The streets of the business section were ablaze with the large flags of the Shenandoah system being displayed in front of every store.

Frank H. Cordier and Daniel Weeks of this city will leave for Miami, Fla., Saturday where they will spend the winter months. Dewey Tetreault of Main street will leave the city later and will join the two young men in Florida.

Selectman and Mrs. W. P. Warren were in Stafford Springs Thursday.

Work on the Providence street bridge which has been condemned for several weeks and has been entirely closed to traffic will be started in about two weeks, selectmen said last night. The contract for the renovating of the structure has been let to a New Haven concern and about two week's time will elapse before the necessary beams arrive in the city. The bridge, Selectman Warren said will be reconditioned, including new beams and flooring and will be painted. When the work is completed the bridge's life will be extended about a score of years and will be safe enough to carry the tonnage as prescribed by the state highway department. About a month's time will be necessary to complete the work. Preliminary stages of laying the concrete abutments will be started at once, so as to escape the risk of doing the work during the cold weather periods.

Arthur Reels, formerly of Putnam and now of Denver, Col., is visiting this week at the home of Officer Benoi Durand on Church street. Mr. Reels was for a number of years employed as an overseer in one of the textile plants of this city, but left for the west when his health began to fail. Due to the unfavorable climate in this section of the nation Mr. Reels visit has been shortened and he will depart for the health region of the country on Monday.

The political campaign in Putnam has reached its rally stage and with the coming of the week both parties will enter upon a series of large political gatherings with the interest of securing the voters for their cause. The democrats bled the lid off last evening when they held one of the largest rallies ever seen in the city. Next week plans are being laid for another republican gathering with the date to be announced later. Party leaders have been interviewed and it was said that the torch light parades are to be discontinued this year, in preference to rallies inside.

A regular meeting of A. G. Warner, No. 88, was hel din the Odd Fellows' hall Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Nancy Harrington was presented a gift of a pocket book and a $2.50 gold piece. This was a token of appreciation for the work Mrs. Harrington has done for the corps. Mrs. Harrington will leave soon to make her home in Rockville Center, Long Island. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge, Mrs. Daisy Chase, Mrs. Sara Gifford and Mrs. Woodis.

Mrs. Sara Gifford spent Monday in Boston visiting relatives.

COLUMBIA

LAWRENCE HUTCHINS' DEATH HAS SADDENED COMMUNITY

The community is shocked by the tragedy which has saddened the home of Henry Hutchins of Chestnut Hill, in the sudden death of the son, Lawrence Hutchins, at Flint, Mich. Young Mr. Hutchins died of a fractured skull received in an accident Tuesday evening. He had been in Flint for over a year and was connected with the General Motors Co. of that place. He had lived in Columbia all his life previous to his going west, and was very popular with the young people, being of a most genial and friendly nature. He was one of the finest of the town's young men and the sympathy of the community is with his parents in their grief.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hutchins of Washington, D. C., are guests of Mr. Hutchins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hutchins.

PLAINFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Allard and Perrie Allard were callers in Norwich Thursday.

Misses Beatrice and Blanche Hollingsworth have returned to Plainfield after spending two years in Richfield, Idaho, with their aunt, Mrs. Johnson, on a ranch. Both say they are glad to be back in Plainfield.

A fall meeting of the cabinet of the First Congregational church was held Tuesday evening when plans for a bazaar were made, the date being set for November. A nominating committee, Ray Greene, Cecil Butler and James Royle was chosen, that committee to name the other committees.

Thursday afternoon the Ladies' Aid society and the Friendly Helpers held meetings at the parsonage.

A birthday party was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lathrop in honor of Mr. Lathrop's mother, Mrs. Jason Lathrop. A birthday cake with proper decorations helped make the affair enjoyable.

Mr. and Mrs. Jason Lathrop are visiting Mrs. Lathrop's brother, Walter Palmer, at Medway, Mass.

Edward E. Dawley is very ill.

The Azuda Camp Fire Girls of Plainfield have as usual been carrying on some work for benefit to others. Saturday they held a food sale at Betterman's market and raised $6. This will be given to the Red Cross for relief work in Florida.

Claude Morgan and family have moved to Sugar Brook to Mrs. Robert Lorine's tenement, Central Village.

The night school will open Monday evening at 7 o'clock with three classes for non-English speaking adults, the same teachers having charge this year as in the past.

Rev. William S. Prentiss and daughter, Miss Adelaide Prentiss, attended the joint meeting of New London and Windham County Association of Congregational Ministers at Putnam.

GALES FERRY

BARTLETT COTTAGE SOLD TO MR. AND MRS. ATKINS

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Atkins have purchased the cottage of Mrs. Charles F. Bartlett on Hurlbutt road, the deeds being passed Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Carroll S. Hurlbutt, who have occupied the cottage during the summer, are to move to their new home the first of November, when Mr. and Mrs. Atkins and family, who have occupied an apartment at the Prentice house in the village, will take up their residence there.

Mrs. Josephine Birch visited her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carter, in Groton over the week end.

The Woman's Home Missionary society auxiliary held its October meeting at the vestry Tuesday afternoon. Seventeen members were in attendance. The president, Mrs. George H. Wright, presided and announced the program in the absence of Miss Sarah T. Latimer, who had the arrangements in charge. The opening hymn was I Love to Tell the Story, Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt accompanying at the piano. Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins conducted the devotions and these were followed by a report from the acting secretary, Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins. Mrs. Jerome Greer, conference corresponding secretary of the W. H. M. S., told of the annual meeting to be held in New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 31 and Nov. 1. Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt and Mrs. C. Alton Chapman were elected delegates to attend the conference sessions. Mrs. Greer also reported sending donations for the Silver Lake work to the sale in Providence. Arrangements for the program of the November meeting were left with Mrs. Nelson Parker, the place to be announced later.

Scrap book selections were read by Mrs. D. C. Perkins, Mrs. Henry W. Hurlbutt, Mrs. R. I. Hurlbutt and Mrs. H. Winthrop Hurlbutt. The hymn, Blessed Assurance was followed by reading The Answered Call, by Miss Alice Satterlee, and Thinking Forward by Mrs. Nelson Parker. Selections from the first chapter, The Characteristics of the American, from the new study book, Youth and the New America by G. Bromley Oxnam, were given by Mrs. R. W. Hurlbutt. Mrs Andrew P. Miller conducted the Enigmas, Hallowe'en favors being attached to the selections. The hostesses for this meeting, Mrs. Fred E. Richards and Miss Alice Satterlee, served sandwiches, cake and tea during the social hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, who have occupied their home in the village during the summer, returned to Norwich this week for the winter months.

Dr. Albert S. Bolles of Williamstown, Mass., visited his sister, Mrs. Harlan A. Pierce, over the week end, leaving Monday for Philadelphia.

Rev. and Mrs. George H. Wright had a call Sunday from their son-in-law, H. H. Pike, with his nephew, Cecil Scribner, and Kenneth Carson, all of New York.

Mrs. George T. Kauffman, who has been visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Prof. and Mrs. Chester E. Dimick, left Tuesday for her home in Montreal. Her daughter, Miss Alice Kauffman, of Washington, D. C., with her cousins, Miss Virginia Bailey and Lieut. Thayer Bailey, of the U. S. marine corps, motored here from Washington, for the opening game of the U. S. Marines and Coast Guard, in New London, Saturday, and visited Prof. and Mrs. Dimick over the week-end.

Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins entertained her sister, Mrs. Stephen Perkins, of Brier hill, Groton, for the day, Wednesday, also Mrs. Charles H. Winchester and Mrs. Charles H. Comstock as dinner guests. Mrs. Perkins' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Spicer, motored here from Groton for her that evening and she was accompanied home by her sister for a few days' visit.

Miss Laura A. Perkins, who has been spending a few days with Miss Harriet Bishop Brown, in Hartford, returned to the village the first of the week.

Miss Agnete Anderson returned recently to her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., after a week's visit to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Miller.

Miss Ethel V. Woodward, of Storrs, who was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll S. Hurlburtt, motored with Mrs. Hurlbutt and daughters, Marjorie and Norma, and Miss Myrtice Coman, to Wakefield, R. I., on Sunday, where they visited Mrs. Hurlbutt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Whittier.

CANTERBURY GREEN

Schools closed last week on Friday to enable the teachers to attend a convention in the new school building at Newent.

Among Canterbury people who attended the republican convention at Willimantic Saturday, as delegates and guests, were Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Frink, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Dorothy Bennett and Andrew Clark. Mr. Clark received the nomination for senator from this district.

At the republican caucus Wednesday evening Clinton Frink and Christian Kerr were nominated for representatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hoxsie and family and James Towne of Westbrook spent Sunday in Canterbury and enjoyed a picnic dinner with Mrs. Towne, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Larkham on their premises near the river.

Mrs. Thurston and sister of Riverside, R. I., have been guests at the Larkham home.

Rev. Mr. Small, Mrs. Lathrop and Mrs. Davis have been appointed delegates from this church to a three-days convention in Bridgeport next week.

A reception for the new pastor, Rev. Harry Small and Mrs. Small is being arranged for Friday evening of next week. Both Westminster and Canterbury Green parishes are included in this affair, which will take place in Grange hall.

At the next grange meeting, Oct. 17, Plainfield grange unites with the local order at the hall here in entertaining several of the officers of the state grange.

BE MADE A VOTER

If the number of applicants to be made voters means anything there is plenty of business ahead for the board that is authorized to make voters this month. The total of 3,186 applications is an unusually large one, even in a presidential year. It represents an increase of 65 per cent. over four years ago with an especially strong interest displayed by the women.

Now that the applications have been submitted, the next and equally important step is to be made voters. The applicants must appear before the board that makes voters, which is this year, for the first time, to be in session in the common council chamber on the main floor of the city hall, a change that should prove a big accommodation to those who dislike or are unable to climb stairs.

The process is a simple one. All that is necessary is to show the board that you are qualified to be a voter by stating length of residence, proving to the board that you are of age, showing them that you can read and taking the elector's oath.

The board opens its sessions this morning and will devote next Wednesday and next Saturday to making voters. In view of the fact that there is such a large number of applicants it behooves all those who can to go before the board today and get the formality out of the way. The application to be made a voter amounts to nothing unless the applicant follows it up and is made a voter. Too often it is the case that the board finds time resting heavily on its hands because of the apathy among the to-be-made list. The board is however prepared to hear all applicants who appear, but for the sake of eliminating congestion it is important that there should be an effort made to avoid a last minute appearance.

It is not to be supposed that there will be 100 per cent. of the applicants made, or that all will appear to be made. Such is never the case for various reasons, but the large to-be-made list indicates an interest that should be sufficient to have the applicants go through with the formality. Party workers should find the voter-making days next to election day in activity.

SWATTING THE LIES

There are those who have entered the political campaign determined that their efforts will swing the election. They have little regard for the methods they adopt or the statements they make. They expect them to be swallowed whether they are so or not.

Such an instance is to be found in the case of former Senator Hansbrough of North Dakota. He spoke in Minnesota and claimed that it would be impossible for Mr. Hoover to fairly administer the foreign affairs of this country because he was a big owner of oil land in South America and Mexico.

He was talking as far off the key as was Senator Bruce of Maryland when he claimed that certain individuals had participated with Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis in drinking parties. Not only did Messrs. Hoover and Curtis promptly deny any such thing, but those who were said to have drank with them did also. It was so incorrect that it was reacting to the detriment of the democrats.

The same thing exists in regard to the Hansbrough statement. Not only has it been declared untrue by Chairman Allen of the republican national committee that Mr. Hoover has any oil land but the Hansbrough statement has been repudiated by Chairman Raskob of the democratic national committee.

These statements happen to have concerned the republican candidates but similar unjust attacks have been made against the democratic candidates and as Chairman Raskob says it is a sorry state when men above reproach "have got to be subjected to the indignities of slander, lies, and charges which have not even the slightest foundation of truth."

CONNECTICUT PAYS AS IT GOES

Particularly interesting to the people of Connecticut is the address which was made over the radio this week by Governor Trumbull. In that he makes a comparison of policies in Connecticut and New York, to the great credit of Connecticut and sets forth in a convincing manner the advantages which have accrued to this state from the pay-as-you-go policy which was put into operation in Connecticut back in 1921.

Connecticut is maintaining its various departments at a high state of efficiency and it is looking well after its institutions, its highways and other activities and it is getting gratifying results from the operations of its board of control and finance that was put into operation last year. While it is doing these things in sound business policies have resulted in the wiping out of the state debt and it has not been obliged to resort to expensive bond issues. Connecticut is meeting its obligations as it goes along. It is not stringing the payments out over a long term of years and by so doing spending for interest a large sum that can be better employed for the direct benefit of the commonwealth.

Connecticut's pay-as-you-go policy, as the governor says, has been adopted in a dozen other states, but the idea has but recently been recommended at the annual conference of the chamber of commerce of the United States at Hot Springs, where such a method was advocated as a better financial policy than long term bonds in these words: "The principle is clear that if money is borrowed only once and is paid back on a convenient basis there is no disproportionate interest charge, but in the case of recurrent annual borrowing, the sequence of loans takes on the character of a permanent indebtedness. In fact it becomes a non-retirable debt unless there is some acceleration of retirement arrangements."

Under the administration of Governor Trumbull Connecticut's affairs have been given that careful attention which might be expected when consideration is given to his record as a successful business man. It is the kind of administration that was wanted and the kind that should be continued. The governor's statement concerning the financial record of the state is printed elsewhere on this page and deserves a careful reading.

THE DIGEST'S POLL

As election approaches it is impossible to overlook the tendency which is displayed by the poll which is being made by the Literary Digest. Without accepting this as infallible, although it was surprisingly correct four years ago, it is unquestionably the most thorough political poll being taken, and the figures for this week, with about 2,000,000 votes cast, show Mr. Hoover to be in the lead by about two to one.

This week's poll includes votes from all but eight of the states and for the first time the votes from New York city, but in spite of this increase in the Smith vote the vote for Hoover is the greater by 26,000 in round numbers.

For the first time certain of the southern states have been heard from. The votes are not to be regarded as final there, but the surprising thing is that so many of them show a preference for Hoover. Georgia, Louisiana, South Carolina, and Arkansas, the last named by a bare 200, show a majority for Smith, but Alabama, Tennessee, North Carolina and Texas show a strong tendency for Hoover, although in Alabama the majority is only 172. Among the border states such as Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Maryland and Missouri the lead for Hoover is substantial.

There is nothing in the vote which gives much encouragement to the democrats. The increase in the number of votes for Mr. Smith, coming from democratic states and from New York city, helps to swell his vote but Massachusetts appears strongly republican by nearly two to one while the vote from Connecticut is more than two to one for Hoover. The same is true of the figures from Rhode Island.

It is interesting to note however, that other polls for the most part support the figures obtained by the Digest, even in southern states where republican hope can never be very strong. The poll shows that Hoover is holding a much greater percentage of the Coolidge vote than Smith is of the Davis vote, while Smith is getting the larger percentage of the LaFollette vote but Hoover is leading in the percentage of the new vote.

BUILDING NEW ROADS

According to the plans of the board of public roads in Rhode Island bids are soon to be opened for a new concrete highway that will run over an entirely new location for three and a fifth miles, through territory now largely undeveloped and unpopulated.

By this route it is pointed out by the Providence Bulletin that traffic can "avoid entirely the villages of Natick, Westcott, Riverpoint and Arctic with their narrow crowded streets and dangerous curves and corners," and it should be of much help in relieving the congestion that prevails on the Boston post road during the week ends and days of heavy travel. Such an alternate route is sought by a greater number than might be supposed, even though the attractions might not be as many.

This plan of opening up undeveloped and unpopulated sections might seem an impossibility in the small state of Rhode Island, but apparently it can be done. It is in keeping with the plan which is being collected in Connecticut to a greater or less extent, and it is to be hoped that the time is not long distant before the wisdom of building a modern road from Preston City to a point on the Rhode Island line where connections can be made with the road to Providence will be recognized.

This would concern a section where there is plenty of opportunity for development, and there is no getting away from the fact that the modern road has much the same salutary effect that the railroad did in the pioneer days. Such a road would greatly reduce the distance between Norwich and Providence and contribute in no small degree to a reduction of highway congestion. Likewise justice to those living along such a route cannot be overlooked.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Once again the fields are cleared for the football contests.

Now that you have petitioned for the right to vote, don't fail to be made a voter.

The kind of fire prevention that is worth while is that which is carried on regularly every day in the year.

The strange thing about that massacre over in China is that we had to wait for a letter to reach this country to learn about it.

The man on the corner says: The only trouble with the flarebacks of summer is that they never last long enough.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

To hear of a defalcation somewhere in this great land of ours is a common occurrence. It is hardly surprising that in a population of perhaps 120,000,000 thier should appear who embezzles $1,000,000. Instinctively we ask, why do they do it? It is quite possible for a man to get away with it—for a while—but sooner or later he is bound to be detected and punished. The really surprising thing is that men with such a trend can secure positions of responsibility. In cases of a first offense the situation is somewhat different. But when a man with a suave appearance and also with a prison record finds little difficulty in getting a position where he can handle vast sums of money, is it not a little strange that his record is not looked up before being employed?

The above suggests another thought that is not very easy of solution. Why is it that men do not learn—that is, intelligent men—from bitter experience? Must they not know that it is impossible to steal money, especially in vast sums, without being found out sooner or later? But after the terrible experience of the first offense, an offense that involves a number of years in a penitentiary, I repeat, is it not amazing that when the opportunity comes to steal again still larger amounts they seem to do it without the least hesitation? Is it possible that such men are under the sway of a propensity so strong as to be unable to resist? Or have they become so hardened by their disgrace that their sole motive upon release is to avenge themselves upon what they feel is the injustice of society? Are men governed by impulses that they cannot resist?

From the teachings of the Bible one is justified in saying that nothing but the grace of God can save a man from himself. To be sure, a strong will is one of our very great possessions, but man can abuse his will power until it is as flimsy as wet tissue paper. Water dripping upon an oak plank in time will rot the plank. A man who entertains a strong urge to steal in time will steal if he has no other defense but his unaided will power which he does not continually exercise. His greatest safeguard, however, is in applying the Christian principle of our duties toward others, and if the spirit of the Master is allowed to sway our lives, we will never treat others unjustly. More than this there will be a joy reacting upon ourselves that comes from a consciousness of doing right. If all action was governed by Christian principle you could soon turn all jails and prisons into houses of mercy.

The Bible refers to the abundant victory ever wrong doing when it says that we are "more than conquerors through him who loved us." Most of the victories that are ordinarily made belong to the comparative degree. The victories we gain may only be mere escapes from defeat. Perhaps if the things we contended with had held out a little longer they would have mastered us. This is true of many of our worldly situations. The young people who try the entrance examinations at college gain, for the most part comparative victories, all the way from those who pass, as it were, "by the skin of their teeth," to those who reach the 100 mark. Does it not occur to you that spiritual victories are more abundant? The miracles done in the name of Christ are abundant. When Peter said to the congenital cripple, "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee, in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk."

The abundant power of Jesus is seen in the calling of some of his disciples. There was no persistent invitation, much less any frantic pleading with them to leave their occupation and to follow him. Nowhere in all history do we find men on the spur of the moment, without taking time to think the matter over, leaving their work to follow a comparative stranger. They knew not where he would lead them to or where he was going. But instantly, without any questions, they followed without a word. From a worldly standpoint was there ever a more complete "leap in the dark"? And yet it was a journey into immortality. No men in the world ever did a wiser thing than this. And is not this a pattern for us as Whittier says:

"In simple trust like theirs who heard
Beside the Syrian sea,
The gracious calling of their Lord,
Let us, like them, without a word,
Rise up and follow thee."

The writer of these words believes that getting out to vote on election day is just as much an act of religion as going to a church prayer meeting. We are following Jesus when we vote just as much as when we pray. The reason is perfectly obvious because both are duties. This is particularly true in a country where the people govern. No man rules over us because of the accident of birth, but because we put him into the place of command by our votes. We are both morally and politically bound to support the government of the United States. And this cannot be done if the people turn down either their political or their moral duties. Praying amounts to nothing, unless we try to carry out what we pray for.

The greatest safeguard against the future is right living in the present. This is not saying that right living makes one absolutely immune from the trials, temptations and accidents of life. It does, however, mean, other things being equal, that the man whose living is in accordance with the laws of God stands a better chance of living long and happily than the one who recklessly turns down those laws which God has provided for us. Why is it that some people are prematurely old at 40? Of course, in some instances sickness is the cause for which they are not responsible. But in most cases the fellow who at 40 is bent over, thin and sallow in his countenance and shambling in his gait, is the fellow who has recklessly turned down the laws of his being, and will not live out one-half of his days. It is as true today as ever that "God is not mocked."

If you have any dread of the long evenings that standard time for several months will increasingly impose upon us, think of the opportunity of reading some good books which daylight saving time and outdoor work rendered impossible for the time being. Any deprivation caused by the use of either of these two systems of light is somehow made up by a change to the other. To those who delight in the pleasure and profit of a garden are thankful for that extra hour. But reading good books is as important as raising squashes and cabbages, but you can't do both at one and the same time, according to mathematics. So then when the squashes and cabbages are secured for winter then books come in to bolster up the neglected intellectual wants. By the way, reader, have you read that great book by Prof. Rufus Jones on "Seeking the Trend of Life"? If not, do it before the next squash time comes.

Toy Balloon Travels Far

SCRIBNER, Neb., Oct. —(AP)—To test how far a toy balloon would travel, Joe Wise sent up one each day for three days with his name and address attached. He received a reply from La Belle, Mo., 350 miles away, that one had landed there.

CONNECTICUT UNDER THE "PAY-AS-YOU-GO" PLAN

In an address delivered over the radio this week, Governor John H. Trumbull pointed with emphasis to the financial record of the state administration, showing that the maintenance expenses of all departments and institutions had increased in the last year only three per cent., while the state cared for about ten per cent. more inmates in its institutions alone. He also showed that, despite the increased activities at institutions, the per capita costs had been reduced by $1.13 a week.

In comparison of Connecticut and New York state fiscal policies, the governor showed that the amount spent for interest charges by New York state alone would run every department and institution of Connecticut for three-quarters of a year.

The governor said, in part:

"State governments today enter into many fields, a policy made necessary because of constantly increasing demands for the services of those governments. A dozen years ago, many of the present day activities of the state amounted to little or nothing. In a parallel sense, many of our modern conveniences in everyday life were little known a dozen years ago. As in everything else, the state must keep progress with the increasing demands of modern ideas and methods.

"Fourteen years ago the business of automobile registration in Connecticut was administered by one clerk. There were about 26,000 motor vehicles registered at the time. Today there are about 300,000 motor vehicles and it takes a large department to properly administer the laws and regulations necessary to protect both motorists and the public.

Best Highways in Country

"Fifteen years ago many of our present highways were in the early stages of development. Today we have one of the finest highway systems in the country—made necessary by the constantly increasing traffic. Of late years, the tremendous increase of trucking on our highways has necessitated more durable and more expensive roadways.

"Demands for services of the state increase as each year goes by. Such services cost money. It is easy for the critic to point to increasing expenditures and without going into any explanation attempt to create the impression that some of those expenditures might not be necessary. On the other hand, it is easy for the critic to make the general statement that more money should be expended for some particular proposition, but invariably no suggestion ever accompanies such a proposals as to where the money for such expenditure is to come from.

"The average person only needs to think for a moment when such criticisms are offered, and no stock will be taken in such statements—particularly if they happen to be made during a political campaign.

Board of Control and Finance

"Eighteen months ago, in a special message to the general assembly, I suggested consideration of the establishment of a board of control and finance. I stated that I yielded to no body in my admiration for the several institutions and departments of the state, and expressed my opinion that Connecticut, in the management of her institutions and in the conduct of her governmental affairs, stood second to none in the United States. Following the recommendations contained in that message, the legislature created the present board of control and finance, and that body has accomplished definite and gratifying results, even though its tenure of office has to date been limited. Our departments and institutions were well conducted. Outside agencies indicated that our standards were very high in the conduct of the state's business. We were told that our department and institution executives were of a high calibre. Even so, in the state, as with any other business institution which expects to progress and be successful, there is no such thing as standing still, there is no resting upon our laurels. Normal growth and increasing demands must be recognized, and in the establishment of the board of control and finance, we hoped to make improvements by correlating and standardizing and supervising—even though we might have been satisfied before. Like any big private corporation, the state of Connecticut is trying to get the greatest amount of value possible for every dollar expended. Whether or not this is being accomplished should be of interest to every citizen of the state because it is his money which is involved in the matter.

"Good management and careful supervision is shown when we look at figures of recurring expenses. Capital investment may be regulated. If you want to construct a building, you may do it this year, or put it off until next, depending upon the condition of the exchequer. Not so with recurring expenses. Maintenance charges fluctuate, always rising as activities increase. It cost the state slightly over $19,900,000 to operate every department and institution in the fiscal year 1927. In the fiscal year of 1928, this figure increased to less than $20,600,000. This means that the recurring expenses of all departments and institutions increased only three per cent.

Institutional Work

"During the year 1928, our institutions cared for 805 more persons than in the peceding year. The average number of inmates was 8,589. During the last year, therefore, the state cared for about ten per cent. more inmates, while in the same year the recurring or maintenance costs not only of the institutions, but of all departments and agencies, increased but three per cent.

"One other statement may be illuminating. Despite the fact that more inmates were cared for in our institutions, by careful attention to expenditures, the per capita cost of the state institutions was reduced by about $1.13 a week. Reduce expenses by over a dollar a week when well over 8,000 inmates are affected, multiply that figure by 52 and you have some little realization of what a single item of this kind amounts to. The justification of the work of the state board of control and finance lies in these statements. The efficiency of the state's institutions is contained in these statements as well.

"Connecticut does not curtail unnecessarily. In the effort to make a dollar spent bring in a dollar's value, efficiency is not destroyed. Facilities and activities are constantly being added. Let us look at some of them.

"During the past year, exclusive of highways and bridges, over three million dollars were spent in capital outlays. Two-thirds of this amount can be classified under education and state institutions. Well over a million and a quarter dollars was spent in construction of, or in added equipment in, our hospitals and corrective institutions. The program authorized during the past fiscal year has included a new classroom and administration building at the Connecticut Agricultural college, a sewage disposal plant at Connecticut State hospital, new bathroom sections at the same institution, an elementary practice school at the State Normal school at Willimantic, a dormitory building at the New Britain Normal school, an additional dormitory building at the State Farm for Women, an infirmary building and dormitory at Long Lane farm, a new dormitory and isolation building at the Mansfield State Training school and hospital, two new ward buildings at the Norwich State hospital, an addition to the dormitory, and a new building for nurses and employes at the Newington home for Crippled Children, and two cottages at the Meriden school for boys. Connecticut's institutional capacity is constantly increasing.

We Lead, Others Follow

"All of these activities, as well as every activity of the state as a whole, is paid for out of current income. Connecticut pays her bills when they come due. Since 1921 there has been no incurring of indebtedness, no bond issues. Unlike many of her sister states, Connecticut does not believe in passing present day obligations on to her children to pay in the future. Gigantic interest charges do not appeal to us. In 1921 we were almost alone in the adoption of the "pay-as-you-go" principle; today a score of states have adopted the policy or are striving to adhere to it.

Connecticut vs. New York

"A comparison of the Connecticut policy with the policy of our neighbor, New York, will readily prove the superiority of Connecticut fiscal principles. Under the administrations of the present governor of New York, now the democratic candidate for president, the bonded indebtedness of the state has reached the staggering total of over $360,000,000. Think of it! Quite a few millions were issued during the present year. Over seven per cent. of New York's total expenditures go to pay interest on her indebtedness. The total amount of money paid in a year by New York in interest charges would run every department and institution, every activity of Connecticut for three-quarters of a year. The governor of New York, exponent of this policy of fiscal management, is not the man, in my opinion, to take up the reins of national government and shape federal financial policies. He is not the man to have turned over to him the treasury of the United States which has been so carefully conserved by Calvin Coolidge and so carefully managed and provided for by Andrew W. Mellon. The spending of public money seems to be too carefree a process in New York. I am firmly convinced that Connecticut's policy is one that will ultimately be followed by many other states in the future. It needs no justification today. It has long ago vindicated itself and in my opinion the people of Connecticut will again prove that fact on November 6th."

Sunday Morning Talk

What Is Needed.

It is often said that revivals of religion are not needed in these days. Some think that such periodical movements were well adapted to primitive times and to the early Methodists, but now they are out of date. Times have changed we are told. The people are refined in their tastes and habits, and that other methods are fitted slated in this generation.

In regard to this contention it can be said that those churches where revivals prevail are growing churches, while those churches where revivals are not encouraged are decaying churches. They may be rich churches in which the best music and the most eloquent preaching are heard and when and where the most fashionable congregations assemble, but spiritually they are declining.

Revivals of religion are needed as much now as ever. Certain conditions adverse to spiritual life exist today which cannot be over-come by anything short of a revival. This is an age of intense activity. Business drives men and men drives business as never before. Unless we shall stop in the midst of this exciting push and haste and take breath and look to God for a special work of grace, we shall all be carried downward into the whirlpool of cold secularism and spiritual indifference. The ordinary means of grace are not sufficient to stem the tide and save our children and families from spiritual death.

The last 20 years have marked a decline in the respect for the Bible, also a loss of the fears of God. Nothing but a powerful revival of spiritual can drive away this cloud and let in the sunshine of spiritual life. Conversions are rare when compared with former years and when the number of professing Christians is taken into the account.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 — Dr. Charles R. Mann, once of the faculty of Chicago university, during the war an important factor in war department struggles to get the right man for the right place, and now director of the American Council on Education, has hit on a wholly new method of helping voters select their presidential favorite.

Taking a leaf from that celebrated Gilbert and Sullivan conception of the Mikado as devoting his rule to the "object all sublime" of "making the punishment fit the crime," he has worked out and sent to both the republican and democratic national committees a formula for aiding voters in making a president fit the White House job.

Jobs Measured

The project is an outgrowth of work the council has been doing in conjunction with its college and university members and industrial leaders who are co-operating to devise ways and means of specially educating students for highly specialized industrial tasks. The reverse English on the plan is that it might provide a definite system whereby employers could survey the relative fitness of eligibles for appointment as corporation president, general manager or any other important workaday job.

The council is even co-operating with the government in a similar way and is canvassing the foreign service personnel of the state department in that connection, trying to find out just what the duties of consular officials are.

As a first step toward setting up a definite system—a sort of yard stick—by which to measure the experience and capabilities of any man in terms of the job he may be selected to fill, Dr. Mann has devised after consultation with industrial leaders, a sort of "job specification" sheet of standard form.

Lists Presidential Chores

In this presidential year Dr. Mann has now reached the conclusion that such a summary of the duties of the job of being president of the United States might help doubtful voters select between Hoover and Smith. To that end, he has devoted considerable time to an analysis of the things required of the president, under the constitution, by statutory law and by custom.

The educator even went into conference with "Ted" Clark at the White House, familiar through several administrations with the eternal round of administrative duties the chief executive is confronted with. He discovered an amazing amount of just plain, everyday, exacting and uninteresting office chores the president is called upon to do, and from which there is no escape.

All this was boiled down to a brief "job specification" of the presidency. Dr. Mann may have his own ideas as to which of the two candidates of this year best fits the bill; but his little adaption of modern efficiency methods and applied scientific study to the popular game of politics was offered to both national committees for any use they cared to make of it in a spirit of strict neutrality.

It's the most recent scheme put out for avoiding the business of fitting round political pegs into square holes, and Dr. Mann may make a similar survey of the duties of members of the senate and house with a view to helping befuddled voters to pick the right men.

Neapolitans Song-Loving People

NAPLES, Italy, (AP)—Singing is as natural as breathing to the Neapolitan, native of the beautiful city which for centuries has had little short of a monopoly on the best tenor voices in the world. Caruso was but one of the hundreds of children of the old Greek town of Neapolis who have sung before kings and commoners and who now tread the boards of the great opera houses of all nations.

Neapolitans adore Naples. "See Naples, then die," they tell visitors, meaning that life can be considered complete only after having carried one at least once to the shores of the broad bay, dotted with gaily colored sails, lying shimmering in the sunlight under the brow of ever steaming Vesuvius. Gene Tunney, on his recent visit there, was impressed by this beauty.

The songs of Naples have become property of the whole world. Santa Lucia, Funiculi and others are in one form or another known to nearly everyone in America.

At home the Neapolitans exult in their city. And they do so by singing. They begin to sing when they learn to talk and continue while their voices hold out. They sing morning, noon and night, at work and at play; they listen to others singing as they eat and go to sleep with tunes running through their minds.

The songs themselves are with few exceptions about the city. As New York has a glorification of its sidewalks in "East Side, West Side," Naples has a dozen for each principal street. Certain old favorites never cease to please, but nevertheless hundreds of new ones are written every year.

Once yearly the song-writers trot out their wares. At the festival of Piedigrotta held in September, to commemorate the victory of Charles III over the Austrians at Velletri in 1744, the new productions are tried out and all Naples comes to listen, judge, approve or discard. Prizes are awarded, but none of these is as important as the knowledge that a new song has "caught on" and will be added to the perennially beloved repertoire of the city.

On the boats which ply from the harbor the Neapolitan songs have been introduced to the other great ports of Italy—Palermo, Genoa, Venice, Trieste. In Venice more than in the other places, however, there are excellent local songs rendered by the gondolier oarsmen. Every night on the Venetian lagoon just off the entrance to the Grand Canal and a stone's throw from the Bridge of Sighs, several "song barges" anchor. These are special boats filled with men and women who give a concert of local airs. They earn a living by having a collection taken up—by boat, of course—from pleasure craft which either pass by slowly or tie up in long lines to the barge.

YOUR HEALTH

IS YOUR NOSE A FILTER OR AN INCUBATOR?

By Arthur Palmer, M. D.
Cornell University Medical College, New York

Under normal conditions the air that reaches the lungs has been purified by its passage through the nose. Quite commonly as many as fourteen thousand micro-organisms are filtered out of the air by the protective mechanisms in the nose during an hour's tranquil breathing. Fortunately not all these organisms are capable of producing disease. Approximately sixty-five different types which may cause trouble are found in the nose and throat of man.

Once the normal functions of a nose have been disturbed the picture is changed, and instead of acting as a filter the nose becomes an incubator where bacteria multiply rapidly and not only cause various diseases, such as common head cold, sore throat, laryngitis and bronchitis in the individual, but make him a menace to all persons with whom he comes in contact.

Diseases of the sort just mentioned are most commonly transmitted from one individual to another through contact with the infected secretions of the sick person. Thus we see how important it is that any individual suffering from infection in his nose, throat or lungs should avoid sneezing, coughing and spitting in public places or when in close proximity to other individuals, except he use a handkerchief or a proper receptacle.

An entire family may suffer from the carelessness of one sick member. Children, especially, are liable to transmit disease to other children by contact in school or at playgrounds, and should be instructed at an early age in the simple matters of personal hygiene.

Not long ago, while visiting a playground for young children in a community where many childhood diseases such as mumps, measles and whooping-cough were prevalent, I found the children drinking from a fountain so poorly constructed that they were exposed to direct contact with infectious secretions of others. This public nuisance was replaced by a sanitary fountain.

Much may be accomplished by proper instruction and care of children suffering from a disease of childhood. Two small girls having the whooping-cough came to a summer resort recently where many healthy children were living. These girls were told by their parents that if they were not careful many other children in the village would get whooping-cough from them. They were cautioned never to cough or sneeze except into their own handkerchiefs, and not to play with other children while out-of-doors. A colored armlet was pinned on each one to serve as a reminder to themselves and as a warning to others that they had whooping-cough. So well did these girls (of six and seven years, respectively) follow instructions until they were free from the disease, not one single new case of whooping-cough developed in this resort all summer.

Should every individual, sick or well, follow the simple rules listed below, much would be accomplished toward the preservation of health and the prevention of disease.

1. Never sneeze and never cough except into your own handkerchief.
2. Never spit in a public place, except into the proper receptacle.
3. Never use a common drinking cup or unsanitary fountain.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction without starvation diet or burdensome exercise, often at a very rapid rate and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me to select such ingredients and in such proportion as in my opinion will produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all of the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overstoutness, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc., not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of superfluous fat.

If you are overstout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire.

QUINEBAUG PINES PARK HAS CENTURY-OLD TREES

Members of the state park and forest commiss on have formally opened for traffic the new foot bridge that gives direct access to the Quinebaug Pines state park about one mile south of the city of Putnam, on the Killingly road.

In discussing the event, Chairman Lucius F. Robinson of the commission said that the park had been purchased by the state in 1923 to save from cutting a beautiful tract of veteran white pine, probably one of the oldest and most beautiful in the state, the oldest trees being well past the century mark, nearly three feet in diameter and upward of 100 feet tall. The commission, he pointed out, had been fortunate in securing the tract at a figure within its means owing to the generosity of Ransom Bradley of Putnam, who had purchased it some years previously and held it solely to prevent the fine old trees from being sent to the saw mill. "They are better to look at," said Mr. Robinson, "than to make into boards."

Unfortunately, they have been largely inaccessible to the public since there was no road by which they could be approached. To remedy this difficulty the commission has now constructed a foot bridge across the Quinebaug river which gives direct access from the state road. The new bridge is of the suspension type, the piers being of reinforced concrete, colored white to contrast with the dark foliage of the pines, the rails, planking and other woodwork is of attractive brown creosoted timber and blends excellently with the natural scenery.

The park itself in addition to the old pines contains an excellent growth of younger ones which will be carefully preserved to take the place of the veterans when in the passage of the years they go the way of all living things.

The opening of the new bridge will doubtless make the park as popular with people in the eastern section of the state as are the famous Cathedral Pines in Cornwall in the northwestern portion. It is expected that the commission will make arrangements for parking of cars of the large number of visitors who will doubtless utilize the park now that it has been made accessible.

Among those present at the formal opening of the bridge were Commissioners Robinson, Filley, Wilkins, Chapman, Peale and a group of citizens from Putnam. William Smedley of Pomfret Center has been appointed caretaker of the park.

Devine of Michigan, and one sister, Mrs. J. H. Osborne of Franklin; also by a half-brother, M. J. Devine, of New Haven.

Demonstration Against Corn Borer

To combat the increase of the European corn borer in Connecticut and especially in this section of the state a demonstration of how to control and eradicate it is to be held next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Houghton farm, G. G. Grant, owner, located near the witch hazel mill, New London pike in Montville. At this demonstration will be shown methods of cutting corn close to the ground by means of a special attachment for corn harvesters and by simple hand tools. Also methods of plowing under trash to eliminate places for hybernating.

J. S. Stockbridge in charge of control work will be present to conduct the demonstration and to talk on the corn borer.

This year the borer has been found by federal scouts in Preston, Griswold, Voluntown, Montville, North Stonington, Norwich and Ledyard. In all seventeen additional towns of the state have been added to those having some infestations of the corn borer.

It is only with thorough cleaning up after corn has been harvested that this insect will be kept under control.

47,000 NURSES ENROLLED IN RED CROSS RESERVES

In far off Siberia, Greece and many other countries there are thousands of children who are alive and healthy today as a result of the pioneer nursing activities of the American Red Cross.

In these countries as well as in Hungary, the Balkans and the Baltic states, the organization through the establishment of schools of nursing, the emergency care of destitute refugees, extensive public health nursing activities, and instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, has introduced modern nursing to countries which before lacked it.

The Red Cross Nursing service now comprises more than 47,000 nurses who have passed exacting qualifications and are enrolled for service. When disasters sweep suddenly down upon communities and whole states, leaving thousands of injured in their wake, Red Cross nurses can be secured within a few hours.

No Aladdin's lamp or magic carpet makes this service possible. There is an intricate net work of organization reaching from local nursing committees and through the state committees to national headquarters, where the work of committees is centralized and where the records of all enrolled nurses are filed. Each local committee also has on file a list of enrolled nurses in its territory and when an emergency occurs these nurses can be mustered by telephone, radio and telegraph and sent to the scene of the disaster.

Despite its size this huge reserve is composed only of nurses meeting the highest qualifications and has attained a professional standing and recognition unequalled by any nursing organization in the world. It is the official reserve of the Army and Navy Nurse corps. The United States Public Health service and the Veterans' bureau may also call upon the Red Cross Nursing service for assistance. During the World war, 18,000 nurses were supplied to the army, 1,058 to the navy, 284 to the United States Public Health service and 604 for work with the civilian populations of the warring countries.

OBITUARY

Charles E. Mulkin

After an illness of about a week Charles E. Mulkin of Occum, civil war veteran, died in this city Friday morning about 8.30 o'clock. He had been in failing health for the past few months but his condition did not become serious until a week ago.

Mr. Mulkin was the son of the late Charles and Amelia Gager Mulkin and was born in Franklin, June 20, 1839. He was twice married, his first wife being Julia Brewster of Franklin and after her death he married Harriet Atwood of Sprague.

When the Civil war broke out Mr. Mulkin enlisted in the 8th Connecticut Volunteers and saw active service in the battles of Antietam, Gettysburg and Bull Run. He was also in a number of small skirmishes and was wounded four times.

Mr. Mulkin was a member of the Methodist church in Baltic. He is survived by his wife, a son, Elmer E. Mulkin, and two daughters, Mrs. Fred G. Healy of Harrington, R. I., and Mrs. Lewis Pendleton of Burlington, Vt. There are also six grandchildren. Mr. Mulkin was well known in Baltic and Occum and had many warm friends who sincerely mourn his death.

FUNERALS

John McInerney

The funeral of John McInerney was held Friday morning at the parlors of Undertakers Cummings and Ring with a large attendance of relatives and friends. At 9 o'clock there was a requiem mass at St. Patrick's church and the celebrant was Rev. Hyles P. Galvin. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ and at the offertory Roderick F. Sullivan sang De Profundis and as the waiting hymn, Lead Kindly Light. Mr. Sullivan was assisted by Mrs. Bernard Coyle. At the recessional Mr. LaFontaine played Chopin's Funeral March.

The burial was in the family plot at the Sacred Heart cemetery, Taftville, and Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May conducted the committal service. The bearers were Cornelius D. Cary, John Cary and William Sackett of Hartford and James Carey of this city.

Mr. Cary who was a native of Taftville, for some years resided in Hartford. He was a brother of the late Mrs. Cornelius D. Cary of Hartford, and is survived by a brother, Patrick McInerney of New York city.

Attending American University

Two Norwich residents are numbered among the 250 students enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts of American university at Washington, D. C. Those enrolled from here are Florence Fellows and Otis Fellows.

The enrollment at the beginning of the college's fourth year represents an increase of 25 per cent over the enrollment during the preceding college year. Students attending the college come from 27 states and three foreign countries.

Prizes in Eagles Pinochle

When the Eagles held their fifth weekly pinochle night Thursday, the prizes were taken by Harry Marcus, 7840 Chester Nawrocki, 7315, and Cy Perkins, 7205. As the Eagles are to enter the city pinochle league, the club nights at pinochle will be held every other Thursday in the future.

Preston City Pastor Away.

Through the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. A Smith, there is to be no Sunday morning service at the Preston City Baptist church but the Bible school will be held as usual and the evening service at 6.30 will be in charge of the Christian Endeavor society.

The busy bee never gets stung. If there is any stinging to be done he does it himself.

ELDERLY TAFTVILLE WOMAN BADLY BURNED IN EARLY MORNING FIRE

Mrs. Elizabeth McBride, 76, was badly burned about the body in a fire at her home, No. 29 1-2 South B street, Taftville about 6 o'clock Friday morning. She is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital suffering from second and third degree burns. Although her condition is serious it is thought that she will recover.

An oil stove in the kitchen caught fire and the elderly woman was vainly trying to extinguish the blaze for several minutes before other s learned of the fire. The Taftville department responded to a telephone call and extinguished the blaze. There was some damage to the kitchen.

A physician was called to attend Mrs. McBride's burns and during the afternoon, because of her condition, she was removed to the hospital.

SILVER TEA SET PRESENTED TO UNITED CHURCH GUILD

The United Congregational church was the gathering place of the Woman's Guild which held its first meeting of the season Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The meeting was opened by prayer and was presided over by its president, Mrs. F. W. Lester. The reports of the secretary, Mrs. William Zumbro, and of the treasurer, Mrs. Alexander H. Abbott, were read and accepted. Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins, chairman of young peoples' work, Mrs. William Buckingham, for flowers, Mrs. William Dawley, girls' work, Mrs. Emil Fox and Mrs. Herbert Gallup, ways and means, told of their plans for the winter work. The budget recommended by the cabinet to the guild was adopted. A very lovely present of a silver tea set was presented to the guild by Miss Marion L. Bishop in behalf of Miss Caroline B. Scarlet, a long time member of the church. It was unanimously voted to send Miss Scarlet a letter of great appreciation of her beautiful gift.

The talk of the afternoon was given by Dr. Lawrence Erb, organist of the United church on "The Organ." In a very interesting way he traced the organ from the beginning, when mechanical means for supplying the wind were first used. Then the pneumatic organ by which the wind is supplied by bellows up to the present modern, electro-pneumatic organ. There appears to be no limit to what the organ may become in the future. Dr. Erb's talk was most instructive throughout and many questions were asked him at the close showing the interest all had taken in his subject. A rising vote of thanks was given Dr. Erb.

Tea was served by the social committee Mrs. Marcus Leigh, chairman, and all enjoyed a pleasant time together.

KENNETH LAFLAMME HAS OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

Kenneth LaFlamme, the Montville young man, who was blinded in an automobile accident on the Norwich turnpike more than a year ago, underwent an operation for appendicitis at Backus hospital here Tuesday night. He is reported to be resting comfortably.

The youth, who was 15 years old in April is six feet tall and weighs 212 pounds. His inactivity since the accident which deprived him of his sight is partly responsible for his unusual weight, for his years, although he was naturally a large boy.

A fund to assist the afflicted boy was raised in this city following his tragic accident and it was the plan of those interested in raising the money to have him sent to a school for the blind, where he might use his remaining faculties in such a manner as to assure him of a useful and happy life.

The boy has not as yet been placed in such a school, and during the past year he has done nothing but remain at home, inactive for the most part. It is expected that upon his recovery from his present illness he will be enrolled in a suitable school.

ROBERT P. KEEP CONTINES GIFT TO DEPENDENT INFANTS

Of the annual benevolence to the dependent diocesan babies, by a former Norwich man, son of the late Dr. Robert P. Keep, principal of Norwich Free Academy, the current Catholic Transcript says:

The generous donation of milk during the summer months for the children of St. Agnes' home which has come in years past from Robert Keep of the Porter school in Farmington, has again been repeated by the same benefactor. For the period of June 14 to September 15, 1928, 3,575 quarts have been delivered at the institution from the farm under Mr. Keep's supervision. This amounts in value to a gift of close to $500. This annual benevolence of Mr. Keep is deeply appreciated by the sisters in charge and all who are interested in the welfare of the home.

The milk is thus given each vacation while the students of the famous Porter school have gone to their homes.

TOLD IMAGINARY STORY OF STEALING MONEY

A faked up story that he had operated as a pickpocket on a New York to New London train and stolen $40 from his sister in Montville got Antaine Lachanrite into trouble with the authorities. He passed Thursday in a cell at police headquarters and Thursday evening was presented before Justice of the Peace LaBonty in Montville. At the hearing it developed that Lachanrite had not been out of town and had not stolen the $40 from his sister. The youth, who is 18 years old, was placed on probation in care of County Humane Agent F. H. Wyant of this city.

SERMON ON COLUMBUS BY TRINITY METHODIST PASTOR

How Christopher Columbus was prepared for his great adventure, what he accomplished and the lesson to be learned from his struggles and achievements were portrayed by Rev. Joseph Cooper of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church in his sermon of this week. He spoke as follows:

The Renaissance is an historical term that covers many of the greatest discoveries of the human mind. It was a period of revolt and also of rebirth. A revolt against tyranny in any form and a rebirth into a larger freedom for the world. It ended a thousand years of absolutism in church and state and prepared the way for the emancipation of both. It weakened the material control of the papacy, revived learning, struck a blow at centuries of feudalism, opened the door into the modern world in which we live. Many things contributed to this rebirth of Europe. The discovery of printing made possible the wider distribution of human thought to all who would learn the truth. The discovery of gunpowder changed the whole face of war and made the white race dominant over the earth. The fall of the Eastern empire in 1453 when the Turks captured Constantinople, threw open great sources of Greek knowledge to the schools of the west. Italy, which had been a sealed country, was forced open by the French and German influences. The discovery of the mariner's compass made it possible for the sailor to push his vessel out beyond the sight of the shore.

The mind of man sloughed off the Ptolemaic conception of geography and received the theories of Copernicus and Galileo. In literature men sought for truth and in every country there arose noble scholars who have cast the lustre of their minds upon every succeeding age. It was a time of universal movement, of pioneering, of daring deeds in every realm of human endeavor. The Turks, by closing the way to the east, turned the minds of men westward. In Italy the Renaissance had the largest foothold for a while but the dominant church held the country in a leash and the movement died down into fitful outbursts that spoke more of death than it did of life. Yet Italy gave the world a large group of the bravest of the brave for exploration beyond the seas, but she reaped no profit from their actions. In Cadamosto, Cabot, Vespucci, Varranarano and Columbus you can see the kind of men that Italy possessed and which she gave to the world. They were all of Italian birth yet they had to go from Italy before they could find patronage for their daring tasks. Spain, Portugal, England and France benefited from their discoveries, but not Italy the land of their birth.

Columbus the Poor

Columbus was the peer of them all. He was born at Genoa, 1435, and died in 1506. He was the son of Dominico Columbus and Susan Fontanarossa. His father was a wool comber who found it very difficult to make a living. The boy Christopher grew up in this Genoa, one of the greatest ports of Italy.

Genoa is the Plymouth of Italy. Here sea and shore meet in delightful fraternity. Its quays are crowded with sailors from all parts of the world. Boys are always fond of the sea tales told by old salts. From their lips this bright boy got his first taste for the wild and restless ocean. Some of our encyclopedias say he went to the University of Pavia, where he studied nautical matters, but later students of his life deny this because they say his family was never in a position to send him to such a far-famed school. However that may be, the sea was in his blood and at the age of 15 he chose to become a sailor. The sea claimed him for its own. He sailed the Mediterranean and learned the ways of the buccaneers. He sailed to the Guinea Coast where the ship trafficked in slaves. He sailed to Iceland and listened to the tales of land beyond the western sea as told by Lief, the great Icelandic sailor. He sailed to the shores of England and learned much of the sea from those men of that sea-girt isle. He sailed to the seas of the east and listened to the mermaids as they combed their hair on the rocks of the Greek isles. He sailed under a bold seaman named Columbo el Mozo, probably a relative. Under his command the ship got into a fight which landed Columbus on the coast of Portugal. His younger brother, Bartholomew, was already settled in Portugal and to him young Christopher went. This brother earned his living by making maps and charts and selling books. Young Columbus had a very eager mind and he was learning all he could of maritime affairs. Unconsciously he was preparing for his great achievement. He studied the works of Ptolemy and Marinas, the books of Nearchus and Pliny, the cosmographies of Cardinal Allaco and the travels of Marco Polo and Mandeville. The rough practical years of seamanship had been leveled up by years of study by the best works available. He arrived in Lisbon in 1470. He married Felipa Perestrello, the daughter of a captain in the service of Prince Henry of Portugal. This father-in-law was the governor of Santo Poto, the most western outpost of the Portuguese dominions. Columbus had the benefit of all the nautical materials that his father-in-law had accumulated. Portugal had become a great sea power. She was in advance of other European powers in maritime discoveries. Christopher talked with these seamen upon their findings and the mystery of the western sea. He came to believe that the western sea would lead to Asia. He supported his belief by three arguments.

Had Three Arguments

1. From natural reason. The rotundity of the globe was becoming a settled belief among the true scientists of that day. It was rather a singular thing that the first thing that was published on the continent after the discovery of printing was a copy of Ptolemy. This was printed in 1475. Ptolemy said that further discoveries by the mariner were not to be found by sailing east or north, but by sailing west.

2. Theories that Columbus had studied himself. 3. Reports of mariners. So Columbus determined to try. He first made the announcement to his native city of Genoa but they turned a deaf ear to his plea. He then turned to John of Portugal but met refusal. He tried Henry II of England but received no help. At last he journeyed into Spain. The king listened incredulously and turned him over to a committee composed of churchmen who decided against him. In despair he started for France. He halted in Andalusia. He sent his son Diego, to beg bread from the monastery of La Rabida. The boy got into conversation with Juan Perez de Marchena, the guardian of the place. Columbus was introduced by Juan to Garcia Fernandez, a physician and a student of geography. To these men Columbus expounded his theory and scheme to put his theories into effect. Juan had been the queen's confessor and he wrote her and was summoned into her presence. Once more Columbus was ordered into court. An agreement was signed and sealed between the King and Queen of Spain and Columbus on the 17th of April, 1492.

Now remember Columbus had made every kind of preparation that could be made for an adventure. He had made himself familiar with the writing of the Greeks and Romans concerning the shape of the globe. He had read Cardinal Deilly's "Imago Mundi." A copy of this work with marginal notes by the hand of Columbus can be seen in the Columbus Library at Seville. He had also an unconquerable purpose to force the

BINGHAM CALLS HOOVER GREAT AMERICAN BUILDER

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Herbert Hoover, "the great American builder," has even built a new type of stump speech, containing no ballyhoo, mob appeal or class appeal, or innuendo—which does not appeal to Tammany Hall—said U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut in an address given over Station WOR here tonight. Instead, he makes a calm appeal to reason and sound patriotism and to those interested in good government, he said.

Senator Bingham pictured Hoover as an American builder who used American brains and American labor in all parts of the world to the direct advantage of those many Americans in foundries and other industrial plants who owed their jobs to the fact that somewhere he was using American materials to construct a great new enterprise.

"It is fair to state," Senator Bingham said, "that one of the principal tools with which Hoover will have to build is the protective tariff."

In part Senator Bingham said:

"If you ask me what Hoover is going to build with in the future I could give you a long list of tools and building materials, but I will content myself with only three. In the first place he is going to use that sound American currency which a few years ago the democratic party was doing its level best to debase. Had it not been for the republican success in the sound money campaign of 1896 this building material would not be at hand. In the second place Hoover is going to use another important republican contribution to American building material namely, the protective tariff which our friends the democrats have been fighting for many years even down to last winter when nearly every democratic senator went on record as favoring a lowering of the tariff.

"I know that I shall be accused by some of my democratic friends of trying to confuse the issue on the tariff notwithstanding democratic history, previous democratic platforms and recent democratic activity in the senate. That some of the most powerful democratic senators have not yet been converted is evidenced by the fact that one of the most active and highest ranking democrats in the senate has recently selected as the definition of a democrat one who believes in a tariff on luxuries for revenue only' and has approved of the definition of a republican as one who believes in a high protective tariff.'

"It is fair to state that one of the principal tools with which Hoover will have to build is the protective tariff.

"Again there is the doctrine of 'waste not, want not.' This doctrine of wise economy in public expenditure which has been practiced by the republican administration of which Mr. Hoover has been a part for the past seven and one-half years. In proof of this let me remind you that under this republican administration of which Hoover has been a part, the cost of government in Washington has decreased 26 per cent. Contrast with this the fact that in relatively the same period of time the cost of government of the state of New York has increased 200 per cent. Think of it. Since the way the federal government under republican rule has actually reduced its expenses more than one-third while the government of New York has much more than doubled its expenses. In fact it has almost trebled its spending under the governorship of the 'Happy Spender.' Which practice, which habit of mind do you think is most likely to build a safe and sound America of the future. The economy practiced in Washington or the lavish spending practiced in Albany.

"Furthermore this practice is reflected in taxation. We all pay taxes, either directly or indirectly. Everything we buy, everything we use, every mile we travel has to bear its burden of taxation. Under republican rule in Washington the federal taxes have been decreased 31 per cent. At the same time New York state taxes have increased 180 per cent. Not only that, but during this same period the national debt has been cut by more than one-quarter, while the net debt of New York has increased nearly one-half. It looks to me as though it might be true that the so-called 'happy warrior' was indeed a 'happy spender.' It also looks as though Hoover the careful builder was a careful spender. The Hoover motto is 'let nothing be wasted.' On the other hand as was recently said by Assistant Secretary Davison:

"'The record shows that Tammany has never cared about economy and efficiency in government.

"'Tammany talks about economy but it never practices it. The way to reduce taxes is to have at the head of the spending agencies of government—which means the chief executive—one who believes in efficiency and economy.' That has been the case in Washington. It has not been the case in Albany or in the city of New York.'

"In a little over three weeks now it will be your duty and your privilege to go to the polls and elect the next president of the United States. Your choice will lie between the 'happy spender' and the 'careful builder.' Between the laughing good fellow who likes to crack a joke, and the thoughtful, quiet citizen who has for years been building things of which America is proud and who is best fitted of all our fellow citizens for planning the construction of an ideal America of the future, who has said that 'the true construction of an ideal America is not a country of one hundred and ten million people, but a nation of twenty-three million families living in twenty-three million homes.' To these homes he and his party have pledged the services of the greatest constructive genius in America today, that farsighter builder, Herbert Hoover."

CREEDON STARS AS BOSTON COLLEGE ROMPS TO VICTORY OVER DUKE UNIV.

BOSTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Little "Paddy" Creedon scampered and squirmed on the gridiron at Fenway park today and, with his backfield mates, Smith and Weston, gave Boston college a 19 to 0 victory over the "Blue Devils" of Duke University. A holiday crowd of 20,000 gathered to watch the conquerors of the Navy combat the much-heralded forward passing attack of the boys from North Carolina.

There were no disappointments outside of the ranks of the Duke team. The Boston team coached by "Joe" McKenney, the youngest college coach in the country, showed power on the offense and defense and the Dukelets passed often and well, but to little ultimate advantage. They made 15 first downs but could not cross the goal line.

Duke threatened soon after the opening of the game when a fumble enabled them to get the ball to Boston's ten yard line. But the attack was smothered and Dixon, the left-footed punter, kicked Boston out of danger. The Boston backfield got going in real style in the second period and Creedon made 41 yards in four dashes off tackle before he finally dashed ten yards for the first score.

The teams battled evenly until the last period when Weston heaved to Creedon on the 28 yard line and the latter ran unhampered to the goal. Kilroy failed to kick the goals after each of the touchdowns.

Duke made frantic efforts to score in the last period by the air route and, with double and triple delayed passes preceding the forward passes, they showed excellent results of drilling in the passing game. The plan proved a boomerang when Smith intercepted a pass on his 40 yard line and ran the remaining 60 yards for the final B. C. score. Kilroy kicked the goal.

Bule, Jankoski and Hollingsworth led the Duke attack. Hollingsworth was put in the game in the third period and he immediately made several gains. The Duke forwards were completed often but the receivers were stopped almost as soon as they caught the ball.

Officials: Dan Kelley, referee; umpire, Frank Bergin; J. J. Hallahan, linesman; E. F. Sherlock, field judge.

Score by periods:

Boston College	0	6	0	13	—19
Duke University	0	0	0	0	—0

NAVY-NOTHE DAME GAME IS TODAY'S GRID FEATURE

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(AP)—With a crowd of 120,000 to 125,000 viewing the spectacle the greatest throng that ever witnessed a football game in America, the Navy and Notre Dame will battle on Soldier field tomorrow in one of the outstanding gridiron struggles of the year.

That is quite a reversal of what should happen in these days of competitive sport. Nobody, as a rule, wants to see a loser, yet, tomorrow this tremendous throng will file into the massive stadium on Chicago's lake front to witness two losers in action —Notre Dame overwhelmingly licked once and the Navy twice. Their records may be scarred, but their glory and appeal remains undimmed.

The large reason for this situation is that the Notre Dame eleven is to football what Jack Dempsey was to the ring. Whenever a Notre Dame team, good or just fair, goes into action—you get action, Mr. Rockne sees to that.

For that reason, and that alone, a great portion of the crowd will be attracted to the stadium in anticipation of action, the colorful spectacle and the desire to see Notre Dame fight to regain its football prestige, now somewhat dented by the smashing upset scored by Wisconsin.

The game to neutral observers, appears to be wide open and a toss up, with the winner in doubt. While not overconfident, "Navy Bill" Ingram and his Middies were optimistic over tomorrow's outcome when they arrived today.

OVER SUBSCRIPTION FOR YALE-ARMY GRID CLASSIC

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 12—(AP)—Subscription for tickets for the Yale-Army game scheduled for the Yale bowl, October 27, have been over-subscribed, according to a report given out today by the Yale Athletic association. The check-up on this game revealed that more applications for tickets have been received than for any other Yale-Army game in the history of the college. The grand total of tickets requested by the athletic associations of Yale and West Point is in excess of $3,000 whereas the seating capacity of the bowl is 74,786. General Manager H. F. Woodcock, of the Yale Athletic association, said that late applications for seats will not be accepted.

Wesleyan Harriers Beat Aggies

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 12—(AP)—Wesleyan defeated Connecticut Agricultural college in a cross-country run of three miles, Kelly, of Wesleyan was the first man to cross the finishing tape with the fast time of 15 minutes and 18 seconds. Connecticut Aggies were seemingly the victors with two men in the lead, Bottomley and Gunn, but in some manner they lost the trail and finished last.

YALE TO SEND REGULAR TEAM AGAINST GEORGIA

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 12—(AP)—Extremely warm weather today curtailed Yale's final practice session in preparation for the Georgia game Saturday. The varsity team was given a light workout and snappy signal drills and punting and passing were the order of the afternoon. The Blue squad were on the field today with the exception of Stewart, Garvey and Hoben. Stewart and Garvey were suffering with colds and Hoben is on the injured list with a bad leg.

The Georgia eleven were sent to the bowl for their practice for two hours behind closed doors. With the exception of the two ends, Maffett and Smith, and Haley at right guard, the southern aggregation is the same as the eleven that won over Yale last year, 14 to 10. Crowley, one of the famous four horsemen of Notre Dame, is handling the Georgia backfield this year and declared that in Johnson, Dudley, Hooks and McCrary, the southern gridders have one of the best scoring machines developed in the south this season.

It is expected that the lineup of the Yale gridders Saturday will be complete with the same men that started last week's game against the University of Maine. With the possible exception of Johnny Hoben, who is still very lame, Coach Mal Stevens hopes to put his entire first team strength into the opening play. Today Oldt and McEwen, ends, were in the lineup after being out for the past two days. Garvey and Stewart were on the sick list today but will probably start the game tomorrow.

CARDINAL PLAYERS GET $4,181.30 EACH AS SHARE

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals received in cash what they failed to get in base hits today when Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis mailed out the losers' cut of the world series melon in the form of 33 checks totalling $117,526.25.

Twenty-six of the Cardinals figured in the slice, which was $1,700 less than received by the individual victorious New York Yankees.

Full shares of $4,181.30 were received by Manager William B. McKechnie, Coach Jack Onslow and 24 players. Half shares amounting to $2,090.65 were distributed among Clarence F. Lloyd, Ernest Orsatti, Earl Smith and P. J. Weaver, who joined the team late in the season and officials of the club. Even the clubhouse and bathboys were not forgotten, $450 being divided between the three employes.

Wesleyan Loses Soccer Match

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 12—(AP)—Clark university, of Worcester, Mass., soccer team easily defeated Wesleyan today by the score of 8 to 0. The visitors had a powerful defense through which Wesleyan was unable to score. Clark was the master of the field at all times.

Thil Wins Title

PARIS, Oct. 12—(AP)—Marcel Thil tonight captured the French middleweight title, knocking out Marcel Thuru in the first round of a 12-round bout. The championship was vacated by Bart Molina after he had been injured in an automobile accident.

American League Topped National in Run Scoring

Marius Reguin of Taftville, who is a close follower of major league baseball and who keeps accurate statistics showing the progress of the club during the season, has submitted the following table to the Bulletin showing the relative scoring strength of the clubs. From Mr. Reguin's table we find that although the Cardinals won the National league pennant they were third in the league in scoring power, the league being led by the Pirates who gathered 835 runs. In the American league the Yankees as might be expected with their heavy artillery topped the league with 896 runs while the Athletics were second with 836. The American league outscored the National 5881 to 5697.

In the tabulation of runs scored in each inning it is noticeable that the first inning was the heavy scoring inning in both leagues. Why this is so cannot accurately be determined but the supposition is that many of the pitchers were not warmed up in this frame. In the American league the third inning was the next big inning while in the National the eighth was the second largest inning. The table follows:

KOZIOL AND MEDITZ ARE STARS OF PROVIDENCE SHOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 12—Al Koziol and Johnny Meditz, both of Norwich, practically monopolized the limelight at the Arcadia arena show here tonight when each won three bouts. The pair scored five knockouts between them, Koziol two and Meditz three.

Koziol, always a popular favorite with Providence boxing fans, was up against three of the hardest propositions of his career and the Norwich whirlwind acquitted himself in fine style. Taking on Emil McNutt of Milford, Mass., runner-up in the recent international tournament, Koziol had the Bay State boy groggy and reeling in the third round of the first bout and the referee stopped the slaughter to save McNutt. Tommy Rogers of Brookline was the next victim. Rogers came to Providence with a record of 28 consecutive knockouts and was by far the toughest boy Koziol has met in the local ring. This bout was the feature fight of the night. The boys slammed and slugged through three torrid rounds with Koziol outslugging the K. O. king and earning the decision. His final bout was with Paul Sousa of Fall River whom he knocked kicking in the first round.

Meditz, fighting his first amateur bouts, impressed the local enthusiasts with his terrific punching. The Norwich lad fought but three rounds out of the three bouts in which he appeared, knocking out his man in the first round of each bout. Joe Bruno of Westerly was the first victim, then came Joe Allard of Boston and the third victim was Charlie Perry of Taunton. Meditz scales at 147 pounds and punches with every ounce of weight that he has. His work here tonight has made him a local favorite, second only to his fellow townsman, Koziol.

FLYNN WINS VERDICT OVER SCOZZA AT BOSTON

BOSTON Oct. 12— (AP) —Arthur Flynn of Lawrence won the decision over Lou Scozza of Buffalo, in a ten-round bout at Braves field today before a holiday crowd. Both fighters weighed 167 pounds.

Flynn had the fight well in hand all the way and took all of the rounds except the second, which was even. A stiff left jab, well controlled, kept Scozza on the defensive throughout and wore him down. In the final round Flynn gave everything he had in an effort to polish the fight off with a knockout. He scored heavily and when the bell rang had Scozza rocking against the ropes.

Many of the old timers were on hand to give Jack Britton an ovation. McGonigle proved no match for the veteran who took things comfortably, scoring almost at will and at no time extending himself.

In two four-round bouts, Connie Holms of Boston won a decision over Jimmy Scully of South Boston, and George Flake of Dorchester won over Eddie Russell of Peabody.

Jimmy Corcoran of Cambridge was knocked out by Jimmy Conley of Brockton in the fifth round of a six-round bout.

In the two other six-round bouts, Johnny Scully of South Boston defeated A. Del Gado of New York and Tommy Smoot of South Boston defeated Tommy Harper of Medford.

GAVRIN WINS ANNUAL PORTCHESTER MARATHON

PORTCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—Albert Gavrin, running under the New York university colors, won the fourth annual marathon from New York to this city this afternoon, his time being 2 hours, 57 minutes, 37 seconds.

Clarence De Mar, of Melrose, Mass., a noted marathoner, was second in 3 hours, 1 minute, 40 3-5 seconds.

The field of starters numbered 105, the largest number ever to be sent away in this event which is sponsored each year by the Portchester board of trade.

The start was from the New York Athletic club's house in 59th street and the finish in Summerfield Park, here, where a great throng cheered the runners who had stamina to finish.

The distance is 26 miles, 385 yards.

ONE DRIVER KILLED TWO OTHERS INJURED AT ROCKINGHAM SPEEDWAY

SALEM, N. H., Oct. 12—(AP)—A carnival crowd of 25,000 persons gathered here for the 300-mile automobile speed stakes on Rockingham speedway today, saw tragedy stalk among the roaring motors, snuffing out the life of one racing driver and sending two others to a hospital with severe injuries.

Fred Comer, of Los Angeles died before he reached a Lawrence hospital after the Boyle valve special he was driving hurtled into the air, up a steep bank and plunged into the inner field. A few minutes later, four cars piled up directly in front of the grandstand and when the wreckage was untangled an ambulance hurried Jimmy Gleason, of Boston away to a Lawrence hospital. A third accident, occurring a few laps later, sent Dave Evans of San Antonio, Tex., to the hospital.

Officials of the American Automobile association hurriedly cancelled the race immediately after the third crash "because of the accidents and the condition of the track." Only fifty of the required 160 laps had been covered.

After the race had been delayed nearly an hour while minor repairs were being made in the planking of the track, sixteen starters got away. McDonough, at the pole position, held the lead for the first seven laps, followed by Hepburn who moved to the front on the seventh. Woodbury who had been in the fourth row of starters, came to the front on the eleventh and twelfth circles.

On the twenty fourth lap, Comer was among the stragglers. As he was coming off a steep bank his car was seen to hurtle into the air, presumably as a result of a blown tire. The car plunged into the inner field. Ambulances hurried to the scene out the race continued. It was estimated that Comer was travelling at a speed exceeding 130 miles an hour at the time.

The race proceeded smoothly thereafter until the thirty sixth lap when Gleason hit the rail near the starter's stand and was thrown from the car, both Gleason and the car skidding along the track independently for a distance of about 50 yards. Ray Keech, of Philadelphia, who was driving a Simplex piston ring special was bearing down upon him. Keech attempted to turn aside but his machine grazed Gleason's car and overturned, throwing Keech off the track. McDonough, driving a Flying Cloud special, and Lou Moore, of Los Angeles, driving a Miller special, were close behind and became entangled in the situation, Moore's car overturning.

The third crash occurred just before the fiftieth lap. Evans, driving a State Auto Insurance special, sideswiped the rail near the front of the grandstand. He was thrown from his car and he and the car slid off the track near the end of the pits. He picked himself up, apparently unhurt, walked a few yards and then collapsed.

At the Clover Hill hospital, Lawrence, Mass., Gleason was reported as suffering a broken left ankle and bruises. Evans suffered from bruises and shock. The condition of neither was regarded as serious.

When the race was declared cancelled the first three leaders were Cliff Woodbury, of Chicago, driving a Boyle valve special; Ralph Hepburn, of Somerville, driving a Miller special, and Norman Batten, of Brooklyn, N. Y., driving a Miller special.

The fastest lap was completed by Woodbury at 130 8-10 miles an hour. He also was credited with the fastest time at the finish of the race, having completed 50 laps, comprising 62 5-10 miles, in 32 minutes and 3 seconds.

Unexpected action before the race, permitted Leon Duray, of Hollywood, and "Deacon" Litz, of Dubois, Pa., to enter the race. They had been protested by other drivers yesterday because of their slow qualifying time. Duray finished one lap behind the leaders and Litz, who had experienced engine trouble, was seven laps behind the leaders.

SHEIK LEONARD RECEIVED CUT LIP IN RECENT BOUT

Although Sheik Leonard came through his bout with Bernie McQuade with flying colors he is sporting a cut lip today. McQuade only hit Leonard about four times during the fight but the last time it opened a neat cut on the Sheik's upper lip which required a stitch to close. The Sheik looked exceptionally good Thursday night and he fought one of the best fights of his long career. Leonard was in good physical shape with the exception of his endurance and he was mighty tired at the end of the fifth round. It was a hard gruelling battle with plenty of slugging which was pretty exhausting on both lads, Leonard showing better endurance than his opponent.

With a victory over McQuade to his credit the Sheik should find plenty of work from now on. After seeing the blond boy in action Thursday night the opinion was that the layoff has done him a world of good and that he should go a long way along the comeback trail.

TWO INJURED PLAYERS BACK IN HARVARD SQUAD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 12—(AP)—Two members of the Harvard varsity football injured list, Harper and Douglas, will be in the lineup, when Harvard meets North Carolina at the stadium tomorrow, it was announced today.

Pickard, le; Barrett, lt; Trainer, lg; B. Tickner, c; W. Tickner, rg; Clark, rt; Douglas, re; Putnam, qb; French, lhb; Guarnaccia, rhb; Harper, fb.

MANY TRADITIONAL RIVALS MEET ON GRIDIRON TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP)—The football season in the east now reaches the stage where leading college teams get down to the more or less serious business of taking on powerful rivals in traditional battles, the history of which goes back 20 years or more.

Outstanding games of this sort on tomorrow's far-flung program are those in which Pittsburgh entertains West Virginia at Pittsburgh, and New York University stacks up against Fordham at the Polo Grounds, New York.

With teams as strong as any in their history, Pitt and N. Y. U. were victorious by one-sided margins in these games last year, the scores being 40 to 0 and 32 to 0 respectively, but the record of both series has indicated that when rivals such as these get together almost anything may happen.

Pittsburgh has pretty well dominated its rivalry with West Virginia, having won 15 of the 22 games played since 1895, but N. Y. U. is on the short side so far as its conflict with Fordham is concerned. In spite of the success that came with the coaching advent of Chick Meehan, bringing victories for the last two years, N. Y. U. has won only three of the eight games played since the teams first met in 1904. Until the score is at least evened Meehan and his men will not let up.

Pitt and N. Y. U. enter the games as heavy favorites, but Fordham under Maj. Frank Cavanaugh boasts of an unusually powerful aggregation and West Virginia is nobody's set-up despite an early defeat by Davis & Elkins.

Another game in which the contending teams have something to fight for is that between Penn State and Bucknell at State College. One of the surprises of the 1927 season was Bucknell's victory over its bigger rivals, 13 to 7, and the Staters are out to wipe that reverse off the slate with a one-sided win of their own. Diehl, the principal Bucknell thorn in their side, is not on the team this year.

Colgate likewise will have a powerful incentive in its game with Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Hamilton, N. Y. as last season the "Three Grenadiers" of the southern backfield led their team to an astonishing 6 to 0 triumph over the proud Maroon.

Yale too was upset in 1927 by the team that it encounters tomorrow, the University of Georgia. This was its one reverse. Sad tales of injuries have emanated from New Haven, but the call to battle is pretty sure to find 11 able-bodied Elis on the field. Yale will be favored to win, partly because of Georgia's loss of Nash and Shiver, its two great ends.

Harvard and Princeton also take on southern opponents, North Carolina playing at Cambridge and Virginia at Princeton. These invading teams are rated as strong but not dangerous opponents.

Brown meets the University of Dayton, an intersectional foe of uncertain strength, at Providence. Holy Cross and Rutgers play on neutral territory at Newark, N. J.

The other big colleges of the east face teams that are listed as second or third rate, but it is of games such as these that upsets are made. One or more of these lowly outfits may spring another of the surprises that have marked the season thus far, but at the present writing few would have any hesitation in naming the winner of such games as Army vs. Providence, Carnegie Tech vs. Thiel, Columbia vs. Wesleyan, Cornell vs. Hampden-Sidney, Dartmouth vs. Allegheny, Georgetown vs. Lebanon Valley, LaFayette vs. George Washington, Lehigh vs. Gettysburg, Pennsylvania vs. Swarthmore, Washington & Jefferson vs. Duquesne and Syracuse vs. Johns-Hopkins.

HAGEN HAS LOW CARD IN BENEFIT EXHIBITION

RYE, N. Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—Walter Hagen, British open champion, shot a 71 to lead three other professional stars in an 18 hole medal play exhibition at the Westchester-Biltmore club here today. The exhibition was for the benefit of the Catholic Writers' Guild of America.

The Haig was out in 36 even par figures, and came back in 35, one under par, the 71 total was three strokes better than the next best score, made by Johnny Farrell, American open title holder. Billy Burke, north and south champion, was third with 75 and Leo Diegel trailed with a round of 77.

Hagen sank two long putts for a birdie, and an eagle on the last two holes to beat out Farrell. The cards:

ACADEMY CLASHES WITH GUARDS TODAY

The Academy meets the Junior Varsity football team of the Coast Guard academy of New London at the campus this afternoon, the game starting at 2:30 o'clock.

This will be the first meeting on the gridiron between these two outfits. The Wildcats beat the Sailors in basketball last winter in their only other athletic contest.

A large crowd is expected today now that the grid game commands local attention, exclusively. This is the third game of the year for the Academy, who have kept their goal line uncrossed to date.

However, today's tilt looms up as the most important so far in the schedule. The New Londoners are generally conceded as being able to extend the locals to the limit. Weight will undoubtedly count a lot should the weather continue torrid this afternoon and the Whalers are reported as being a husky team.

The New London lineup has not been let out but the Academy's is expected to be pretty much the same as has performed all season. The team has had a stiff week's work in preparation for this game. Although there was quite an improvement last week against Wilby than was the case the week before with Chapman Tech, nevertheless the Red and White still had a couple of faults when it finished against the Waterbury club and the work this week seemed to correct the situation somewhat. Today's game will be the last on the home field until Nov. 10.

JOHNSON MAY MANAGE SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Walter Johnson, for many years the idol of Washington baseball fans, is expected to return to manage the American league team for which he pitched for 21 seasons.

While negotiations were not complete, Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, said that he and Johnson had talked over the matter, and that if the Newark club of the International league, which Johnson managed last year, would release him, he would sign him.

At the same time Paul Block, owner of the Newark club of the International league, which Johnson managed last year, said that he would not stand in the way of Johnson coming to Washington.

If Johnson is taken on to pilot the Senators he will succeed Stanley Harris, who in the past five years led the Washington team to one world's series victory and two American league pennants. Harris was relieved as manager by Griffith two weeks ago when a three year contract expired.

The famous "big train" as Johnson was affectionately known, went to manage the Newark club last year, but on account of a serious illness at the beginning of the season was unable to produce a winning combination for the Jersey metropolis. He is under contract with Block to manage the team again next year.

Johnson in his 21 years with the Washington club established himself as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, pitchers of all time. His fast ball was famous wherever baseball was talked and his strikeout record probably will be the goal of major league pitchers for years to come.

With the exception of the four years he worked under the management of Harris his team was consistently in the last division and nearly always in last place in the American league. His record was built in spite of and not on account of the team with which he played.

THREE MAJOR CONTESTS IN COAST CONFERENCE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12—(AP)—Three coast conference games will hold the center of the football stage in the west tomorrow, with the St. Mary's-Southern California non-conference contest at Los Angeles also claiming a share of attention.

California's Bears, victors in two non-conference tests, will get into action against Washington State. California, however, is favored slightly by the critics.

Stanford's Cardinals, who handed Oregon a conference beating last week, entertains the weaker University of California at Los Angeles squad.

In the northern sector, Washington's Huskies and Montana's Grizzlies clash in the third of the conference tests. Washington has won its preliminary skirmishes and while not showing up in impressive fashion, is expected to turn back the visitors.

Other games all of non-conference bearing, bring together Oregon against Willamette, Idaho against Whitman and Oregon State against Pacific.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the local fire department held its annual fall parade. Many people came from surrounding towns to witness the procession of the volunteer fire fighters. The same week, an old building at Norwich Town, owned by Gen. Edward Harland, was burned. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of October, 1878, are as follows:

Monday, Oct. 7, 1878—The parade of the fire department of this city on Saturday afternoon was as fine an exhibition of the kind as we have ever seen in Norwich. The greater part of the people of New London county was also on parade and exhibition drill and during a part of the afternoon the streets and sidewalks were choked with vehicles and pedestrians. Many people along the line of the Norwich & Worcester railroad, induced by the reduced fares, came down on the early trains and added their numbers to the throng of country visitors.

The Hammond Fife Silver Drum Corps of Rockville, which consists of ten silver snare drums and one bass drum, serenaded The Bulletin on Saturday afternoon. They are led by young Mr. Hammond. Every good republican in the state knows "Joe." All the members of the band are still in their teens but they manage their drum sticks with the skill and grace of veterans.

The New London Northern Railroad Co., makes an excursion to Mt. Tobey by their early train, Wednesday morning, at an extremely low rate of fare. The return train leaves the mount at 1:30

Tuesday, Oct. 8, 1878—The old building at Norwich Town which was burned Sunday night was of ante-Revolutionary date. It was built by Uriah Tracy and Joseph Colt, on land leased by Thomas Lemingwell upon an annual rental of $6. At the time of its destruction it was owned by Gen. Edward Harland and was occupied as a temporary residence by a family recently from Worcester.

William H Jennings, Jr., of this city, who has pursued the study of law the last three years in the office of Solomon Lucas, Esq., was admitted to the bar by the superior court last Friday. We understand that he passed a very good examination.

All of the women of Norwich who have been, are now, or are willing to become interested in the "United Workers," are invited to the public meeting to be held, today, at White's hall.

Wednesday, Oct. 9, 1878—White's hall was thronged with the ladies of the United Workers, who gathered for the regular annual meeting. Mrs. Edward B. Huntington, the president of the society, filled the chair. The reports of the various branches of the society were read and accepted. Mrs. Huntington tendered her resignation as president, to the meeting. On recommendation of the nominations committee, Mrs. J. Loyd Greene was unanimously elected to the office of president.

The Carrot Patch Party Breaks Up

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Be sure your debts you promptly pay;
'Twill greatly smooth your future way.
—Johnny Chuck.

It was a funny little procession moving down from Farmer Brown's carrot patch to the water on the overflowed Green Meadows. Ahead were Jerry Muskrat and Mrs. Muskrat. Right behind them were Johnny Chuck and Jimmy Skunk. A respectable distance on either side were Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy. Jerry and Mrs. Muskrat looked anxious. Johnny Chuck and Jimmy Skunk looked unconcerned. Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy looked disappointed and angry. And how Reddy and Mrs. Reddy did hate Jimmy Skunk! They were sure that if Jimmy hadn't meddled they would have had a Muskrat dinner.

It wasn't very far down to the water. When they reached it Jerry and Mrs. Muskrat waded right in. They didn't have to wade very far before it was deep enough for them to swim. Then they turned towards Jimmy Skunk and Johnny Chuck.

"Thank you, Jimmy. Thank you, Johnny," they said. "We'll never forget what you've done for us." Then Jerry looked over towards Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy. He slapped the water hard with his tail. Then he dived. Mrs. Muskrat did the same thing. When they came up again they were out where they had no cause to worry about Reddy Fox.

It was now Johnny Chuck's turn to be a little anxious. He wasn't afraid of Reddy Fox alone, or of Mrs. Reddy alone but he was afraid of the two together.

"Which way are you going, Jimmy?" said he to Jimmy Skunk.

"I don't know," replied Jimmy. "I haven't any place in particular in mind. I'm just out for a little exercise."

"I saw some fat beetles up near my home early this morning," said Johnny Chuck artfully.

"Did you?" exclaimed Jimmy Skunk, brightening up. "I wonder if "Suits me," said Jimmy, and together they started off

they are still there?"

"If you haven't anything better to do, let's go over there and find out," said Johnny Chuck.

"Suits me" said Johnny, and together they started off. Now and then Jimmy started to catch a grasshopper or dig a white grub out of the grass roots. Now and then Johnny Chuck stopped for a bite of sweet clover. They didn' keep close together, but Johnny Chuck took pains to see that they were never far apart. Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy followed at a safe distance. They hoped Jimmy Skunk would take it into his little head to go off and leave Johnny Chuck alone.

But Jimmy did nothing of the kind. He hadn't forgotten those fat beetles. He has a liking for fat beetles. He didn't hurry, so, of course, Johnny Chuck didn't hurry, and, of course, Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy Fox didn't hurry. So at last they reached Johnny Chuck's house. By this time Reddy and Mrs Reddy had given up. They saw they hadn't a chance in the world and went off to hunt for grasshoppers and Meadow Mice.

Johnny Chuck sat up on his doorstep and watched them and his face wore a satisfied grin.

"Where did you say those fat beetles were?" said a voice.

Johnny remembered what he had told Jimmy Skunk. "Do you see that old stump over there?" said he.

Jimmy nodded.

"Well, if you'll go and dig in that rotted wood I think you will find some fat beetles," said Johnny.

Jimmy ambled over to the remains of an old stump and began to dig around in the old wood. Johnny saw him suddenly pounce on something. "He's got one!" thought Johnny.

For a few minutes Jimmy Skunk was a very busy person. Then he returned licking his lips. "Thanks, Johnny," said he.

"Don't mention it," replied Johnny. (Copyright, 1928, by T. W. Burgess)

The Most Talked About Picture of the Year!
Begins Tomorrow Night at 7 and 8:45

Live the glorious romance of Lilac Time. One minute crooning a love song under moonlit trees. Next minute a mile high, in the heavens, riding the airplanes of hell...

What romance, what spectacle, what thrill and beautiful love moments as a sweet maiden of Normandy bids her he-man flier good-bye for perhaps the last time.

If you don't cry when this scene is flashed on the screen, then your heart must be made of stone. It's one of the few incomparable thrills the screen has ever offered.

Millions have paid $2.00 per seat to see it. You can see it at the Breed—Evening at 7 and 8.45, 50; Matinee, beginning Monday, 2.15, 25c.

ODD LADIES, M. U.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cocker of Central avenue entertained a number of their friends at cards Thursday evening for the benefit of Loyal Victory lodge, No. 4, I. O. O. L. M. U. The prizes were won by Ladies', first, Miss Dorothy Hunt; second, Mrs. John Houston; consolation, Mrs. William Shaw. Gentlemen, first, John Gunderman; second, Leonard Partridge; consolation, Miss Mary Greenhalgh. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by Mrs. Cocker, assisted by Mrs. Turner and Miss Dorothy Hunt.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS

Sebequanash council, No. 11, met in their tepee in the Buckingham Memorial. Owing to illness of the Pocahontas, her chair was filled by deputy prevost of New London. Two palefaces were taken in. The usual ritual work was in order. The annual meeting of the Great Sun council will be held in South Norwalk next week, but the Pocahontas of Sebequonash council will not be aable to go, but her alternate, Sister Manchester is to take her place. The charter was draped in memory of Past Pocahontas Sister Mueller, who has passed on to the great beyond.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

An invitation from Wauregan lodge, No. 6, to have the degree team of Trumbull lodge of New London confer the knights' rank has been accepted by the New London lodge. The date is to be set by the Norwich lodge and notice will be given of the time for the degree work.

SHEPHERDS OF BETHLEHEM

The Shepherds of Bethlehem had a report given by Mrs. James Smith when the meeting was held Monday evening at the Buckingham Memorial at which Vice Commander Charlotte Davison presided. It was voted to have a card party soon.

MOOSE

On Oct. 27, Saturday evening, a big time will be held by the Loyal Order of Moose, No. 950, Women of Mooseheart Legion, No. 124, and Junior Order of Moose, No. 92. That day is known as Mooseheart day.The committee is working hard on the affair and it will be the first time the public will be invited to attend. The lodge is now working under an open charter and a class will soon be put through. A pea soup supper was put on by Brother Henry Jarvis last Saturday evening and everybody enjoyed it.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps No. 16, met at the Buckingham Memorial Friday afternoon with the president, Inez M. Hill presiding. Mrs. Annie M. Maynard, department inspector, was presented; also department president, Miss Lillian E. Bailey of Danielson and Department Patriotic Instructor D. Louisa Atterbury and Department President of the Daughters of Veterans Jennie Newbury and her staff. After the regular reports were read and approved several candidates were balloted upon. Then the work of the ritual was performed including the initiation of several new members. During intermission afternoon tea was served under the direction of Mrs. M. Florence Dean. A goodly sum was netted from the recent food sale and card party. Another card party will be held soon. The sewing society will meet at the Buckingham Memorial Thursday, Oct. 25th. A large attendance is hoped for as considerable work is to be done. The department inspector commended the work of the corps. The department president, Miss Bailey, spoke briefly and many of the visitors thanked the corps for the hospitality given them.

The corps closed with the salute to the flag and the singing of America.

Lyman French, president of the board of aldermen, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., was a recent guest of his nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Willis E. Almy. Mr. French is proud of his eighty-two years, drives his car and gets about like a man of forty. He was accompanied by his nephew and niece Mr. and Mrs. William Champlin of Exeter. Mr. Champlin has charge of Senator Metcalf's estate at that place.

There was hearty praise from all who attended Saturday's supper at the parsonage given by the Sewing society and honoring Captain and Mrs. Byron E. Dawley. The elaborate menu included: Roast fresh hams, with dressing, mashed turnip, mashed potato, squash, brown bread and rolls, pumpkin pie, apple pie and ice cream.

Guests were present from North Stonington, Stonington, Westerly, Jewett City and Ashaway.

A fine range has been installed at the parsonage by the sewing society

The floral decorations at the church Sunday were especially beautiful They consisted of dahlias from the gardens of Mrs. Charles Cottrell and sisters, Misses Kittie and Cecile Palmer.

Hill gardens are still in full bloom. Plants which have not blossomed all summer are in full bloom and full of birds. Poppies even are still blossoming in some gardens.

Mrs. Annie Cook assisted by Captain and Mrs. Dawley entertained nineteen Supday.

Malcolm Cottrell is detained from school this week on account of trouble with his eyes.

Wednesday evening the most largely attended republican caucus ever held in this town, there were several contesting candidates for representative. It was a close contest Horace E. Lewis winning over Lafayette Main by two votes for first representative. The contest for second representative was almost equally close, Irving Main winning over Lafayette Main by seven votes. Mr. Main polling the same vote for second as for first representative lacking twenty two voted by ballot. About a hundred filled the hall.

Our trees are being rapidly defoliated by wind and rain. Up to the present time our autumn foliage is not to be compared in brilliancy with that of former years. It is scared and dull and vanishes almost over night.

Five candidate took the first three degrees at the grange Friday evening, among them Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Tennant of this place.

MISS FREEMAN NAMED ON DEMOCRATIC TICKET

The democratic party held their caucus in Ledyard Thursday afternoon, and the following were placed in nomination: For representative, Miss Caroline B. Freeman; judge of probate, no nomination; justices of the peace, George A. Montgomery, Samuel E. Holdridge, Frederick W. Turner, Charles A. Gray.

F. W. BREWSTER ADDS $150 TO CEMETERY FUND

The annual meeting of the Ledyard Cemetery Association, Inc., was held in the vestry of Ledyard Congregational church, Saturday, Oct. 6, at 3 p. m. There were ten persons present.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and accepted. The expense for the improvement and care of the cemetery amounted to $92.46. Some of the stones had been cleaned, the grass cut three times with a lawn mower, all adding greatly to the improved condition of the cemetery. The following officers were re-elected: William I. Allyn, president; Charles B. Allyn, vice-president; Herbert W. Gallup, treasurer, Marion G. Allyn, secretary. Amos M. Gallup, Charles A. Gray, and Carl W. Brown were elected directors. A hearty vote of thanks was given Frank W. Brewster, of Pawtucket, R. I., for adding the cemetery fund of one hundred dollars, left by his grandfather, Franklin Brewster, to the permanent fund of the association, and more than that, his personal addition of fifty dollars to the permanent rund.

Miss Nellie Wright Geer has returned to the Geer homostead after an absence of nearly four weeks. Miss Geer spent two weeks in Newport, N. H While there she, with friends, motored to President Coolidge's home in Vermont, the party arriving at the Coolidge home about 3 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, who had stayed at this home the previous night, had left at 1 p. m., the same day the party arrived. Miss Geer was disappointed in not going to this home a little earlier in the day and seeing President Coolidge. She also visited friends on Long Island, having a fine vacation and arriving home in excellent health.

Samuel P. Main, who has kept a diary for a number of years, says potatoes were cheaper in 1898 than they are now. You could buy all you wanted to at that time for 50 and 60 cents per bushel.

Mrs. Mildred Holdridge recently entertained at her home, Mrs. Esther Marsh Smith, of Lincoln avenue, and Mrs Edith Smith, of Norwich Town. Mrs. Holdridge was the guest of Mrs Marsh, of Norwich, Tuesday.

A meeting of the town school committee is to be held at Ledyard Center, Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Rudd, who has been housekeeper for Charles A. Gray for the past year, is having two weeks' vacation.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
MY NEW ENGLAND HOME

I've found a home in fair New England,
North of Boston, up in Maine,
Where rough seas smite
The rock bound shore,
And bold wild sea birds
Rise and soar;
Where the fields
Are glorious shields,
And the beaches,
With their reaches,
Woo me unto rest and real content.

I've a pride in this old home,
Quaint, rambling friendly place,
Where drift-wood fire
Oft casts its gleam
On hand-wrought wainscot
And age-worn beam;
Where laughter sweet,
With gaiety meet,
And a spirit voice
Says "Come, rejoice,
Live in this old place
And dream bright dreams."

I've a feeling within my heart
That this old house
Would speak to me,
When sea winds in the forests sigh,
And over moor and dune pass by;
And the story,
Aged and hoary,
Within my keep,
In memory's sleep,
Pick up the thread, and weave a tale.

I've a hope that in my breast
There rests the key to this content
Where seeks the heart
A humble home,
Grave doubts and fears
Are never known,
And in their sweep,
The rich hours keep
Their meted gift,
And promise, swift,
O ancient homestead
Give me peace.

MORE COW

Note—Mrs. Katherine O'Leary, owner of the cow that kicked the lamp that fired the barn that set the blaze that burned Chicago, died in that town July 2

Dead is Mrs. O'Leary;
Dead in Chicago now;
Finished her earthly labors,
Gone to meet her cow;

Cow that is ever famous,
More than heart could desire;
Famous because she started
The great Chicago fire;

Fire that swept the city;
City of brick and fame
Went up in a blaze of glory
That brought unfading fame;

Fame for being the biggest
Fire that ever blazed
In any "largest" city,
And left the world amazed;

Amazed that from her ashes
Chicago could arise,
And grow with magic swiftness
To such enormous size;

Size that is simply wondrous;
Distended everywhere,
With the wind, which is de facto,
Coagulated air;

Air that is filled with thickness,
That makes the sun as red
As the blood in her slaughter houses,
Where the wine of her life is shed;

Shed that her wealth and glory
Might decorate the brow
Of the one and only city
Kicked to fame by a cow;

Cow of Mrs. O'Leary;
A lamp, a kick, and a shed,
A wonderful combination
Numbered now with the dead;

Dead is Mrs. O'Leary,
Gone to the by and by;
Go build her a tomb of granite
A hundred stories high!

THINGS I PRIZE

"These are the things I prize
And hold of dearest worth:
Light of the sapphire skies,
Peace of the silent hills,
Shelter of forests,
Comfort of the grass,
Music of birds,
Murmur of little rills,
Shadow of cloud that swiftly pass,
And, after showers,
The smell of flowers
And of good brown earth—
And, best of all the way,
Friendship and mirth."

MY EDEN WAS HEAVENLY

What ever troubles Adam had, Eve never roused his ire
By poking him when dead asleep to light the kitchen fire.
What ever troubles Adam had, he never caught a chill
When Eve presented with a smill her millinery bill.
What ever troubles Adam had and man to trouble's born—
His razor wasn't called upon to pare his partner's corn,
What ever troubles Adam had, with one thing and another,
One whole blessing he enjoyed,
Eve couldn't tell her mother.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES.

SHORNIE: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

ORANGE SPONGE CAKE

Dear Corner Members: I am sending my recipe for orange sponge cake. Of course it is not as good as Hoot Owl's, but it is easier to make as there is less beating to do.

We hope you will all come that can, to Club No. 6's meeting to be held October 16, in the chapel at Wequetequock. The Groton and Stonington bus stops almost in front of it so it will be handy for any one that wishes to come on it. Don't forget your dishes.

Orange Sponge Cake: 3 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 1-2 cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 pinch salt, 1-2 teaspoon each orange and lemon flavor. Break eggs into mixing bowl and beat with egg-beater until very stiff, then add sugar, salt and flavoring beating it good. Remove egg-beater and sift in flour and baking powder folding it in carefully, then pour in boiling water and beat hard for a minute. Bake in layers.

Frosting: Grate rind from 1 orange and take the juice from half of it, thicken with 4X sugar, add small piece of butter. Spread between layers and on top.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Why is Editor of the Social Corner like a railroad conductor? You know we have seen the conductor pause in his hurried course through the train to answer a volley of irrelevant questions, and do it patiently and gently—no more than he was paid to do, possibly.

I have been told that editors come to regard themselves as information bureaus, personally as well as in print. But there comes a line—it beyond which they cannot go. They must eat, and sleep, and not forget their readers. It might be pleasant to take an afternoon off, or a whole day, to gather the material for the long letter needed to answer all the questions to which Mrs. H., or Mrs. S., wants a personal reply and there are certainly others beside the Social Cornerites that want a personal reply and a day off or a half day off is a serious inroad upon the thoughts and labor put into the paper. Suppose we take it to ourselves as writers of the Social Corner. We look out of the window and are confronted by a sea of faces. Some days there may be only 100 faces pass us represented by our great family.

There is our every week audience looking to us for our best work. Do we try to send it in, even a short letter? I for one cannot write a short letter, when I want to explain or write a letter worth while. I prefer leaving my letters at home. Now if I was sure you could fill up this corner with short letters I would do that willingly.

I want to write about Practical Household Economics. The cost of living, in any given case, depends on the ideas and standards of the person spending the money; that is it is a mental rather than a material limitation—a result of education rather than location.

It is entirely possible to lessen the cost of living even in extravagant America. The whole problem lies in the practical solution of what each one wants and what a dollar can be made to buy. How much will a dollar buy? Buy a good shank weighing 4 pounds, costing 85 cents. Cut the tender beef around the bone—that gives you a nice steak for dinner—then cut off some of the other that is a little rougher and put that in a pan to make a brown stew. Put the bone over to boil then add barley and potato, some of your dried celery. You have a wonderful soup. The brown gravy with mashed turnip, potato and fried apples make a nice dinner. The fried steak with one egg and a few crackers made into balls, with onions and tomatoes and fried apples. This will take you until Thursday. Cook cornmeal, "mush" for breakfast for Monday and Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Thursday buy a four pound haddock for 60 cents, steak it, dip the steak in egg and flour and fry. Make a chowder of the rest and you will have enough to last you over Sunday with your "baked beans." Cook hominy for Thursday and Friday, Wheatena for Saturday and Sunday. Get 6 pounds of Tokay grapes 1 dozen bananas 2 lemons and 1-2 dozen oranges, an envelope of gelatine. Now see how much that will cost. Make a loaf of corn-bread, Buy a loaf of sandwich bread for toast to eat with tomato soup Sunday night and make three loaves of your own bread or parkerhouse rolls. See that you make a loaf of gingerbread and 1 dozen tea cakes—you will have plenty to eat and no kick coming about high cost of living. Of course, understand, the meat wants slow cooking.

THE FALLING LEAVES.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: This is the first Sunday in October, with bright sunshine and fresh winds all day. When I got up this morning I could see from my west window the beautiful view of the Mashmoquet woods, and I said to myself,

Again the leaves come fluttering down
Slowly, silently, one by one.
Scarlet and crimson, gold and brown
Willing to fall for their work is done.

Our duty to the Social Corner page is to send in something that is helpful, but I do not consider that epitaphs are—however, I am sending in three. Perhaps they will cause a smile on some gloomy face.

This stone is sacred to Horace Munn
Who could eat from morn to set of sun;
One day he ate till he fairly bust—
Ashes to ashes—and dust to dust.
Beneath this grave-slab rests in peace
Our aged cook—Jane Skinner.
The stern death angel snaked her off
While shelling peas for dinner.
Samuel, Jenkins, William Stone
To glory went a hummin'.
He took hold of life's telephone
An hollered "I'm a comin'."

Aries: Your nice long letter received. You have my sympathy.

Cretia: The winter of 1863-1864 I went to school in Abington to G. A. Hammond. It was my last winter in school. I have been to his home in Hampton and seen his beautiful penmanship framed and hanging on the walls. I have loved to write ever since.

SOME EXPERIENCES IN FLORIDA

Dear Corner Sisters: While I am in the mood I want to tell you of my first river ride. We had an 18-foot power boat. We rode up the river for nine miles, got plenty of fish, had a nice fish fry on the banks and then we started to drift back home with the current, (of 6 miles an hour) while I just kept the boat away from the shore, and my husband cast for bass. He got four big ones. But I had my first close range sight of an alligator. I looked behind the boat when my husband started the engine agoing. There in the waves of the boat, was a big, ugly long nose with bulging eyes about six inches apart, looking right at me. My husband used one of them for a target, and up the 'gator went, stood right on his tail and then sank. But we left. Often have I seen them while on the St. John's river, sunning themselves on the banks. But the hunters have thinned them very much, to sell their hides. The state is now protecting the alligators.

My husband has taken me out in the woods. I've eaten palmetto cabbage there, too. Have initiated all friends who come south, also. I went into the wild scrub more than once. Saw sights that would make you think you were in Africa instead of U. S. A. Once, while going over shell mounds I saw a movement below a palmetto root. I pointed it out to my husband without speaking. He shot there. A big 10-foot green and white snake which made figure eights, then slid over the bank into the river. Then on the way back I saw no less than 100 or more quail feeding, not over 100 yards from where he had shot the snake. Did they fly off? No ma'am! We stopped and watched them. There were two on guard, on a big stump. The others were busy eating and never paused till out of sight of us.

I've been duck hunting in early mornings and at dusk. Seen hundreds of ducks and geese out at various times. Oh yes, I will tell you one experience on Lake Beresford. I was at the wheel of our boat again. We were heading towards the south end of the lake one afternoon. My husband was directing me where to go, by motions of his hands, while he stood in the front of the boat with a double barrel shotgun. We got down to where there were two flocks of about 25 ducks. He put his gun to his shoulder and fired. My! I thought we had hit a stump the way the boat rocked. He very near went overboard too. He shot two ducks. But the whole trouble was that the gun was a new one to him, and being used to a rifle, he had put his finger on both triggers at once. Ha! Ha! I had to laugh so at him for doing it, and to see what a mystified look he had, too. Believe me, it never happened again in all the trips I went on or after.

AT THE FISKEVILLE FAIR

Dear Editor and Social Members: Autumn again is with us in all of its splendor. Frost some two weeks ago visited our section, turning the leaves vivid hues. Some do not like the fall of the year, saying it is a warning for what is before us, but to me it's the most beautiful time of the whole year. I have just returned from a ten day visit among friends in the beautiful small state of Rhode Island.

While there I attended the Fiskeville fair four days, having charge of the largest eating booth upon the ground, which was connected by wing to the main dining room, which was conducted by the Fiskeville Bible society.

Met many old acquaintances, also many new ones. The horse show, which was held both afternoon and evening each day, was the center of attraction. Only one accident occurred during the horse show which happened upon Thursday afternoon when a lad of 16 called "Junior" was putting Rainbow over the hurdle. In some way both horse and rider took a bad fall, rendering the lad unconscious.

That evening he was unable to ride so the owner, Mr. Dailey, came to me asking if I would ride for the lad that evening in a class of eight, both ladies and gents, which I accepted and rode "Lady Randolph," a chestnut polo mare and won the second prize. It did not take me many minutes to find my mount was a high school horse and my horse back training returned to me quite rapidly, although it's years since I have ridden and have now decided when once well schooled you never forget the instructions you once obtained. The following day I was informed by the lad the mount I rode was formerly owned by the Vanderbilts. I told him that it did not elevate me one bit. I would not have cared if she was a horse off a junk cart. I was only too glad I was able to go forth and take his place but did inform him not to ride that mount of his with a straight, but to use a curb and that evening he rode and handled his steed to perfection. Saturday evening came and at a late hour the fair came to a close. There were many tired ones but everyone seemed to be perfectly satisfied. That closed the 21st annual exposition of the Pawtuxet Valley fair at Fiskeville Rhode Island.

Rosy Posy: What are you doing? Not a word from you in the Corner. You were going to write when you got home from Pachaug fair and that was some weeks ago.

Cretie: So you landed in some one's door yard trying to reach Beach pond. Much better be that than into a telephone pole or an aproaching auto, for the road is somewhat narrow after leaving my place. But don't let that upset you, but come down again so you may stay longer. Trusting all the readers are enjoying our most pleasant autumn.

KOCHIA

FRITTERS AND PICKLES

Dear Editor and Sisters: I have been so busy since January that I did not get a chance to read the Corner papers until September. Since Labor day, I have, like the other old lady, been "enjoying a spell of poor health," so, not being able to work, I took the time to catch up with the Social Corner, but haven't read all the August and September numbers yet.

One of the sisters asked for a recipe for bread and butter pickles. Maybe she has a recipe already, if not, keep this for next year.

Bread and Butter Pickles: Slice in half inch slices enough table size cucumbers to make one quart. Do not peel. Add to them 1 cup of vinegar, one-half cup of sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon ground mustard. Bring just to a boil, put in can and seal.

Or if you prefer you can use one teaspoon of mixed pickling spices instead of the mustard. You may also, of you like, peel the cucumbers, but it is not necessary.

Corn Fritters: Peel, boil and mash well, two good sized potatoes, beat into them as much sweet milk as they will take up without being sloppy. Score and scrape enough boiled sweet corn to make two cups and add to the potato. Beat in three eggs. Season with salt and pepper. Fry on hot griddle.

Iola: You spoke about the heath hen in one of your letters. Did you know that the few that remain are on the island of Martha's Vineyard and are protected by the Massachusetts game laws I saw one last year while I was there? But not close enough to be very sure what it looked like, though I thought it was much like our quail. They are very shy and not often seen.

BETSY BOBBET.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I am sending in some useful household hints.

To remove ink from silk saturate the spots with turpentine, let remain several hours, then rub between the hands. This will also take ink out of cotton and worsted goods without injury.

To cement cracks in a stove, take equal parts of wood ashes and salt, add cold water to form the paste. Apply while stove is cold. Will soon harden.

Five or six drops of lemon juice added to a piece of tough meat when it begins to boil will make it tender and also add a delicious taste.

You will find a half worn whisk broom makes a good scrubbing brush becomes worn takeedN for enamel ware. When whisk brooms become worn take them and trim them to a stub. Then scald with soapy water and finally rinse with cold water. Hope to see you all at the next meeting.

TWO WEEKS IN THE "LAND OF THE SKY"—(Continued)

Mr. Editor and Social Corner Readers: Passing through the rock walled gorge at Lane's Spring, we see a most beautiful valley; Tuckaleechee Cove spread out before us; 30 miles long, by 15 wide, broken here and there by sharp ridges fertile to the very tops, planted with growing crops. Prosperous farmers make up the inhabitants. Nearly a dozen small hamlets are scattered a few miles apart. At Lemsipin, midway between Mt. Collins, 5,520 feet high, and Le Conte, 6,510 altitude, we halt for dinner. This hamlet has an altitude of 2,780 feet; contains one general store and postoffice and has 36 inhabitants.

After dinner and an hour's rest, we press on toward Trindle's crossroads, following a gorge through which a tributary to the Little Pigeon river flows, until we again drop down into the cove. Here we find a well traveled road, it being the main thoroughfare for the mountain moonshiners, and the foot-hill and valley farmers of the east side of the cove. Corn, oats and rye are mostly grown, with here and there a patch of potatoes and other vegetables. The grain grown here is mostly sold in the liquid form, and Knoxville is the principal market, more than 30 miles away. As the sun sinks behind the Chilkowees (darkness comes on quickly in this mountain region) we rein up before the principal store in Trundle's Crossroads, kept by David Keener.

"Woll, woll, Jim, whar air ye hedin neow fur at this er time er nite with yer company uv calvary as ye mought say?"

"Dave, I air hedin right heyr fur the night, an we-uns all want some supper, fur horses an these gentlemen frum the north. Kin ye put us up fur the night, an we-uns want tew dew some business with ye in mornin? I air goin tew show the old Dome tew Loose fellers tomorrow; the Lord and the weather permittin."

Trew introduces us to the merchant, who takes us by the hand and says, "I air glad tew welcome ye. I rekon yew picked the right feller tew show ye out mountains."

"I'll find out when we kin git ye some supper." Leaving for a moment he returns and says: "Sabriny, (that's my wife,) says: 'afore shortly, an as soon as yer beastes air cared fur, ye can feed yer faces, if what she has got tuo set afore ye be good nuff.'"

At the spring near the house, we find a dish of soft soap, two pails, a kettle, and a small tub in which to wash, and a clean towel for each of us.

"Cum yore-uns I rekon hit air ready. Hope ye can make out on sich as we have left. I an Dave an the men holpin tew pull the blades oat jist afore ye druve up. We wor powful hungry, an rekon what air left haint very promisin, as we didn't leave much but the bones of that air old wild gobbler Dave shot churday. Hit woe tender an nice an the stuffin wor salubrus."

We seated on a long bench on one side of the table and looked the table over. There was a big well roasted turkey, that must have weighed 15 pounds, not more than a third had been carved. Vegetables of all kinds accompanied it; a bowl of nice browned gravy sat within reach.

"Hay fellers, dont fetch a mouthfull, till ye have a sip uv suth uv my product uv the worm. Hit air yaller with age, an none but Jim Trew's friends ever sample hit. Don't know as heow ye northeners will like hit, as I have hearntell the principal drink up thar air sham pain water, an brandy. We were urged to take a good "stiff horn" as hit wor harmless, an no pizen in hit."

Mrs. Keener said, "the stuffing was salubrus," and we found it so. Supper finished we entered the store where were gathered around six or eight men of the settlement. "I haint seen sich a gatherin' about heyr fur mornie tew weeks. Cum tew hear what Jim Trew an his sight-seers heve tew offer I spose."

"Woll Jim heow air things down tew Tate's Springs."

"O, bout so so; ben pritty busy all summer takin folks round viewin' the mountings an sich. I dew the principal business in that er line."

"Ye haint ben this er way fur some time."

"No I hev ben mostly over on the Carolina side uv the mountings. Round the Balsams, Pisgahs an Blue Ridge.

Sum wor pritty high toned fellers an money war no count with em. I dumped em off at Linnville an they giv me $50 each, tew we'em fur the week."

After the doings of the neighborhood had been cursed and discussed the audience left for their homes, one by one, leaving the mountain climbers (as the store keeper called us) alone with Mr. Keener.

"Wall boys hit air neow going ten an hit air bout time tew shet up shop."

At this he at once went outside and shut the board shutters to the store. Coming in he says, "I reckon yew-uns air pretty well fagged out frum tew or three days ridin, so I'll ax ye tew take a night cap afore we retire fur better er worse." With that he produced a jug, from which he poured out 5 glasses of old ripe peach brandy. "I keep this spicially fur yeur friends as cum with yew to view our mountings. Here's lookin at ye, an may yer rest be has peaceful as a child."

We entered the cabin where we found a nice lunch awaiting us. After which we were shown to our room in which were two beds with spotless white coverings. Our rest was undisturbed until we heard the voice of Mr. Keener, giving some one outside a list of things he wanted brought from Knoxville for one of his customers. The neighbor to whom he was giving the order was loaded to go in to the city with two barrels of corn whiskey and two of peach and honey, hidden under a load of corn blades; all for Jim Betterton.

We were soon up and out of doors, drinking in the fresh morning mountain air. From every direction we saw a panorama of vastness and sublimity. The long shadows of the Chilhowees lay at our feet and back of us to the east towered the Great Smokies. Soon their sun-kissed peaks lent another charm to the view, then midway between Clingman's Dome and Le Conte, we see the sun creeping through the gap, shortening the shadows in places where but a few minutes before lay the dark shadows of the western wall of the cove. For half an hour we viewed with admiration the ever changing panorama of beauty and sublimity.

Now we hear the voice of Mr. Keener.

"You-uns will find right thar by the spring house, buckets an soap fur washin. Lucy, air thar towels fur dryin put on the peg at the spring? When yew-uns air dun washin, I rekon breakfast air ready."

"Say, Jo, run tew the store an tell yer paw tew cum in an feed his inner man.

"Hope yewuns all rested as ye desired. I rekon I shall hev tew give ye a sip uv my kind uv beverage. This air sum old wine I made from muscadine grapes moren tew years afore Nancy left me an got married tew Gid Slocum down in Emmett's Cove. Heow time dew fly. Yes, an her little boy Bob air neow goin on four."

The usual southern breakfast of bacon, eggs and corn meal griddles with coffee, was awaiting the arrival of Dave from the store.

After doing justice to the meal, we went to the store and bought such supplies as we should need for the time we would be far away from any habitation. In the meantime our guide had the horses saddled, and waiting for our purchases to be fastened on in a pack what our saddle bags wouldn't hold.

"Hev ye bought a fryin pan? as you'll want one tew fry our vittles in on the mounting. Here, Jim Trew, here air sum uv my wheat an Injun downuts tew take along with yewuns, and sig, she have made a thumpin pan uv them rye biskit fur yewuns jist fur old acquaintance sake. They ell cum in mighty splendickerlus when ye git grubstuck. Unless ye all hev a supply uv the ardent yull hev tew drink springwater on the mounting top. Uv course, wer ye further down moonshine could be found as handy tar git as water."

Other attractions took our time in the valley and in consequence we delayed our climb to the top of the Dome. My next will give the readers our several days experience in the wilds of Clingman's Dome and a side trip into the slopes on the North Carolina side of the "Land of the Sky."

BACON DRIPPINGS FOR SHORTENING

Dar Social Corner Folks: I went to Auntey No. 1's picnic in August and to Club No. 2's gathering in Buckingham Memorial in September and I would like to join the Corner.

I wonder if any of the members ever use bacon drippings for shortening dark cakes and ginger bread. I do, and one can't tell the difference from any other shortening if one is careful when frying the bacon and don't let it scorch.

Here is a recipe for a cake I use it in, and it's very nice for this time of year, when eggs are high, as it requires no eggs: One-half cup bacon fat, 1 cup sugar, cream together, add 1 cup sour milk, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup raisins that have been broken apart, dredged in flour, and 2 cups of flour or enough to make quite stiff.

I will take for my pen name

SHORNIE.

GOOD APPLE RECIPES

Dear Sisters: A few more apple recipes may suit the taste of the members.

Children's Apple Bread: One quart of cornmeal, one pint of ripe chopped apples, three tablespoons of butter, pinch of salt, 1 1-2 cups of water. Sweeten to taste and bake as ordinary corn bred.

Apples in Caramel: Into a skillet put one cup of light brown sugar and 1-2 cup of hot water. Let boil for four minutes, then drop in 5 nice cooking apples, which have been peeled, cored and halved. Let these stew in the syrup until fluffy, then drain them out in a glass dish. In another sauce pan have ready one table spoon of butter melted with one teaspoon of flour. Over this pour whites of three eggs beaten until stiff and perfectly. Then fold in lightly one pint of stewed and sweetened apple. Add 1 cup of chopped nuts and 1-2 pint of candied cherries. Beat until firm and chill through.

Frozen Apple Puff: Beat the whites of four eggs until stiff and dry; fold into the beaten whites a glass of apple jelly, and one cup cocoanut, shreded. Whip until these are well blended, then turn into the freezer. As soon as the crank of the freezer begins to turn hard open the can and add a pint of sweetened whipped cream flavored with almond extract. Freeze until hard.

Buttered Apples: Choose medium-sized apples, peel and core, leave whole. Cut rounds of stale bread 1-2 inch thick and a little larger than the apples, and butter the bread rounds thickly, Place an apple on each. Fill the core cavities with sugar and a teaspoon of butter on the top. Stand them in a well greased baking pan, place in a moderate oven 15 minutes, then remove and fill the holes with sugar, ground cinnamon and butter, and return to the oven and bake until done.

WRITE AS OFTEN AS YOU DESIRE

Dear Social Corner: October! Oh such a month! Beautiful colors in the maple leaves, blue jays flitting from tree to tree, large flocks of other birds passing over our place and lighting upon the low bushes that have gray colored fruit. How the birds do exclaim and pick at those gray knobs! The warm sunshine of the days, the cold frost of the nights, the fading wild flowers, an au revoir to summer.

Some one asked our opinion of writing letters to the Corner page. I will say: "Write as often as you feel the impulse to do so. If the editor don't like the letter he can cast it in the waste basket, and if any reader don't like the letters they are not compelled to read them."

Here are two epitaphs:

Here lies our wife, Samantha Proctor
Who ketched a cold and wouldn't doctor,
She couldn't stay, she had to go go;
Praise Him from whom all blessings flow.

A man of invention great above any other nigh,
But he could not invent to live, when God called him to die.

These limericks are worth repeating:

There was a young lady of Ryde
Of eating green apples she died,
Within the lamanted
they quickly fermented
And made cider inside her inside.

There was a young man named Paul,
Who went to a Legion Hall ball;
But during the dance
He fractured his pants
And he had to go home in a shawl.

I sat near a duchess at tea
She was gracious as gracious could be,
But her rumblings internal,
Were something infernal,
And every one thought it was me.

A pretty young flapper named Lucy
As she goes down to bathe in the blue-sea
Says, "Look at my dress,"
But I'm bound to confess
There's less costume than flapper that you see.

CLUB NO. 6 MEETS THE 16TH.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Some time ago one of the sisters wrote about going with her husband for the day when he went on business and the reading she got done by riding a book along. I used to go a lot that way and a book or magazine and a bit of fancy work went too, and while he was calling I had a good time.

Topsy: I am going to try your cake recipe soon; it sounds good. I use a porcelain cleaner, one of the Larkin products, that works very well, borax is also good.

Tatting: Did I meet you on Sunday several miles from home?

Now everybody come who can to Club 6's meeting on Tuesday, at Wequetequock chapel. Don't forget your dishes, and something good for the dinner for Sumac and Pyrethrum will be waiting for you.

NO HARDSHIP TO BE INDUSTRIOUS

To Editor and Members of Social Corner: I thank the editor for the yellow slip. The Social Corner has had many interesting letters this summer. Those who have taken trips have described them in a way that others could enjoy them also. It is difficult to say anything sensible in a few words and I cannot criticise the lengths as I enjoy reading those letters.

Olga: You missed your vocation. You should have been a reporter. Your letters describing the picnic with Aunty No. 1, and the birthday celebration of Lavender's 50th year were splendid.

I could not attend either so I thank you for your letters.

Probably Lavender is the oldest bookkeeper in active service in the state. She talks about "opening a new set of books," as if she were just beginning her business career. Long may she continue.

Aunt Sarah: Your sampler is very interesting. It has more work on it than the one we have. To think they were made by little girls generally 7 to 10 years old seems remarkable. Our mother made one. Yes. I have seen flax and all the machines used in making it into the finest linen.

My mother's mother spun and wove the linen for her wedding dress and cape. The dress was a very full gathered skirt, that just cleared the floor. It was embroidered to the knees with scollops, eyelets and vines. The cape was embroidered from the wrists to the elbows the same as the skirt. The linen was fine as a cobweb and made from flax grown on her father's farm. She also made all the cloth for sheets, pillow slips, towels, and table use. I saw some of it and a piece of the wedding dress years later. They did not think it hardship to be so industrious. The colonists realized the value of land and the pleasure of being self-supporting on their own estates.

Joan: Hope you have a happy birthday, Oct. 13.

Best wishes to all.

LIFE IN THE COUNTRY.

Dear Social Cornerites: This is such a lovely autumn day I would like nothing better than to go driving through the country gathering the bright red berries and the wild flowers and not forgetting the beautiful maple leaves with their gorgeous colorings, some all yellow or red while others all varigated. I must also mention the sumac. The roadsides and pastures would certainly look dismal and lonely enough if it were not for mother nature dressing her family of tree and shrubs in such bright colors.

We have entertained guests from New Jersey over the week end and they were so enthused with our wayside flowers and berries of the speckled alder they carried home a lovely bunch of the berries. They plan to dip them in paraffin and keep them for Christmas decorations.

Sometimes I think we country people do not appreciate this clean country air, the rich browns, reds and purples of autumn and the lovely green of springtime with the independant life of the farm. Some of the city people say: "I should think you would be so lonely way out here.' Lonely? Ha, ha! What time do we get to be lonely? Something to do each day. I should say the city would be the place to be sad and lonely. We cannot go to a city where we do not see the faces as they rush past us with a look of worry and struggle upon them.

Every now and then a poor, thin and haggard faced woman goes past you from work. At home she has a family of little ones that have been amusing themselves as best they could, in a dingy back yard or a damp cellar waiting for the parent to return with the meager wages to last until the next day. Old and young shivering with cold in winter and dying with heat in summer.

Just think of the misery in the city while in our country homes most of us are so snug and cosy.

Lonely? Yes, I'll admit there are places on byways and back-roads but in less than a mile there is a neighbor who in time of trouble will be to you a good Samaritan.

Our homes in the country are sometimes old-fashioned and in some cases inconvenient but, warmth and food are the main things, and there we may have it with a little ambition.

In our cellars we have potatoes, turnips, apples and other vegetables.

In the pantry we have our butter, eggs, milk, etc., and outside the woodpile is enough to last year, that is, some of us have that amount.

The snow-covered hills may look lonely but we country folk are sure of food and shelter. Oughtn't we be thankful?

And those of us who have the time and enjoy reading, the perfect quiet of the country allows us the freedom of mind with which to thoroughly enpoy it.

As for myself I have but little time to read books, except in the winter evenings. Then I could do other things of "more account' as I've over heard, like shelling beans and I have ten bushels awaiting to be shelled. Or I suppose I could peel two or three bushels of apples to dry.

I have no time to get lonely. I am content with the pace and quietness of our woods and hills, more so than of the constant hum and rattle and smoke of the rushing, forever hurrying of the city.

I will close this letter with a riddle the answer I will send the next time I write.

Our God made Adam out of dust,
But in his wisdom made me first,
My body tho he made complete,
Had neither arms nor legs nor feet,
My will and acts he did control,
And fashioned me without a soul,
A living being I became,
And Adam first gave me a name.
Then, from his presence I withdrew;
No more of Adam ever knew,
But God whose purpose nor can see,
Then put a living soul in me.
And soon that soul he did reclaim,
(Tho changed in this not changed in name)
And then from me that soul had fled
I was the same as when first made.
And without arms, or feet or soul,
I travel now from pole to pole,
And when I travel o'er our sphere,
I seldom on the earth appear,
I labor hard both night and day,
For fallen man much light display,
Thousands of people young and old,
Shall at my death more light behold.
To heaven I shall never go,
Nor to the grave, nor hell below.

RED HAIR.

Dear Friends of the Corner: What a pretty sight to see the gorgeous foliage on the trees. A ride through the outlying districts is well worth taking now, before the leaves begin to fall.

I am sending in a few hints on "red hair." It is usually known as "sandy" and "auburn," the kind of hair that the great painter Titian admired and introduced in his pictures. He compared it to a halo or crown of gold. One who possesses red hair has as a rule a very refined face to correspond with it. So with a crown of beauty and a refined face one may become very charming if she dresses tastefully. So don't despise your hair, you of the auburn tresses, but treasure it, and make the most of it. Never wet it, but brush it carefully as though every thread was pure gold. Arrange it always in a loose, easy style, so that it will really carry out Titian's idea of a halo, always have it in fluffy waves above the face, never wear it straight over the face. Don't wear any color that will deaden its sunshiney effect. A red haired woman or girl must never wear red or pink, because her hair contains all the bright color her face can bear. Red or pink, placed near her face will make it look more florid than it really is. She can not wear blue near her face, unless it is a pale blue, as her eyes are usually pale blue, and any color of blue darker than her eyes would make them look washed out, like a piece of faded ribbon. Still the darker shades of blue, and also green, contrast agreably with the hair and may be worn with a quantity of soft cream white lace around the neck, so it will not contrast with the eyes. Violet looks well with the hair, but it wipes out the blue eyes, and its excessive warmth would add to the redness of the face.

A red haired woman may wear a dress of black, seal brown, olive, sage green, grey or white. Black is becoming to everybody, and can be contrasted with any color except brown. Seal brown is a remarkably happy choice for a red haired woman. With seal brown as the lowest tone, and the gold in her hair as the highest, she can exhibit in the same costume a charming scale of color. Olive, sage green, and green dresses may be relieved by pale blue, or, pale green ribbons. The ornaments to be worn are pearls and silver, in preference to golden ones. The gloves to be worn may be black, tan, or neutral tints.

Best wishes to all the Sisters.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

HAPPINESS.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I have kept in touch with you through the Corner letters, if I have not contributed to them. I have been poorly and the weather such that I had not the will and courage to force myself to write and now I feel I cannot write anything interesting, but if we all keep silent we would have no Corner letters so all must do her or his part.

I have thought of you and sympathize with all who have been sick or in trouble. And enjoyed the good times and descriptions of your trips, etc. Thus you have scattered pleasure and happiness by sharing your times with others.

I presume your season has been similar to ours, very damp, foggy and rain, rain and then more rain. Crops have suffered except the hay, which did well, only one has had the time of their life to harvest it in good condition, and even now some farmers are still haying.

Happiness depends on ourselves. By cultivating our minds we are able to control and repress our actions and thoughts so that we can rise above petty annoyances. Cast aside selfishness, enviousness, jealousy and desire for vengeance. Until we are able to overcome these feelings our happiness will only be transitory. Flying away from us as it were only being present when our wishes and desires are gratified and we have been lucky and prosperous. I believe we can be happy even if we are unfortunate and cannot possess what seemingly would produce happiness, for one can be glad and happy because others have attained what they were striving for. Thus proving that if little things can bring happiness and we train ourselves with divine help to overcome difficulties by always reaching out to aid others and by comprehending and understanding the difficulties of life we will broaden our views and selfishness, vengeance and envy will be left behind and happiness will be ours.

I thank all the sisters who have written me and will answer as I can. Letters give me much pleasure and I am always glad to receive them.

Much sympathy is extended to all in sorrow and trouble of any kind.

A VISIT TO BOSTON

Dear Corner Members: The first Social Corner meeting of the season of Club No. 1, was held at the chamber of commerce room with Theoda in charge. With her able assistants, the members and friends were carefully looked after and supplied with the good things provided. How good the baked beans and various salads tasted, also the cakes, nice home-made pie and all the other goodies. Truly it was a feast. An informal program of readings, talks on vacation trips, etc., by visitors and members was carried out. After a report of our financial standing, given by Eliza Jane, there was a fond handshaking and parting of friends until next time.

In my brief talk I told something about my visit to Boston where I went to see the display of glass flowers in the Museum of Fine Arts, of Harvard, at Cambridge. Another particular point of interest which I visited was Bunker Hill monument. This is located in Charlestown, Mass., and was erected to commemorate the famous battle of Bunker hill. It is 220 feet high, and the top is reached by a spiral flight of 295 stone steps, with landings and windows at intervals where one may stop for a few moments of needed rest. When the top is reached, a beautiful view of the scenery and surrounding cities for miles in every direction, may be seen. The people and autos below in the street look like mere toys, from this height, so small is man compared to this great monument. The corner stone was laid by Lafayette and Daniel Webster (note the Webster) delivered an oration at this ceremony. The building was begun in 1825 and completed eighteen years later. As you enter a small building at the base of the monument, there are pictures and scrolls of famous men of Revolutionary days, also the sword in sheath, of Gen. Israel Putnam. By depositing a dime you leave this small building and enter an outer court enclosed by a high iron fence, to the base of the monument where the ascent begins. This climb is some stunt. If you don't believe me, try it.

Tell you more later.

HOPE CUBWEB.

ETHELYN'S RECIPES.

Dear Cornerites: This week I want to send in a few recipes:

Potatoes Baked in Milk: Pare and cut in thin slices and cut crosswise 1 dozen potatoes. Slice 2 large onions and add about ½ cup of finely chopped parsley. Put the whole into a granite pudding dish and cover with milk, putting pieces of butter on top. Bake in a hot oven for 30 minutes. Salt and pepper should be added when served, as the milk is apt to curdle if added before cooking. This recipe is also good if you use canned tomatoes in place of milk.

Baked Eggs: Butter well a platter and add a thin grating of cheese. Break on this the eggs, sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste. Cover with a grating of cheese and bake in a hot quick oven.

Baked Cabbage: Soak cabbage one hour in cold water, then boil ten minutes, cutting in good sized pieces. Place in a baking dish and cover with 1 tablespoon of butter, 1 of flour and 1 cup

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Business of principal shoe companies is being maintained on a fairly basis compared to last year, it was reported today. New sales records for a few units are expected. Sales by retailers, principally chain stores, are running considerably ahead of 1927 the leaders in this field reristered in September increases of more than 30 per cent. over the same month a year ago, and for the first nine months of 20 to 27 per cent.

A. C. Horn company has established a retail division and is negotiating to lease the paint departments in 100 department stores throughout the country. Departments have already been opened in Trenton, Boston, Providence and Chicago. For the first six months of this year the company reports net earnings of $204,590 against $274,506 for the entire year of 1927.

Willys-Overland schedules for October call for 23,000 to 26,000 cars and trucks. September output was 22,000.

Net profits of $1,057,449, equivalent to $1.01 a share, is reported for the six months ended June 30 by International Combustion Engineering corporation. This compares with $941,974 in the first half of 1927.

An issue of $1,250,000 seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock of $100 par and 12,000 no par common of Industrial Bankers of America, Inc., is being offered. The company makes small loans.

Treasury Balance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Treasury receipts October 10 were $6,001,103.93; expenditures $10,963,474.36; balance $111,439,694.37.

of milk, salt and pepper to taste. Cover with bread crubs and bake one hour.

Rice Pudding: Put ½ cup of rice in 1½ cups of water, let it swell on the stove; then pour the water off and put in one pint of milk and let it cook to a jelly. Beat yolks of 2 eggs with 5 tablespoons of sugar, stir this into the rice with one cup of raisins, vanilla and salt, and when done beat the whites of the eggs with 2 tablespoons of sugar, pour over the top, put in the oven and brown.

Luncheon Ham: Fill a medium sized baking dish with alternate layers of stale bread and ham (cold chopped ham), cover with 2 cups of milk mixed with three well beaten eggs. Salt to taste, and bake 30 minutes.

French Corn Muffins: Cream ½ cup of sugar, with ½ cup of butter, add ½ cup sweet milk, 2 cups flour, ½ cup corn meal, sifted with 3 teaspoons of baking powder.

ETHELYN.

WHY THE NUTMEG STATE?

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It's been quite a while since I wrote to the Corner. As shorter letters become popular, I will try and write one. I do, very much enjoy reading all letters on Saturday, and also the "fish stories" from Noank.

Ann Tenna: Your jokes are clever. Have you any more?

Olive: How did you like my cake? I won't get another like that, until next year. I have an idea your mother is a Corner writer. Am I right? I know only part of the story, but can someone, tell me, why Connecticut is called the Nutmeg state?

By sewing buttons on children's clothes with crochet cotton they hang on much longer. For boys, it's worth trying.

Will close with best wishes to all readers.

WHITE TULIP.

EXCHANGING IDEAS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: If you and I each had a dollar and we exchanged them, then we would still each have a dollar. If you and I each had an idea and we exchanged them, then we would each have two ideas. So if we all send our ideas to the Social Corner page just see how many new ones we will have. And I think Kitty Lou must have such a wonderful store of them as she never fails us.

I live such a busy worked filled life that I never think any one would be interested in my methods of doing my work, but one little saving of time, that I use a lot, is saving the wax papers that come on bread and fold for sifting flour on, and for rolling pie crust, cookies or anything that is rolled. I haven't used my board in a long time it is so easy to pick the paper up when through and no board to clean.

Hope to see a big crowd at Wequetequock on Tuesday, Oct. 16.

Olga: Try and come as that is our home town.

Necia: You want to come, too.

E. L. M.: Sorry I didn't see you in Springfield

MILKY WAY.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Acclaimed everywhere as one of the greatest film epics ever produced, "Lilac Time," First National's Colleen Moore-George Fitzmaurice special production, based on the stage play by Jane Cowl and Jane Murfin, has been booked for a featured run at the Breed theatre commencing tomorrow night.

"Lilac Time" is by all odds a great special and the most pretentious in which Colleen Moore has appeared to date. Already known as the screen's foremost comedienne, her role in this production establishes her on the topmost pinacle as a dramatic actress. The tenderness, pathos and realism of her characterization of the little French girl makes "Lilac Time" one of the most discussed pictures of the year and the Breed theatre is indeed fortunate in obtaining such an early booking.

The adaptation was made by Willis Goldbeck, Carey Wilson, who scenarized the screen version, not only included the many stirring episodes that made the stage play one of the greatest in history, but elaborated on parts for filming that could only be vaguely suggested in the spoken drama.

George Fitzmaurice's direction of this colorful love story is said to be the best of his long career.

The supporting cast of "Lilac Time" includes Gary Cooper, hero of "Beau Sabreur," "The Legion of the Condemned" and other big productions; Burr McIntosh, George Cooper, Cleve Moore, Kathryn McGuire, Eugenie Besserer, Emile Chautard, Jack Stone and many others.

"Lilac Time" will be shown twice Sunday evening at 7 and 8:45 and three times daily thereafter at 2:15, 7 and 8:45.

Palace Theatre.

Adolphe Menjou is a great actor.

We have seen him demonstrate his ability to portray suave and sophisticated roles in such pictures as "Serenade," and "A Gentleman of Paris," he has been seen as a convincing dramatic artist in "A Night of Mystery," his most recent, but in "His Tiger Lady," Menou turns to light, satirical comedy.

"His Tiger Lady" is Paramount's newest production starring the dashing Menou, and will be shown on the screen at the Palace theatre, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

This picture is Ernest Vajda's adaptation of the Alfred Savoir play, "Super of the Gaiety," and shows Menjou in the role of an extra man of the Folies Bergere, who becomes interested in and ultimately wins the hand of the wealthy Tiger Lady. Her particular form of diversion is to test the love of her admirers through the medium of a ferocious tiger.

Evelyn Brent, who was last seen here in "The Last Command," starring Emil Jannings and opposite George Bancroft in "The Drag Net," personates the lady and plays the role well. Rose Dione makes her minor character role an interesting one, and Mario Carrillo, Leonardo de Vesa and Jules Rancourt prove clever comedians as the three admirers of the princess. The companion feature, "The Cameraman," Buster Keaton's latest comedy starring vehicle, is the attraction commencing Sunday, at the Palace theatre, when the frozen-faced comedian will be seen in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's hilarious account of the adventures of an apprentice newsreel cameraman in New York.

The new picture is a view of the "inside" of newsreel work, a love romance, and all bound up in a series of comical mishaps for Keaton. It is the first picture under Keaton's new M-G-M contract.

Edward Sedgwick, who directed "Tin Hats," "Slide, Kelly Slide," and other comedy successes, wielded the megaphone on the new Keaton picture, much of which was actually filmed in New York, where the company was some weeks, filming the Yankee Stadium, New York city hall, and other locales.

Marceline Day is the heroine, and the cast includes Harold Goodwin, Sydney Bracy, Harry Gribbon and others of note.

Prof. Phelps At Central Baptist.

Professor William Lyon Phelps, L. L. D., of Yale university will be the speaker at the Central Baptist church tomorrow morning. His topic will be "What Is Man?" A cordial invitation is extended to Professor Phelps' many admirers in Norwich to hear him.

A community sing from the new gospel hymn book will be the feature of the evening service. The pastor's topic will be, "The Gospel and The Hymn Book."

Park Congregational Church.

The parish house department of Park church will begin its winter activities on Friday, October 19th. A novel luncheon will be served at 1.30 p. m., after which short addresses will be given by several members, touching on some personal experience during the summer.

Christian Science Service.

Wednesday evening meeting, 7.45. The reading room, 40 Main street is open every day except Sundays and legal holidays from 3 to 4.30 p. m.

Iceland will celebrate the 1,000th anniversary of its government in 1930.

POETRY

Columbus

I have blazed a way through the trackless deep
Which the sea bird only knew;
I have set my course where the cloud-banks sweep
From the sunset's veil to view.

My sails have swelled in the trade-wind's breath
Where the unknown deep lay strewn;
Where once 'twas said lay certain death
My keel has plowed th' spume.

I have sighted the coast of a western world
Where for aeons no vessel lay;
Whose forests unscathed their leaves unfurled
While centuries rolled away.

I have opened the gates of a mighty land
With its mountains and rolling plains;
I have placed it all in my sovereign's hand,
And he has given me—chains!

—Allen B. MacMurphy, in Springfield Republican.

Can They Count on You?

Can they count on you to always do
This thing that you know is right,
Or do they say "He'll run away
When the cause gets in a tight"?

Do they say of you, "He is true blue"—
Is the trust committed you;
That you'll never shirk, but keep at work,
Till you carry your contract through?

Or do they say "He'll run away
In the time of sorest need;
His dearest treasure is selfish pleasure,
His idol, lust or greed"?

Do they also say, "He loves to play,
When the game goes his own way,
But he goes lame when he loses the game,
And is ready to charge foul play"?

When the great test comes to you;
That you'll face the strife, and give your life,
For the cause you know is true?

Or do they fear when that test draws near
That shall try your inmost heart,
You'll sell the Christ for a paltry price
And play the traitor's part?

We are needing men who can clearly kon,
The things that are most worth while,
Who forge the dead and look ahead,
And at misfortune smile.

For the thoughtful man who can work and plan,
When the untrained lose their head;
With a skillful hand at his command,
Who can honestly earn his bread.

They look and long in the common throng,
For the men of faith and love;
Who can think and feel for his brother's weal,
And plan for the life above.

Who, with tender heart will take the part,
Of the wretch cast down in sin,
Whose help is sure for the weak and poor,
Who keeps the Christ within?

—H. R. Robinson, brother of the democratic nominee for vice-president, in The Pathfinder.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Teacher—Now, Jimmy, what happened when the cow jumped over the moon?

Jimmy—Somebody got an idea for vanishing cream.—Life.

Hi—Why is the postoffice all decorated today?

Si—Seth Green's boy graduated from correspondence school today.—Pathfinder.

Mrs. Clark—How is it that you are so familiar with the Alden's private affairs?

Mrs. Foster—We looked after their parrot while they were on vacation.—Vancouver Province.

Though retired from active missionary work, he is "doing the work of the Lord on the side" while following his earlier and more respectable trade as a boss bricklayer.—Washington Star.

Pa—Was Jack intoxicated when he came home last night?

Daughter—I didn't notice anything—except that he asked for a mirror to see who he was.—Sydney Bulletin.

Escort (at movie, to his girl, who is having a good cry)—Look here, Helen, I'd better stop bringing you to the pictures if you let 'em upset you like this.

Her Father—But, my boy, you are too young to marry my daughter. You are but 21 and she is 27.

Suitor—But, sir—

Her Father—No; at present the disparity is too great. Better wait half a dozen years. Then you'll be 37 and she'll probably be about the same age.—Smith's Weekly.

As the old lady strolled through the park two urchins confronted her.

"Say, lady," said the taller of the two, "me brother does fine imitashings. Give him a penny and he'll imitate a hen."

"Dear, dear!" smiled the old lady. "And what will he do—will he cackle?"

"Naw," replied the lad with a look of contempt, "'e won't do no cheap imitashings o' that sort. 'E'll eat a worm."—Tit-Bits.

When a lighted cigar butt was tossed out of an eighth-story window in a Pittsburgh building it first struck an awning over a sixth-floor window. From there it bounced to a fifth-floor awning, thence to a second-floor awning and to the ground, leaving enough ash to set fire to each one of the three drapings.

Trying to demonstrate to a casualty insurance company representative that a planer at his manufacturing plant did not need a guard, as suggested by the insurance man, Augustus Wolf, 77, of Chambersburg, Pa., placed his left hand too near the revolving blades and the hand was so badly mangled that it had to be amputated.

The Arizona town of Chandler, with a population of 1,500 and assessable property in excess of $1,500,000, has a record of two years without a fire. Soon after a quantity of gasoline became ignited in April, 1926, doing damage of $1.13, the town officials put in a fire siren system of summoning the volunteer fire department. But fortune decreed that the sound of the siren should not disturb the quiet of the town after the siren had been turned on once for a demonstration.

NEW LONDON ITALIAN CITIZENS PRESENT GIFT OF COLUMBUS STATUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12—Columbus Day was celebrated here today in a manner that brought a flood of congratulations to Italian-American residents of the city. The celebration was inaugurated with a monster parade, which started from Tyler park square at 2 p. m. After the line had moved through the streets laid down in the program, it dispersed at the site of the ceremonies incident to the unveiling of the statue of Christopher Columbus. A crowd which covered every inch of the block at Tyler park square was present to witness the unveiling. The exercises began with Nicholas Salegno, president of the statue fund committee, presiding. Rev. Gordon Bodenweir led the assemblage in a prayer and blessed the statue, after which several hundred Italian children sang America. The statue then was officially presented to the city by Mr. Salegno. He recalled that Oct. 17, 1926, under the auspices of Colombo lodge, all the Italian organizations of New London got together and decided to celebrate Columbus Day and to erect a monument in his honor. Nov. 21, 1926, the work began with the co-operation of the entire committee. On April 6, 1928, the commission was awarded to Battista Bottinelli with the co-operation of Armand Battelli of Pietrasanta, Italy, a sculptor and an artist of merit.

The Discoverer of America stands nine feet six inches high above the pedestal, measuring six feet and ten inches, making the total height 16 feet and four inches. The speaker said: "To Dr. C. John Satti, to Dr. Anthony Loicono, to Attorney Lucia De Biasi, to Attorney Lawrence Cassara, and to Mayor Malcolm M. Scott, honorary chairman of the committee, we express our sincere gratitude for their help in making possible so worthy a celebration of Columbus Day and the unveiling ceremonies of our gift to the city of New London." The acceptance speech was made by Mayor Malcolm Scott. Other speakers were Congressman Richard P. Freeman, State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers and Michael Angelo Russo, grand master of the Grand Lodge of the Sons of Italy in America. Tonight a banquet was held at the Hotel Mohican at which several hundred persons were present. Later in the evening the big feature was an elaborate fireworks display at Morgan park. The day was brought to a close by a dance at the Lawrence ballroom. Music for this was furnished by Joseph Russo's orchestra.

NIGHT SCHOOL ENROLLMENT THIS YEAR HAS REACHED 216

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12—The New London evening school being conducted by a staff made up from teachers of the public schools has an enrollment this year almost double that of last. So far, 216 have enrolled for the classes being held four nights a week, against 135 in 1927. Foreign-born residents of the city are taking a great interest in the educational advantages offered by the night school. Particularly is this true in the commercial branches, as 140 are registered in this division alone.

The morning assembly at the Bulkeley school today was devoted to the history of Columbus. Several students delivered addresses on the discoverer of the North American continent. A feature was the reading of a letter by Gabriel Sanche, which Columbus wrote to a friend regarding his discoveries.

The winter recreation and health program of the Y. W. C. A. will begin Monday under the direction of Miss Reba Coe, recreation leader of the Y. The session will include a varied program of games, music and business discussions.

At a meeting of the newly organized young people's branch of the W. C. T. U. held at the home of Mrs. George F. Cramer of Broad street, president of the local W. C. T. U., Miss Eileen Lewis was elected president. Other officers elected were, secretary, John Olson; treasurer, Lilla Linkletter. After business was completed an evening of music and games was enjoyed.

Ruth Adelaide West of Westerly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George West of Groton, became the bride, Oct. 4, of Frank Callahan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Callahan of Hudson, N. Y. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William J. Fox of Groton, at the Sacred Heart church rectory. Mr. and Mrs. Callahan are making their home in Groton Park.

At the meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of Huntington Street Baptist church, last night, it was announced that over $49 had been realized from the sunshine bags of the organization. After a short business session the evening was spent in games, following which refreshments were served by Mrs. H. L. Avery, Mrs. Charles H. Davison, Miss Ruth Darrow, Mrs. James Brooks and Mrs. Charles Francis.

NORWICH MAN IN L'ST FORFEITING $2 BOND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12.—The city treasury was again enriched today at the expense of careless automobile drivers, who refuse to obey the city's traffic ordinances; for a score of such drivers were ordered into court, but as none of them appeared, their respective bonds of $2 were declared forfeit. The drivers were Joseph Friedman, 85 Baltic street, Norwich; Jennie J. Theve, 9 Elijah street, Norwich; Arthur Blanchimin Taftville; Robert Mitchell, Hope Valley, R. I.; E. George Marr, 83 Williams street; Joseph Domber, Colchester; Benjamin Kaplan, 44 Blackhall street; William J. Harbers, 88 Church street, Hamden; Robert Tetreault, 219 Vauxhall street; Charles J. Linski, 224 Jefferson avenue; Herbert Martin, 83 Hollister street, Manchester, this state; Michael Robillo, Waterford; Theodore Constantine, 25 Rosemary street; Stephen Roche, Quaker Hill; Almina M. Bryan, 2237 Ashby avenue, Ocean City, N. J.; Albert B. Perkins, Waterford and Andrea Ciavaglia, 57 Walbach street.

Tony Lericer, 16, of Bridgeport, employed at the Garde theater, was arrested today by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin, charged with theft. He will be in the police court tomorrow, although the charge against the youth is not of a serious nature. Lericer and Harold Parks were engaged at their work on the theater stage and when the latter went to one of the dressing rooms he placed his wallet containing $2 on a table. When Parks returned for his money it was missing. Parks failed to find any trace of his money by inquiring among the theater employes and made complaint to the police. Lericer was suspected of stealing the money and he finally confessed, stating that he went to the union station where he removed the money from the wallet, throwing the wallet behind a radiator and placing the money in his shoe.

Three cases of intoxication were tried. One offender was sentenced to 10 days in jail; another was fined $10 and costs and a third was fined $5 and costs.

Michael Forader was charged with breach of the peace, but the case did not get to a trial for Forader was discharged. He was arrested last night by Patrolman Frank Philopena upon complaint of Morris Lampert, of North Bank street.

NEW BEDFORD PARENTS ADMIT DAUGHTER BEYOND CONTROL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12.—Bertha Futel, alias Elsie Stanley 17, of New Bedford, Mass., who has been residing at 38 Tilley street, was arrested today by Policewoman Jane H. Cassidy charged with vagrancy. Her parents were notified and were requested to come to New London and take charge of the girl. The police later received information that the parents were not in a financial condition to come here and suggested that the girl be committed to an institution, as she is incorrigible and has been arrested before.

Miss Nora Burke of 35 West Coit street; Joseph Connell, 95 Whittlesey street; Mrs. George Norden and infant son, Waterford; Clinton Goodwin, Chestnut Hill; Andrea Marasi, 119 Crystal avenue and Mrs. Emma Dadleish, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Gertrude B. Converse, 60, wife of Oren Converse, of Greenport, L. Y., died yesterday at Home Memorial hospital, where she had been a patient but a short time. The body was forwarded to Mrs. Converse's home today for funeral services and burial.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of Charles Peterka, 10 Starr street; Walter Pfeifer, 517 Williams street and Frank Freeman, 378 Williams street.

SHAUGHNESSY'S CASE CONTINUED TO THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12.—James K. Shaughnessy, Pomfret, who was arrested yesterday by State Police Officer Peter Busch, charged with the embezzlement of $955.78 from the Griswold company, Eastern Point, in whose employ Shaughnessy was as superintendent until about a year ago, was in the police court this morning, but the case was continued until Thursday next. Shaughnessy furnished a surety on his bond of $3000. Shaughnessy, it is claimed, received payments aggregating close to $1000 from customers of the company, the money being paid to him for produce raised on the farm. The farm officials declare that instead of turning the money in to the company, Shaughnessy applied it to his own use, and that it was taken at intervals between Dec. 21, 1926, and Nov. 8, 1927.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Brown, of 123 Willets avenue, today announced the marriage of their daughter, Gladys Harriet and Donald Brown George. The ceremony was performed on Saturday, October 6th, at Brimfield, Mass., in which town Mr. and Mrs. George are now residing.

Miss Ellen Mansfield, who is to become the bride of Joseph MacDonald of this city was the guest of honor last night at a miscellaneous shower given by the Misses Margaret, Helen and Katherine Kiely of 25 Coleman street. Music and games formed the program for the evening after which refreshments were served. Miss Mansfield received many beautiful gifts.

The Women's league of the First Baptist church will hold a fall rally social for members and friends of the church Monday evening.

Members of St. Agnes' guild and out of town friends were entertained last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Griswold on the Niantic river. There was a supper of hot dogs and other good things, after which those present spent an evening in the enjoyment of games.

Wednesday evening a large number of employes of the National Economy Stores, Inc., had a straw ride to Lattimer's mills, with games, dancing, and other amusements, also a picnic lunch.

The annual installation of Seaside council, No. 17, Knights of Columbus, was held last night in the lodge room on Huntington street. Officers installed were: Grand knight, Harry M. May; deputy grand knight, Eugene B. Glenn; chancellor, Joseph McInnis; recorder, M. L. O'Connell; financial secretary, C. F. Cremins; lecturer, John McGarry; advocate, Charles Smiddy; treasurer, David P. Condon; warden, John Callahan; inside guard, Walter Harkins; outside guard, George King; trustee, Anthony Doherty.

NORWICH WOMAN PARKED TOO LONG ON MERIDIAN ST.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12—Two more violators of the city's parking ordinances were arrested this afternoon, for Marjorie Austin, Norwich and William Porter, Bronxville, New York, were detected parking their automobiles on Meridian street longer than is permitted by ordinances. Both drivers furnished bonds of $2 for appearance in the police court tomorrow.

FINAL BOMBS EXPLODE INJURING THREE SPECTATORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12—John D. Maynard, 408 Ocean avenue, his wife and his daughter, Elizabeth, were injured this evening while they were among the hundreds of men, women and children who witnessed the elaborate fireworks display at Morgan park. The pyrotechnic display was carried on without interruption or mishap until the final event when a series of bombs were exploded. With the explosion of the bombs, Maynard and his daughter were struck by them, as was his wife, Mr. Maynard being severely burned about the face, while the daughter also received severe burns. Both were rushed to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where they were given emergency treatment. Mrs. Maynard went to her home where her injuries and burns were dressed by a physician. The outcome of the injuries sustained by Maynard and his daughter, particularly the former, could not be prophesied. It is believed that the bombs were either defective or were not properly set-off for the bombs that struck the man and women did not appear to as they were supposed to do.

PRO AND ANTI-MUSSOLINI FACTORS GET INTO A SCRAP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12—Shortly before the parade a mob fight was precipitated between members who are followers of Mussolini and those who are opposed to his reign in Italy with the result that three arrests were made this evening when the anti-Mussolini faction made complaint to the police because they had been brutally beaten. About 1:45 the police received information that a serious battle was being waged on Steward street, near Shaw and that there were a dozen or more men involved in the scrap. A squad of four bluecoats was sent out, making a record run in the speed auto, but when the police arrived the fighters had dispersed. Tonight members of the Mussolini band made complaint to the police that Lorenzo Montali, 58, of 28 East street; Augusto Peroni, 47, of 26 Nameaug street and Arture Pettinari, 28, of 48 East street, had assaulted them. The three men were arrested on charges of breach of the peace and inciting to riot, by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolmen Elwood Bailey and Lawrence Purdy. They will be in court tomorrow morning. All were liberated upon furnishing securities on their respective bonds of $500. It is claimed by the accusers of Montali, Peroni and Pettinari that blackjacks were used as weapons.

Patrolman Ernest Opperman this afternoon discovered the cottage at 185 Boardwalk, Ocean beach, unlocked and with the electric lights burning. The officer extinguished the lights and was able to secure the building.

Edwin Goodwin, a stranger, was arrested this evening by Patrolman Dennis Murphy, because he was intoxicated on State street and soliciting alms from pedestrians. He will face a double charge when in court tomorrow.

Michael Solecki, 357 Broad street was arrested this afternoon by State Police Officer Louis Bristol, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law and will be in court tomorrow.

EXERTION OF MARCH CAUSES JOSEPH LONGO'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12—The celebration of Columbus day was marred by two incidents, one a sudden death and the other a near-riot. Joseph Longo, about 72, of 39 Shaw street, marched with his associate lodgemen but the exertion and the heat proved too much for him. The march was long and when the parade arrived at the corner of Williams and Broad streets Mr. Longo faltered and finally collapsed. He lapsed into unconsciousness and other Italians in the line, carried him to an automobile, which conveyed him to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, but when Mr. Longo was carried into the building, it was found that he was dead, having succumbed to a heart attack.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At Y. M. C. A. Sunday.

At 4 o'clock on the coming Sunday afternoon in the large gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. the very impressive feature moving picture, "The Way of All Flesh," will be shown. This is the first American made production in which Emil Jannings participates; Mr. Jannings is one of the best known impersonators in picture stories.

This particular picture is based on the written story of the same title; it is a convincingly human story that genius lifts to the heights of greatness—the story of a man who slew himself in the eyes of the world that his family might be spared. This is one of those pictures that simply grips the interest and definitely helps those who see it. Hugh Kinder will furnish appropriate music for the picture, and a brief talk will be given. To this service adults of both sexes are cordially invited. Boys and girls under 14 not expected. An offering will be taken during the service.

Announcement.

An open meeting of the United Workers will be held in Bushnell chapel of the Central Baptist church on Wednesday evening, Oct. 17, at 7 o'clock. Special invitations have been sent to all local organizations, especially to those interested in social betterment.

Clare M. Tonsley, assistant director of the charity organization of New York will be the speaker of the evening.

Miss Tonsley is well known at Connecticut college, where each year she looks over the material of the graduation class to choose those adapted by personality and inclination to social work. She is very full of the joy of living, very magnetic in personality and full of interest for those who are concerned with the welfare of their community. All are cordially invited to this meeting and will find the time given to the speaker very worth while.

Do not forget Oct. 17, the great day for the United Workers' meeting!

Burton's Agency Sells Another.

Edwin F. Coit of this city has sold his one-half interest in the well known Coit block on lower Broadway to S. Jeffery Coit, who has purchased it for an investment. The building contains four stores and six apartments. The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Mrs. Rose E. Burton.

Woman's City Club

At the first program meeting of the Woman's City club, in the Wauregan ball room, 7:30 o'clock, Monday evening, Sydney Thompson will be heard in a program of "Mediaeval Legends and Old Ballads." The ballads are gleaned from the English, Scotch, Moorish, Rumanian, French, etc. They are not sung, but are interpreted as drama, and will be given in costume. Miss Thompson provides an entertainment of exceptional quality and one that unfailingly delights.

Current Events tickets will be on sale at the close of this meeting. Please come prepared to pay cash. Executive board meeting at 3:30, on Monday afternoon.

STATE TEACHERS' MEETINGS ARRANGED BY MISS KEEFE

Miss E. Mae Keefe of Waterbury, president of the Connecticut State Teachers' association is general chairman for the teachers' conventions to be held October 26, in Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport and New London. Miss Keefe has appointed the following chairmen for their respective districts: Carroll Reed, superintendent of schools in Bridgeport, chairman of the Bridgeport section; William H. Martin, principal of the Philip Troup Junior high school, in New Haven, chairman of the New Haven section; Florence E. Smith, principal of Seymour high school in West Hartford, chairman of the Hartford section; S. T. Butler, superintendent of schools in Groton, chairman of the New London section; H. Saerle Light, state director of rural schools, chairman of the rural school section, and Louis P. Slade, of New Britain, chairman of the high school section.

Miss Keefe, the able executive of the state association, is sister of Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, Norwich.

Boy Scouts Met

Boy Scouts, troop 1, met at the Community house Friday evening at 7:30. In the absence of the scoutmaster, Scout Executive Bleifield gave the boys some ideas on the winter camp at Gardner lake. He also told a mstery story. Mr. Smith, a troop A committeeman, gave an interesting talk.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Edwin W. Loomis

The peaceful life of Mrs. Edwin W. Loomis came to a close early Friday morning at her home No. 224 Prospect street after an illness of about three weeks. She was the daughter of Byron and Etta Maynard Watson and was born in North Franklin on May 29, 1869. She was united in marriage with Edwin W. Loomis on August 15, 1889, at Lebanon. The deceased is survived by her husband, mother and a daughter, Mrs. Hazel Moore of Passaic, N. J. She also leaves two grandchildren of Passaic, N. J. Mrs. Loomis was a kind and devoted mother to her family and very kind neighbor, willing to assist anyone in the times of their troubles. She has a large circle of friends in this vicinity who will be saddened to hear of her death and will extend their sympathy to her family in their bereavement.

Mrs. Thomas Matthews

Adelaide De Mute, wife of Thomas Matthews passed away at her home, 428 Boswell avenue, Thursday afternoon after lingering illness of a year. She was the daughter of Louis and Julia De Muti and was born in Haughtonville, Vt., on January 18, 1861. Besides her husband the deceased is survived by a brother, Adolphus De Muti of Fifth street and a sister, Mrs. Frank Marsh, both of this city. She also leaves several nieces and nephews. She was a faithful and devoted member of St. Mary's Memorial church. Her many friends in this vicinity will extend their heartfelt sympathy to the family.

Miss Jane Suplicki, a student of the Willimantic training school, is spending her week end recess at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Suplicki of Golden street.

Captain Dennis Brennan of the Central fire station had charge of the fire prevention exercises at St. Mary's parochial school Thursday at the school and conducted the fire drill for the purpose of determining the time in which the school might be emptied. The 363 pupils left the building in 50 seconds.

Mrs. John Ellal of Preston City, who is 81 years of age, killed a striped adder snake Wednesday afternoon near her front doorway. The reptile measured 12 feet long and two and one half inches round.

TAFTVILLE

At the last meeting of the American legion officers were nominated for the coming year, to be ballotted at the next meeting to be on October 22nd. Final arrangements were made for the stag party to be held Saturday night of this week in the club rooms for the members and a few invited guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Wood of North Third avenue have returned from a cruise to the West Indies on the S. S. Munamar of the Munson line, making stops at Havana, Cuba; Nassau, Bahama Islands; and Miami, Florida.

Next Sunday, Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. will exchange pulpits with the Reverend Mr. Reese of Central Village, who will supply the pulpit of the Taftville Congregational church.

Richard Krauss and daughter, Arlene, of Lisbon were visitors in Southbridge on Thursday.

Mrs. Lizzie McBride of 25 South B street was severely burned early Thursday morning when the oil stove on which she was preparing her breakfast exploded.

Cards from the cross country tourists James Wicks of Providence, William C. Kendall and Edwin Abel of Norwich and George W. Meyer of Lisbon locate them at the Grand Canyon on Sunday.

Mrs. William McNally of North Third avenue picked two beautiful Jack roses in her garden Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fregeau have given up their house on Providence stret, and will make their home in Hartford with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Paradis.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peltier and family of Baltic have taken a house on Providence street.

Miss Elsie Heap of South Second avenue leaves today for Detroit, Michigan where she will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Tracy Clark and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William Knowles of Grand Haven, Michigan are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knowles of Canterbury turnpike. This is the first time the two brothers have met in seventeen years.

A successful whist party was held in St. Theresa's hall on Thursday evening under the auspices of the St. Veronica's T. A. B. society. Forty-two tables of whist were in play, the proceeds being given to the Sacred Heart church. The committee in charge of the whist included Miss Louise White, chairman, assisted by the Misses Mary Murphy, Alice Legarre, Mary Hanlon, Elizabeth Ward, Blanche Gaucher, Antoinette Legarre, Mary Nolan, Catherine Hasler, Agnes Dougherty and Mrs. Andrew Frohmader. The scorers were the Misses Mary Ward, Annie Dailey, Julia Chappell, Grace Phalen, Helen Breault, Lulu Greenwood, Loretta Sullivan and Celie Legarre. The ladies prizes were won by: First—Mrs. Thomas Crowe—bridge lamp. Second—Miss Antoinette Legarre—boudoir pillow. Third—Miss Alice Legarre—end table. Fourth—Miss Ovina Champagne—bed lamp. NEW BOZRAH HIGHWAY LINES CUT INTO TOWN CLERK'S HOUSE

Some property owners in the town of Bozrah, westerly from the Norwich-Bozrah town line on the road between Norwich and Fitchville, are reported to be up in arms over notices and blue prints which they have received from the state highway department establishing lines for the highway.

Each property owner along the road has received a blue print showing the highway with present existing stonewalls and other highway boundaries on it and the new lines which it is proposed to establish by running two parallel lines for the north and south boundaries of the road.

It is understood that Town Clerk Wareham W. Bentley's residence is to lose its front, according to the new lines, and his store property is also cut into on the front by the line that has been run. Farther towards Fitchville and on the other side of the road from the town clerk's, the barn at Frank Lathrop's place is due to lose its front. Some of the old trees that have been landmarks on the road are to be wiped out and in some cases the new lines make considerable cuts into the lawns in front of residences.

It is understood that property owners can appeal to the superior court against the proposed lines and that the prospects are that there will be such appeals taken.

THREE HURT IN CRASH AT PARK CHURCH CORNER

Three persons were slightly hurt, one machine was completely wrecked and another considerably damaged in an automobile crash on Broadway, near Park Congregational church, early Friday evening. The cars involved in the crash were a Ford touring car owned by Richard Holden of No. 31 Pine Tree road and driven by Charles T. Holden, 16, and a Hudson coach, owned and driven by Daniel E. Rogers of Uncasville.

The Holden machine was being driven from the direction of the Norwich Free Academy through Williams avenue and hit the left side of the Rogers car near the front end. The latter car was proceeding down Broadway, the accident occuring at the intersection of the streets. Holden's car was completely wrecked. The Roger's machine proceeded some feet down Broadway before it was stopped. The damage to this car was estimated at about $125.

Young Holden was slightly cut on the hand and Eva Rogers and a Mrs. Turner who were riding in the Roger's coach were also slightly cut. All three were attended by Dr. W. T. Browne at his residence nearby. Police Officers William Ryan and Clifford Crary investigated the crash and Holden was arrested on a charge of failure to grant the right of way. He will be presented in the city court this (Saturday) morning.

WASHINGTON ST. GARAGE IS TOTAL FIRE LOSS

Shortly after 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon a single story frame garage owned by Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, and located in the rear of the Christ church parsonage at No. 118 Washington street, was totally destroyed by fire. At 3:38 o'clock a bell alarm was pulled in from box 35 calling out Engines No. 1, No. 3, and No. 5, Truck No. 1, Squad A and the chief's car. A man walking down Washington street saw the garage in flames and ran to the box located some distance down the street. Although a rapid response was made by the apparatus there was no chance to save the structure. One line of hose was used on the flames. The recall was sounded shortly after the box was pulled. There was no automobile in the garage at the time of the fire.

The cause of the fire is not known. Rev. Mr. Budlong left the parsonage about 2 o'clock for the afternoon and knew nothing of the blaze until he returned home.

NEMROD GROTTO INVITED TO HARTFORD DEDICATION

Invitations to Nemrod Grotto have been received from Syria Grotto of Hartford to attend the dedication today (Saturday) of Hartford Grotto's new home and the reception to Grand Monarch John A. Derthick. The new club house is at 201 Washington street.

It is expected that a number of the Nemrod Grotto members will attend the event in Hartford for which the following is the programme: 2:30 p. m., dedication of club house; 3, inspection of club house; 3:30, sight seeing trip for visiting ladies; 8, short form ceremonial and reception for Grand Monarch Derthick at Saengerbud hall; 8, entertainment at club house for ladies.

Since the death of George N. Chappell, who for so long was secretary of Nemrod Grotto, an appointment of acting secretary has been made in the person of Prophet Louis Brown, who is now filling the duties of the office.

H. G. L. Club Begins Season

The H. G. L. club held their first meeting of the season at the home of Miss Helen Spicer, Laurel Hill, Friday evening. Games were enjoyed and refreshments were served by Miss Spicer assisted by Miss Betty Sargent.

Those present were Misses Mary Kerr, Nancy Pitcher, Elizabeth Whitehead, Doris Durie, Lucille Hayden, Helen Spicer, Betty Sargent and Mary Llewellyn. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Whitehead, No. 11 Division street. A hallowe-en party will be held at Miss Betty Sargent's home at East Great Plain on the last Friday evening of the month.

Traffic Beacons Unveiled.

The three traffic standards around the safety zone on Franklin square which have been veiled in mystery for a week or more with large pieces of cardboard wired around the space below the word "Keep to the Right" have just been unveiled.

The withdrawal of the cardboard shields reveals the words Norwich P. D." which have been painted underneath the traffic admonition. It is explained that this means "Norwich Police Department" and gives official authority to the directions on the beacon.

Call for Supposed Fire

At 11:50 a. m. Friday the fire department was called out by telephone for a suposed fire at No. 98 Thames street, owned and occupied by Joseph Cooper. A back draft from a chimney was responsible for the call. There was no damage. Squad A. Engines 5 and 6 and the chief's car responded to the call.

COLUMBUS DAY BANQUET BY BAPTIST WOMEN

A Columbus day banquet was held Friday evening by the Women's league of the Central Baptist church with 80 seated at the tables in the assembly hall where the tables were artistically decorated with flags, flowers and fall foliage by the social activities committee. Mrs. Joseph S. Adams chairman. The following menu was served by the domestic committee, under the direction of Mrs. Henrietta Tefft, chairman; hors d'oeuvres, cream of celery soup, macaroni Italiene, Saratoga chips, tomato salad, ice cream, macaroons and coffe. Members of the 3-G club acted as waitresses under the leadership of Miss Eugenie Dean. Violin duets were rendered by Miss Dorothy Packer and Master Packer, accompanied by Miss Leonora Chapman.

Following the banquet the regular meeting of the Womens league was held, opening with the devotional meeting led by Miss Anna B. Storms. The business meeting was in charge of Mrs. Henry H. Pettis, president.

The programme of the evening was in charge of Ever Ready circle. After a short introduction by Mrs. James M. Young, the tableau, Columbus-Discovers a New Field, was given. The ship Santa Maria, designed by William S. Spencer, added a realistic touch much appreciated by the audience. Mrs. William Wyman was Columbus, with Miss Edna Phillips, Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Hewitt as sailors. After this there were two solos by Miss Dorothy Gildersleeve, followed by the tableau, "Columbus' Descendants Discover America," showing a typical Italian family upon arrival. This was faithfully carried out by Mrs. Lelia Allen, Mrs. Harold S. Burt, Catherine Burt and Jean Spencer. A paper was read by Mrs. Ambrose Sullivan portraying the environment of the newly arrived family and the Christian centers carried on by the Baptists to meet their needs.

The final tableau, "Columbia Welcomes All Nations to the New Field," was very effectively carried out with Miss Belle Rathbone as Columbia, assisted by Miss Dorothy Gildersleeve, Miss Eugenie Dean, Miss Alma Taylor, Miss Susie Hargreaves, Mrs. William Wyan, Mrs. Dudley Lathrop and Mrs. Edwin Wigley. The programme closed with the hymn, America the Beautiful.

BOARD MAKING VOTERS WILL SIT IN COUNCIL CHAMBER

Voters will be made this year in the common council chamber, instead of in the town hall, according to arrangements made by First Selectman William S. Murray. This will save climbing up the long flights of stairs to reach the town hall and will be a great convenience to the thousand or so who will probably be made voters.

Today (Saturday) is the first day for making voters, and the board will be in session during the announced hours in the common council chamber which is on the main floor of the court house.

The board of registration comprises the selectmen, William S. Murray, Charles P. Bushnell and Patrick T. Connell, town clerk, Harold S. Burt and the registrar of voters, Tyler S. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes.

DEMOCRATS IN GROTON ENDORSE JUDGE ANDERSON

The Groton democratic caucus Friday night at which Carroll H. Bliven was moderator endorsed Judge Arthur P. Anderson for judge of probate and nominated the following for representatives: Stephen J. Austin of Mystic and Henry Marquardt of Groton.

Those nominated for justices of the peace were Conrad Kretzer, George Tingley, Albert Roach, Henry Marquardt, George Brown, Albert Wheeler, George Hempstead, Albert F. Hewitt.

Henry Bailey was clerk of the caucus.

ON WAY HOME FROM GRAND CANYON, ARIZONA

Cards have been received from George W. Meyer of Blissville, Lisbon, who reached Grand Canyon, Arizona, on October 7 on his way home from the Pacific coast by automobile. He writes of meeting in Arizona a 69 year old man from Idaho Falls, Idaho, who was riding a bicycle from Los Angeles to New York city and back to Idaho Falls. The bicycle rider was making 50 miles a day.

PARISH BABIES' BLESSING IN MISSION, SUNDAY P. M.

The men's week of the mission at St. Patrick's church will close Sunday, with a general communion of all the men of the parish at one of the four regular masses—7:30, 8:15, 9 or 10:30. Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock one of the three Passionist Fathers from Baltimore giving the mission will bless all the babies of the parish, as they are presented by their mothers. The closing exercises for the men will come Sunday evening, at 7:30, with recitation of the rosary, sermon, renewal of baptismal promises, papal benediction and Benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament.

Services on Friday were at the usual hours and the same rule will prevail today (Saturday.)

STATE TAX IS $11 FOR EVERY MOTORIST

Each motorist of Connecticut paid an average of eleven dollars in taxes on gasoline purchased last year, according to a survey just made by the American Motorists' association at Washington. A total of $8,054,906 in gasoline revenue was paid by Connecticut motorists during the year.

Connecticut ranked third of the New England states in the per capita average gasoline tax last year. Maine came first with an average gas tax per vehicle of $14; New Hampshire second with a tax of $13; Vermont and Connecticut, each with a tax of $11, and Rhode Island with gasoline revenue totaling nine dollars per motor vehicle. Massachusetts, according to the survey, is the only state in New England in which no tax is levied on gasoline.

Florida motorists ranked first in gasoline revenue paid last year, each motorist of that state having an average tax of $28. The smallest tax was paid by motorists of North Dakota and Minnesota each having a gasoline tax of $8 in 1927.

RALLY SOCIAL HELD BY UNIVERSALIST CHURCH SCHOOL

The annual rally social of the school of the Church of the Good Shepherd was held in the church rooms Friday evening. A large attendance sat down to the gally decorated tables at 6.30 o'clock. Each class provided its own menu and table decorations. Cheers and songs made the supper hour a very pleasant one. Floral and Japanese decorations added to the attractiveness of the tables and the social room.

Following the supper stunts were given by the various classes and there were popular selections by an orchestra of nine pieces. Those who took part in the entertainment program were costumed in clown dresses. The evening's program was as follows:

Selections, orchestra; stunt, Laugh, Clown Laugh, by seven girls; reading, Hallowe'en, Ruth Banning; stunt, The Ticket Office, ticket agent, Herbert Lawrence; mother, Charles Parsons; Magnolia, Edward Rich; stunt, The Funny Eight, featuring the trained flea, Adolph, by William Mitchell's class of boys; stunt, The Fatal Quest, King, Muriel Hill; devoted queen, Alvina Fogg; Duke, Eleanor Pike; Princess, Evelyn Barnes; curtains, Mildred and Ruth Banning; selection, orchestra; reading, Mildred Banning; stunt, Tea for Two, Miss Fowler's class; stunt, Hallowe'en Pranks, Pumpkin, Janice Jackson; cat, Junior Nelson; witch, Eleanor Nelson; owls, Russell Culver and Kenneth Armstrong; ghosts, William Nicholson and Walter Jackson; selection, orchestra; stunt, Cream Puffs, Tramp, Charles Parsons; chef, Charles Barnes; proprietor, Herbert Laurence; stunt, Pyrannes and Thisbie, Pyrannes, Thelma Blurstrom; Thiebie, Betty Pike; Uril, Dorothy Alquist; Moon, William Mitchell; Leori, Helen Hannigan; reader, Alice Parsons.

For the most beautifully decorated table the church school gave as an award of merit, a hand colored picture of St. John and St. Peter on Easter Morning. For the most popular part of the evening's program the award was given to Miss Fowler's class of girls and was a large picture of Hoffman's Christ. These pictures are to be hung in the church school room. Honorable mention was made of the splendid efforts of the men's class. During the evening announcement was made that rally Sunday is to be observed on Sunday, October 14th.

MATTHEW GEARY IS NOMINATED IN MONTVILLE

The democrats of Montville held their caucus Friday evening, at which Robert C. Burchard was moderator and Louis J. La Bounty, Jr., was clerk.

Matthew Geary was nominated for representative and Waterman F. Brown for judge of probate.

Those nominated for justices of the peace were Louis J. La Bounty, Jr., Harry C. Bogue, Seth Armitage, Geo. A. Chagnon and Lyman B. Smith.

LANDSCAPE WORK ON MOHEGAN HILL ROAD

Employes of the landscape bureau of the state highway department are engaged in making a little parklet on the Norwich-Montville road at a point just south of Mohegan hill where there is a considerable space between the old road and the new concrete highway. Small trees have been planted and the ground is being mounded up and shaped before it is seeded down.

DEMOCRATS IN WATERFORD NOMINATE HERBERT D. UTLEY

Herbert D. Utley was nominated for representative at the Waterford democratic caucus which was held Friday evening with Frank J. Alexander as moderator and Charles A. Gallup, clerk.

Those nominated for justices of the peace were Charles A. Gallup, Austin Peabody, Augustus C. Stearns, Anthony Silva, Lawrence W. Perry and Leander Eggleston.

Car Missing; Found Later

About 8:45 o'clock Friday night Joseph Genette of No. 69 Church street, reported to the police that his Ford touring car had been stolen from in front of St. Patrick's church where he had parked it while he was attending the mission. A short while later he reported that he had found the machine on a side street. The machine had been driven some distance, it is thought, as the engine was quite hot. Apparently it was not damaged.

Entertained Past Grands Lodge

Mrs. Grace Shaw entertained the meeting of Triple Link lodge of past grands, I. O. O. L., M. U., this week at her home on Russell road. The president, Mrs. Nellie Ince, conducted the business meeting at which two candidates received the obligation and plans were discussed for a sale early in December. Refreshments were served by the hostess for the social hour which closed the meeting.

REPORTS ON ORGANIZATION OF CONGREGATIONAL WOMEN

The regular meeting of the missions department of Park Congregational church was held Friday afternoon Miss Edith M. Bliss, chairman of the missions department, presided and led the devotional exercises.

Reports of the meeting for the organization of The Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut, consolidating the work of the New Haven, Hartford and Eastern Connecticut branches of the Woman's Board of Missions and the Woman's Home Missionary union of Connecticut formed the program for the day, Mrs. William H. Dawley told of the formation of the new organization and explained that its object was to combine the work of home and foreign missions, thereby increasing efficiency and reducing office expense. She read the constitution as adopted. Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn reported the address of Rev. Hilda L. Ives on "A New Organization Still Exalting the Unchangeable Christ." Miss Amanda M. Fisher told of the address of Mrs. Jennie F. Pratt, kindergartten teacher at Ellis Island, who recounted stories about the immigrant children and the valuable Americanization work done among these children. "Widening Circles" was the title of Mrs. Hannah Hume Lee's address which was recounted by Mrs. Henry D. Johnson, who prefaced her report with an account of Mrs. Lee's early life. She was the daughter of Robert Hume, whose name is so inseparably linked with missions in India. Miss Hannah M. Crowell graphically described Miss Helen B. Calder's closing address entitled "Beginning at Jerusalem," in which she described the impressive international meeting held at Jerusalem two weeks before Easter at which representatives from forty-two nations gathered.

Mrs. George L. Ingalls then gave a spirited account of the regional meeting held in Manchester, N. H., on Oct. 6th to 8th which she and Mr. Ingalls attended. It was impossible in the limited time to give an adequate description of this intensely interesting three day meeting, but Mrs. Ingalls touched the high spots with an enthusiasm that was infectious.

At the close of the meeting, tea was served by Miss Fannie L. Bliss and a social hour was enjoyed.

AFTERNOON OF CARDS BY PARENT-TEACHERS

A very successful bridge and whist party was given by the Poquetanuck Parent-Teachers association at the parish house, Wednesday afternoon. Seven tables of bridge and two of whist played. Prizes were given for the highest scorers in bridge, as follows: Mrs. Claude Wilson, Mrs. Charles Molter, Mrs. William Mitchell, Mrs. Charles Campbell, Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mrs. Fred Miller and Mrs. Charles Weeks. Winners in whist were Mrs. Charles Geer and Frank Brewster. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served. The committee for the arrangements were as follows: Mrs. George Mansfield, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Raymond Beckwith, Mrs. Arthur Smith, Mrs. Robert McClure, Mrs. Allison Fuller, Mrs. Harry Beckwith, Mrs. Appleton Main, and Mrs. Charles Betting.

CHANGES IN FACULTY COMMITTEES AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 12—Due to the many changes made during the summer on the faculty staff at the Connecticut Agricultural college it has been necessary according to an announcement by President Charles Burt Gentry to alter the personnel of several of the faculty committees. Several of the members and chairmen who have either resigned or are on leaves of absence have been substituted by active professors on the teaching staff at the state college.

The committee on course of study has evolved the most important change since former Chairman Charles B. Gentry who is now acting president, has left a vacancy in the office. Professor George C. White has been substituted. Professor Irving O. Davis, head of the economics department, will serve on the committee in place of Professor William F. Kirkpatrick who is on sabbatical leave to study at Rutgers. Miss Mildred P. French, who was appointed head of the women's division of the college will also replace Mrs. Gladys L. Hendrickson on the committee since the latter was formerly head of the home economics department. Mrs. Hendrickson resigned during the summer due to ill health and was immediately replaced by Miss Frouch. Dr. Edmund W. Sinnott, formerly professor of genetics at the college and who is now at Barnard college, a division of Columbia university, will be replaced by Professor Howard A. Seckerson, head of the English department.

Dr. Howard D. Newton, head of the chemistry department, has been appointed as chairman of the graduate study committee to take the place of Professor George H. Lamson, now acting as dean of the science division. Mr. Lamson will, however, continue as a member of the committee. On the library committee, Miss French will replace Mrs. Hendrickson and Prof. Seckerson will act in place of Dr. Sinnott. Miss French will substitute for Mrs. Hendrickson once more on the social activity committee. Harold S. Schwenk, instructor in chemistry, was also appointed on the social committee. The student members of the committee are Andrew Park, '29, of Bridgeport; Warren Kennedy, '30, of Windsor, and Miss Dorothy Nay, '29, of Norwich. The committee in connection with student affairs will be headed by Professor Albert E. Moss, head of the forestry department in place of Professor Kirkpatrick. Mr. Albert E. Waugh, instructor in economics, will also serve on the above committee.

SERMON ON COLUMBUS BY TRINITY METHODIST PASTOR

issue. What were some of the difficulties?

1. There were the superstitious fears of the unknown, especially on the part of the sailors. This fear came from their ignorance. In an early tract by an Anglo-Saxon scholar you have this question: "Tell me, my son, why is the sun so red in the evening?" Answer, "Because it looketh into hell." The people believed the tropical seas were made of jellified substance and out of the gelatinous substance were spawned all sorts of horrible monsters in form and size. Into this fearsome place Columbus and his ships must go.

2. The difficulty of finding ships and men to man them. For this great adventure money must be found. For 27 years did Columbus seek this financial help that he might be launched upon this fateful trip. Spain had her own troubles to meet. It was a most inauspicious moment. Spain was in the last throes of her struggle to free the country from the Moors, who had held possession for many years. The Inquisition had been introduced in 1483 and thousands of the brightest minds who could not pronounce the shibboleths of the church were burned to death in this horrible auto de fe. Pestilence fell upon the southern part of Spain and in the province of Seville alone 50,000 people perished. The coin was clipped by the government and provisions were almost beyond the reach of the poor. Civil war was imminent in one of the provinces. The church held it was heresy to believe in the rotundity of the earth. The Bible, so the church fathers said, was all against it.

Conditions He Imposed

But there was one priest who rose above his brethren and encouraged the project. It was this man who won the ear of the court to the plea of Columbus. Columbus shows us how very human he was in the conditions he laid down for himself if he were successful. Many of them seem very selfish to us today. But we must remember the terrible uncertainty of the enterprise.

1. He was to be made high admiral of the fleet and viceroy of all the lands he found or acquired and the power was to descend to his heirs forever.

2. He was to be governor-general of all islands and territories.

3. He was to have the tenth part of all goods found or traded in.

4. In every lawsuit or controversy he was to be the judge.

5. In fitting out the fleet he was to be allowed the privilege of furnishing 1-8 of the expense and to receive 1-8 of all the profits arising therefrom.

The demands of Columbus were so great that the court stood aghast. They were at first denied but, through the eloquence of Santagel, the royal treasurer, the queen at length relented and gave permission for the enterprise to start. The commission of Columbus carried everything he had asked for. It was a very dangerous thing to grant so much power to one man and most of the troubles of Columbus grew out of this commission. One thing alone that made it dangerous, the commission said that any peoples found refusing to be converted to the Catholic faith were to be the legitimate prey of the conqueror who could and unfortunately did dispose of them as he saw fit.

Here we have unlimited authority, immeasureable opportunity, exemption from all accountability. What was the supreme motive as given by Columbus himself for this daring enterprise? The glory of the Catholic church. Columbus was a medieval crusader and the gold he hoped to find he promised Spain in its crusade against the Saracens who were the possessors of the Holy Land.

The First Voyage

In 1492 was made the first voyage. The fleet was manned very largely by debtors and criminals from the jails, who were granted immunity for their courage in volunteering for such a desperate enterprise. This was a great mistake but it could not be helped. The whole fleet cost, with the stores, about $3,640 of our money. The fleet was battered by storms before it reached the Canary Isles, into which harbor it put in to refit. As they sailed westward they noted everything unusual. Columbus kept a diary and from this diary we gather how matters were going. They saw land birds, pieces of wood curiously carved, seaweed, huge pelicans, whales, etc. It was on the evening of the 12th of October that Columbus thought he saw a light. Two of his companions confirmed his impressions. Roderigo of the Pinta saw land first at 2 o'clock in the morning of the 12th of October and claimed the 20,000 maravedis promised by the king. Columbus contested the claim on the ground that he had seen the light the previous night and his claim was allowed.

On Friday, Oct. 12, the fleet came to anchor before an island called by the Indians Guanahani. The Spaniards called it San Salvador. It is now Watling, one of the Bahamas. He also took Haiti and Cuba in the name of the king and queen and Spain. He formed his first settlement on the island of San Domingo. His own ship was wrecked on the shores of this island and from the wreckage a fort was built. A number of the crew was left to form the first settlement. The Indians were found to be very friendly to the Spaniards at first and did everything they could to help them. On Jan. 4, the two remaining ships sailed for Spain with the news of the discovery. Columbus made two other voyages and discovered other islands and the mainland of South America.

Why Colonies Failed

These colonies failed. Why?

1. Because gold was not found in sufficient quantities to meet the expenses of the voyage.

2. Because of the treatment of the native Indians. Instead of making friends of them the Spaniards turned them into the bitterest enemies. They treated them as slaves and drove them to forced labor. The Indian became infected with the white man's disease, and crucified by the white man's lust and eventually not a single Indian was left on these islands. Nothing remains of this race save one word—the word hammock. This word was introduced into Europe by the Spanish conquerors. It is one of the saddest things about the white man's exploitation of the native races of the earth. Whenever he came into contact with the natives, whether Pilgrim or Spaniard, it meant death to the native.

Columbus died at Valladolid June 8, 1506, completely forgotten, and no archives contain an account of his death. His coffin was taken to the completed cathedral of San Domingo in 1549 but there is great uncertainty of its present location. Columbus did not know he had found a new continent. He always thought that the islands he had discovered were simply the outposts of China and Japan. He never had the idea that a few miles from Cuba stretched a great continent 3,000 miles across the surface of the globe. The greatness of Columbus lies in the fact that he was the first to cross the unknown seas and open up the western world. He was soon followed by daring seamen of all the maritime nations of Europe. The glory of Columbus will remain undimmed through all ages. What are the lessons we should learn?

1. He had thoroughly prepared himself. 2. He pursued his quest till he was successful. 3. He fell in to an opportune time in the history of the world. 4. Religion was the dominating motive. 5. He suffered misunderstanding and was crucified by his own generation. 6. He is applauded by all thinking men for his daring adventure and great discovery.

ZEPPELIN WILL REACH LAKEHURST THIS P. M.; DELAYED BY ADVERSE WINDS

Communication From the Ship Places Time of Arrival Not Before Monday Afternoon—Official Message at Noon, E. S. T., Located the Big Airship 80 Miles East by North of Bermuda—Had Made But Little Progress Since 11 P. M. Saturday—All's Well on Board and the Ship Has Sufficient Fuel—Thousands of Persons Waited at Lakehurst All Day Sunday, Expecting to Sight the Giant Dirigible.

(By The Associated Press)

Bucking 20 to 25 mile winds, the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, having passed over Bermuda last night on her flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J., was proceeding at reduced air speed toward the United States coast.

In the first direct communication to the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, American naval officer aboard the ship, wirelessed that the craft probably will "not arrive before afternoon Monday."

The big airship was first sighted over the main island of Bermuda at 3:35 p. m., presumably Hamilton local time, traveling at a moderate rate of speed and at an altitude of 1500 feet. It was visible to watchers on the north shore and at the eastern end of the island for some minutes. Fog and clouds which moved in over the western end of the island prevented residents there from getting a good view of the ship.

About three hours before it was seen at Bermuda, the ship had been reported by the steamer Lafcomo, 62 miles east of St. David's Island, Bermuda.

Commander Rosendahl's message said that at 5:15 p. m., eastern standard time, the airship was ten miles southwest of Bermuda, on a course for Lakehurst. Shortly afterward the Lakehurst station received a message signed "Denne," the Zeppelin's radio call, which said the ship was running southwest to reach more favorable winds. "This is necessary in view of necessary reduction of air speed," the message said.

A report of weather conditions between Bermuda and Florida was successfully relayed to the Zeppelin through naval radio stations. The officer in charge at naval communications advised all naval radio stations along the coast from Norfolk, Va., to Key West, Fla., to establish contact with the dirigible whenever possible and immediately notify the navy department of the whereabouts of the airship.

LOG OF THE GRAF ZEPPELIN

(By The Associated Press)

(Eastern Standard Time) Thursday, October 11:

2:10 a. m., passed over city of Constance.

3:30 a. m., passed over Basle, Switzerland.

4 a. m., passed over Franco-German frontier.

7:25 a. m., passed over Lyon, France.

9:05 a. m., passed over Mediterranean at Ste Marie Delamer, France.

1:50 p. m., passed over Barcelona, Spain.

3:15 p. m., passed over Tarragona, Spain.

6:40 p. m., passed over Castellon De La Plana, Spain.

Midnight, passed Gibraltar.

Friday, October 12:

2 a. m., sighted 50 miles off coast of Spanish Morocco.

6:17 a. m., sighted 150 miles northeast of Madeira Island.

8:30 a. m., passed over Funchal, Madeira.

10:30 a. m., sighted 60 miles west of Madeira.

2:15 p. m., reported 176 miles west by south of Horta, the Azores.

Saturday, October 13:

2:30 p. m., 1,000 miles west of Madeira, heading for Bermuda.

6:25 a. m., 1,800 miles due east of Charleston, S. C., proceeding slowly while repairing damaged horizontal fin.

8:00 a. m., steamer Berlin fixes her position at 1500 miles east of Bermuda.

9:30 a. m., reports position 1,000 miles from Bermuda, still going slowly.

10:30 a. m., reported passing fiftieth degree of longitude, about 900 miles due east of Bermuda.

12:32 p. m., radio messages report damage repaired.

Sunday, October 14:

11 a. m., reported 320 miles east of Cape Hatteras, 640 miles from Lakehurst.

Noon, reported 80 miles east by north of Bermuda, changing course to southwestward to avoid head winds.

3:55 p. m., sighted by Steamer Lafcomo, 62 miles east of St. David's Island, Bermuda.

6 p. m., passed over Bermuda flying low and making moderate speed against a 25 mile northwest wind.

MIGHT FLY OVER NEW YORK CITY THIS MORNING

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 14—(AP)—The possibility that the dirigible Graf Zeppelin would delay her landing at Lakehurst, N. J. in order that she might fly over New York city early tomorrow morning was suggested tonight by officials of the zeppelin works in Friedrichshafen.

While the latest available information at Friedrichshafen indicated that the dirigible was fighting head winds and probably would not reach Lakehurst until early Monday morning, the zeppelin works officials expressed the opinion that Dr. Eckner would try to make Lakehurst tonight but only to record the time of his arrival and that without landing he would continue the flight during the night and then, not to disappoint the public, would appear over New York early Monday before effecting a landing at Lakehurst.

Officials and engineers at the zeppelin works here said today that the repairing of the damaged fin of the dirigible in mid-air and in the fact of head winds had constituted one of the most daring engineering feats in the history of aviation.

From the meager description of how the repairs were effected, it appears that only one man was able to work in the interior of the fin and that the others clung outside on the windswept struts while the job was being done. The workmen were led by Engineers Siegle and Baeurle, and Knut Eckener, 24-year-old-son of Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the craft.

THOUSANDS OF MOTORISTS STALLED AT LAKEHURST

NAVAL AIR STATION, LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 14—(AP)—Thousands upon thousands of tired and hungry motorists, who came here today in hopes of witnessing the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin from Germany, tonight faced the dreary prospect of spending the entire night stalled on the broad a few miles from the naval air station.

They all started trekking home at dusk—and got stuck by the time the stars were out, all traffic within a radius of more than 20 miles from here was in a hopeless tangle. Indications were that it would not be cleared up before dawn.

The narrow road that runs the mile and a half between the naval air station and Lakehurst tonight was a solid mass of automobiles, which state troopers struggled in vain to move. The nine mile road to Lakewood was likewise choked, and traffic all the way to Trenton was reported virtually at a standstill.

One reason for the tie-up around here was that thousands of drivers who had parked by the roadside tried to swing into the heavy flow of traffic, became stalled and held everybody up. The situation was further complicated by a stream of cars heading this way, and once they got out onto the main highway, they found themselves in a big parade heading towards New York from Atlantic City.

Virtually none of the stalled motorists between here and Lakewood had any dinner tonight. By the middle of the afternoon every refreshment stand on the field had run out of food except one booth where they were selling waffles—without butter or syrup—brick ice cream and pop. The night was too chilly for eating ice cream outdoors with any enjoyment. The only two restaurants in Lakehurst had run out of food and closed their doors even before the major portion of the crowd had left the field. By eight o'clock the canned goods supply in the grocery stores was just cleaned out.

Thousands of those motorists—including many children—who were trying to sleep in their stalled cars on the road between here and home tonight were spending their second night in that fashion. Saturday night they spent on the field here—waiting to see the Graf Zeppelin come in this forenoon.

HAS MADE LITTLE PROGRESS SINCE SATURDAY NIGHT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—(AP)—Struggling against adverse winds with her flying speed reduced, the Graf Zeppelin, en route from Friedrichshafen, Germany to Lakehurst, apparently has made little progress since 11 o'clock last night, Admiral Charles Hughes, chief of naval operations, estimated that it could not reach Lakehurse before 8 a. m., tomorrow.

The navy department was informed in an official message from the big airship this afternoon that its position at noon, eastern standard time, was 80 miles east by north of Bermuda, and that it was "running southwest in order to reach more favorable winds desirable in view necessary reduction air speed." This message added that all was well on board and the ship had sufficient fuel.

The position given in the navy department's message was much closer than might have been expected to that reported to the radio marine corporation at 11.15 last night. At that time the position was placed at 63 west longitude and 34.40 north latitude, or approximately 100 miles northeast of Bermuda.

MAY RUN SHY OF RATIONS ON ZEPPELIN

BERLIN, Oct. 14—(AP)—Unless the Graf Zeppelin reaches Lakehurst by 8 a. m. eastern standard time it is probable that the sixty persons it carries will have to subsist on champagne and caviar. While Dr. Eckener carried fuel sufficient for 120 hours of flying it is thought that his commissary department calculated on only 100 hours at most.

Food rations for the trip had been carefully estimated on the basis of 7 3-4 pounds of balanced food for each person for 100 hours. The drinking water supply, which was carried in the form of ice to be melted as needed had also been carefully restricted to keep down the total load of the airship.

Experts tonight thought that some of the plainer food stuffs were probably already exhausted.

NINE RECEPTION PLANES RETURNED TO HANGARS

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., Oct. 14—(AP)—Nine planes which had been ready since dawn to fly out to meet the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin were returned to their hangars late today when it became apparent the airship would not arrive before nightfall.

Col. Conger Pratt, commandant of Mitchel Field, released the pilots and mechanics for the day and issued orders that they be ready for a start at dawn tomorrow. He said that should the arrival of the Zeppelin be delayed until dawn or later tomorrow, the nine ships would go out to meet the airship and escort it to the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J..

150 MILES WEST OF BERMUDA AT 11 P. M.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—(AP)—The position of Graf Zeppelin at 11 p. m., eastern standard time, was given late tonight by the naval communications office here as 150 miles west of Bermuda.

DESTROYERS READY TO GO TO AID OF THE ZEPPELIN

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 14—(AP)—The naval destroyers, held here in readiness to go to the aid of the Graf Zeppelin, German trans-Atlantic airship, received orders from the navy department at Washington, local naval officials announced, about 9:30 o'clock tonight to be prepared to sail on one hour's notice.

Previous orders had specified four hours' sailing notice. Three destroyers, considered most likely to be used, in event of an order to sail, were the Lardner, Brooks and Hatfield. The naval officials said their information was that the dirigible was somewhere off the South Carolina coast and "might need assistance."

DIRECT COMMUNICATION TO NAVAL AIR STATION

NAVAL AIR STATION, Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 14—(AP)—In the first direct communication to the naval air station, Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, passenger aboard the Graf Zeppelin, tonight wirelessed that the craft at 5:15 p. m., eastern standard time was ten miles southwest of Bermuda on a course for Lakehurst.

"Probably not arrive before afternoon Monday."

ZEPPELIN PASSED OVER BERMUDA, FLYING LOW

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 14—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin passed over Bermuda at 6:41 tonight. It was flying quite low at a moderate speed.

The giant dirigible was bucking a northwest wind with a velocity estimated at between 20 and 25 miles an hour.

The dirigible had been reported by the steamship Lafcomo about three hours before at a point 62 miles east of St. David's Island, Bermuda.

(It is probable that the time of 6:41 p. m. given above is Hamilton local time which is 41 minutes ahead of eastern standard time).

THOUSANDS OF PERSONS WAITED AT LAKEHURST

NAVAL AIR STATION, Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 14—(AP)—Thousands of persons waited here all day in vain for a sight of the trans-Atlantic Graf Zeppelin.

In late afternoon, with arrival time estimates ranging from 11 o'clock tonight to well into tomorrow, the crowds began to disperse, clogging the roads with cars and giving marines and state troopers a severe traffic problem.

There were a few authentic reports of the progress of the zeppelin, but these were far outnumbered by the countless rumors that sprang from nowhere and spread everywhere.

A wireless intercepted at Norfolk which did more than anything else to start the waiting crowds homeward reported that adverse winds had held progress down to almost nothing and that the zeppelin was still in the neighborhood of Bermuda at noon.

The more optimistic, however, gave full credence to a rumor reputedly from a source close to unnamed powers said to have the zeppelin's speed under control. This rumor was that the ship was being idled out of sight off the American coast and would slide into Lakehurst for a mooring at 11 o'clock tonight.

Believers in this rumor hung doggedly on, crowding the hangar where the navy dirigible Los Angeles awaited its big young sister from across the seas and the field prepared for the reception of the visitor.

Among the crowd today were high officials of the German diplomatic service, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, and Grover Whalen, reprehsenting Mayor James J. Walker of New York.

Although it had been generally hoped that the zeppelin would arrive in the daylight hours of today there was no anxiety caused by its nonappearance. Rear Admiral Moffett drew a comparison between this flight and the first steamboat crossings of the ocean.

"Those first crossings were hardly more speedy than sailboats he said, "but that was no reason for not developing steamboats. This flight may be taking longer than was expected, but that is no reason to think it is not a complete success."

A shadow of irritation hung over parts of the air station headquarters today, some of the officers feeling that as the zeppelin was coming here to berth more effort should have been made to communicate directly progressive position and estimated time of arrival.

It was said that station operators picked up the dirigible by wireless this morning but that in reply to requests for information on position and arrival time the ship replied that it was "too busy sending press" to answer the questions.

Captain E. S. Jackson, commandant of the air station, then dispatched a wireless to the dirigible, at noon, stressing the importance of his having the information requested, information necessary to his plans for landing the ship. Hours later no reply had been received.

At 4:30 o'clock Captain Jackson had posted on the bulletin boards in the press room and the hangar where the crowds could see it a notice saying that the zeppelin was not expected before 10:30 tonight. The notice was originally typed "until 10:30" but the "until" was scratched out and "before" substituted.

Among those waiting for the Graf Zeppelin were a score or more of airship designers and engineers formerly engaged at Friedrichshafen and now working at the Goodyear Zeppelin factory at Akron, Ohio. They were brought in a special car which was run onto a siding on the air station and held there as their permanent quarters all hotels in the vicinity being crowded to capacity. These aircraft men, many of whom had helped build the Los Angeles and are now engaged in preliminary work on the two zeppelins to be built in Akron for the government, which will be more than twice as large as the Los Angeles.

One high naval official who came here to help greet the zeppelin expressed acute annoyance in an interview over the failure of the ship to reply to communications from Lakehurst, but asked that his name not be connected with the remarks.

He said he learned that after a message had been sent to the officers of the ship and had gone unacknowledged, another message was addressed to Lieut. Commander C. E. Rosendahl, captain of the Los Angeles who is making the trip as an invited guest. This also failed to draw any reply.

"We shall show the Graf Zeppelin every courtesy," the naval official said, "and accord them every service regardless of the time of day or night they come in."

Huge Allen, an official of the Goodyear Zeppelin company, announced this evening that the supply of blau gas, the gaseous fuel being used on the dirigible, would be exhausted shortly after midnight. From then on, he said, it would be necessary to switch the engines to the use of gasoline, enough of which was carried to keep the ship in air a total of 126 hours if necessary. Midnight tonight marked the passing of the 84th hour since the dirigible took off from Friedrchshafen Thursday.

Mrs. Mary Muller of Brooklyn dropped dead on the field late today, and it was stated at the station hospital that death had been caused by heart shock incident to excitement.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—All records for the registration of voters in New York city were broken when figures for the last day brought to 2,023,654, the number of qualified voters for the presidential election this year.

This is exceeded by more than 500,000 the record of 1,500,113 qualified voters registered for the presidential election four years ago.

The six day registration period closed last night.

W. J. FLYNN, FORMER CHIEF OF SECRET SERVICE, DEAD

LARCHMONT, N. Y., Oct. 14—(AP)—William J. Flynn, former chief of the United States secret service and also former head of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, died at his home here today after an illness of two weeks. He was 60 years old.

In 30 years with the secret service he attained a world-wide reputation and became an almost legendary figure through his activities against criminals of every degree.

In 1917 he retired from the secret service and was for a time head of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice. In the past four year he lived a comparatively quiet life, doing a little private detective work but spending most of his time at his Larchmont home.

Two weeks ago he began suffering acutely with heart disease, which caused his death.

His widow, three sons and three daughters survive.

CHARGES MOSLEMS WERE BRIBED INTO REBELLION

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 14—(AP)—The headquarters of Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang at Sianfu today charged that the late Peking government had bribed the Moslems of Shensi to raise the rebellions which since last April have cost the lives of at least 200,000 Chinese.

It was charged that the Northerners gave the Moslems $750,000 in addition to promising them overlordship of the provinces of Honan, Shensi and Kansu if they succeeded in embarrassing the march of Feng Yu-Hsiang on Peking.

Sianfu officials said that the civil war had quieted down as the result of the capture of Liangchowfu, the last Moslem stronghold in the state, late last month, and that Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang was now seeking to bring about co-operation between the Mohammedans and the Chinese, which he expects to achieve slowly.

GOV. SMITH'S BROWN DERBY WAS STOLEN

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 14—(AP)—Governor Smith's third campaign brown derby has gone the way of its predecessors but not voluntarily. While the other two were given away by the candidate himself, No. 3 was snatched from the hands of Alfred Jr., last night outside of Jefferson county armory by some bold partisan who easily got away in the jam.

Today, the governor reached into his reserve and pulled out the last "Browny," one which he had hoped he would not have to campaign in. It's a size too small.

LORD BIRKENHEAD RESIGNS FROM BALDWIN CABINET

LONDON, Oct. 14—(AP)—Lord Birkenhead, secretary of state for India since 1924, has resigned from the Baldwin cabinet in order to follow commercial activities in London. Pending the appointment of a successor, Lord Winterton, the present under-secretary of state, will conduct the affairs of the India office.

PROCESSION IN MEMORY OF ROALD AMUNDSEN

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 14—(AP)—A torchlight procession in memory of Roald Amundsen, who gave his life in an attempt to bring aid to the missing Nobile expedition was held tonight by the choral unions and witnessed by many thousands.

AIRPORT IN PAWTUCKET FORMALLY DEDICATED

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Oct. 14—(AP)—The Pawtucket airport was formally dedicated here today at the conclusion of a three days' air meet. More than 30 airplanes circled overhead as Gov. Norman S. Case, presided at the ceremonies. The crowd was estimated at 30,000 persons. The airport will be operated by the Thatcher Airways, Ltd., of this state.

Important Anglo-Indian Conference

Will Assemble in London This Morning For Diplomatic and Political Negotiations.

LONDON, Oct. 14—(AP)—Rich and powerful Indian maharajahs, whose treasure houses bulge with jewels and whose glittering palaces are often like dream buildings in an enchanted land, will assemble here tomorrow for diplomatic and political negotiations. The meeting is regarded as one of the most important Anglo-Indian conferences in the history of Britain's dominion over India.

Out of it all may come a federated India—a United States of India, but with little likelihood of it being called that.

While the Simon commission composed of Englishmen is in India studying the problem of Indian self-government these picturesque Indian potentates have come to London to confer on questions of deep importance to the British empire, the relationship of their almost independent monarchies to the paramount power, the British crown.

Many English, and most other people, have scant knowledge of the real relations between Great Britain and India. They think of King George ruling the east with that same benevolence he—aided by the government in Whitehall—seems to exert over the suburbs of London. It is often forgotten that 70,000,000 Indians, equal in number to more than half the population of the United States of America, and living in 700,000 square miles of territory, are ruled by their own sovereigns.

These sovereigns are the ruling princes, a number of the most prominent of whom are now in London. They include Maharajah of Patiala, chancellor of the chamber of princes, the Hawab of Chopal, the Maharao of Cutch and the Maharajah of Kashmir.

The princes acknowledge King George as suzerain, but neither they nor their people are British subjects. The British parliament in Westminster cannot legislate for them. The king's writ does not run in their land. They rule the "native states," as differentiated from "British India," the larger portion of the teeming peninsular country.

Great personages, these maharajahs, always picturesque figures, often learned, talented and capable statesmen and administrators, often great sportsmen, adventurers and travelers, some good and some bad.

One dethroned maharajah in particular has attracted attention in America recently, the ex-Maharajah of Indore, who married Nancy Miller of Seattle, Washington. In England experts on Indian affairs will tell you that the romantic ex-Maharajah of Indore played fast and loose with his responsibilities, thought too much about gay parties and dancing girls, and consequently, lost his throne as an ordinary mortal would lose his job. Now, instead of being a ruling Indian prince he is just an ex-maharajah with no political power at all.

The grave problems that have brought the seriously-minded Indian rulers to London center around the government of India, that political structure which performs two functions, not always compatible with one another—it governs British India, and it manages diplomatic relations between Great Britain and the native states.

The Simon commission probably will give British India more power of self-government, or recommend them. The Indian princes in London are here to declare that British India already exerts too much power over acts are subordinated in all manner their domains, and that their interest governmental affairs.

GOVERNOR SMITH WILL INVADE MISSOURI TODAY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 14—(AP)—The third from the last week of the national political campaign will find Governor Smith preaching a democratic gospel in the farm and border states of the midwest. Leaving tonight from this city, where in his open speech drive in Kentucky he laid down a nine-point prescription on the tariff the democratic standard bearer tomorrow will invade Missouri and from that state turn eastward over a route that will carry him through Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Before departing from Kentucky soil, the nominee journeyed 60 miles from here to Hodgenville where Abraham Lincoln spent part of his early boyhood days. The governor made the trip to that city on his special train and then returned here for a few hours. His schedule called for his departure from here about midnight for St. Louis, the first stop in Missouri.

The speech in Chicago will be made Friday night. Just what the governor will discuss in both this and his Sedalia address has not been disclosed.

Before leaving Louisville for Hodgenville at noon today, Governor Smith attended church at the Cathedral of the Assumption, where mass was celebrated by Father Monohan and a sermon delivered by the Rev. F. N. Pitt.

AMERICANS LEADING IN RECONSTRUCTION OF CHINA

SHANGHAI, Oct. 14—(AP)—American engineers and experts are taking a major part in the reconstruction of China and the Nationalist government looks to the financiers of the United States to provide the funds for the tremendous program made necessary by the years of civil war.

Sun Fo, a son of Sun Yat Sen, father of the republic, outlined today the large part which America already has taken and the hopes which Nationalist China rests upon her. Sun Fo, the former minister of finance, was named minister of railways at the completion of a recent world tour during which he explored the possibilities of procuring foreign capital for the reconstruction program of the Nationalist government.

SOCIALIST PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 14—(AP)—Before a small gathering here today at the Hyperion theater, Norman Thomas, socialist presidential candidate, spoke at the trades council forum of New Haven, in conjunction with Augustine Lonergan, democratic candidate for U. S. senator from Connecticut, and Edward J. Ryan, former president of the Railway May association, a republican. The men spoke on the "basic issues of the political campaign," using their own party as a basis of comparison.

John W. Reeder, of Tipton, Iowa, who is one of the oldest men in Cedar county, where Herbert Hoover was born, has written Mr Hoover that he will be in Washington for the inauguration March 4 and will "hold Mr. Hoover's hat while the ceremony is being performed."

REP. NOMINEE HOOVER WILL CROSS THE BAY STATE TODAY

Will Make Five Speeches, the Principal One at Boston Tonight—Will Travel on Special Train and Make His First Address at Springfield at 8 a. m. Today—Mr. Hoover Will Give His Views of the Protective Tariff Policy of the Republican Party—Also Will Deal With Foreign Trade and the Merchant Marine.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—(AP)—Herbert Hoover turned tonight toward the debatable territory of Massachusetts to strike a blow in behalf of his candidacy for the presidency.

The Bay State, whose electoral vote the democratic leaders have claimed and over the disposition of which the republicans have been frankly concerned, will see the republican nominee tomorrow in a campaign swing that will carry him across the breadth of the state to Boston for a series of conferences and a speech.

The trip like the two that have preceded it since Hoover's return to Washington from California, called for an arduous itinerary with a multiplicity of events crowded into a single short day. It will find him talking, more however, than he has on either of the two previous political pilgrimages to Newark and Elizabethton.

Five speeches, including his major address at Boston tomorrow night, will be jammed into the day of whirlwind campaigning. Although his journey will take him into eight states, including Massachusetts, the activities of the candidate will be confined to the Bay State.

The visit of the nominee to New England will give him an opportunity to lay before the people of the industrial east his views of the protective tariff policy of the republican party. He also will touch upon foreign trade and the merchant marine.

Frequent political rumblings have been heard from Massachusetts since the early days of the campaign and many of the republican leaders have felt that the normally republican state at present may be classed in the doubtful column. Some have pointed out that there is a high percentage of Catholic voters in the state and that there is considerable wet sentiment and they have expressed perplexity as to what part these factors may play in swinging the state's vote.

Some confidence has been placed by party chieftains in the contention that the New England industries need the protection of a republican tariff. Some of the leaders also have claimed that the registration figures indicate the state is safely republican, but others have drawn small comfort from the party enrollments. All, however, have looked forward hopefully to the visit of the head of the ticket to the area in the belief that it will strengthen the party organization for the November election battle.

Leaving Washington tonight on a special train, Hoover will pass through Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Connecticut during the night, making his first appearance on the platform at Springfield, Mass., at 8:30 a. m., tomorrow. During a 15-minute stop there he will make a brief talk. The second half of his train will come an hour and a half later when he arrives at Worcester, and the third shortly afterward at Newtonville, where he will detrain for an automobile ride of an hour and a half to Boston common. At both Worcester and Newtonville he will give brief talks.

There the candidate will be welcomed by Mayor Nichols and will make his fourth informal speech. Immediately afterward, he will go to the Statler hotel where at a luncheon he will meet various members of the republican state committee and county committeemen.

He will spend the afternoon at the home of Governor Fuller on Beacon street, where he will be visited by members of the Republican Service Men's league and representatives of citizens of foreign birth. After dinner there, Hoover will go to the Arena, where he will make his principal speech of the trip after introductory talks by former Senator William M. Butler, who headed the republican national committee during the 1924 compaign, and by Governor Fuller.

Shortly after the conclusion of the speech, the candidate will board his train for the return trip to Washington, which will bring him through the eighth state, Rhode Island. This, too, he will traverse during the night and the only stop in the state will be an operating one at Providence.

The nominee will be accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Hoover, their son Allan, a dozen or more members of his personal staff and a corps of Washington newspaper correspondents. While he is busy at the home of Governor Fuller during the afternoon in a series of conferences, his wife will be the guest of republican women at a reception given in her honor at the Copley Plaza hotel.

Despite the imminence of his Boston trip, the republican standard bearer did not vary his Sabbath routine today, worshipping as usual at the Friends' meeting house on I street in the morning and leaving his home in the afternoon only for a shore automobile ride and for the last-minute trip to the station to board his train.

WEAF, New York; WJAR, Providence; WFI, Philadelphia; WGR, Buffalo; WWJ, Detroit; KSD, St. Louis; WOW, Omaha; WTMJ, Milwaukee; WSM, Nashville; WBT, Charlotte; KPRC, Houston; KFI, Los Angeles; KSL, Salt Lake City; WEEI, Boston; WTAG, Worcester; WRC, Washington; WCAE, Pittsburgh; WSAI, Cincinnati; WOC, Davenport; WDAF, Kansas City; KOA, Denver; WDMC, Memphis; KVOO, Tulsa; WOAI, San Antonio; KOMO, Seattle; WTIC, Hartford; WCSH, Portland, Me.; WGY Schenectady; WTAM, Cleveland; WGN, Chicago; WHO Des Moines; WCCO Minneapolis; WHAS, Louisville; WSB, Atlanta; WFAA, Dallas; KPO, San Francisco; KGW, Portland, Ore.; KHQ, Spokane.

DEBATED THE MERITS OF HOOVER AND SMITH

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—Two United States senators tonight debated in the Chelsea Methodist Episcopal church the respective merits of Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith as candidates for the presidency.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire vice-chairman of the eastern republican advisory committee, said he is for Hoover "because he does not seek to nullify or dilute the dictates of his party as voiced by a national convention. I believe with him that the republican party is best suited to conduct the affairs of the government of this country. . . . I am for him because the times need him, the times approaching this country need him, and because his methods are clear, direct and forceful."

Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York said he is for Smith "because we are faced with great social problems such as housing. . . . As governor of this state he put through rent laws, housing laws, laws abolishing discrimination against women, a widow's pension law, and similar measures. I believe there should be in the presidential chair some man who does not believe the purpose of government is the protection of property alone but the betterment of humanity."

The debate was arranged by Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the church.

TO HOLD REFERENDUM IN HUNGARY FOR KING

LUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 14—(AP)—Prime Minister Stephen Bethlen, speaking at Oedenburg, west Hungary declared that the country would soon hold a referendum to select a king for the throne which has been vacant since the abdication of King Charles in 1918. The premier pronounced himself against the 16-year-old Archduke Otto, son of Charles, who is now in school in Luxemberg.

This is interpreted as meaning that Archduke Albert, son of the wealthy Hapsburg Archduke Frederick, is the leading contender for the crown.

Bethlen has long been a warm partisan of Albert but the legitimists led by Count Apponyi support Otto, who is also favored by the house of Lords. The Hungarian people generally look with favor upon Albert, not only because he is a Hungarian but because he remained in the country throughout the red terror, refusing opportunities to flee.

A republic and a soviet followed the abdication of King Charles, but both were short-lived. In 1920, Hungary was declared a monarchy under the regency of Admiral Nicholas Horthy. Charles made two ineffectual attempts to regain the throne before his death. Beside Otto and Albert, another possible Hapsburg claimant to the throne is Archduke Joseph Francis, the son of Archduke Joseph.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MEN LOST ON THE ONDINE

PARIS, Oct. 14—(AP)—Funeral services were held today at Brest, Toulon and L'Orient for the 43 men who lost their lives in the sinking of the submarine Ondine. Meanwhile the ministry of marine announced that its investigation of the sinking would be pushed vigorously.

Minister Leygues had a long interview with the Greek minister to Paris as the result of which the latter, Nicolis Politis, agreed that the steamship Alkaterini Ocylandris would be held at Rotterdam until the French are satisfied that the investigation of its collision with the submarine is completed.

The torpedo boats Tourareg and Hova and the submarine C-104 returned to Vigo today after an extensive search of the vicinity of the disaster which discovered no sign of wreckage or survivor. The training ship Edgardquinet paid last honors to the dead seamen over the spot where they went down.

ARRANGING FOR FUNERAL OF FORMER EMPRESS OF RUSSIA

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 14—(AP)—Funeral services for the former Empress Marie of Russia, who died at her residence here yesterday at the age of 81, are being arranged at the Russian church in Copenhagen.

The late empress who was the wife of Czar Alexander II and mother of the ill-fated Nicholas who was killed in 1918, died after a lengthy illness. Apparently she remained firm in her belief that the royal Russian family still was alive and would some day resume their rule in Russia.

A mass was celebrated last night by Pastor Koltscheff in the preserve of the late empress' nearest relatives and her Russian servants. Only a few days ago, realizing that the end was rapidly approaching the empress bade farewell to the captain of her Russian guard who had guarded her for many years.

HUNTERS IN ADIRONDACKS FOR OPENING OF DEER SEASON

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 14—(AP)—An army of hunters was encamped throughout the Adirondacks tonight awaiting opening of the deer season tomorrow. Scores of sportsmen have been coming into the mountains for several days by automobile and train.

Virtually every guide was engaged weeks ago and tonight were with their parties which they will post on favorite runways in the morning. Game protectors believed that the deer number favorable with the herds of former years. High winds and heavy rains during recent nights have in many sections of the mountains taken down much of the foliage, making hunting conditions ideal.

ANNIE RAMPOLLA FATALLY INJURED BY AUTO TRUCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 14—Annie Rampolla, ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rampolla of 20 Mansfield avenue died at St. Joseph's hospital at 11:30 o'clock this morning as the result of injuries sustained at 8:50 o'clock when she was struck by a two-ton Reo truck owned and operated by Leander H. Sherman, 39, of Bridgeton, R. I., near the southeast junction of Bridge and Main streets, on Main street. The little girl, with three companions, including two younger sisters, was on her way to attend mass at St. Joseph's church and was carrying prayer-beads and a prayer book which were found at the scene of the accident. According to Sherman and other witnesses, the child started across Main street from the corner of Bridge street. When some four feet into the street she turned to talk to her companions who remained on or near the sidewalk. She was seen doing this by Sherman who began applying his brakes and claims he was traveling less han 15 miles an hour when the girl turned again and started running across the street. Sherman turned his truck sharply to the left and to the center of the street to avoid the child. The girl was hit by the right front fender and thrown to the concrete pavement, but apparently not being run over by the truck which stopped within 15 feet. She was picked up by Paul Fontaine of this city and rushed to the hospital in a car driven by Harry Dumas of Mansfield avenue. Dr. E. J. Ottenheimer who attended the child held no hope for her recovery. The girl had sustained a fractured skull, broken left leg internal injuries and multiple bruises. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason who notified Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson. At police headquarters, Sherman was held on a technical charge of manslaughter, awaiting the coroner's inquest which was held at three o'clock in the afternoon in the police court chamber. The witnesses, ten in number were: Harry Dumas, 166 Mansfield avenue, Daniel Pompei, 19 High street James DeMarchi, 100 Main street, Mary Sagal, 14 Mansfield avenue, chum of the girl, Peter Lavalley 20 Prospect street, Peter Domiani, 21 Johnson street, Dewey Mosse, 135 Chapman street, Paul Fontaine, 36 Pleasant street, Leander H. Sherman, driver of the truck and Officer Roderick Lariviere of the police department, who investigated the accident. One of the principal witnesses, Steven Cannon of Waltham, Mass., who was riding beside Sherman in the truck had gone on with the shipment of horses in the truck to Pascoag, R. I. Coroner Bill ordered the police to notify Cannon to appear at the coroners' office in Danielson Monday morning to testify in the inquest after which Coroner Bill will prepare his finding in the case. Later in the evening Sherman was released under bonds of $500 furnished by his mother. At the time of the accident Sherman was on his way from Stafford where he had been attending the fair to Pascoag. In the truck were three race horses and race-track paraphernalia.

EVEN 400 NEW VOTERS MADE AT SATURDAY SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 14—An even 400 new voters were made at the session held for that purpose Saturday by the board of selectmen and town clerk. Of that number there were 220 women. Another session will be held next Saturday, the final before the elections. At this coming session it is expected that a little over 200 additional new voters will be made bringing the grand total of new voters made at these two sessions and at sessions prior to the town elections earlier this month to between 1,150 and 1,200. On the present list of "to-be-made" voters there are 1,167 but it was explained by the registrars, A. Linn Weatherhead and Thomas A. Shea, that these names were taken during an intensive campaign for new voters and as a result many are duplicates while still others are names of people who do not desire to be made voters and therefore will not appear to qualify. Saturday's session was in charge of the selectmen, William A. Buck, Jeremiah Healy and C. Arthur Keeney and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton.

LESTER FILES CLAIM FOR REWARD IN BANDIT CASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 14—Harold Lester of this city is one of the four claimants for the reward of $1,000 offered by Governor John H. Trumbull at the request of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer or slayers of State Policeman Irving H. Nelson at Pomfret on April 6. Lester, aged 16, alleges to have identified Albert J. Raymond, jointly accused of the murder with Roland G. Lalone, in a police line-up at Springfield as the driver of a Willys-Knight sedan which stopped at the gasoline station operated by Lester's father in this city on the night of the shooting and that he gave valuable information to the police and valuable testimony before the grand jury. It has been stated from reliable sources that it was Lester's testimony of having seen at least one of the men in Connecticut that brought about an indictment by the grand jury. The other three claimants are all of Massachusetts. The first in the order of filing claims is Thomas L. Martin of Webster, a starter for the Acme Bus Line. Martin claims that he was notified that two young men had been taken to Worcester from Webster by one of the drivers, Frank Spiewakoski, also known as Frank Spinney, and that he imparted this information to the police. Raymond P. Gallagher of Springfield, Mass., the police officer who figured in a gun battle with Raymond and Lalone in Springfield on the night of the murder alleges that he identified the Willys-Knight sedan in which the bandits were riding and on the 9th of April he identified photographs of the two Worcester youths and later that day identified Raymond and Lalone in a line-up at Worcester.

The next in order is Harold Lester. The fourth claimant is Frank Spiewakoski, or Spinney, Webster taxi-driver who says that on April 9 he gave information that he drove two young men from Webster to Worcester and that as a result of this information the police were led to trail Raymond and Lalone to Worcester where they were arrested.

THREE INJURED WHEN CAR SKIDS AND OVERTURNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 14—Three young men, Joseph McAuliffe of 8 Russel Court, Middletown, Robert Stevens, 20, also of Middletown and freshman at Connecticut Agricultural college and A. Chabot of South Vine street, Meriden, were injured at noon Saturday when a Stutz roadster in which they were riding skidded on the wet leaves on the Storrs-Willimantic highway, just beyond Mansfield Center and overturned. The youths were rushed to St. Joseph's hospital in a car operated by Sydney Scheinman of this city, a sophomore at the state college who was first to reach the scene of the accident. The trio were on their way to Middletown where Stevens was to spend the week end. Stevens, who was the most seriously injured was treated for a severe fracture of the skull, painful lacerations, cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries. Chabot received a severe scalp wound. McAuliffe who was unconscious when taken to the hospital sustained bruises and a general shaking-up. Stevens, who with Chabot was joint owner of the car, is expected to recover it was stated today by Dr. E. J. Ottenheimer. It is thought that Stevens was driving.

DANIELSON

HERBERT TRACEY HELD FOR DEATH OF JOSEPH CARDINAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 14—On the order of Coroner Arthur G. Bill, Herbert Tracy of the town of Plainfield was taken into custody by state officers from the Danielson barracks today to face a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Joseph Cardinal, who died this morning at the Backus hospital in Norwich of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile on Railroad street in Plainfield about 7.30 last night. The driver of the car that struck Cardinal dashed off after the accident. What Coroner Bill's investigation of the affair revealed to bring about his order for holding Tracy was not given out today. It was understood here this afternoon that Tracy denies being responsible for Cardinal's death or that he was operating a car near where the accident occurred at or about that time. People who were near where the accident occurred said today that the machine that struck Cardinal was a man well along in years, was a Buick, but that they were unable to get the number. This afternoon bonds of $500 was being asked for Tracy's release from custody.

As was forecast the announcement that the Attawaugan hotel has been sold and is to be torn down has immediately been followed by widespread local discussion of Danielson's need of a modern and commodious hotel. And there the matter rests, at least for the time being. While it is unanimously agreed that a new hotel is one of Danielson's urgent public needs, there is no plan for getting one.

There are various viewpoints as to advisability of getting one through a plan followed by many towns and cities, formation of a stock company to be largely owned by local people. Some favor this plan, while others oppose it.

Those in opposition believe that the opportunity here is such that capable hotel interests could operate such a hotel as is talked of profitably, and the other side answers that if this be true, local stockholders would find shares a good investment.

At present there seems little prospect of anything being done about a new hotel during the current year. Possibly the winter season, after the first of the new year, may bring some developments. Meanwhile the new hotel project will remain a matter of lively interest to those who would like to see Danielson enjoy the advantages that such a house would give.

George Francis Gay, 70, a life long resident of this town, died this morning at his home in Dayville. Mr. Gay was for years engaged as a carpenter. He leaves his wife, a son, Harry, resident in New Jersey, and three daughters—Mrs. Gladys Derosier, Mrs. Edith Quintal and Mrs. Mildred Cote, all of this town, and a brother, William, of Pawtucket. There are also seven grandchildren.

On Saturday 178 persons, among them many women, were admitted as electors of the town of Killingly, the selectmen, registrars and town clerk holding an all day session in the town hall building. A great many who have filed applications to be made did not put in an appearance. There were on file when the officials started making voters Saturday morning 413 applications. Of these 265 were fro mthe first district, 127 from the second district and 20 from the third district.

The body of Mrs. Helen Mooney, who died in Detroit the past week, was brought here this afternoon in charge of L. E. Kennedy, who met a western express at Worcester. Mrs. Mooney, a young woman, was a former resident of the West Side.

Andrew Spellman, foreman for John Arborio of New Haven on the highway construction job on the Providence route, will be in the town court Monday to answer to a charge that he failed to grant the right of way when the motor car he was operating crashed with a car owned by Benjamin Stein of Franklin, N. H., and operated by his wife, Mrs. Clara Stein shortly after 11 o'clock Friday night. The accident occurred on the state highway north of Dayville Four Corners. Spellman was cut about the face in the accident and was attended by a physician. The car Spellman was operating was badly damaged, while the Stein car was jammed up to the extent of about $150.

From the various towns of Windham county delegates will come here Monday to attend the Windham County Council of Religious Education at the Westfield Congregational church. The assembly will be at 2 o'clock and there is to be a brief business session. Rev. Samuel F. Main of Attawaugan will lead in worship, the prayer of consecration to be by Rev. William Williams of Wauregan. The principal address of the afternoon session will be given by Rev. Robert Lowry Calhoun, Ph. D., of the Yale Divinity school.

In the gymnasium at 4 o'clock there will be a display of the handiwork of pupils who attended the vacation schools of the county the past summer, and also dramatized tales by Danielson boys and girls under the direction of Mrs. Wilfred Pinse. Divisional conferences and teaching demonstrations will follow.

Supper is to be served in the vestry. Thereafter a superintendents' conference is to be held in the Memorial library.

The evening service is to open at 7.15, with a song service led by Alfred P. Burns. The prayer of consecration at the offering will be by Rev. Albert Abbott, and Mrs. Harold B. Atwood will sing the offertory solo, Consider the Lilies. The address at the evening session will be given by Wallace I. Woodin, general secretary of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education. Rev. J. Reese Jones will pronounce the benediction.

The program is in charge of a committee representative of various churches of Danielson.

The woodcock shooting season will open on October 20, a date later than usual, but making the Connecticut open season conform with federal law.

J. Wayne Haskell is receiving registrations from those who wish to attend the Older Boys' conference to be held in Middletown, October 26, 27 and 28.

The work on the Providence highway improvement is now far advanced, though traffic is not yet allowed to use the new cut-off.

George A. Moulin of Woonsocket was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

The week day school of the Danielson Federation of Churches is again in session. The teachers and assistants are Miss Frances W. Danielson, Mrs. Harold H. Bigelow, Miss Gladys McEwen, Mrs. Burdette C. Hopkins, Ruth Shippee, Miss Phyllis Kenworthy, Isabelle Abbott, Mrs. Nelson Richardson, J. Wayne Haskell and Anna Conklin.

Today many of Danielson's streets were fairly carpeted with leaves that came down like rain in the storm of Saturday.

Miss Jewel Loughrey of Pawtucket was a guest over the week end of friends in Danielson.

Clergymen from communities in this section will be in Norwich Thursday and Friday attending meetings of the Norwich District Ministerial association in the Methodist church.

Officials of Killingly charged with the duty will again be in session next Saturday to make voters, this being the last chance before election excepting for those who reach their 21st birthday after October 20 and before November 6.

The Killingly Community band of Danielson will hold a rehearsal Tuesday at 8 p. m. in American Legion hall.—adv.

Members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Alban's church are to spend Monday evening at the Community house in Plainfield.

Mrs. Thomas Gorman has been visiting in Waterbury for a few days.

W. W. Reimer, Edward Bacon and Harold Ainsworth are to present a musical entertainment in South Killingly an evening this week.

Wonderful weather today brought out a stream of traffic comparable to that on a Sunday in mid-summer.

THREE AUTO ACCIDENTS IN DANIELSON SECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 14—Three automobile accidents in towns hereabouts occurred during the early part of this evening. At Plainfield John Kagan, a pedestrian was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Frank Franco of Providence. He was taken to the Day-Kimball hospital at Putnam, where it was found that he has a fractured leg, a fractured arm, a possible fracture of the skull, various cuts and lacerations and maybe internal injuries but it is believed he has a chance of recovery. Franko was not held by state officers investigating the accident.

At Oneco early this evening Lewis Butts of Moosup was arrested to face a charge of operating a car while he was intoxicated after he had caused the machine to turn over in an accident. Samuel Young of Moosup, who was riding with him, was arrested on a charge of being intoxicated.

At Witter's corner on the Brooklyn-Wauregan road this evening cars owned by Mrs. Mabel Leavens of Brooklyn and Octazier Varier of Chadwick avenue, Hartford, were in collision and although the cars were considerably damaged their occupants escaped serious injury. Varier was placed under arrest by state officers and will be charged in court with failure to grant half of the traveled right of way.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Yvonne LeHoux

A sudden death at the home on the West Side during the early hours of Saturday was that of Mrs. Yvonne LeHoux, 33, wife of Albert LeHoux. Mrs. LeHoux had worked in the mill all day Friday and did some housework at home during the evening, retiring apparently in her usual good health. She became ill about 1 o'clock Saturday morning and died within a few minutes. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Bassilion and was a native of Danielson. She leaves her husband, a son and a daughter.

Leon Gover of Millbury, Mass., was arrested here this afternoon for speeding on his motorcycle after he had raced past the state police barracks on North Main street. State Officer Elton Nolan found that Gover was operating the machine under a Massachusetts driver's license. Gover explained that he had purchased the machine at the submarine base and was on his way home with it. He is scheduled for a court appearance Monday.

PUTNAM

GUY PELUSO FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO KILL WIFE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, October 14—Guy Peluso, an Italian resident of the Manahansett section of the city is at the Putnam police station under arrest, after an unsuccessful attempt Saturday night to kill his wife with a butcher knife.

Peluso was arrested late Saturday evening by Officer Alphonse Dubrieul of the Putnam police after a telephone call was received from Mrs. Peluso, who was on the verge of collapsing after she fortunately escaped from the hands of her husband, who had vowed he would take her life before Sunday morning.

Officer Dubrieul went to the home in the little textile section in the south end of the city. After gaining admission to the house he found the would be killer in his kitchen reading a foreign newspaper. He inquired of the man if he knew of any trouble reported to have occurred in the vicinity of his home, but Peluso denied having knowledge of anything startling. Officer Dubrieul made a search of the house and while doing so noticed Peluso reach for his overcoat, in the pocket of which was a large knife. Peluso threw the knife into a darkened ante-room and refused to get the instrument for the policeman. His was taken to the local police station. Officer Dubrieul returned to the home and found the long blade behind a piece of furniture.

Mrs. Peluso in her story to the police Saturday evening said that the man became engaged over an argument and drew the weapon after she refused to agree with him. He chased her out of the house, she seeking refuge at the home of a neighbor until her husband had calmed and had returned ome. He will be arraigned in police court Monday morning.

MARTINE BOY IS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, October 14—Peter Martine, 14 of Park street, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, recovering from the effects of a 22 calibre bullet that accidentally entered his head Friday afternoon while he was playing with a number of boys in the state park at Priest Island. Young Martine it was said is in a serious condition, although hope is held out for his recovery by the hospital officials.

Martine with his associates went to the island during the early afternoon to play, as there was no session of school. Each of the boys had an air rifle, while Jack Lord had a 22 calibre rifle belonging to his older brother. The gun was alleged to have been empty and the boy though it perfectly safe.

During an episode of a "western thriller" young Lord pointed his gun between the left cheek and nose of Martine. He pulled the trigger and the boy fell to the ground. The youths became alarmed and rushed for help.

Fortunately a man, whose name was not obtained, was in the vicinity of the shooting, and he helped take the youth to the Day Kimball hospital where an operation was performed at once in an effort to save the boy's life. The bullet was removed from the back of the neck, more than five inches from the point where it had entered Martine's face.

Captain William Jarvis of the Putnam police made an investigation of the accident, learning that Lord had fired the shot, unaware of the fact that there was a cartridge in the barrel of the weapon.

Tournament time will be returned to flower on October 29, when the Masons and the Elk clubs of the city meet again over the card tables for the first evening of play of the third annual gathering of indoor sports.

The clubs jointly have appointed a committee to assume direction of prying off the lid and begin the series of weekly encounters. Those on the committee are: L. H. Mellor, Sr., A. S King, and Dr. H. W. Sharpe for the Masons, Omer J. Milot, George Lewis, Jr., and James H. Rafferty for the Elks.

Ralph E. Thurston, superintendent of the Putnam plant of the Eastern Connecticut Power company and James Doake, gas engineer at the local plant returned Friday from Atlantic City, where they have been attending a convention of the American Gas association.

Miss Madeline Houghton of Grove street was at her home over the week end. Miss Houghton is a student at Dana hall in Wellesley.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Carver of School street were in Hartford Saturday and Sunday attending a convention of the Fuller Brush company.

Putnam today loses claim to one of Windham county's oldest citizens when George Pettis, 93 years of age, renounces his claim to the old Pettis homestead in the Gary district and with his son Elmer Pettis removes to North Grosvenordale to take up his new residence, a farm which he had recently purchased. Mr. Pettis was born in the part of Pomfret, known as the Gary district, 93 years ago. This stretch of land was later set off from the mother town to become a part of Putnam. Mr. Pettis is still a picture of health and daily goes about his farm chores. Each day he walks into the business center of the city and does his shopping, buying up his needs and returning afoot to his home, which is nearly a mile and a quarter from Putnam.

Friday Mr. Pettis was driving his horse and team, and had as a load, a number of his light farm implements. His horse became frightened at a passing automobile while on Main street and balked. Some observant person on the sidewalk dashed into the street and grasped the rein, restraining the animal thereby preventing an accident to the elderly gentleman.

Mr. Pettis expressed himself today as still being a resident of the town of his birth as he expected to cast his vote in Putnam on November 6th.

Dr. Tanner of Danielson was operated upon this afternoon at the Day Kimball hospital.

William S. Johnson of Grove street is planning to spend the winter months at his home in Florida. He expects to leave Putnam with the next fortnight.

It was said in the democratic circles Saturday that harmony will be experienced at the town caucus to be held Tuesday evening. As planned now only the name of Leon A. Talbot, Putnam business man, will be presented for candidate to the house of representatives and the remainder of the ticket will be as last year. Until today there was no prospective candidate seeking the party's nomination for the office of judge of probate, it being evident that the name of Judge Henry N. Benoit, republican, will be endorsed by the party.

Judge E. O. Yeomans of Hartford will open the special civil session of Windham county superior court at Putnam on Tuesday. There are several cases on the docket. It is also said that a special criminal session will be held during the day as there are a number of cases demanding immediate attention of the court that cannot be held over until the January session. Court will convene at 10.45 a. m.

F. Gordon Caffery of Bryant Stratton business college of Providence was at his home on Pomfret street Sunday.

There was a waiting line of would-be new voters when the board of registration, composed of Selectmen W. E. Pierce, Edward P. Girard and William P. Warren together with Town Clerk Henry N. Benoit, met in session at the municipal building Saturday to administer the electors oath.

At the close of the day 186 new voters were enrolled on the town lists bringing the total number of full fledged voters to 596, since 408 new vote casters were made at the September session of the board of registrars. It was impossible to determine the number registered upon the party caucus lists since all did not declare themselves, To all those who have not as yet been enrolled as voters an opportunity will be afforded them, as well as those who will become 21 years of age before November 6. The date for the last session of the board of registrars will be announced at a later date.

The enrollment of voters this year is by far the largest ever made in Putnam before the history of balloting.

The installation of officers of the Cargill council, K. of C., was held at the lodge rooms here this afternoon. District Deputy David Desorier of North Grosvenordale and staff were the installing officials.

The newly elected lodge officials for the ensuing year installed in office: Grand knight, Henry N. Benoit; deputy grand knight, Thomas Igo; chancellor, Joseph Boye; warden, Joseph Riley; financial secretary, William Desaulier; treasurer, James J. Charron; recording secretary, F. Gordon Cafferyy; inside guard, Camille Brodeur; lecturer, Francis Murphy; advocate, John McCauley; outside guards, Michael D. Hannifan, Timothy J. Hannifan; trustees, Bernard J. McGarry, Michael L. White and Armand Montville.

Putnam will not see the Hoover special train bearing Republican Presidential Nominee Herbert Hoover, when he arrives in Worcester tomorrow (Monday) to address throngs at the railroad station, as the train will go directly from Springfield to Worcester, and will not pass over the Hartford route as originally planned, thus cutting off Putnam from the list of cities the nominee will visit while on his trip to Boston.

The hunting season was opened at full blast Saturday, despite the adverse weather conditions. During the day considerable partridge and pheasant were bagged by local shooters, as well as countless number of the smaller game. The first Saturday of the season found the woodland areas in this vicinity well patrolled with members of the staff of County Game Warden J. Fred Ash, who were on the watch out for violators of the game laws.

Hunters reported today that the hunting grounds are unusually well provided with game, much to the credit of the North Eastern Fish and Game club members who directed the distribution of the birds furnished them by the state department of fisheries and game.

Richard McCauley of Church street left Saturday for a visit with relatives in Torrington.

Miss Katherine Byrne of Hartford spent the week end at her home on Seward street. She will return to her office at the state republican central committee headquarters in Hartford Monday forenoon.

Miss Isabelle Byrne, an official of the Sloan hospital in New York city is visiting with her sister and brother Miss Katherine and Daniel Byrne of Seward street.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Muior of Lee street, with Mr. and Mrs. Felix Caplette of School street motored to North Chelmsford, Mass., Sunday.

WESTERLY

ROOF OF MITCHELL HOUSE ABLAZE FROM CHIMNEY SPARK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 14—The Westerly fire department responded Sunday, about 5 p. m., to an alarm from Box No. 26, Park avenue and Spruce street, for a roof fire. The fire apparently caught from a chimney spark on the roof of the house at 46 Summer street, occupied by Alexander Mitchell. The firemen made short work of the blaze.

MRS. SARAH J. DOTY DIES FOLLOWING AUTO ACCIDENT

WESTERLY, Oct. 14—Town Councilman Isaac G. Smith met with a serious accident Saturday shortly after 10 o'clock when the automobile driven by him towards Providence skidded and turned around in the state highway near Pocasset bridge. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Sarah Jennie Doty, who made her home with him at 134 Granite street, received injuries which resulted in her death from a fracture of the skull about 5 p. m. at the Rhode Island hospital, Providence, where she was taken. His wife, Mrs. Helen Smith, a patient at the Jane Brown hospital, is reported in a critical condition from possible injuries to her spine, three broken ribs and possible internal injuries.

The accident, which occurred on Reservoir avenue, Cranston, was one in which three cars were involved, one driven by Richard Ward, Jr., formerly of Westerly. Both he and his father, Wilfred Ward, were in need of medical attention. Councilman Smith sustained injuries to his back and several cuts and bruises. As the result of Mrs. Doty's death, Mr. Smith was given a hearing last night at the Knightsville station of the Cranston police on a technical charge of manslaughter. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $2,000 bail for trial on Nov. 14. Mr. Smith is a member of the Smith Granite Works of Westerly which also own and control the New England Granite Works. Councilman Smith and wife, and Mrs. Doty, left Westerly yesterday by automobile on a business and pleasure trip to Providence. Mr. Smith and Mr. Ward, Jr., were questioned by the Cranston police. Ward said he was turning into the west center lane to pass an automobile when he saw Smith driving toward him in the east center lane. He said he saw the Smith car, a big sedan, skid, and the right rear end of Smith's car struck the front of his car. The right rear wheel of Smith's auto was smashed and the car overturned coming to rest on its right side. Mrs. Doty was the widow of Amos W. Doty of Providence. Before her marriage she was Sarah J. McDonald, born in Nova Scotia. Years ago Mr. Doty was first mate on a Stonington to New York steamer. Doty died in 1900. Since then Mrs. Doty had made her home in Providence and Westerly, the past seven or eight years being spent with her daughter, Mrs. Smith.

She is survived by two brothers, Gordon and William McDonald, residing in the Dakotas. The two Smith children, Isaac, Jr., and Gordon, sons of Councilman and Mrs. Smith, were at the home of Misses Mary L. and Ruth C. Burdick and Carl E. Burdick, 9 Dixon street, yesterday, when the accident in which their parents were involved occurred.

Among a number of automobile accidents about Westerly, Saturday, was one involving Joseph Phaneuf, a sailor attached to the submarine base, and Orrin McCormick of Boston, who were injured when the automobile in which they were riding overturned on Brightman's Hill, between Hopkinton and Hope Valley. Both were taken to The Westerly hospital, where Phaneuf was found to have sustained several fractured ribs. McCormick was severely shaken up and had minor lacerations on his face. After receiving first aid treatment, he was able to return to his home. The two men said the accident occurred when their car skidded on a steep hill. They were attempting to pass a truck. The crew of the truck brought them to the hospital.

George VanBuren of Stonington reported to the Westerly police department Saturday night that while his touring car was parked about half way up High street toward Grove avenue, while he attended the theatre, a new spare tire was stolen.

Oct. 11. John J. and Myrdell M. Gourlay sold to Thorp and Trainer, Inc., land on north side of Tower street bounded northerly and westerly by land of the grantee and westerly by land of the grantors.

Thorp and Trainer, Inc., sold to John J. and Myrdell M. Gourlay above described tract of land.

Lorin G. McLaren sold to Etta M. McLaren tract of land on the south side of Granite street and adjoining land formerly of Osborne W. Marriott.

Etta M. McLaren sold to Loren G. McLaren above described tract of land.

Oct. 12. William Riddell transferred to his wife, Mary L. Riddell, undivided one-half interest in tract of land with house and improvements on the east side of Beach street, bounded northerly by lands of T. T. Picard and easterly by lands of Charles Perry.

WEDDING

Algiere-Perra

Saturday morning at 9, the marriage was solemnized at the Church of the Immaculate Conception of Miss Rose Perra, daughter of Joseph Perra of Bradford, and Angelo Algiere of 2 Batterson avenue, Westerly. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M., who also celebrated nuptial mass. Solos were sung during the service by Martin H. Spellman. The wedding marches were played by Mrs. James McMahon. Miss Rose Falcone was maid of honor and Joseph P. Salimeno was best man. The bridesmaids were Misses Margaret Pignataro, Bamby Vita, Clara Capalbo and Lena Perra, while the four ushers were Angelo Algiere, Angelo Pucci, Angelo Verono and Anthony Terranova. Virginia Algiere and Rose Manfred were flower girls and Anthony Marsiglia was ring-bearer. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin. Her lace bridal veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried white roses. The maid of honor was gowned in pink satin, with velvet black and pink hat, and she carried pink roses. Following the ceremony at the church, a breakfast was served at the groom's home, 2 Batterson avenue. In the afternoon and evening, a reception for several hundred relatives and friends was held at Champlin's Hall. Music for dancing was by Turco's orchestra. Mr. and Mrs. Algiere left Saturday night on a wedding trip to New York. Upon their return they will reside at 2 Batterson avenue.

Mrs. Job Thorp and daughter, Miss Mary T. Thorp, of Providence, were guests Saturday of Westerly relatives and friends

Westerly radio fans listening in Sunday afternoon to messages concerning the Graf Zeppelin, giant dirigible enroute to Lakehurst, N. J., gave up hope of seeing the big blimp when at 8:30 p. m. word was received which gave the airship's location as 80 miles south of Bermuda and heading offcourse in a southwesterly direction to avoid head winds.

Battery E, 243rd, R. I. C. A. C. (H. D.) stationed at the Rhode Island state armory on Dixon street, Saturday evening held a largely attended dance, the first in the winter series. There has recently been added eight men to the battery membership, bringing the total number of members up to the required 57.

Automobile traffic through Westerly continued very heavy over the week end, with just a little let up on the stormy Saturday. Cars of Massachusetts and N. Y. were a long way in the lead in numbers.

George W. Austin, 58, died at his home, 158 High street, Saturday evening after a brief illness. Mr. Austin has ben connected with the Smith Granite company and New England Granite Co., as foreman for the past thirty years. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Louise M., and two sons, Charles W. and George W. Jr.

NOANK

WHALL OF A BLACKFISH SURPRISED MATE OF CLIMAX

Boat Climax with Capt. Jimmie Hempstead at the wheel and Mate Spike Panciera went to the Race Friday morning early to try for blackfish, as the season is opened now. The lobstermen said, "Plenty of blackfish when it is a poor lobster season." Putting down the anchor in the mud, the two blackfishermen were all set, with ten boats all around them and the fun started when Captain Jimmie got a good-sized one and they were hauling them in fast, like picking cherries in July. Mate Panciera said, "I think Columbus day has brought us luck!" Mate Spike soon got a bite which he thought was a small swordfish; Mr. Blackfish gave a quick pull on the hook and Panciera went overboard, but held onto the line, kicking off his rubber boots to make himself lighter. Captain Hempstead had to help his mate out of the October water and get him safe on the deck of the good ship Climax. It took the two fishermen to haul in the blackfish which proved the largest one ever brought out of the water around Fishers Island. Putting it on the scales at Kenneth Steele's market, it weighed 18 1-2 pounds; also it had an extra fin, something strange on a blackfish. It was 11 1-2 inches long. Mate Panciera is some proud fisherman to bring in the largest blackfish. He said, "I will make a blackfish chowder for a party of friends from Newark, N. J." They got 210 pounds of blackfish for one day's fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. Benny Benoit have returned from a week's vacation in Providence.

Angus Grant has gone to Philadelphia for a few days' visit.

PAINTERS' BRANCH GIFT T. PAL RALPH PACKER

Ralph Packer is a young fellow who wanted to see the world. He was a first-class painter for the Branch Co. in West Mystic, and was never afraid to climb. He went up 225 feet in the air to paint a ball on a flag pole. Coming down to work one morning he told Foreman Ernest Branch, "I am getting through and going in the fish business with my old school pal, Harry Treat." So Friday evening at the home of M. Ovaitt he was given a party by the associate workers of the paint gang. The room was all decorated with yellow lilies and red roses. Twenty guests from out of town were present. Games were played and West Mystic Jazz orchestra furnished music for dancing. The Painters' trio, Ned Robertson, tenor; Robert Tooker, baritone and C. T. Wilson, bass, sang "Good Bye, Dear Friend, Good Bye," with M. Ovaitt at the piano. O. Bradshaw gave the guests a thrill by playing on a banjo with his toes, "Sidewalks of New York." He received a great hand. The table was set with Pomford Cove duck and chicken and Miss Nellie Overall was the cook. M. Ovaitt made a speech and said "We are here tonight to give a fellow workman a real send-off, to see the world—going to the big city, New York. It is first time in New York to sell Noank fish. Don't get your mouth sun-burned looking up at the tall buildings! In behalf of the Branch Painters I present you this traveling bag and wish you success in the fish business in New York." Mr. Packer said, "I thank you all and am sorry to leave such a fine bunch of fellows!" A large cake was baked by Miss Julia Cross; on the top was "Farewell to our friend. Luck and Happiness." The orchestra played as everybody sang "Geel What a Pal Was He!"

Columbus day in the fishing village was a holiday, the stores closed for a half day and the school children were let out at noon. Flags were flying to the breeze to honor the man who discovered America in 1492. Many went to New London to see the big parade when 7,000 took part.

GURLEYVILLE

The Eastern Conn. Power Co.

Danielson, Conn.

THE Maytag is so much faster, so much easier to handle, so quiet and smooth-running, so thorough, so remarkable in every way that the most forceful way of convincing the housewife is to let her do a washing with it.

The Maytag Company originated the seamless, heat-retaining, non-breakable, cast-aluminum tub, the gyrafoam washing action, and many other outstanding washer improvements.

The Maytag deserves an opportunity to demonstrate how it will save you time by doing an entire washing in an hour or so, save your health by making hand-rubbing of badly soiled clothes unnecessary, save clothes by its easy way of cleansing by soap and water action alone, and by its Roller Water Remover, with a soft top roll and hard bottom roll.

Deferred Payments You'll Never Miss

ANOTHER COOLIDGE ACCOMPLISHMENT

During the summer, in connection with his duties, it was pointed out by Budget Director Lord that the prospects for government receipts in view of the appropriations which had been made left the government facing a deficit of $94,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year.

In view of the stand which had been consistently taken by President Coolidge, nothing of that kind could be expected to get his sanction. It was inevitable that he should, as he did, begin an immediate study of the situation and call upon the heads of the various government departments to do their utmost with the idea of avoiding any such an outcome. President Coolidge has persistently fought a deficit. He has advocated a policy that would prevent it, and, even though it might not be possible to estimate accurately so far ahead concerning unknown conditions, he was not willing to take any chances that the books would not balance at the end of the year. He insisted that it should be insured by keeping down expenditures.

It is therefore a pleasing announcement which comes from Washington to the effect that the president's efforts to wipe out the threatened deficit will succeed. It is what was to be expected in view of his attitude on such a matter, for an administration which has been ever opposed to such a condition could not be expected to accept such a prediction without a vigorous opposition. That was the manner in which the president met it. He got, as in the past, the hearty cooperation of the department heads. They have been alert to economies but they have been able to accomplish more when forced to it, with a certain amount of help coming from the shipping board. That is one of the avenues through which the government is in the business of owning and operating merchant vessels, but when the board disposes of vessels which were being kept and run at a loss it not only helps the federal treasury but it gives the proper encouragement to private enterprise.

This successful fight against a deficit is another Coolidge accomplishment which the country will applaud.

MR. SMITH ON THE TARIFF

Rushed into the south, the first time such a thing has been done by a democratic presidential candidate, for the purpose of trying to check democratic defections, Alfred E. Smith talked about the tariff in his Louisville speech.

He made an attack upon Secretary Jardine of the department agriculture for what he terms a misrepresentation. This was based upon what Mr. Smith had to say in his speech of acceptance concerning the tariff. Mr. Smith didn't repeat to his audience what he said in that acceptance speech but his words were: "The democratic party does not, and, under my leadership, will not attempt any sudden or drastic revolution in our economic system which would cause business upheaval and popular distress. This principle was recognized as far back as the passage of the Underwood tariff bill. Our platform restates it in unmistakable language."

The principle he refers to of not causing a drastic revolution in our economic system as recognized by the Underwood bill is what Secretary Jardine was taking exception to for the Underwood bill withdrew practically all tariff protection to farm products, admitting them free, and caused a depression in business that was only checked by the opening of the war which in itself was the highest kind of a tariff wall.

Secretary Jardine pointed out that if such a democratic policy concerning the tariff was to be put into operation and rates reduced to "the schedules of the Underwood act as the governor forecasts in his acceptance speech the entire farm industry will be thrown into a state of utter demoralization."

That acceptance speech concerning the tariff has caused as much uncertainty as that concerning the farm issue. Mr. Smith has tried several times to show where he stands but he hasn't been able to make it clear about the equalization fee. There was a confusion of views with those of Chairman Raskob and the same situation developed concerning the tariff. It was only six years ago that Mr. Smith was publicly declaring the protective tariff to be a "cold blooded and deliberate holdup." In his acceptance speech he endorsed the Underwood low tariff bill. Mr. Raskob has been trying to explain that away, but Mr. Smith hasn't withdrawn his acceptance statement concerning it as yet. He has taken so many positions regarding the tariff that he causes confusion both in and out of his own party.

WET AND DRY LEAVES

This is the season when leaves are falling in countless number and there is justification for the warnings that are being issued concerning them.

As the season advances there will be a steadily increasing flood of them and it is none too soon to bear in mind the menace which they hold for the drivers of automobiles and the danger which they furnish from the standpoint of fires.

There are enough highway accidents any day in the week without having the number increased because of the failure to anticipate the tricky situation that is presented by leaves. This is accentuated during rainy weather or when what may appear to be dry leaves on top proves to be water soaked leaves underneath. When wheels encounter such slippery combinations there is apt to be trouble not dissimilar to the glare ice which occasionally covers the highway as light rain falls. The sudden application of brakes where wet leaves are involved adds to the uncertainty of what the result may be. The danger from wet leaves also faces the man at the controls on electric cars.

Wet leaves do not present a fire danger. The menace in that respect comes from the dry ones. There would not be many woodland fires if the leaves and underbrush were wet all the time. It is because they are dry and serve as the best kind of material for starting a fire that it is so important that those who go into the woods, or those who travel the highways, should avoid throwing matches or discarded smoking material into them. We cannot harbor the idea that there are many who start out with the idea of causing woodland fires. For the most part it results from thoughtlessness. A cigarette is thrown aside, a burning match is dropped, the live coals from a pipe are knocked out and it isn't long after such acts that a fire which grows rapidly in proportions is going. Those who drive along country roads may heedlessly throw a cigarette butt from an automobile. The act of discarding it is simple, but if it lands in a bed of leaves at the roadside it provides all that is needed to cause no end of trouble, destroy property and perhaps take human life.

While leaves are a recognized menace in these respects, it cannot be overlooked that their danger can be greatly minimized by the use of proper care. With such in mind the number of accidents and fires from them can be decidedly reduced.

THE SHIFTING VOTE

In connection with the figures which are presented in the Literary Digest's poll, reference is frequently made to the indication "that many more former Coolidge voters have shifted to the democratic side than former democratic voters have shifted to the Hoover side."

This is about the only consolation that the democrats have been able to get out of the poll thus far and it would appear that Mr. Smith was getting more of the republicans than Mr. Hoover. When the figures show that the voters cast their ballots for Mr. Coolidge four years ago it doesn't necessarily mean that they were all republicans. It is no secret that there was a large number of voters who had hitherto been democrats, who still consider themselves democrats, but who voted for the republican president because they were disgusted with the manner in which the democratic convention at New York conducted itself. They were dissatisfied for one reason or another and displayed it by voting the republican ticket.

They figured in the heavy republican vote in 1924 and it is to be inferred that while they voted for Coolidge four years ago they are now voting in the poll as democrats, which they will probably tell you they have always been. It is impossible to overlook this in connection with the indication of a greater shift of former Coolidge voters to the democratic side than of democratic voters to the Hoover side.

AN EARLY START

The good news that came from South America a few days ago concerning the resumption of diplomatic relations by Chile and Peru is now followed by discussions concerning the boundary issue between the countries has been resumed with the outlook favorable for an adjustment.

This is getting down to business early. That it has been helped by the work which has been done by this country in its endeavors to bring about a settlement cannot be questioned. It will undoubtedly replace the American boundary commission, which hadn't given up its efforts, but which has suspended its labors for a period four months to give the countries every opportunity.

The desire of this country has been to see the long standing dispute settled. It was ready to do everything possible to help and has done so in the face of discouraging prospects. That it has not succeeded has not been because it wasn't willing to resort to any feasible method, but because of the animosity that prevailed between the countries. It helped nevertheless to bring them to a realization of their ridiculous situation and to grasp the fact that they ought to get together and do heir own adjusting.

That the move now underway may succeed is to be sincerely hoped, both for the good of themselves and the termination of an unpleasant situation among the South American nations. Whatever is done for the peace of the world, even though indirectly accomplished, must be looked upon as worth while.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Talk about the world's series dwindles daily.

For those who have to rake them up the beauty of the leaves departs just as soon as they leave the trees.

Apparently New York doesn't pay much attention to the rotten stuff being sold there until humanity dies from it in considerable numbers and in a short time.

How worried the democrats are about the solid south being broken is displayed by the unprecedented action of the democratic candidate going south.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

When cleaning windows in cold weather use alcohol instead of water.

The smaller the clam the finer the flavor.

Corn should be strictly fresh for canning.

Hot fat will not penetrate food which has been dipped in egg.

Soak diced cucumbers in salted water before using them in salads.

Sweet green peppers and celery added to cold slaw make it delicious.

When grinding dry bread crumbs tie a paper bag over the outlet of the grinder.

Marks of hot dishes may be removed from varnished tables by applying sperm oil.

Oil paintings may be cleaned by rubbing with a piece of raw potato and then wiping with a soft cloth.

Fill very wet shoes with crushed newspapers, which will absorb the moisture and leave the leather soft and pliable.

To keep oilcloth looking bright rub occasionally with liquid wax and polish with a flannel cloth.

After cleaning mirrors or window lights with a chamois rub them with a soft cloth to make them shine.

After grating lemon peel let the grater stand until dry and it can be easily cleaned with a brush.

Tomatoes are easy to peel if they are first placed on a fork and held over a low flame until the skin breaks.

A little salt added to the berries when making huckleberry pies will improve their flavor.

When the steel knife blades become stained you need only work the blades in the ground a few times and they will be clean.

GELATINE SALADS.

All left over fresh fruits and vegetables can be used to advantage if you put them immediately into a gelatine salad. Chill and serve at the next meal. Even berries are excellent in salad.

GAS GLOBE.

A small wire hairpin slipped over the edge of the gas globe will prevent it from cracking when the gas is lighted.

OIL THE HINGES.

If the oven door squeaks rub a little lard on the hinges and you will have no further annoyance.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Wash your bath sponges thoroughly every few days. Use either milk or boiling water with some diluted tartaric acid. Rinse thoroughly and dry in the sun.

Cold baths are the wake-up baths. They are wonderful and highly invigorating to those who can stand them. The best test of your ability to stand the cold bath is your own condition when you come out. If your skin is pink and glowing you can continue to take them. If however, you are cold and blue you had best forego them.

Mothers object to boiling baby's milk because this process lessens the vitamines, but this slight loss can easily be made up by the orange juice and in older children by increasing the daily amounts of vegetables and fruits. So be on the safe side and boil the baby's milk.

The unfortunate mother whose child cannot digest milk without serious harm to its system will probably find that goat's milk will agree with the child. It is much more easily digested, and it is worth the trial at any rate.

GAY LITTLE SCARF.

The boarding-school and high school girl will appreciate the gift of a triangular-shaped scarf of white crepe de chine with a band of red about it. In one corner is a motif done in red chain-stitch embroidery.

COLOR IN THE BATHROOM.

Even so prosaic a thing as the long handle of the bath-brush has now been dipped in color and it is possible to carry out a cherished color scheme in the bathroom even to the smallest details.

CLOTHES SAVINGS.

If you plan to have some attractive house frocks that you can put on as soon as you come in from shopping or work, you will find it far easier to always look neat and well-groomed when going out. Changing shoes also is a good economy measure.

TESTING JELLY.

Insert a silver fork for testing of jelly. When the jelly does not run out of the tines it is done. Remove the pan of jelly from the stove during the test.

INDIVIDUAL POWDER PUFFS.

CLEANING SPONGES.

To whiten and purify a sponge soak it in milk and rinse thoroughly in warm water to which a little carbolic acid has been added.

WHEN GRATING RIND OF LEMON

When grating the rind of lemons or oranges be careful not to grate too deep, for the white skins of these fruits have a bitter taste.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

The newest arrival will be warmly and becomingly shod in adorable bootees of angora.

Felt persistently continues to be the important fabric with soleil achieving only a second place in popularity.

A smart little dress for all-day long wear, which has the added merit of a short jacket attached, is of tweed.

A step-in of string colored lace has the added charm of appliques of green taffeta in the shape of bunches of grapes.

A very new buckle for daytime wear on pumps consists of four cream-colored stones giving a corrugated or fluted effect.

Dress bags and hat covers are now made in a transparent fabric and are quite interesting and colorful.

Velvet forms the draped crown of a new variation of the beret, with a tricot band fitting snugly about the hairline.

A new shoe for suit wear is a trim one-strap sandal with the quarter and tip of grey lizard and the shank of black patent leather.

Black and brown are the most accepted shades and reach the peak of approval in millinery, while blues and reds are included in the autumn colorings.

Python, a new, glossy shoe medium, now fashions pumps, purse, a belted hat-band and a buckled belt for early fall modes.

A variation of the popular tennis sock of the summer is stocking of beige, silk, with a foot of white lisle, and a turn-over part of gray or white lisle.

For evening wear one of the new metal hats will add a note of chic. These hats are of an open-work mesh which is very light and cool upon the head.

A candy striped dimity, red and white, makes a charming frock for a little girl, especially when the collar and cuffs are embroidered and buttonholed in red.

NEW NIGHTROBES.

Many of the newer nightrobes are belted with self-material or ribbon, and hemlines are approaching the knees, especially when the dipping back movement is in evidence. But when the nightrobe is of the usual length, and the negligee much shorter, the gown is worn bloused above the belt at the waist, thus making the two hemlines more nearly the same length.

NEW SATIN NEGLIGEE.

Satin has come into its own this season and both lingerie and frocks are developed in this lovely medium. A graceful negligee seen recently was made of satin a lovely shade of rosy beige, trimmed around the wide sleeves and hem with wide bands of cafe au lait chiffon.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Some household cleanser or salt sprinkled over a doubled newspaper is, says Los Angeles Times, excellent for cleaning off the soiled iron. Rub the hot iron over it several times, then over a clean cloth before ironing.

Wash delicate fabrics in bran water.

Never wring or rub silk stockings when washing them.

If wrappers are removed from soap it will harden and last longer.

CARPETS ARE BECOMING POPULAR ONCE AGAIN

Carpets, popular a decade or two ago, are coming back, and today we find the floors of many of our modern homes thus covered once more.

A few years back when we first learned there were such things as germs and microbes those in a position to know decided that covering the entire floor space of a room with a carpet was an unsanitary measure. Today, however, in the opinion of experts, conditions have changed.

It is now permissible to use full floor covering. The vacuum cleaner has made this possible and has done away with the ancient idea that carpets are unsanitary.

Carpet makes the most satisfactory floor covering known. It has beauty and charm and with proper choice one can create almost any color effect or scheme desired. Delightful harmony with furniture and wall coloring can be obtained in this way.

WHEN PLANTS DROOP

If house plants droop from no apparent cause and refuse to thrive, try watering them solely by pouring warm water into the saucers every day. Plants love bottom heat, and it will sometimes give them a new lease of life.

USE BLACK BEDDING

By using black sheets and pillow cases instead of white, an Italian physician reports good results in persuading unruly insane patients to go to sleep. The doctor, says Popular Mechanics, declares that the plan is effective with sane persons in insomnia cases.

PEEL POTATOES THIN

Do not take too thick a paring off potatoes. The best part of the potato is near the skin. On the other hand, paring from turnips should be thick. The turnip has an outer part that destroys the flavor of the whole if not thoroughly removed.

A BUTTON HOLDER

Keep a jelly tumbler near the washtubs and put in it any buttons that may come off in the washing or wringer. Then you are sure to have them when mending.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Miss Gladys A. Taylor, recently made assistant advertising manager of the United Fruit company, has charge of all the passenger traffic advertising of the company.

Quite a number of women are now found in the government offices in Shanghai, China. They do clerical work mostly, but a few are in positions of higher responsibility.

Dr. Louise Lammert, the first German women to receive an international scholarship since the war, has left Berlin for Australia, where she will spend a year in meteorological research work.

Miss Madge J. Reese, of the extension service of the United States department of agriculture, will visit Hawaii for the purpose of teaching Hawaiians American methods of home-making.

The Begum of Bhopal, who recently abdicated her throne in favor of her son, has given the whole of her private property, worth more than $50,000,000, for organizing a campaign throughout India for the propagation of Islam.

A MASON JAR

A glass jar is nice to have in the refrigerator to hold the cleaned lettuce and parsley. They will stay wonderfully fresh therein.

SHOE RACKS

One's closet can be kept much more meticulously if a slanting six-inch board is attached along the edge of the baseboard for a shoe rack.

Stories That Recall Others

Why He Won

Bob, a little chap, was just beginning to study "moods and tenses" in school and as yet the whole grammar was about as clear as mud to him. In describing a race he had with another boy in which he was the winner, he said: "I was running swell, in fact I was just in the 'verb' to run."

The Reason

The pupils in the first grade had been learning the difference between "love" and "like." The next day little Robert came to school and made the statement "I just love milk."

Jimmie spoke up quickly, "You can't love milk, you mean you like it."

"No, sir, I love it," replied Robert.

"But you can't love milk," the wise one replied, "it doesn't have a neck."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—Decidedly, a policeman's lot is not a happy one in Washington.

There are altogether too many complications for his comfort, what with the special privileges of government officialdom, legislative, executive or judicial, as well as the immunities of the diplomatic corps.

Who knows what all powerful senator of member of the house may be in any speeding machine, pulled up for the usual "bawling out"—It pays to be cautious and that seriously hampers traffic regulation and also the pursuit of bootlegger suspects.

Diplomatic Immunity.

The greatest source of trouble, however, is the diplomatic corps; that little group of official guests of the government resident in capital but who carry with them the sovereignty of the flags they serve. Of all the 120,000,000 or so folks in this wide land, they alone are legitimately outside the law of the land, exempt from arrest, beyond police authority. The only recourse of the police is to let him go and report his infraction of law to the state department which in turn, if it sees fit, takes the matter up with the government involved. In cases serious enough to warrant such action, the department withdraws its acceptance of that individual as a member of the diplomatic corps. There remains no option for him then but prompt return to his own country in disgrace.

In years gone by there was little trouble from this source for the Washington police.

Since the advent of the motor car and of prohibition however, an ever increasing list of traffic violations of actual or suspected evasions of the dry laws have been piled up by the police in letters to the state department and a number of familiar faces have vanished from the fringes of the diplomatic circle from time to time.

Tags Identify Cars.

To ease the situation a little as to identification of diplomatic motor cars, district officials group the yearly identification tags for these machines within a certain bracket. They do the same thing, to an extent, with cars of government officials of various sorts, so a traffic officer knows what kind of a political potentate he may have to deal with.

The diplomatic tags, however, form a wonderfully desirable cloak for bootlegger operations if use of the cars in off hours can be obtained through servants or other non-immune employes of the diplomats, and for that reason they are run down relentlessly if they fall under suspicion. Frequently the officer finds no warrant for his suspicions and merely gets into hot water for interfering with the car occupant who is making legitimate use of his diplomatic privileges.

But there have been other times when observation of diplomatic cars or a watch on the quarters of the lesser diplomatic fry have been rewarded by evidence that impecunious attaches have fallen victim to the tempting source of revenue provided by improper use of their status. In such cases, the offending official invariably, and usually by voluntary action of the minister or ambassador under whom he served, has been promptly banished home with as little publicity as possible; but with official decapitation awaiting him at the other end.

YOUR HEALTH

WARNING SIGNS OF HEART DISEASE.

By Robert H. Langley, M. D., Los Angeles.

A well known authority on heart disease states that over ninety per cent of those who believe themselves victims of heart trouble have normal hearts. While this may be an exaggeration, it is nevertheless true that many people are needlessly concerned about their hearts. If for any reason you think you have heart trouble, direct yourself to a good physician and let him be the judge. Do not worry needlessly about a mere possibility, but by all means insure yourself of a correct diagnosis in case of doubt.

It is well to note that practically every symptom and sign associated with heart disease may be produced by some other disease. Symptoms actually coming from the heart, itself may have their origin in some other organ. In other words, the heart may be affected only secondarily.

There are many warning signs given out when the heart is distressed. It is quite evident then that the warning signs should be read accurately and this can be done only by a physician.

Symptoms are either those of (1) early heart failure, (2) moderate or slowly progressive heart failure or (3) those of a badly damaged heart. Some of these signs are felt by the person himself, while others are more evident to those around him.

After recovery from any severe illnesses, one should go to his doctor and find out whether the infection damaged the heart and whether or not any of these early signs are present. One may overtax or strain a weakened heart without knowing it. A little added rest period after a serious illness may serve to avoid a permanently damaged heart.

Neuralgic pains in the muscles and slight, vague rheumatic joint pains should be thoroughly investigated. They may be early warning signs of rheumatic heart disease. Children do not have the so-called growing pains without some reason. In other words there is no such pain associated with normal bodily development and growth. Too often mothers are apt to accuse a child of being lazy and always complaining when the fact is he is really ill and suffering from rheumatic heart disease in its beginning or in a mild form.

The cause of rheumatic fever has never been discovered, but we are quite certain that it is a germ disease and that it probably enters the body through infected and enlarged tonsils and adenoids, or through decayed or infected teeth. It is quite possible that the germs of this disease may be carried in the tonsils and teeth without causing rheumatic fever until something lowers the vitality of the system. This gives the germs a chance to get in their deadly work. Any infection such as severe colds, influenza, pneumonia, etc., may give these germs an opportunity to work damage to the heart.

Doctor Found Women And Children Sick More Often Than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or this coupon brings a bottle for free trial:

CHILD TRAINING

RETALIATION

Pauline Herr Thomas

Mother and Daddy had been trying to grow a front lawn for three years. Each spring fresh seed had been sown and each fall the grass was a sorry sight.

"We simply cannot get our lawn started. With these children it is impossible," said Mrs. Blank. "They have lots of room in the back yard to play, but they insist upon rolling and tumbling right here. We sprinkle it every day, but it never really has a chance to grow.

"Sonny, come here! For the last time, I'm telling you and the boys to stay off that grass. The first one I catch on it will go out of the yard for the rest of the day!"

As soon as Mrs. Blank and I went into the house, the boys were back on the lawn again. They were unafraid, because Mother's threat was an old one. She might just as well have added: "I don't mean a word I say."

When I left they were trying to outdo each other at somersaults all over the grass, a very healthful exercise for young boys but most unhealthful for a young lawn. Yet they had a spacious place all their own for such play and upon it was a newly built aeroplane and an improvised tent.

A few days later I heard the sequel to this episode. After I had left, Mother and Daddy began to discuss the lawn problem. They reflected that the boys expected the consideration of Mother and Daddy for their property in the back yard. Why, then, did they fail to return that same consideration with regard to the front lawn?

Mother suggested that they point out the unreasonableness of this state of affairs to the boys, instead of threatening punishment that never was inflicted and then enlist their interest by getting them to help start the lawn again and take care of it. But Daddy had a more drastic plan. He said: "I'll teach them a lesson!" In some heat he went out into the back yard and deliberately overturned aeroplane and tent; in fact, he made general havoc.

The boys arrived after the damage was done. They stormed in to Mother. "Somebody's smashed our aeroplane, and torn up our tent!"

Said Father, who was waiting for them, "Yes, boys, I know all about it. I did it myself."

"You see, boys, it seemed only fair that if you would destroy the lawn Mother and I were growing, we could destroy the things you were building."

The plan worked. The boys stayed off the lawn. But Mother maintains that the boys have lost just a little respect for Daddy since he lowered himself to destroy their property. She believes her plan would have been better for, as concerned Daddy undoubtedly admits—to himself—that it would have been very difficult to do that bit of destruction had his anger not been the urge.

The question is, can there be any sound value in the sort of punishment which, to inflict, requires the lowering of one's self-respect?

The automobile is causing the gradual disappearance of the top hat, according to a London hat manufacturer. The tall hats are impossible for motoring he said, and soft hats are crowding them into the background. He said that the top hat will never be as popular as it was before the war.

RABALM ENDS PAINFUL SWELLING LEGS AND FEET

"For years I suffered from excruciating pains in my feet. As my daily activities necessitated long standing, it became almost unbearable. After trying innumerable remedies, I was persuaded to try Rabalm. The result was amazing. After using it for a few months, the pain and swelling disappeared entirely and there has been no recurrence of former conditions," writes Mr. B. J. Pendleton of J. C. Shepherd Meat and Grocery Co., Gloucester, Mass.

If you are tormented with painful swellings, (arthritis) in your legs and feet, if your legs at times are red, swollen and painful or your toe joints swollen, stiff and so tender you can hardly touch them and shoes cause terrible pain, you too, like Mr. Pendleton, can obtain the great joy of relief by using Rabalm. Two sizes, 60-cents and $1.00 containing 2 times as much. RABALM is for sale by all druggists.

ARTHUR M. BROWN TO HEAD SALVATION ARMY APPEAL

Arthur M. Brown will head the committee of the Salvation Army appeal, for this year's maintenance fund in Norwich, it was reported Sunday by Campaign Secretary McCabe. Mr. Brown is sincerely interested to see the charitable and humanitarian work of the Salvation Army continue during the year, and he promised Campaign Secretary E. J. McCabe that he will do all in his power to help make the campaign a success.

Campaign Secretary McCabe and a committee of Norwich citizens visited Mr. Brown to ask that he serve as chairman of the appeal committee for the Salvation Army this year. The delegation were delighted with the kind reception they received at the hands of Mr. Brown and at his wholehearted enlistment for the help of the Salvation Army by accepting the chairmanship of the campaign.

On leaving Mr. Brown's office, Mr. McCabe, highly elated, said: "It is the usual way; if you want something done enlist a busy man to do it. Arthur M. Brown has been very kind to us in previous years. He is one among a number of charitable Norwich citizens who have been a tower of strength in maintaining the Salvation Army work in Norwich for the past number of years. In the short time that I am here I have interviewed a number of Norwich public-spirited people to form a committee to help in the campaign, and so far the result has been highly gratifying. I shall be able within the next few days to make a public announcement of the names of the kind citizens who have entered in the service of the Salvation Army. The kindness and interest of the Norwich public in the charitable and humanitarian service rendered by the Salvation Army in Norwich is an inspiration to me in my campaign work. I am ever glad to come to Norwich knowing that I am among kind people and hospitable friends, ever ready to support me in my work of the organization."

It is the intention of Mr. McCabe to institute a mail campaign so as to conform with the suggestion of the committee of Norwich friends of the Salvation Army. The committee who have volunteered to assist in the appeal are in the hope that Norwich people will respond generously and willingly to the appeal of the Salvation Army and will send in their contributions by mail.

The date of the appeal has not as yet been decided. It will probably be set for about the end of the month, or as soon as the campaign organization is completed. One of the prominent members, who has volunteered his services on the campaign committee, said: "The Salvation Army has a great number of friends among Norwich citizens who are familiar with the good work the organization is doing in our city among deserving poor and the help which it is rendering to the sick who find themselves in distress and have nowhere to turn for assistance. It fills a need in our city and renders a service which no other organization does or can perform. The passing stranger who finds himself stranded in the midst of our city, usually finds a willing friend in the Salvation Army worker. The poor but deserving family, afflicted with misfortune owing to no fault of their own, can in their suffering and distress confide their misfortune to the Salvation Army, knowing that they will be received with human sympathy and Christian kindness and charity and will be extended a helping hand. They can come to the Salvation Army and tell their plight without losing self-respect and without being humiliated by unsympathetic reception. The Salvation Army workers are ever ready to receive the sufferer with self-sacrifice, offering religious and material assistance, peace of mind and the alleviation of suffering inasmuch as there is in their power, and often beyond that. They are ever ready to save the sufferer from the despair which unfortunate circumstances contributed to his lot. I therefore feel that any service and assistance rendered to the Salvation Army is a performance of the noblest kind of unselfish and humane duty."

FUNERALS.

Miss Augusta R. Tilden.

At 2.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon the funeral of Miss Augusta R. Tilden was held at her home, No. 74 Pearl street, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted the service. The burial was in North Coventry cemetery where Rev. Mr. Dunbar conducted the committal service. Undertakers Church and Allen had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mary Wujcik.

Funeral services for Mary Wujcik were held at her parents' home, No. 21 Starr street, Saturday morning at 7.15 o'clock and was followed by a requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church. Rev. S. A Iciek, pastor of the church, was the celebrant. J. Hanc presided at the organ. The bearers were Joseph Chmielewski, Kazimiere Wons, Julian Socha, Wladyslaw Zalonc, Stanlet Makrwlecki and John Kralewski.

The burial was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery and the committal service was conducted by Rev. W. J. Tonor. There were many relatives and friends present, some coming from Blackstone, Webster, Woonsocket, R. I., and Jewett City. The floral tributes were beautiful and numerous.

Miss Wujcik is survived by her parents, two sisters and three brothers. She was employed at the Carpenter mill. Her co-workers sent a beautiful floral form and also attended the funeral.

Miss Lillian F. Hall

Many relatives and friends attended the funeral of Miss Lillian F. Hall which was held at her residence, No. 57 Division street, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, conducted the service and also the committal service at Maplewood cemetery. The bearers were Harry Messier, William Baldwin, William and Kenneth Hall, Raymond Boynton and Raymond Gottschalk. There were numerous and beautiful floral tributes and the funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Church and Allen.

FINED FOR FAILURE TO GRANT RIGHT OF WAY

In the city court Saturday morning, Charles Holden, 16 year old auto driver, was fined $20 and costs on a charge of failure to grant the right of way to a machine driven by Daniel E. Rogers early Friday evening. As the result of the crash three persons were slightly hurt and both machines badly damaged. The accident occurred at the junction of Broadway and Williams avenue.

NORWICH BOARD MADE VOTERS AT RATE OF ONE PER MINUTE SATURDAY

The Norwich board for making voters put in an eleven hour session Saturday and made voters at the rate of about one a minute for that period, as a total of 657 men and women had been made voters when the work for the day was done.

The first three voters to be made were all from the fourth, or Norwich Town district: Charlotte C. Lamb of 15 Town street, Kezia Whiteley and Nellie Buckley, both of Yantic. Ellen Tongren was the first voter made from the third, or Greeneville district; Susan M. Baldwin, from the fifth, or Taftville, district; Anthoni Chalecki from the second, or West Side district; Halsted Redfield from the first, or central district; and Timothy Falvey from the sixth, or East Side, district.

The time for the board to be in session had to be extended an hour beyond the assigned closing hour at 8 o'clock at night and it was not until a few minutes after 9 that the last group of applicants had taken the oath before First Selectman William S. Murray in the common council chamber at the court house which was used for the work of the day.

Practically all day long, there was a line of waiting applicants, which extended out into the hallway from the common council chamber and when the closing hour of 8 arrived at night there were still a number in the council chamber and others outside in the hallway.

First Selectman Murray directed that all in the hall or building should be served before the board adjourned for the night and had Superintendent J. J. Fields close the common council room doors after the waiting group had been brought inside. Then the board, consisting of Selectmen Murray, Charles H. Bushnell and P. T. Connell, Town Clerk Harold S. Burt and Registrars Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes completed the work for the night.

During the day, a number were found who could not qualify because of inability to read the English language and several could not be made because their applications had not been presented in time. One woman had to be refused because she had removed from this town to an adjoining town within the last few weeks.

As there were 3,189 names filed of applicants to be made voters and there are three regular days assigned for this process, it is apparent that at least 1,000 names per day will have to be handled if all the applicants appear to be made. This hardly ever happens, however.

The board worked at top speed all day Saturday and did the work expeditiously in making the following 657 voters.

Charlotte C. Lamb, 15 Town; Kezia Whiteley, Yantic; Nellie Buckley, Yantic; Ellen Tongren, 85 Hickory; Susan M. Baldwin, Taftville; Mary E. BERGHINZO CARRIES BALL OVER TWICE AS ACADEMY BEATS C. G. JRS.

Heads-up football by "Chet" Berghinzo, right end, gave the Academy a 12 to 0 victory over the Junior Varsity outfit of the Coast Guard Academy of New London Saturday afternoon at the campus. The game was played for the most part in a heavy drizzle and consequently the attendance was limited.

A 25 yard forward pass by Jack Marks, the neat catch by Berghinzo and a run of about 25 more yards gave the Academy its first score about midway in the first quarter and when Berghinzo scooped up a Coast Guard fumble and ran 35 yards in the closing minutes of the third period the Academy completed its scoring for the day. Both tries for extra point by dropkick were unsuccessful, the boot going considerably off its mark.

The Academy was forced to fight on even terms with the New Londers for about the first six or seven minutes, that is, while the score was in a scoreless tie, in fact, it might be said that the Academy got a bit the worst of it for these initial moments of the struggle but once the Wildcats had scored they were a different club and for the rest of the game easily played the better football.

The Academy was against a strong defensive team that generally threw back any line thrusts but clever use of the forward pass tool and the Red and White's own impregnable defense play gave them the verdict. The Whalers seemed big and powerful enough to make short work of the young Academy team but they lacked any real offensive drive, so got little from their physical advantages.

The Academy's line played a fine game, time and again breaking through and throwing the visitors for big losses. Freddy Fox and the two ends, Berghinzo and Tombari, were the big guns, although nothing can be said against any of the rest.

The Academy's running plays were not up to standard of last week but the loss of Capt. LaCroix with two broken ribs and the absence of Jack Marks, for over half the tilt, with an arm injury accounted for much of this defect. These two boys are the main power for the Wildcats and both are expected back before long.

This Saturday the team plays Warren Harding at Bridgeport in the first of the major games and what should prove the stiffest test to date.

Academy Loses in Cross-Country

The Academy lost the cross-country run to Chapman Tech, 32 to 25, although Navick of the locals finished a good distance in the lead. His time for the two mile course was 12 minutes, 58 seconds. Summary:

SOCCER DISPUTE MAY BE TAKEN TO COURT

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—The next few days may bring decisive developments in the soccer war between the American Soccer league and the United States Football association.

At swords points ever since the league suspended three of its members for entering the national tournament sponsored by the football association, both organizations were threatening today to take their dispute to the courts for settlement.

The league suspended Bethlehem, the New York Giants and Newark about a month ago for filing entries in the tournament after the league had voted not to participate. The three clubs then announced they would form a rival circuit and the American league prepared to continue in operation with an eight club organization, whereupon the football association took a hand and suspended the league when it refused to reinstate the three suspended teams.

Fearing they would be ruled ineligible if they continued to play league football, the manager and all the regulars of the New York Nationals resigned last Thursday as they were to take the field against the Brooklyn Wanderers. Any further wholesale resignations like that will threaten the very life of the league, observers believed. There were reports here that Bill Cunningham, president of the league, would take his case to the courts.

Meanwhile the three suspended clubs already have formed a new eight club circuit, calling it the Eastern Soccer league, and played their first games yesterday.

MORTON BEATS McKAY FOR CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP

Dave Morton is the champion golfer of the Norwich Golf club, having beaten Eddie McKay 2 up in the title match played on Sunday afternoon at the course. Morton takes the title vacated by Sam Wilcox, who is now located at Wilmington, Del., and a student at William and Mary college. To Morton rightfully belongs the title as he is really the best golfer of the club but he did not win his crown without a struggle, as McKay gave him plenty of competition right up to the 17th.

In the first 16 of the Labor Day tournament, Dr. E. C. Kirby beat C. A. Gager 4 and 3 to win the first prize. In the consolation eight, Louis Gunson was the winner, beating Ben Gaines 4 and 2.

AMERICAN HOCKEY LOOP WILL OPEN THANKSGIVING

HARTFORD, Oct. 14—(AP)—The American Roller Hockey league will open its season Thanksgiving week, the exact date to be determined later, and will operate for 20 weeks. This was decided at the annual fall meeting of the club owners, in this city tonight. Bristol, Hartford, Waterbury, Meriden and New Britain were represented. Applications for franchises were received from Albany, N. Y., Providence, R. I., Fall River, Mass., New Haven, Conn., New Bedford, Mass. and Springfield, Mass. No action was taken on these applications, a committee being appointed to investigate conditions in the cities before a decision is made. It is probable that the Bristol club will be transferred to another city.

PUTNAM HIGH WINS FROM CHAPMAN TECH

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, October 14 — Putnam high school's gridiron eleven held high their colors Saturday afternoon when they hung a 12 to 0 defeat upon Chapman Tech of New London in their third football encounter of the season. The Putnam high boys got away to a flying start and defended their goal posts valiently all thruout the game, played during a heavy rain storm.

Putnam kicked off to Chapman and recovered the ball on second down when Chapman fumbled. The first touchdown of the game was made by Hayden Franklin of the Putnam gridsters, when he caught a pass and ran 20 yards. Shann, the Putnam whirlwind succeeded in scoring the extra point.

In the last quarter of the game Shann again starred by obtaining the ball on the forty yard line and tearing down the field, with excellent interference for the last touchdown.

Chapman outweighed the Putnam team by several pounds and were heavily handicapped by the weight on the soggy field. The Chapman game was accredited with being the most talked of football classic this season, yet the visitors were helpless against the working of the invincible Putnam line and plunging backfield.

Putnam's record of three straight victories in three games played with no points scored against them is unequalled by another high school team in eastern Connecticut. They will match strides against Coach Finnegan's flying "Green Backs" of Bartlett high school, Webster on next Saturday afternoon.

FARRELL SETS COURSE RECORD AT SPRINGHAVEN

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14—(AP)—Johnny Farrell, National open golf champion broke the course record of the Springhaven Country club today by shooting a 69 during a series of mixed best ball foursomes.

Playing with Helen Payson, Portland, Me. the Quaker Ridge professional went out in 37 and made the homeward journey in 32. They defeated Bill Mehlhorn and Maureen Orcut 5 and 4.

Farrell and Miss Payson later were defeated by Walter Hagen, unofficial world's champion, and Glenna Collett, National women's titleholder, 3 and 2.

In another foursome, Leo Diegel National professional champion, and Helen Meehan of this city, were all even with Hagen and Miss Collett at the end of 18 holes. No extra holes were played. Hagen turned in a 70 for his round.

Diegel and Miss Meehan defeated Mehlhorn and Miss Orcut 1 up in the fourth exhibition.

YALE SUFFERS ONLY ONE INJURY WITH GEORGIA

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 14—(AP)— Yale gridders came through the Georgia game Saturday with only one injury reported. Loeser, who replaced Charlesworth at center, was laid up with a bruised shoulder.

This week Coach Mal Stevens has a stiff schedule planned for the Bulldog eleven. With the expectation of the Brown game this week, he will get in as many scrimmages as he can. The preliminary preparation for the Georgia game last week, Stevens was not able to get one day's heavy workout of the men of the first string squad. Scrimmages were planned for several days but owing to injuries and severe colds they were called off. This week expectations are that he will be able to have all the men, with the exception of Johnny Hoben, the quarterback, out for practice every day.

It is thought probable that Hoben, who is still limping with a strained leg, and Greene, who has had a broken finger and a bad cold, will be able to get into the lineup again Brown.

DREXEL HAS WON FOUR STRAIGHT GAMES

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—Reeling off four victories in a row, Drexel leads eastern colleges in football's won and lost column but high scoring honors thus far belong to Georgetown which has played but three games and won them all. Georgetown's 52 points against Lebanon Valley on Saturday raised the Washington institution's total for the season to 171. Lafayette, leader a week ago scored 28 points against George Washington for a season's total of 162. Third place in scoring is held by Pennsylvania with 147. Neither Georgetown, Lafayette nor Penn has been scored upon. Carnegie Tech with 142; Dartmouth with 120, and Syracuse with 104 complete the list of colleges with point totals over the century mark.

ROBERTO UNABLE TO MEET PAULINO THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—Paulino Uscudun, the Basque woodchopper, will have to find somebody else besides Roberto Roberti to fight at Ebbets field this Wednesday night.

Humbert Fugazy announced today that Roberto would be unable to meet the Basque and that he was making efforts to find an acceptable substitute. Fugazy said x-ray examinations showed the big Italian was suffering from fractures of two ribs and would be unable to fight for six weeks at least.

With this battle off the program the week's boxing card in the metropolitan district is somewhat scant. George Courtney, middleweight contender, takes on Wilson Yarbo, of Cleveland, at the St. Nicholas arena tomorrow night in what looks like the best match of the week.

LAFAY AND KAUFMAN TO FIGHT AT SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 14—(AP)—Frankie Lafay, of Albany, N. Y., and Joe Kaufman, of New York, have been matched for the ten-round main bout before the West Springfield American Legion in its first indoor boxing show of the season, to be held on Friday night. This bout takes the place of the originally scheduled headliner between Bobby Brown, of Lowell, and Frankie O'Brien, of Hartford. In Friday's semi-final, Jack Kiernan, of Long Branch, and "Dummy" Morell, of Waterbury, will clash.

Rangers Start Practice

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 14—(AP)—Manager Lester Patrick and the New York Rangers, winners of the Stanley cup last season, are to report in this city one week from tomorrow and start training for the approaching puck campaign. The Springfield Indians of the American Hockey league will also report here on that date and will train under the direction of Coach Frank Carroll, who has twice piloted the local outfit to the minor league title.

MARSTERS LEADS SCORERS IN EASTERN FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—Al Marsters, Dartmouth's great running back, heads the list of individual scorers in eastern college football ranks. Tied with three other men a week ago, Marsters took undisputed possession of first place when he tallied 19 points in Dartmouth's victory over Allegheny yesterday.

Ken Strong of New York university, holds second place with 39 points, 16 of which he scored in his teams victory over Fordham yesterday. Two points back comes Kumpf, of Columbia, while Llangmaid, Williams, Chimenti, Lafayette, and Moorehead, Carnegie Tech, are tied for the next place with 36 points.

BRITTON MATCHED WITH MEYER COHEN AT HOLYOKE

HOLYOKE, Mass., Oct. 14—(AP)—Jack Britton, former welterweight champion of the world, will appear in the ring bout at the Valley arena in Holyoke, on the 22nd, it was announced today. Britton, 43-year-old veteran of the ring, now attempting a comeback, will go against Meyer Cohen, rugged Jewish boy, in a ten-round bout at 150 pounds.

RACE BETWEEN RAY AND OUAFI ARRANGED

BOSTON, Oct. 14—(AP)—A race between Joie Ray and El Ouafi, French Algerian Olympic marathon winner, has been arranged for Nov. 24 in the Boston Madison Square Garden, officials of the garde announced today. Ray and his conqueror in the marathon at Amsterdam both recently turned professional.

Nat. Pro Hockey Opens Nov. 15

MONTREAL, Oct. 14—(AP)—The National Professional Hockey league will open its 1928-29 season on Thursday, November 15, and close Saturday, March 16. The schedule for the coming year was released for publication today.

The opening night's schedule lines up the teams as follows:

Each of the ten teams will play 44 games, half of them at home.

Capablanca and Rubinstein Win

BERLIN, Oct. 14—(AP)—Jose Capablanca, of Cuba, and Rubinstein, of Poland, were the winners in today's fourth round play of the international chess masters' tournament. Dr. Tarrasch, of Germany, was obliged to retire from the competition because of illness. His three games were ordered cancelled.

EASTERN FOOTBALL GETS MANY JOLTS IN SATURDAY'S GAMES

By F. G. VOSBURGH
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—At the whimsical will of the gods of the gridiron, the current college football season is piling up new and more jarring surprises with each recurring Saturday.

Among the latest "surprises" last Saturday were: Pittsburgh beaten by West Virginia, Princeton held to a scoreless tie by the University of Virginia, Penn state defeated by Bucknell for the second straight year and Washington and Jefferson beated by Duquesne.

Meanwhile New York university upset a supposedly strong Fordham aggregation 31 to 7 and Yale in easy manner avenged its solitary 1926 defeat by downing Georgia, 21 to 6.

Harvard walked to fairly easy victory over North Carolina by 20 to 0 with the aid of one big period in which all of the scoring was done. The Army-Harvard game of next Saturday at Cambridge took on added interest as a result of the Crimson's progress thus far and an overwhelming 44 to 0 licking the Cadets handed out to Providence college.

Some teams contributed their share of drama by the unexpectedly lopsided scores by which they won. In this list must be included the 46 to 0 lacing Holy Cross inflicted upon Rutgers at Newark and Syracuse's 58 to 0 walloping of Johns-Hopkins.

Other east wins which provided little more than good practice for approaching big games were scored by Columbia over Wesleyan, 31 to 7; Penn over Swarthmore, 67 to 0; Lafayette over George Washington, 28 to 0; Dartmouth over Allegheny, 37 to 12; Georgetown over Lebanon Valley, 52 to 0 and Carnegie Tech over Thiel, 45 to 13.

Others of the big fellows of the college football world were not so fortunate. For example, the usually powerful W & J, which fell before little Duquesne, 12 to 6, in a storm of upsets which appeared to center about the coal regions of Pennsylvania. Bucknell led by Capt. Eddie Halicki added to the surprises of this sector by a 6 to 0 victory over Penn state which seemed to indicate their win of a year ago was no fluke. It was the forward passing game that carried West Virginia, beaten previously by Davis & Elkins, to a 9 to 6 triumph over its old rival, Pittsburgh, one of the east's two leading teams last season.

Besides Princeton, which caught a whole team of Tartars in the 0-0 deadlock with the fighting eleven from Virginia, such outfits as Cornell and Brown found themselves up against less widely touted elevens which proved well worthy of their best. The Ithacans finally downed Hampden-Sidney, 18 to 6, and Brown turned back Dayton, 12 to 7. Lehigh was felled by little Gettysburg, 7 to 0, but Colgate properly chastised Virginia Poly, 35 to 14, for the beating it inflicted a year ago.

Among the small colleges there was plenty of excitement, high lights including Boston university's 25 to 0 victory over Vermont, which has yet to score a point in three games; Hobart's win over Union, 30 to 0; and C. C. N. Y.'s 38 to 0 score against St. Lawrence. Davis & Elkins, redoubtable conqueror of West Virginia, and the Navy romped rampant over Bluefield college, a fellow West Virginia institution by 76 to 0, the biggest college score of the day in the east.

Sets Endurance Record

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14—(AP)—The world's endurance swimming record, long the property of women paddlers, today was broken by a man, Jimmy Cherry, former navy swimmer, who remained in an outdoor pool here 65 hours and two minutes.

Has Perfect Season in Field

James F. Murphy, who was leading batter of New London City league last year, was the leading infielder of the league this past season, with a percentage of 1.000.

Yankees Beaten

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—Benny Friedman's Detroit team of the National Professional Football league, defeated the New York Yankees today, 25 to 12. Friedman scored two touchdowns and kicked three points after touchdown.

ALLEGE UNDUE INFLUENCE IN MRS. LESTER'S WILL

Hearing on the contested codicil of the will of Mrs. Frances Lawley Lester, whose residence was at 25 Warren street, this city, and who died in the Samaritan hospital at Troy, N. Y., is scheduled for this (Monday) morning at 11 o'clock before Hon. Nelson J. Ayling, judge of the probate court. Mrs. Lester, widow of Daniel M. Lester, left an estate valued at approximately $100,000, and her will drawn in July 1927, left Mrs. Abby Maud Parker of Brooklyn, N. Y., a favorite niece, a bequest, said to be in the neighborhood of $50,000. Several months ago Mrs. Lester was taken to the Samaritan hospital, Troy, and admitted as a mental patient, according to depositions taken before Surrogate Chester G. Wagner at Troy, this part of the testimony of the superintendent at the hospital.

Mrs. Parker died July 5 last and on July 12 a codicil was added to Mrs. Lester's will which provided that five-eighths of the legacy left Mrs. Parker, should go to Dr. Thurman A. Hull Mrs. Lester's attending physician in Troy.

The contestants, DeForrest Dawley of Ottawa, Can., a nephew of the testator and his mother, Mrs. Emma Clark Dawley of Brooklyn, a sister of Mrs. Lester allege that undue influence was invoked at the time the codicil was drawn and that Mrs. Lester was not of sound mind and not of testamentary capacity.

Three depositions were taken in surrogate's court at Troy last week preliminary to the hearing in probate court here. Miss Mary McLoughlin, X-ray technician at the Samaritan hospital and assistant to Dr. Thurman Hull, stated in her deposition that Dr. Stanton P. Hull, a brother of Dr. Thurman Hull, guided Mrs. Lester's hand while she was affixing her signature to the codicil. Dr. Stanton Hull holds the office of Rensselaer county clerk and is prominent in northern New York republican circles. Mrs. E. L. Morgan, assistant superintendent of the hospital, in a deposition declared, Mrs. Lester was irrational at the time the codicil was drawn.

Witnesses to the codicil besides Miss Mary McLoughlin are Dr. H. E. DeFreest and Dr. Schuyler McC. Martin, all of Troy, the latter being associated in X-ray work with Dr. Thurman Hull. The third deposition was by Attorney A. A. Armitage of Troy, who drew a codicil which was never executed.

There will be at least 12 witnesses called by both parties involved. Norwich beneficiaries under Mrs. Lester's will are: Miss Mary D. Sullivan, Mrs. Frederick H. Cranston, Fannie B. Wright, Susanne H. M. Lester, John B. Stoddard. Their legacies under the will proper are not affected by the codicil.

Additional bequests left Dr. L. G. Walker of Norwich, who attended Mrs. Lester in this city, and Fannie B. Wright, are affected by the contest.

Charles L. Stewart of this city is the attorney for DeForrest Dawley and Senator Robert R. Lawson of Brooklyn, is counsel for Mrs. Parker. Andrew B. Davies of this city is the attorney for Dwight L. Underwood, executor of the will and codicil and other proponents of the codicil. Associated with him as counsel is John P. Taylor of Troy.

WEDDING

Keeley-Morrill

James D. Keeley and Miss Florence E. Morrill were united in marriage Saturday evening at 7.30 o'clock by Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt, pastor of the Central Baptist church, at his residence on Broadway. They were attended by Miss Lucy DiCarlo and the bride's brother, Kenneth Morrill.

The bride wore white georgette and carried a bouquet of roses and carnations. Her gift to the bridesmaid was a beaded bag and the bridegroom's gift to the best man was a cigarette case.

A reception and supper was held at the newly furnished home of the couple at 9 Fountain street Mr. Keeley, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keeley of Garfield avenue, is employed as a weaver at the Hallville mills. The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Octave Morrill and has been employed at Woolworth's.

FELL FROM LEDGE OF A SIXTH FLOOR WINDOW

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—An attempt to climb along a four-inch ledge from one window to another of a sixth floor apartment in 46th street ended fatally early today for Norman L. Sarginson, a theatrical producer of Atlantic City, N. J. He plunged to the ground and died in a hospital.

Police said Sarginson was a guest at a party in the apartment of Mortimer Wiske, an advertising illustrator.

FOOTBALL TRADITION FELL SATURDAY

By ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14—(AP)—Football reputations and championship laurels, usually safe enough through the October stakes of the gridiron grapple, have been blown away thus far like so many autumn leaves in the wake of a swirling cyclone.

The latest series of skirmishes, among other surprising events, witnessed the downfall of two 1927 championship arrays: Pittsburgh of the east and the Texas Aggies of the southwest: Michigan's second setback, at the hands of Indiana; and the Naval Academy's third successive shutout, where Notre Dame romped off with the decision over the storm-tossed midshipmen before an astonishing as well as record breaking crowd of 122,000 spectators in Chicago's famous lakefront stadium, Soldier Field.

The Pitt Panthers, who carried the eastern banner to the far west last year as the climax of a great season, fell before the onslaught of West Virginia, 9 to 6, while the powerful Texas Aggies were blanked, 6 to 0, by Centenary's "gentlemen."

It's a strange season that finds two such ordinarily top ranking elevens as Michigan and the Navy without a victory to their credit by the middle of October. In fact the odds against such an occurence.

The Wolverines have been topped twice in a row, by Ohio Wesleyan and Indiana, while the sailors have failed to tally a single point in losing to Davis and Elkins, Boston College and Notre Dame.

The greatest crowd in American football history poured into Soldier Field, didn't have much to get excited about but it saw Knute Rockne's Ramblers nevertheless outplay the Navy by a margin more decisive than the 7-0 score indicated. Notre Dame, late 12 to 0, beaten badly the week before by Wisconsin, shows signs of staging a comeback, with at least two horsemen who know how to ride through an opposing line in Chevigny and Niemiec. As for the Midshipmen, they are still at sea.

All told close to 200,000 spectators alone witnessed big college games in the Chicago area yesterday with 35,000 viewing Iowa's defeat of Chicago and nearly as many more seeing Ohio State trample on Northwestern's big ten title hopes at Evanston.

Southern elevens, after gaining a running start in the tussle for intersectional honors, fared less fortunately in their latest forays. Vanderbilt kept up its march by taking the measure of Texas university, while Centenary trimmed the Texas Aggies and Virginia gained moral satisfaction in the holding of Princeto nto a scoreless tie in one of Saturday's biggest surprises but otherwise the score board was not so bright.

Yale gained revenge for its 1927 setback at the hands of Georgia by muzzling the Bulldogs, 21 to 6, while Harvard beat North Carolina, 20-0, Colgate whipped Virginia Poly, 35-14, and Cornell university checked Hampden-Sidney, another Virginia array, 18 to 6. Centre wandered westward to take a 60-0 plastering from Missouri.

The big three of California football came through triumphantly in their latest tests, Stanford had a romp with the University of California (southern branch) but California was extended to beat the heavier Washington State eleven 18-3 while Southern California had its hands full beating the rugged St. Mary's team, 19-6.

Alabama looked impressive in the south, beating the Mississippi Aggies, 46-0, while Georgia Tech trimmed Tulane badly the week before by Wisconsin, shows signs of staging a comeback, with at least two horsemen who know how to ride through an opposing line in Chevigny and Niemiec. As for the Midshipmen, they are still at sea.

ADDRESS AND PSYCHIC MESSAGES WERE GIVEN

Both services at the Spiritual academy on Sunday were attended by large congregations who had gathered to hear Mrs. Oneita Norgraves of Boston, who gave two splendid addresses and followed these by unusually splendid psychic phenomena.

The messages were many, and were readily recognized, and in the evening service, subjects were taken from the audience and a most remarkable discourse given from them.

It was announced that the noted psychologist and astrologist, Rev. Belle Miller-Warner from Schenectady would

BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT IN DISTRIBUTION AND EXPANSION

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—The rising tide of business apparent in recent months became more marked last week with reports of wide improvement in distribution and continued expansion in several basic industries.

Total car loadings of revenue freight, as reported for the last week of September, for the first time this year exceeded the corresponding weeks in both 1927 and 1926. This is in distinct contrast to the unfavorable showing during most of this year.

The United States Steel corporation reported unfilled orders for the end of September nearly 76,000 tons greater than for the end of August and more than 550,000 tons greater than for the end of September, 1927. Acceleration of activity in steel mills was again apparent last week, as operations approached 90 per cent of capacity. Increasing orders from the railroads were a factor in the increase.

Some grades of pig iron and heavy steel displayed hardening price tendencies, while in the non-ferrous metals, copper held around the recently established high price of 15 1-4 cents despite some falling off in demand.

The automotive industry continued unusually active, although slightly under the peak established in September. Preliminary estimates for September production were somewhat under the August total, but the fewer working days in September were probably largely responsible for the small sag.

While conditions in the textile industry remained far from satisfactory, future prospects were regarded as considerably brightened. A reduction in the government's cotton crop estimate caused a firming of prices for cotton cloths, and the demand for dry goods generally displayed substantial improvement.

In Loving Memory of
WILLIAM B. JACKSON
Who passed away October 15, 1927

Sadly Missed by His Wife,
MRS. WILLIAM B. JACKSON,
Baltic.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of
JAMES DAY
Who passed away October 15, 1927

Just one year ago today,
Our beloved one passed away,
What would we give his hand to clasp,
His loving voice to hear,
His smiling face once more to see,
He whom we held so dear.
We're thinking of those days gone by
When we were all together,
But a shadow o'er our life has passed;
Our loved one gone forever.

Signed: WIFE, CHILDREN and GRANDCHILDREN.

NEW LONDON COMMITTEE COMMITS STEAMBOAT MAN TO NORWICH HOSP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 14—John Adams, 170 Hudson avenue Brooklyn, N. Y., employed on the Thames River line freight steamer, Cirisco, running between Norwich, New London and New York, developed a form of dementia Saturday morning when the freighter arrived at her pier here. So serious was Adams' condition that the master of the boat requested the police to take charge of the man. Adam was brought to police headquarters and locked up. Saturday night he was examined by a commission, who adjudged Adams insane and committed him to Norwich state hospital.

C. N. Rockwell, 854 Bank street, reported to the police Saturday night that his daughter's bicycle had been stolen.

Herbert D Utley, who was nominated for representative by the democrats of Waterford Friday night, is proprietor of a job printing plant in this city.

Gian Musante, critically ill at his home on Williams street, is reported today as being weaker and it is not expected that he will survive more than a few days. Mrs. Maria Condon, daughter of Mr. Musante, has been summoned to the bedside of her father and will arrive here Monday or Tuesday. Mr. Musante is junior member of the firm of Leverone & Musante.

OVER 700 VOTERS MADE DURING SATURDAY'S SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 14—Over 700 voters were made by Selectmen Lawrence S. M. Cook, William L. White and Ralph Wetmore at the municipal building Saturday. The board was in session from 9 o'clock in the forenoon until 8 o'clock at night and during that time their office was crowded with men and women seeking to establish their qualifications to become voters so that they may cast their first ballot at the national and state elections next month. Most of those to qualify were women. The board will hold another session before election day.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS IGNORED—DRIVERS POST BOND OF $5

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 14—The police started Saturday compelling drivers of automobiles to obey the recently erected automatic traffic signals, that have been set at Bank and Howard streets, Shaw and Truman streets and Bank street and Montauk avenue, and as a result of the watchfulness of the traffic officers, several arrests were made and the offenders ordered to appear in court tomorrow morning. The police contend that the only way to prevent accidents or bring them to a minimum is to compel drivers to adhere to signals. All the drivers were arrested by Traffic Officers Thoma and Dennis Cavanaugh and at Barr and Howard streets, where the drivers refused to heed a signal against their passing the intersection. The drivers are: Solomon Wiker, 199 Sachem street, Norwich; Alex Kovenciuk, Uncasville; Barbara Sexton, 189 Parkway; John G. Janson, 42 Alger street; Philip Brenner 53 Summer street, and Wagren W Hartwell, 213 Pequot avenue. All were required to post a bond of $5 for their court appearance. Others arrested for various violations of the city's traffic laws were Lawrence McEwen, 78 Montauk avenue; Emil Samuelson Mystic, and George S Montrello 5 Warren street. They each posted a $2 bond.

Dorothy Lewis, colored and residing at 211 Northe Bank street, with a long police court record for various offenses, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Motorcycle Officer Clarence Merrim when the woman was creating a disturbance in the vicinity of her home. She will be in court Monday.

Pete Agninaldo, United States Coast Guard academy, and Christy Dixon, he latter 56 and a carpenter, residing a 40 Bingham street, were arrested Saturday night charged with breach of the peace. Dixon and Aguinaldo, the latter a Filipino, who has gained reputation in the prize ring through his series of battles in New London and New Haven, engaged in a fight on Bank street at 11:30 o'clock and were arrested by Patrolmen William Manice and George Bruhns. Aguinaldo was held in bail of $50 and Dixon's bond was fixed at $35. Both furnished sureties.

Frank Lavey, 29, a sub-station operator at New York, was arrested at the Union station at 3 o'clock this morning by Special Agent Harold Swanson of the New Haven railroad charged with breach of the peace, on complaint of Harry Hanson, a railroad employe. Lavey was locked up and will be in court tomorrow.

A man residing on Bank street, a carpenter, was arrested this forenoon when he was found helplessly drunk at the New London line wharf. He will be among those to be tried tomorrow.

G. C. Goss 12 Lewis street, reported to the police Saturday midnight that his Ford, a sedan, carrying Connecticut markers N-7322, had been stolen from Masonic street. Although Goss discovered his car missing at 9 o'clock he waited three hours before notifying the police, so that the thief got a good start before an alarm was sent out to the state police and police of nearby cities.

At the ballroom of the local Coast Guard academy, Saturday night, there was one of the most enjoyable dances of the season. The decorations were in charge of O. A. Peterson, William B. Schassle and P. G. Miller.

Mrs. Addie Rogers of Hilliard opened her come to the members of the League of Women Voters during the week. The officers elected were: President, Mrs. Albert Avery; first vice-president, Mrs. Grace P. Meicer; second, Mrs. C. E. Chapman; secretary, Mrs. Charles Ramage; treasurer, Mrs Hubert Dart.

The Connecticut branch of the New England Classical association opened its session Saturday morning at Knowlton house, Connecticut college, with about 50 members and friends present. Following a business session, luncheon was served at 1 o'clock. The meeting was attended by many high school and university organizations of the state and proved very profitable.

At a meeting of the auxiliary to Home Memorial hospital, held yesterday at the institution, plans were discussed for winter activities of the club. It was decided to hold a rummage sale in November. Mrs. George Whittlesey will be in charge. After business discussions were concluded, sewing occupied the attention of the members, following which refreshments were served.

For the October meeting of New London County Pomona, No. 6, P. of H., which is to be held with Konomoc grange, No. 41, of Waterford, Thursday Oct. 18 the Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth is to be the principal speaker. The meeting will begin in the morning with a business session, following which a dinner will be served by members of Konomoc grange. For the afternoon a musical program has been arranged.

Morris Connolly, 27 Dell avenue; Elizabeth Cunha, Stonington; Mrs James Sullivan, 20 Stewart street; Edward Dewar, Mystic; Mrs. Elizabeth C Chappell 30 Guthrie place; Richard Whitehead, Waterford; Joseph Woods, 8 Schoolhouse lane and Joseph Demoise, 73 Fourth street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Mrs. Theresa J. Stone, 76, widow of Charles H. Stone, formerly of New Haven, died Saturday at Odd Fellows' home, Groton, where she had been a resident since March 1916. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home, Rev. George R Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in the home cemetery.

Mrs. Annie Simon, 68, wife of Victor Simon, residing on the Cohanzie road, died Saturday at Home Memorial hospital Mrs. Simon had long been ill, but was not taken to the hospital until a few days ago. Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Albert Simon of this city. Mrs Simon was born in Sweden, but had resided in this country many years.

John M. Brown, 53, residing at 33 Chappell street, died Saturday at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. He is survived by his wife and child. He was a member of the colored lodge of elks.

FUNERAL

John L. Brennan

The funeral of John L. Brennan was held Saturday morning at 9 oclock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including a delegation of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Raymond J. O'Callahan. As a waiting hymn, Edward F. Murray sang, "Face to Face". The bearers were Paul Cavanaugh, Thomas Hayes, Richard Londregan, William Collins, Jesse Guthrie and Michael Hanerbury. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Fr. O'Callahan.

The police Saturday received information that two pleasure boats had been stolen from Masters wharf, Pequot avenue. A man named Alexander said that his Johnson outboard motorboat was stolen either last Saturday or Sunday and he also said that a boat owned by John Whale had been stolen during the week.

The continued case of Salvatore Scialabba, residing in the rear of Hillside home, charged with violation of the prohibition law, came up before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, but disposition of it was not made, because Scialabba has not given himself up to the authorities, for he has remained in hiding ever since the prohibition enforcement agents started to determine his whereabouts that Scialabba might be arrested. Commissioner Corcoran ordered the case continued to the 18th inst. Federal officers went to the Scialabba farm a week ago and seized two stills in a barn. One still was of a 250-gallon capacity and the other of the 50-gallon type. Since the seizure of the stills, they have been taken to New Haven and put in storage in a government warehouse. No liquor was found on the premises and it was said that Scialabba was in Boston, but would return in a day or two, it also being intimated that he would give himself up to the authorities upon his return.

Celso Palibrici, Filipino, who was arrested a week ago, at his lodging house, the "Chateau", 96 Green street, charged with adultery, obtained his freedom in the police court Saturday when a nolle was ordered. Since his arrest, Palibrici, a member of the United States coast guard, had been at liberty on a cash bond of $1,000, furnished by himself and which he had on deposit in the Savings Bank of New London. The arrest of Palibrici was the result of George Thompson, 147 Worcester street, Boston, coming to New London and acquainting the police of the fact that his wife, who had been absent from her home since Aug. 21, was living as his wife with the Filipino, at the Green street house. Officers went to the Chateau at 4 o'clock last Monday morning where Palibrici was arrested, but the woman was not there, it being said that she left the house during the night and had not returned. It was presumed that she had returned to her home and the police of Boston were requested to arrest her, that she could be brought back to New London and jointly charged with Palibrici. Since the latter's arrest it developed that Thompson will no longer reside with his wife and intends to procure a divorce. In view of these facts, together with the fact that the woman cannot be located Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin recommended a nolle, which was granted by Judge Victor Prince.

Tony Lericci, Bridgeport youth employed at the Garde theatre, was charged with the theft of $2 from Harold Parks another theatre employe, but because of the crime being a minor one and the youth of the accused, the boy was discharged with a reprimand.

Michael Solecki was charged with violation of the motor vehicle law, but judgment was suspended in his case. He was arrested Friday by State Police Officer Louis Bristol.

Marjorie Austin, of Norwich and William Porter, Bronxville, New York, were charged with violation of the city's parking ordinances. They forfeited bonds of $2 each, for they failed to appear in court. Both were charged with parking overtime on Meridian street.

George Herbert was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace upon complaint of Mrs. Manuel Perry, having been arrested Friday night. The charge was nolled.

A case of intoxication resulted in a sentence of 10 days in jail being meted out.

Three more arrests were made Saturday of Italians who participated in the mob fight on Steward street, preceding the Columbus day parade Friday when supporters of the platform of Mussolini, known as the Facisti and those opposed to the rulings and policy of the Italian leader, known as the Mafia battled, some of them with weapons. Those arrested Saturday were Raymond Giustini, 54 Smith street; Vincent Gauderizzi, 54 Goshen street and Gino Angelo, 25 Fourth street. The trio, together with Lorenzo Montali, 28 East street; Augusto Peroni, 26 Nameaug street and Arturo Pettinari were in the police court on Saturday charged with breach of the peace and inciting to riot. The cases were continued to Tuesday next. All of the accused were held in bail of $500 and furnished sureties. The members of the Facisti aggregation declare that in the battle they were attacked with blackjacks and pieces of lead pipe.

Edward Maloney, 41 Mechanic street Westerly, made complaint to the police Friday night that the driver of an automobile, the markers of which he supplied, was guilty of evasion of responsibility. He requested that the driver be arrested and prosecuted. Maloney said that he had parked his auto on Main street near the corner of Church street and while it was motionless beside the curb the colliding automobile hit it and then the driver sped away. Maloney said that his car was damaged. The police ascertained that the driver was John Leitkowski, 22 Clover court.

At Connecticut college, at the weekend, the freshmen formulated a set of principles repellious to the tyranny practiced by the sophomores. The document drawn up was submitted before the student council and their judgment will be rendered some time during the coming week.

A committee from the Saturday and Women's clubs of this city will attend the annual meeting of the Connecticut State Federation of Women's Clubs at Trinity parish house, Torrington, Friday, Oct. 26.

Mrs. Samuel S. Greene of Lord's Point, Stonington, elected senior vice-president of the auxiliary to the United Spanish War Veterans at the convention being held in Havana, Cuba, is a daughter of Frank Q. Smith of Norwich and a sister of Frank Smith of Riverview avenue. For years she has been prominent in the activities of the organization.

Miss Florence L. Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hayes of Pleasure Beach, Waterford, became the bride of Albert B. Perkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Perkins, of Jordan Village, Friday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. E. Knapp. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Perkins left for a honeymoon trip through the New England states.

Miss Adelaide Murray, daughter of Councilor John F. Murray of 109 Blackhall street, will become the bride Wednesday of Charles J. O'Connor, of Garfield avenue. The marriage will be solemnized in St. Mary's Star of the Sea church.

An automobile driven by Ida Waltin, 32 Warren street, struck a dog at the corner of Lincoln and Jefferson avenues this afternoon which was not fatally injured and was treated by a veterinary.

J. J. Barrett, 342 Williams street, reported to police that Saturday night a cat owned by Julius Barnett, was in a tree on Williams street and had been there about 36 hours. Barnett made arrangement whereby the cat was taken from the tree and restored to its owner.

Another batch of automobile drivers were arrested tonight charged with violation of the city's traffic regulations in passing an automatic red light signal. They were Aaron Akuin, 88 Squire street; Francis A. Reed, 120 Alger place; Mario Malnate, Niantic; Peter Drago, 39 Jefferson avenue; Edward Connell, 28 Pearl street; John G. Leiber, East Lyme; John F. Havrille, Little Boston, East Lyme and Francis A. Read, 12 Amnity street. They will be in court tomorrow morning.

James K. Shaughnessy, Pomfret, charged with embezzlement of about $1000 from the Griswold company, operating a farm at Eastern Point, will be tried in the police court Monday morning.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Veedol Used On Graf Zeppelin.

One American product is to play a part in the flight of the Graf Zeppelin from Germany to America and back. The Tide Water Oil company announces receipt of official word from Dr. Huco Eckener, designer and commander of the airship that the world wide competition among manufacturers to furnish the oil for the Zeppelin's motors has ended in the choice of its product, Veedo, an oil made entirely from Pennsylvania and other paraffin base crudes.

Tide Water entered the competition to furnish the motor lubricant for this gruelling flight after Veedol had been selected by Commander Byrd for use on his expedition to the South Pole. Its engineers finally induced Dr. Eckener to try the oil on the Zeppelin's recent test flight. The five Maybach motors functioned perfectly and as soon as they had been thoroughly examined on the return to Friedrichshafen Dr Eckener informed Tide Water's German representatives that Veedol had won the honor for an American product of participating in this historic German adventure.

An ample supply of the oil already had been assembled at the Friedrichshafen base and upon receipt of word of its choice from Dr Eckener immediate arrangements were made to rush enough Veedol for the return journey to the Lakehurst airdrome where it will be held safe from any possible contamination until it has been pumped directly into the Graf Zeppelin's supply tanks.

Reception at Y. M. C. A. Tonight

The annual fall reception will be held at the Y. M. C. A. this (Monday) evening from 8 to 10 o'clock. The program will include music by Swahn's orchestra, gymnasium work, fine moving pictures and refreshments.

All of the adult members and their lady and gentlemen friends, including the ladies' gym classes and woman's auxiliary are invited.

Palace Theatre

The experiences of Daniel in the lion's den are mild compared to Adolphe Menjou's adventures with a tiger lady and a ferocious man-eating tigress in his latest Paramount vehicle, "His Tiger Lady," which was viewed at the Palace theatre for the first time yesterday.

Menjou departs from his customary dress-suit role for a light comedy part in this entertaining production, which fairly abounds with laughs, intermingled with strong, dramatic situations.

Audiences liked it yesterday and enjoyed Menjou as an advocate of smart comedy. It's a corking picture, if applause and general interest are any criterions.

The maharajah costume worn by the star is a pretentious piece of material and enhances the attractiveness of the story, while Miss Brent's Parisian gowns are startling and might be termed as works of a modiste's art.

Hobart Henley directed.

Buster Keaton in "The Cameraman," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's hilarious romance of an apprentice newsreel man in the wilds of New York, is the current attractions at the Palace theatre. The frozen-faced comedian stages a series of hilarious adventures in which he falls into a Chinese tong war and off a boat during a Newport race; he figures in a fire and a near riot, gets walked over by a parade and drops off a four-story building—all for the sake of laughter.

Besides that a considerable portion of the new picture was filmed in New York, the company passing three weeks there to film the scenes in the city hall, the Yankee stadium, and other points of interest.

Marceline Day plays the heroine of the new play, with Harold Goodwin, Sydney Bracy, Harry Gribbon and a notable supporting cast.

Broadway Theatre.

Admitted, the night club has been used before to fine theatrical purpose. The best first act any play of last season could give us was set in a cabaret owner's office. Had the rest of "Lucky Sam McCarver" kept up the pace and pleasure of that first act, it might have made stage history.

But a play like "Broadway" has something else than stage history to make. It is out plainly, knowingly for guaranteed returns of laughs and gasps—and gets them. It is out for sympathy for an odd, awkward, plucky underdog—and gets it. The same swift, easy mechanism which Mr. Abbott used when he plotted "The Fall Guy," with James Gleason, is back in good use. This time the under dog is a poor gawk of a "hoofer," blessed with all of a Show-Off's optimism about himself, his art, his future. Wryly, amusedly, you fall in love with the fool.

The talk is sinewy, sometimes down-right tough. It has to be. It is capitally crisp, too. Now and then a bit of it shows signs of middle age. "It pays to be good—but not much," says one cabaret girl to another. And there's an equally respectable old quip about mistaking the Sullivan act for a vaudeville team. Though never better borrowed.

Women Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

THERE are three trying periods in a woman's life: when the girl matures to womanhood; when a woman gives birth to her first child; when a woman reaches middle age. At these times Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps to restore normal health and vigor. Countless thousands testify to its worth.

NANNIE E. BROWNE
R.6, Box 141A, Riverdale, Roanoke, Va.

"Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am gaining fast. When I started taking it I was always tired and worn out and had to lie down at least an hour a day. I am a floor-manager and on my feet a good deal and I have to work at home some too. A girl friend who had taken the Vegetable Compound recommended it as one of the best medicines. I have taken three bottles and I have improved in every way and am still taking it. I would be willing to help any girl who is suffering as I was by answering her letter."—Nannie E. Browne, R.6, Box 141A, Riverdale, Roanoke, Virginia.

MRS. L. C. MACHEN
Hollins, Alabama

"After giving birth to two children I became so nervous, suffered with headache and backache and could scarcely walk. I didn't want anything to eat and could scarcely do any work. After taking a few bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my appetite came back and now I can do as much work as any woman. I do all my housework, washing and ironing, and am assistant post-master for my husband. I have two big boys, one six who goes to school and one four years old. I tell my friends how the Vegetable Compound has helped me and recommend it to them."—Mrs. L. C. Machen, Hollins, Alabama.

MRS. O. C. SHANNON
Oakland, Missouri

"I had suffered for several years. At last someone told me to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I did. I keep it in the house all the time. I would not be without it now, as it has helped me wonderfully. It sure is a woman's friend if ever she had one. It strengthens me so that I can do my work. I have taken it off and on for over 18 years. I live on a farm and help do all my housework besides raising chickens and working in the garden. I am the mother of six children and advise any woman or girl to take the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. O. C. Shannon, Oakland, Missouri.

Mrs. Thomas Mathews

The funeral of Mrs. Thomas Mathews was held from her late residence, 423 Boswell avenue Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock, followed by a requiem mass at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock with Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor, as celebrant. The musical program was in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, organist, who rendered at the offertory, Pie Jesu, and at the recessional she played Chopin's Funeral March. Burial was in the family plot in a Baltic cemetery where Rev. Fr. O'Brien officiated at the committal service. The bearers were George Gardner, Ephraim De Mute, Adolph Sr., and Adolph Jr. De Mute. The floral tributes were both beautiful and numerous. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Word has been received by Lucien Bissonette that his brother Elmer was in an accident while at his work with the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at New Haven. Mr. and Mrs. Bissonette and Mrs. Leon Fontain went to New Haven to the Grace hospital where Mr. Bissonette is a patient and found that he had fractured the upper jaw and x-rays were being taken of his head to see if his skull was fractured. He was formerly of Greeneville and lived on Central avenue

PASSIONIST FATHERS' MISSION ENDED IN ST. PATRICK'S PARISH

About their Father's business, wearied with their teaching and preaching for the past fortnight, yet happy in the consciousness that many erring souls have been brought back in penitence to the foot of the cross, the three members of the Passionist Order, Baltimore, who have been giving a mission at St. Patrick's church for two weeks will leave Norwich today (Monday). Rev. Father Mark will go to Springfield, Mass., to conduct a mission. Rev. Father Gilbert goes for the same purpose to Syracuse and Rev. Father Conon will return to Baltimore.

Congregations of unusual size attended all the services Sunday. At the 7:30 low mass which was read by Father Mark, late comers had to stand and nearly every person in the congregation received holy communion from Father Mark, Father Gilbert, or Rev. John J. Reilly who assisted them in administering the eucharist. On entering the pulpit, Father Mark spoke briefly in commendation of the week's efforts of the men during their mission exercises, their faithfulness, edifying example and splendid co-operation with the work of the missionaries in their behalf. He was convinced, he said, that not one of them regretted the exertion made, but that each must feel the blessing of God in his life. He admonished them to keep up the good work, to receive the sacraments regularly, to persevere in their purpose of amendment. Aptly enough, the day's gospel which he read carried the lesson of the influence of faith through example, ending, "And himself believed, and his whole house," John 4, 46-53, the narration of the restoration to health of the son of the ruler of Capharnaum. At the two early masses the priests gave communion to 970 penitents.

At the mass at 8:15 for the Italian Catholics, the children's mass at 9 and again at high mass at 10:30 the missionary fathers earnestly besought the people to persevere, that the efforts of the past two weeks may not be wasted, but that the whole parish may continue in God's favor.

Babies Blessed

An important ceremonial affecting many families throughout the town was the solemn blessing of the babies, which was appointed for 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. About 400 young children, from infants to children under first communion age, received the blessing from Father Mark, who gave a most inspiring talk especially to the mothers.

At 7:30 Sunday evening the closing exercises of the men's week drew a great congregation to the church. Following recitation of five mysteries of the rosary led by Father Gilbert, there was an eloquent sermon by Father Mark, whose theme was "Courage."

The men, each holding a lighted candle, earnestly renewed the promises made for them by their godparents at baptism, as a pledge of their faith and an earnest of their determination to continue worthy of God's approval in the spiritual life.

The papal benediction was then bestowed by Father Mark and benediction of the blessed sacrament brought the services and the mission to a close.

For the fortnight's exercises, life religious articles have been in charge of Miss Anna McGrory, Miss Mary B. Sheridan, Mrs. Bernard M. Coyle and Miss Grace Christian.

The ushers who have proved so faithful in attendance every evening were: Alexander Kilroy, Austin Furlong, John Wozniak, Maurice B. Looby, Thaddeus Leahy, Michael J. Murphy, William J. McKnight, Leonard Desmond, James Mahoney and John P. Corcoran.

The members of the Altar society have done their part also, in a quiet but effective way looking after the pleasing adornment of the sanctuary.

The entire visitation of the mission fathers has been a period of spiritual uplift and inspiration to the four thousand or more souls in the great parish, so that for those who began the mission, "persevering unto the end" has proved a task which all completed willingly and with genuine joy. Lourdes Hymn sung.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given by Rev. Myles P. Galvin.

For the closing exercises Organist Henry J. LaFontaine had arranged a strong program, given by a choir of 24 men and including for the first time here the impressive "Lourdes Hymn," by Father Moreau, sung during the pilgrimages. There was also a harmonized Benedictus, for four-part male chorus, O. Salutaris and Tantum Ergo, arranged from Beethoven. Included in the chorus were Roderick F. Sullivan, Horace F. Corning, John Kelly, William Shannon, Matthew J. Sheridan, John Murphy, James Casey, John Marks, Raymond Coyle, Louis Grover, William Doughertv and Walter F. LaFontaine. The climax of the beautiful musical program came with congregation singing of "Divine Praises," by Elliot, "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name," directed by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May.

SPECIAL EVENING SERVICE AT TRINITY M. E. CHURCH

At Trinity Methodist church Sunday evening, the following pleasing service was carried out, as arranged by the musical director, Mrs. Mabel C. Buckingham, with Mrs. Olive R. Roberts, organist: Prelude, Prelude in F, Hawley; pastoral prayer; violin solo, "Adoration" Borowski; responsive reading, Forty-second Sunday Evening; violin solo, "Thais," Massenet; Bible reading, Jonh, Chap 1; offertory, "Thy Will Be Done," MacDougal; sermon, "The Voyage of Life," Rev. Joseph Cooper; benediction; postlude, Postlude in G, Foote. Violinist, Henry Ladd.

MAN SHOULD LIVE UP TO HIGHEST POSSIBILITIES

Man's creative mind differentiates him from the lower animals, declared Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale, in an address Sunday morning at the Central Baptist church before a large and intensely interested congregation as he spoke upon the theme "What is Man?" "And another extraordinary thing about man which makes him different from the lower animals is his great range, the great virtues to which he may reach, the great vices to which he may descend. Religion deals with man's opportunity, tells how to get the best out of life, and the Christian religion is the only religion which puts all the stress upon the individual. Jesus came to show the value of the individual. You ought to live up to your highest possibilities, to your capacity. That's what it is to be a man. The Christian man can know that he is the child of God, that he is traveling towards a tremendous destiny in harmony with the great forces of the universe. Let him live with the courage and high resolve of those who are conscious of a great heritage.

SUNDAY RADIO SERMON BY REV. DR. S. P. CADMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, in the first of a series of non-sectarian Sunday afternoon radio sermons, today envisioned the deep-rooted religious forces of various races welding the earth into one neighborhood and mankind into one brotherhood through the instrumentality of radio.

His message of hope and faith in the future of religion was carried to all parts of the country over the National Broadcasting company's network of stations. The essential unity of man and religions was his recurring theme.

NORWICH TOWN

There was an attendance of 12 at the meeting of the Boy Scouts of the Methodist Episcopal church Friday night, held in the new quarters at the parsonage, in charge of the acting scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter, assisted by Lewis Aldrich, assistant scoutmaster. About the time the meeting was to start, a number of older boys appeared and created a little disturbance. Rev. Mr. Potter has the names of the boys who made the trouble and if the meetings are again interfered with the matter will be reported to the police. Following the opening ceremony, a number of Scout contests were held to help the boys in their tests. The game period ended with a dart contest. Two teams entered the contest, five Scouts on each; the winners were captained by Edward Smith and scored 125 points. The losers were captained by Wallace Wagner and their score was close to that of the winners, being 116. Saturday afternoon the Scouts had a trail sign hike.

VOL. LXX—No. 249 | POPULATION 30,689 | NORWICH, CONN., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1928. | TWELVE PAGES — 96 COLUMNS | PRICE TWO CENTS

ZEPPELIN LANDED AT LAKEHURST AT 5:38 P. M.; WAS ALOFT 111 HOURS, 46 MIN.

In Its 6,500 Mile Journey From Friedrichshafen, Germany, the Big Airship Had Dodged About Over the Sea to Avoid Storms, Going Far South of Its Intended Course—Passed Over Washington, Wilmington, Philadelphia, Trenton and New York—Carried Crew of 40 Men and 20 Passengers—Also Brought a Large Consignment of Mail—Damaged Fin Delayed the Dirigible More Than 20 Hours.

NAVAL AIR STATION, Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 15—(AP)—Completing a journey of some 6,500 miles which kept its sixty occupants in the air for more than 111 hours, the silver-German dirigible Graf Zeppelin dropped down onto American soil at dusk today.

For three days crowds had been waiting at the air station to witness the arrival of the greatest airship afloat, but all but 5,000 or so had given up the vigil when the ship arrived.

Those few thousand, however, were so eager to see the airship that they broke through police lines and fought for the opportunity to touch the dirigible or at least get close enough to shout greetings to passengers and crew.

The Graf Zeppelin appeared first as a faint smudge low above the northern horizon. Slowly, as daylight began to fail, it took definite form although its aluminum painted coat remained dim gray in the dusk. Half again as big as the Los Angeles, which completed a similar journey just four years ago today, the Graf Zeppelin seemed to swell as it approached until it blotted out half the sky.

It showed no lights in the deepening gloaming and its idling engines were inaudible until it was virtually above the field. At had the appearance of some celestial body of remarkable and mysterious majesty.

As day turned into night the mammoth ship glided low over the trees that fringe the air station and dipped toward the flying field and the waiting crowd. A turn of the ship brought a lighted cabin window into view, strikingly bright against the gray sky across which the airship slipped like an animate shadow.

Crowd Raised Wild Shout

As the ship dipped earthward the crowd below raised a wild shout of greeting and observers saw some one aboard wave from the yellow window. Many said they could see it was a woman, and if they were right it was Lady Drummond Hay, a British journalist and the only woman on board.

From the top of a tower near the field's edge a light winked the information to Dr. Hugo Eckener, the pilot, that the ground wind was from the west and of negligible force, and the great ship suddenly gave its engines full throttle to dive downward to a position near the mooring mast.

Just before eight o'clock the passengers were taken out and removed to the flight office under guard, not even reporters being allowed to speak to them. The ship was then walked out on the flying field again and moored to the stub mast near the high mast. Officers and crew prepared the ship to spend the night there, swinging in a 12-mile wind, a skeleton crew was ordered to stay aboard for night.

Five 550-Horsepower Engines

The roar of the five 550-horsepower engines seemed to make the air vibrate and the sliding ship in a moment became a gray arrow shooting through the darkness.

Contrary to expectation the ship was not moored at the mast, ropes being dropped to a landing crew of 500 sailors who drew the ship gently to the ground.

As customs agents boarded the ship, as they do any docking Atlantic liner, the crowd's enthusiasm boiled over and police lines melted before the rush. There were scuffling and rough and tumble encounters in plenty before order was restored.

After German and American officials had at last edged their way through the throng to voice congratulations through the ship's windows as the ground crew held the ship steady, the Graf Zeppelin was walked slowly toward the hangar. Its progress was ordered, stopped just outside and there it rested, its nose almost touching that of the Los Angeles, which was crowded against the hangar's south wall, with two navy blimps tucked under its stern to make room for the aerial leviathan.

Dr Eckener and Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, commander of the Los Angeles and a guest on the Atlantic trip of the Graf Zeppelin, climbed from the control cabin and hurried to the offices of Captain E. S. Jackson, post commandant. After a short time they returned and climbed back into the Graf Zeppelin's cabin.

Marines Surround Zeppelin

A solid line of marines was thrown about the ship to keep all from getting too close and no one was allowed to go in or out of the dirigible as a consultation was held to decide whether to berth the ship in the hangar or take her back to the mooring mast until daylight.

Because of a 12 mile wind across the hangar it was decided at last not to berth the ship tonight. The passengers were taken out and escorted under guard to the hangar and the dirigible was taken to the stub mast close to the high mooring tower where it was attached to swing gently through the dark hours.

A few reporters managed to get on the ship with the 12 customs men but they were all discovered and ordered out. Brief words were had with a few of the passengers but they consisted almost entirely of generalities, assertions that every one had had a "fine time," and denials that any one had suffered from air sickness.

Care to Avoid Fire

Great care was taken to avoid any possibility of disaster through explosion of the highly inflammable hydrogen lifting gas stored in the 3,700,000 cubic foot bag of the Graf Zeppelin. As soon as the dirigible was brought near the hangar smoking was forbidden anywhere in the building, even in the secluded press room on the mezzanine floo, where some 200 newspapermen and women were grinding out their accounts and impressions of the airship. When the ship was taken out to the stub-mast the smoking rule was lifted in the rooms off the main hangar, though still remaining in force there and out on the flying field.

THE GRAF ZEPPELIN SMASHED DISTANCE RECORD

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, proud aristocrat of a long lineage of aircraft, cruised triumphantly up the mid-Atlantic coast today to show herself to millions of Americans who had followed with intense interest and some anxiety the progress of her record-breaking 6,500-mile voyage from Friedrichshafen, Germany.

The great silver ship made her bow to the waiting contingent at 9:45 o'clock this morning, eastern standard time, when she was sighted from Cape Charles, Va., northern promontory of the entrance to Chesapeake bay. Behind her were not only 6,0000 miles of land and water, but anxious moments.

As the first commercial airship ever to make the crossing drew nearer, the throbbing whirr of its five engines came with increasing drone to the ears of the waiting crowds. The crowd numbered possibly 5,000, only a fraction of the thousands who waited in vain all day for the ship yesterday. The ground crew stood near the mast in a great semi-circle, waiting for the airship to nose above them

At 5:30 the Graf Zeppelin passed above the northern edge of the air station and swung majestically toward the mooring mast at the western end of the flying field. It dipped sharply toward the ground crew from a height of approximately 500 feet.

It was almost dark by that time but the ship was unlighted except for one flickering spark that was a cabin window.

The Zeppelin landed on American soil at 5:31 o'clock this afternoon after a stormy journey of 111 hours and 46 minutes from Friedrichshafen. The dirigible spent more than four days getting here, dodging about over the sea to avoid storms and going far south of its intended course. It crossed the American shore line at Cape Charles, Va., this morning and continued here by way of Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

The Graf Zeppelin was the second airship to cross the ocean from Friedrichshafen, the navy Los Angeles having arrived four years ago to the day. The Los Angeles was crowded against the hangar's south wall today, with two non-rigid blimps tucked under her tail, to make room for her big sister.

The Zeppelin carried a crew of 40 men and 20 passengers, including one woman. It also brought a large consignment of mail.

Triumphing over wind, weather and ocean, she had slipped over the American coast at 10:10 a. m., at a point six miles north of Cape Charles, and from then on, with journey's end in sight, her sturdy motors bore her comfortably over the densely populated coastal plain.

Paid Respects to Washington

She paid her formal respects to Wasnington at about 12:30 p. m., sliding ove Capitol and White House beneath an overcast sky, and then slipped north to visit Baltimore, Wilmington, Philadelphia, Trenton and New York, passing as she went many smaller communities which, like the more populous neighbors, saluted the vigorous voyager from street and house-top.

It had indeed been a noteworthy voyage for at 2 p. m., when the dirigible was over Elkton, Md., she broke the world mark of 108 hours in the air, set for craft of her type by the British R-34 in her westward flight. She had also smashed the distance record, for her mileage was in the neighborhood of 6,500.

Washington first saluted Graf Zeppelin at 12:21 p. m., when she approached from the east over the Capitol. As she circled above the government buildings, sharp-eyed naval experts noticed the hole in her port stabilizer—the rent that had caused the anxiety last Saturday.

President Coolidge took time to have a look at Graf Zeppelin. Leaving the desk in the White House executive offices, he stepped outdoors, bare headed, watched the dirigible for a moment, as everybody else was doing, and then went back to work.

By this time, the cities that lay between Washington and Lakehurst were eagerly awaiting the arrival of the aerial visitor; and Baltimore, Wilmington, Philadelphia and Trenton, N. J., gave her a noisy reception as she hummed overhead.

New York did not know until mid-afternoon whether Graf Zeppelin would pay her respects to the metropolis, but when word was flashed that she intended to swing over the skyscrapers, the city prepared an impromptu welcome. The city's official welcome to the dirigible's officers, crew and passengers is scheduled for tomorrow when they arrive from Lakehurst.

PRIDE AND SATISFACTION THROUGHOUT GERMANY

BERLIN, Oct. 15—(AP)—Jubilation, pride and satisfaction reigns supreme throughout Germany as the news of the safe arrival of the Graf Zeppelin was broadcast. Thousands now admit, as the tension of the past 24 hours is relieved, that they entertained grave apprehension lest the great German airship might never reach its destination.

Despite Dr. Eckener's admonition day's before the start not to worry in case the airship failed to arrive on schedule, or in case hours elapsed without a report of her position, Germans in all walks of life grew uneasy, and, if pressed, admitted that they feared the worst.

Two groups, however, refused to grow fainthearted. One was composed of the populace of Friendrichshafen, who never speak otherwise than of "Our Zeppelin." They know of what stuff Eckener, Flemming, Lehmann, Von Schiller, Witemann, and the others of the crew are made. To them the officers and navigators are fellow townsmen, in many cases personal friends, whose careers are known to every schoolboy and whose records abound in instances of resourcefulness which carried them out of tight places.

So great was their faith in Count Bradenstein-Zeppelin's arrival that any suggestion even of possible mishap seemed to the people of Friedrichshafen like a personal affront. Virtually in every Friedrichshafen home there was spread out during the last four days a map of the Atlantic, and the elders vied with the schoolchildren in charting the Zeppelin's course, figuring distances and time to prove to any doubter that the airship was going exactly right and on time.

Another group consists of Germany's seasoned and experienced airship constructors and commanders, such as Ludwig Duerr, who designed the LZ-127, Professor Johann Schuette, whose dirigibles were much used during the war, Captain Walter Bruns, general secretary of the Aeroarctic association, Captain Breithaupt, Zeppelin war ace, and Capt. Von Kleist, builder of dirigibles of the Parsival type.

These men with a background of technical knowledge and personal experience, were able to follow the Graf Zeppelin's course dispassionately. They never grew excited, for the reason that they have infinite faith in the dirigible as a means of transoceanic locomotion and because they personally know Dr. Eckener and his men as intrepid and competent navigators.

VIEWED BY MULTITUDES AS IT CRUISED OVER N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—The millions of the city stood with mouths agape for half an hour today and saw a silvery cigar which had left Germany 110 hours before glide majestically above its highest structures with a subdued roar of motors. Then they roared their welcome.

It was the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, anxiously awaited for two full days, as tired telephone operators in newspaper and public offices could testify. Four years ago to a day New York had crane its collective necks to see the ZR-3 sail down from the north, later to be a familiar visitor as the U. S. N. Los Angeles.

The Graf Zeppelin, making the first trans-Atlantic commercial voyage, like any good cargo carrier entered New York through the Narrows and passed in turn the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island. Then it coursed over the main artery of the city—Broadway of a thousand sights and spectacles—to pass to the open heart of Central Park. It turned south soon after 4 o'clock and chose modish Fifth avenue above which to display this newest mode for tourists.

At 4:18 p. m. it was gone, and the still excited workers of New York, who had forgotten to be blase, had nothing more to do except to ask each other, "Did you see it?"

Stenographers had jostled their respected employers aside to reach the skyscraper roofs first. Traffic halted. The cheers poured up from the canyons to meet the drone of motors. Many emulated window cleaners, without safety belts.

A score of airplanes darted about the huge shape, but the cabin of the dirigible alone reduced them in the eyes of spectators to the insignificance of flies.

TRANS-ATLANTIC DIRIGIBLE FLIGHTS

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, (formerly the ZR-3)—Left Friedrichshafen October 12, 1924, and arrived at Lakehurst, N. J., October 15, completing 5060-mile journey in 81 hours.

R-34 (British)—Left East Fortune, Scotland, July 2, 1919, and arrived Roosevelt Field, Long Island, July 6, completing 3,200-mile flight in 108 hours of which 59 were over the ocean.

Graf Zeppelin—Left Friedrichshafen, Oct. 11, 1928, and arrived Lakehurst N. J., Oct. 15, completing an estimated voyage of 6,500 miles in 111 1-2 hours.

WERE NOT SCARED AFTER THEY HAD LITTLE DRINK

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 15—(AP)—Asked about reports that his passengers had been "scared" during the rougher hours of their air voyage on the Graf Zeppelin, Dr. Hugo Eckener, skipper of the great dirigible, was puzzled.

"Scared? Vass ist das?" he asked.

"Oh, I see," he smiled at someone who explained. "No they were not scared after they had a little drink."

DAMAGED FIN DELAYED ZEPPELIN OVER 20 HOURS

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 15—(AP)—Admitting he was "somewhat tired," because he had only about "eight hours sleep the whole time," Dr. Hugo Eckener, skipper of the Graf Zeppelin, tonight told of his "little misfortune," which caused a delay of more than a score o hours in the schedule of his craft.

Dr. Eckener smiled a broad paternal smile at a half hundred reporters who surrounded the two chairs he used as a speaking platform while he apologized "for the many misunderstandings," he understood had caused criticism in America.

His story, told with some difficulty and interrupted by frequent prompting by his first officer, centered upon the buffeting his ship had received between the Straits of Gibraltar and Bermuda. He would consent to the interview only after the Graf Zeppelin was safely moored to its mast.

He told how four men—including his youngest son—worked with nothing but the Atlantic under them in vicious squalls to repair the damage done by the winds to the port fin of the airship. The son's name, Knute, a helmsman aboard the Zeppelin, never would have been mentioned but for the presence of Dr. Albert Grzesinski, Prussian minister of the interior, who was a passenger aboard the ship. He urged the father to "tell the whole story," and the name and position of the son was pried from Dr. Eckener by reporters.

Knute is 24 years old and one of the youngest members of the crew.

Dr. Eckener said the Graf Zeppelin had blau gas and gasoline sufficient for 65 hours of additional cruising when he arrived at Lakehurst

To Bare All Facts In The Watkins Case

States Attorney Alcorn Today Will Acquaint the Court With Whole Story of the Bradlee Case.

HARTFORD, Oct. 15—(AP)—"Let the chips fall where they may," said State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn tonight in declaring that he would expose all the facts in the Watkins case tomorrow, when Roger W. Watkins and his three self-confessed co-conspirators are arraigned before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court to receive sentences on their pleas of guilty to defraud the public and the National Associated Investors, Inc., out of large sums of money.

The Watkins case ended suddenly last Wednesday after two days' of trial at the time when prominent names began to fall from the lips of the witnesses. One witness had testified that Gov. John H. Trumbull and Secretary of State Francis A. Pallotti had received gratuitous profits of $1150 on stock deals of N. A. I. for the use of their names on the stock list. A second witness exposed the secret accounts carried by Watkins for his lawyers, William B. Egan and Frank E. Healy; for former Lieut.-Gov. Clifford B. Wilson, Bridgeport, Lieut.-Gov. J. Edwin Brainard, of Branford, and State Police Commissioner Robert T. Hurley.

Mr. Alcorn's statement to the court, which he was busily preparing today, will single out some of the more sensational features of these men's connections with the case, which he could not disclose through the evidence because of the sudden termination of the case.

"I consider it my duty to acquaint the court with the whole story from beginning to end," said Mr. Alcorn. He declined, however, to indicate in advance the nature of what he would say. "It will all come out in court," he said.

Mr. Alcorn said he had not been approached by either lawyers for the accused as to the recommendation for sentences he will make in each of the four cases. Watkins faces a possible maximum state prison sentence of 15 years on his pleas of guilty to the two charges of conspiracy and making a false financial statement to the banking commissioner. His wife, Mrs. Margaret E. Watkins, and his two brothers-in-law, Guy Tressiar and Maynard A. Tressiar, face lesser sentences on the conspiracy charge to which he pleaded guilty. Mr. Alcorn declined to announce in advance the recommendation he will make in each case.

With the sentencing of the Watkins quartet, Mr. Alcorn indicated that he would shortly recommend to the court that the grand jury be convened and discharged. Francis W. Cole is foreman of the grand jury. The grand jury held several meetings in the county building and examined about a dozen witnesses last April. After the information was issued charging Watkins with the embezzlement of $167,000 from stockholders of the National Associated Investors, Inc., it ceased to hold meetings.

RIGHTS OF SHIPS WITH CONTRABAND LIQUOR

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15—(AP)—A vessel carrying contraband liquor may come within the three mile limit without violating the federal revenue laws, if there is no direct attempt to land the liquor, the United States circuit court of appeals ruled today.

The decision reversed a ruling of the federal district court at Seattle, which sentenced Walter McGill to eight months in the federal penitentiary and fined him $500 when the vessel he commanded was seized by coast guardsmen near the coast line off Point Angeles, Wash. A quantity of assorted liquors was found on the ship and the lower court held McGill in violation of the revenue laws.

The circuit court decision remanded the case for a new trial.

HIT AND RUN DRIVER HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

GREENWICH, Oct. 15—(AP)—Emil Ford who pleaded not guilty to a charge of manslaughter before Judge Mead today, was bound over to the next term of superior court in Bridgeport under $5,000 bonds. He was arrested as the driver of a machine which fatally injured Miss Shirley C. Trine, on the night of September 19.

Ruth Van Wynn, a companion of the girl was seriously injured but was able to attend the court session today. The machine which struck the girls while they were walking along Sound Beach avenue, was found in Ford's garage several days after the accident.

GIRL CUT IN STRATFORD BY "PHANTOM STABBER"

STRATFORD, Conn., Oct. 15—(AP)—The "phantom stabber" appeared in Stratford this evening, attacking Marion Buchanan, 12 year old pupil in the Stratford Intermediate school, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Buchanan, 97 South avenue. The stabber struck the girl on the right breast, his weapon penetrating the flesh to a depth of half an inch. The girl's wound was dressed by Dr. Luther C. Heidger.

To Forestall Tong Warfare In Chicago

"Mayor of Chinatown" Was Arrested When Found Entering a Chinese Restaurant With Revolver.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—(AP)— Chinese tong warfare which broke out yesterday in five cities was blamed by the police tonight for the slaying of two Chicago Chinese and the wounding of a third.

Police squads patrolled Chinatown where the rival tongs, On Leongs and Hip Sings, have their headquarters and other policemen were on watch at all railroad stations with orders to arrest on suspicion any incoming Chinese in the hope that slayers of tong members in other cities might be caught in the general roundup.

Eng Pak, a Hip Sing adherent, was shot to death by two Chinese last night as he sat in a taxicab in the Chinese quarter and two hours later masked Chinese invaded the restaurant of Willie Took, On Leong member, and shot and wounded him. A white waitress and a Negro chief were slightly wounded.

Today the body of Jung Bue, On Leong member, was found in a west Madison street laundry with two bullets through his body and a pistol nearby. The police blamed his death on the tong warfare but an assistant coroner advanced a theory that he may have killed himself after he learned Bue had suffered financial reverses.

One Chinese claiming to be a cousin of Frank Moy, known as the "mayor of Chinatown" was arrested when he was found entering a Chinese restaurant with a loaded pistol. He said he belonged to the Leong tong and was carrying the weapon for protection.

Six Chinese also were arrested in a raid on a store in the Chinese district from which the two men who shot and killed Eng Pak emerged last night. One of the men was armed and the police found two other pistols in the store.

STEPHENSON TESTIFIES AGAINST IMPERIAL WIZARD

MICHIGAN CITY, Indiana, Oct. 15—(AP)—Testimony replete with accusations against Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, and relating how an alleged political machine in Indiana within the organization helped elect Gov. Ed. Jackson in 1924 was given by D. C. Stephenson in the state prison today. Taken in deposition form, the testimony will be used by State Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom in the suit to oust the Klan from Indiana.

Gilliom has contended the organization's true purpose in entering the state was to "gain secret control of politics and government."

Stephenson charged that Evans was responsible for the fatal shooting of Captain William S. Coburn of Atlanta, Ga. Coburn was shot by Phil Fox in October, 1925. Fox now is serving a life sentence for murder. Stephenson testified that Evans incited Fox to commit the crime and said he could prove his charge in court.

The former Indiana grand dragon also told of an alleged truce with wizard Evans in 1924 for the purpose of working harmoniously for the election of Ed Jackson, republican candidate for governor. He said Evans, at the time the truce was agreed upon, had said that the "support of Jackson meant more to the success of the Klan than anything else that could happen." Stephenson at the time was not connected with the Klan and Walter Bossert of Indianapolis was the grand dragon. He said that upon an agreement with Evans, the then grand dragon conferred daily with him as to the Klan's activity in the campaign.

EPISCOPALIANS ENDORSE TRADE UNION MOVEMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(AP)—A program recognizing the "constructive function of the trade union movement in modern industrial life," was suggested today as one of the policies of the Episcopal church by the Rev. Charles N. Lathrop, of the department of Christian social service of the church.

Conferences of churchmen with employes in the major industries "to discuss the implications of Christian principles in industrial relations," were advocated in the committee report read before the 49th triennial Episcopal convention which also asked that courses be established in theological schools to study the workers' problems.

Other suggested means of contact with industry were classes on current labor development to be held yearly both the clergy and laity, and invitations to trade union leaders to occupy church pulpits on the Sunday preceding Labor day.

The budget for the department of missions, totalling $3,800,000, was presented by John M. Wood, New York executive secretary of the department. Nearly one-half of the amount will be expended in American territory.

The budget provides for the support of 3,087 American and foreign missionaries of 14 different nationalities. Work now being carried on among 75,000 Indians, many of whom are members of the church, will be extended, he said.

"MILLIONAIRE COP" UNDER ARREST IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15— (AP) — Samuel Griffin, who as a member of Unit No. 1, the police "dry" raiding squad, which was disbanded when Mayor MacKey assumed office, was known as the "Millionaire Cop," was arrested tonight by order of District Attorney Monaghan as a result of the grand jury investigation of bootleggers and police corruption.

At a preliminary hearing before Judge Edwin O. Lewis, instigator of the investigation, Griffin, now proprietor of a hotel, was released in $25,000 bail for court on charges of extortion, bribery and conspiracy.

Warrants for five others were issued at the same time the warrant for Griffin was sworn out, but the district attorney said their names would not be revealed until they were arraigned. Monaghan said that an examination of Griffin's bank accounts had showed that the former raider, after his resignation from the police force in May, 1926 had deposited in four banks more than $356,000.

TUMULTUOUS GREETING FOR HOOVER IN MASSACHUSETTES

Fom the Time the Republican Presidential Nominee Arrived in Springfield Until His Final Appearance in the Arena in Boston He Was the Center of a Cheering Crowd—In His Speech in Boston Mr. Hoover Stressed the Importance of the Republican Protective Tariff to Safeguard Our Industries—Also Emphasized the Necessity of Merchant Marine.

BOSTON, Oct. 15—(AP)—With a day of vigorous campaigning on the debatable ground of Massachusetts behind him, Herbert Hoover turned tonight to the expression to industrial New England of his views on the tariff. Tremendous crowds, tumultuous cheering and four speeches lay behind the republican presidential candidate as he moved to the Arena to deliver his principal speech of his New England swing over a nation-wide hook-up of radio stations.

From the time that he arrived in Springfield until his final appearance at the Arena, the nominee was the center of a cheering crowd, although at times during his drive from Newtonville through the Boston suburbs to the Common, boos and cheers for his democratic opponent broke out in his wake. With few exceptions, however, these came from enthusiastic small boys and as he approached Cambridge they died away altogether and the applause for Hoover rose until it approached the proportions of an ovation at several places. The huge throng that had assembled on Boston Common to welcome him to the Hub City was one of the largest that he has seen since his nomination.

The four speeches made by the candidate—at Springfield, at Worcester, on Boston Common and at a luncheon at the Statler hotel—carried a reminder to the republicans of Massachusetts that every loyal member of the party would be needed in the forthcoming election and an appeal to the independent thinking people "who regard the problems before us as we do" for their support.

Entering the state at Springfield, the nominee passed quickly from that place to Worcester where he was welcomed by a cheering throng. From that point, his train moved to Newtonville where his party detrained for a 22-mile automobile trip through the Boston suburbs. More than a half dozen towns on the fringe of the Boston suburbs were passed through by the automobile caravan before it stopped for a moment at Harvard university. There a cheering group of students surrounded his machine and clamored loudly for a speech. Thence the automobiles moved past the Massachusetts Institute of Technology where the nominee was forced to ignore a similar request. Through crowded streets he crossed the Charles river and continued to Boston Common, where he was welcomed by Mayor Nicholas.

In a brief speech there Hoover told the people of Boston of the part that Massachusetts and New England men had played in California's history and thanked them for their greeting which he said he considered "one from my friends in Boston irrespective of their political faith."

He drove immediately to the Statler hotel where another crowd had gathered and soon afterward was in the midst of his fourth speech of the day, this one to state and county chairmen and other party leaders at a luncheon at which he and Mrs. Hoover were the guests of honor. Here he repeated his admonitions of the morning and told the workers that the success in the campaign would depend upon the organization in this state.

This concluded, the candidate moved through the applause which followed to the home of Governor Fuller, where he spent the remainder of the afternoon, conferring with party leaders and meeting members of the Republican Service Men's league and representatives of foreign-born citizens.

After dinner with the Massachusetts executive, Hoover went direct to the Arena to deliver his address on the tariff, foreign trade and the merchant marine.

Gov. Alvin T. Fuller of Massachusetts in a very brief introductory speech presented Mr. and Mrs. Hoover to the crowd. The tumultuous applause that had cracked spasmodically during the previous talks and references to the nominee broke into full throated cheering as Hoover approached the microphone and hundreds of red and white handkerchiefs waved. He was forced to wait for the applause to cease.

After he swung into the text of his prepared speech, the first prolonged applause came as he passed from his discussion of foreign trade into a blunt criticism of the democratic tariff positions.

His first reference to the protective tariff brought a wave of applause. Asserting that the republican party for 70 years had supported a tariff designed to give adequate protection to American labor, industry and agriculture, he declared that "our opponents, after 70 years of continuous opposition to this republican doctrine, now seek to convince the American people that they have nothing to fear from revision at their hands."

After finishing his speech at the Arena, Hoover drove immediately to Symphony hall where an overflow meeting had been held to accommodate those unable to gain admission to the rally

After his visit to the other hall, the nominee was driven to his special train which departed late in the night for Washington, where tomorrow Hoover will resume work on the speech which he is to deliver in Madison Square Garden one week from tomorrow.

BAY STATE WELCOMED MR. AND MRS. HOOVER

BOSTON, Oct. 15—(AP)—Both Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Hoover were given an encouraging welcome to Massachusetts today by women leaders as well as those in the rank and file of the republican party.

At an early afternoon luncheon given the republican presidential nominee, after his arrival in Boston, Mrs. Frank Roe Batchelder, vice chairman of the republican state committee, gave a promise that the Bay State would give its electoral vote to the Hoover Curtis ticket by reason of the work of the republican women.

As an earnest of their promise to remove their state from the doubtful column, thousands of women packed the lobby of the Copley-Plaza hotel later in the day to be received by Mrs. Hoover at a reception given in her honor by Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, wife of the Massachusetts governor, whose guest the Hoovers were during their stay in Boston.

At the state luncheon Mrs. Batchelder hailed Hoover as the man "who holds up the torch of promise that every child, no matter how humble its parents may be, may reach the highest point in the country."

"The womanhood of Massachusetts pledges itself to Herbert Hoover," she added amid vigorous applause.

"Massachusetts has 45 per cent of its women registered, the highest registration of any state in the union," she added.

QUEENS SEWER CASE MAY GO TO JURY TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—By noon tomorrow, the jury in the Queens sewer trial is expected to receive the case of Maurice E. Connolly, former president of Queens borough, and Frederick Seely, former sewer engineer, charged with conspiracy to defraud the city in the construction of the $29,000,000 Queens sewer system.

Arguments of counsel were heard today and all that remained was the court's charge to the jury, Supreme Court Justice Tompkins will instruct the jurors tomorrow morning.

Special Prosecutor Emory R. Buckner, summing up the state's evidence, lashed Connolly and his former sewer design engineer, and called upon the jury for their conviction. The maximum punishment in the event of conviction is one year imprisonment and $1,000 fine.

NEGRESS SHOT BY WOMAN FRIEND IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 15—(AP)—Miss Goldie Harris, 30, Negress, former secretary of the Phyllis Wheatly branch of the Y. W. C. A. here was reported resting comfortably at St. Vincent's hospital today, where she was taken late Sunday afternoon after being shot by Mrs. Blanche Askew, 37, head of the Waters Catering company. She now has a chance for recovery.

Mrs. Askew says she fired three shots at Miss Harris in self defense, after Miss Harris, who had been her close friend for some time apparently went suddenly insane and pointed a revolver at her. There was a struggle for the possession of this weapon, it was discharged in the struggle and then Mrs. Askew picked up another weapon and fired three shots, one of which entered Miss Harris' right lung. That is the story told police by Mrs. Askew.

TO INCREASE MEMBERSHIP OF NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—For the second time in recent years steps were taken today seeking an increase in the membership of the New York stock exchange. Almost simultaneously the prevailing price of membership seats rose first to $465,000 and then to $480,000, a gain of $30,000 for the day, and a record price for all time.

The effort to enlarge the present roster of 1,100, which has stood since 1879, formally was made when the governing committee adopted a resolution authorizing President E. H. H. Simmons to appoint a committee of five to consider and report upon the advisability of increasing the membership and the method whereby the increase shall be effected.

VOCIFEROUS WELCOME FOR SMITH IN MISSOURI

Smith Special Train En Route to SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 15—(AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith carried the democratic banner into Southern Illinois and the border state of Missouri today and received the most vociferous welcome that as yet has marked his campaign.

With shouts and cheers, the waving of flags and the throwing of confetti, the democratic nominee was greeted by thousands in St. Louis and East St. Louis, just across the Mississippi river, for nearly three hours he rode through the streets of the two cities where for blocks and blocks people shoved, jammed and pushed to catch a glimpse of him.

Leaving his special train at Tower Grove station on the outskirts of St. Louis, the governor was whisked away at the head of an automobile procession more than a quarter mile long. The crowds started at the station platform and stretched out along street after street for miles.

In the business district of the Missouri City, the automobiles moved at a snail's pace between rows of people which reached from the car tracks in the center of the streets back to the buildings on the sidewalks.

Here and there his car was stopped when a group broke through to shake his hand or present a bouquet of flowers. By the time the Coronado hotel was reached, where the nominee paused to rest a few minutes, the automobile looked like a florist shop on wheels.

FAILED TO ESTABLISH AIR ENDURANCE RECORD

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 15—(AP)—Roscoe Turner and Jack Rand failed in their second attempt to establish a new endurance record for flying when their Timm biplane was forced down with a burst oil tank at 12:48 p. m. today. The fliers said they may make another attempt tomorrow.

K. OF P. CONVENTION WILL OPEN HERE THIS MORNING

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 16—Delegates and officers from the 76 lodges of the Knights of Pythias of Connecticut were arriving at the Nathan Hale hotel in numbers today to attend the annual convention of the order which will be held Tuesday. Sessions will be held in the forenoon and afternoon. The grand lodge meetings will be held in the lodge room of the Elks home and sessions of the Grand Temple will be in Odd Fellows' hall on Main street. The 76 lodges are sending a total of 225 delegates and the 42 temples of the state will be represented by 150 delegates. At the afternoon sessions of the respective bodies on Tuesday afternoon officers will be elected and installed. Walter R. King of Natchaug lodge, No. 22, this city, is retiring grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias while Mrs. Clara Heaton, grand chief of Wallingford, is retiring Head of the Pythian Sisters.

This evening at 6.30 o'clock retiring Grand Chancellor Walter R. King was host at a dinner tendered in the Nathan Hale hotel to about 50 officers of the grand lodges of Connecticut, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Rhode Island and several notables of the order with their wives. The guest of honor was Henry Wade of Indianapolis, Ind., an officer of the supreme lodge who delivered an address.

At the close of this dinner the grand lodge officers, many of the delegates who had already arrived for the convention and other members of the organization with their families attended an entertainment given under the auspices of Natchaug lodge at the town hall. The program, which was arranged by committees of Natchaug lodge, the Pythian Sisters and Puriton temple, No. 2 of this city was as follows: Selection by orchestra. Address of welcome by Grand Chancellor Walter R. King. Song, Edward Rocheville of this city; two-act play, C. A. C. Dramatic club of Storrs with orchestral interlude. Song, Edward Rocheville; skit, Mrs. Mabel Church of this city. The entertainment was followed by dancing.

At the opening of the convention Tuesday the municipal welcome will be delivered by Mayor Charles A. Gates who was elected grand chancellor at the last grand lodge convention held in this city in October, 1904. Special honors will be paid to William N. Potter of this city who has been treasurer of the grand lodge of Connecticut for many years.

Grand lodge officers who were present at the dinner tendered by Grand Chancellor Walter R. King of this city with their wives, except Messrs. George Howe of Boston, Mass., and C. TWO YOUTHS GIVEN SUSPENDED JAIL SENTENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 15—Harry Keith of Eastford and Bruce Rice of Derby were jointly arraigned on a modified charge of taking an automobile without the owner's permission at the session of police court this morning. Each received a jail sentence of 30 days suspended for a period of three months. The costs of the case, $48.60 were paid. Keith and Rice were accomplices in the theft of a car owned by Louis Dansereau of this city from in front of the Jordan Auto company garage on Main street on the evening of Thursday, October 4. The machine was found the next morning in Eastford in a badly wrecked condition, having apparently struck a fence and overturned. Keith was arrested a few days later and the case postponed until police learned the identity of his alleged accomplice. Rice appeared at police headquarters this morning and voluntarily surrendered. Through Attorney W. A. King, the defendants made an agreement with Dansereau to settle for $350. In view of these circumstances Prosecuting Attorney H. S. Gaucher recommended to the court that the original charge of theft of the car be amended to taking without permission of the owner and then moved for a suspended jail sentence.

During the court session two intoxicants received ten day suspended jail sentences, another was placed on probation for six months in lieu of a jail sentence in the event that he finds work within 24 hours while a fourth was fined five dollars and costs. William Bicknell of this city was fined $12 and costs amounting to $19.15 for intoxication and assault on Arthur Cyr. All pleaded guilty.

NOANK

MYSTERY IN FINDING THERMOS BOTTLE AND OILERS

One local fisherman was going down to the packing house dock Saturday morning at 2:30 to go out fishing and saw in the road a thermos bottle filled with hot coffee. He got down to the dock and with his flashlight saw a new suit of oilers and a sweater, a pair of rubber boots, but no man in sight. When it was daylight the manager of the dock saw the things and put them away. It has the fishermen guessing, where is the man to claim them? Has he met with foul play? or fallen in the water? It is a mystery. Will the village have to get a Sherlock Holmes on the case, or will the sea give up the body of the owner. It is the first mystery case ever in the village. One old-time fisherman said in nine days we will all tell who it is as the sea doesn't lie. The man might have gone for a week's fishing trip and forgot the articles. Now will he come back for them? All the fishermen are waiting for some one to clear away the mystery that is hanging about the dock.

George White was a caller in Saybrook Sunday.

Harry Roberston has returned from a short visit in Occum with friends.

About 60 in the village were down to the docks and on Prospect Hill early as 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning, watching for the giant Zeppelin from Germany to pass over to Lakehurst, N. J. They had to go back to their homes disappointed, for the news came over the radio that the Zep was taking a different course and would not land in New Jersey until 7 o'clock at night or later in the day.

A long line of automobiles coming from Hartford, Springfield and Boston, reached for three-quarters of a mile on the Groton Long Point road Saturday morning, bound for the point. They brought 100 summer people to spend the week and enjoy the fine weather, warm and nice. Sunday afternoon 30 were in swimming in green and red bathing suits at the big beach. It seemed like a day in August. The only thing missing on the beach were the big green umbrellas. Many people of the village thought the point was opening up again and that the hot sun drove cottagers out of the city. As long as the week end days are warm the point will be busy over Sunday.

Walter Buddington, a member of the junior class at Bulkeley high school, New London, is a javelin thrower, and is on the track team and is called Long Throw Buddington. The coach of the track team said he is the find of the year and he is wondering why young Buddington did not come out before to make the team. That track team will make the best of them travel at full speed to beat them, for the Orange and Black squad will be right there fighting to a finish. After school Friday the junior class held a meeting and elected officers for the year. Long Throw Buddington was elected vice president, also writer for the junior class "Eagle" paper, where every student's record is kept during the year.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tourjee are spending a few days in Philadelphia.

How to Reduce Varicose Veins

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart As Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. All druggists sell lots of it.

DODGE BROTHERS
NEW VICTORY SIX

The DeLuxe Sedan

Smarter in Appearance — More Luxurious in Appointments — With Increased Room and Still Finer Performance

Style stands out in all nine new Victory body types. There is an inviting swagger in the sweep of the improved one-piece fenders, an assurance of power in the higher and more massive radiator and hood lines.

Bodies are not only smarter, but larger, providing increased head-room, leg-room and seat-comfort. Deeper, softer cushions and specially selected hardware and upholstery sound a distinctive note of interior luxury, while higher and wider doors facilitate entrance and exit.

The new Victory Six emphasizes the unusual structural advantages first introduced in the original Victory. The chassis frame is so bolted to the body that it literally becomes a part thereof—a simplified, more rugged, and squeak-proof construction that reduces weight, eliminates rattles and lowers the center of gravity.

This unique Victory design provides roadability and riding ease as remarkable and unusual as Victory pick-up, power and flexibility.

There is just one way to find out how different and better Victory performance really is. Drive the car yourself!

"OVER THE COUNTER"

DEAR DOT:

This is the weather that inspires within us the urge to do things; to save and conserve for another day when life in general may not be as comfortable or as full of the energy and health that one associates with Autumn.

No doubt, you are one of the many who, while grasping from today all the happiness that is in it, are planning for a future to be spent without dependence, without sorrow and in a home free of the entanglements of mortgages and debts.

"Begin Now to Save," is certainly the best advice I can give you. The modest beginning leads to a prosperous ending. We who reside in Willimantic or within its wide trading area, are especially fortunate in having at our disposal excellent banking facilities. There are "none bette" as the old saying goes.

THE WILLIMANTIC TRUST COMPANY, with which I have done business for some years is the bank I want to particularly recommend to you at this time. It was established in 1911 and has present resources of about two millions of dollars with an enviable patronage of over 7,000 people in its various departments. The capital and surplus is placed at $350,000. In this institution you will find modern methods of bookkeeping that furnish a complete and comprehensive banking service suitable to the needs of individuals, partnerships, and societies.

The bank operates the separate departments of savings, checking, trust department and Christmas club. The 1929 Christmas club starts the latter part of December and many will be the happy thrifters who will receive club checks for 1928 during that month.

It is so easy to open an account and so easy to form the habit of keeping it growing. Consider banking by mail for instance. You merely make up a deposit slip, endorse checks or send cash by registered mail to the bank. Just drop your envelope in the nearest mail box or postoffice. The bank will make acknowledgment by return mail and your account will be immediately credited with the deposit. Deposits made on or before the fifth day of any month draw interest as of the first of that month. Interest at 4% is payable quarterly on the first of January, April, July and October.

Then again, if you need assistance, you will find the Trust company prepared to take real estate mortgages on approved properties. Loans are also made on acceptable collateral at current rates and discounts are accepted. The trust department acts as executor, administrator, trustee and all fiduciary capacities. These are just some of the invaluable services one can secure from "his" or "her" bank. Feel at liberty to consult Treasurer Herbert W. Huber at any time about these splendid services.

Take a kindly "tip," dear Dot. Whether you do it by mail or call personally, start your account at once, even if your initial deposit is but one dollar. Do not be shy of a modest beginning. Thrift NEVER starts in large amounts but it always ends with them.

Yours for thrift,

JANE.

THERE IS NO BETTER WAY TO MAKE MONEY THAN TO INVEST WISELY.

No one ever bought an inferior article because it was inferior.
But sometimes people buy an inferior article with the expectation (or imagination) that they somehow are saving money.
How often are we satisfied with a purchase made on this basis?
We all know from expensive experience.
A fresh egg and an addled egg look alike on the surface; the only difference between them is the invisible difference inside the shell; and, oh, what a difference!
The most important difference in garments is the difference in making and fashioning them; details enter into the making of fine garments which cannot be seen; but the difference is there and will begin to stick out as soon as the garment is worn.
Well made garments of good quality material are a constant source of pleasure; carelessly made garments of the same materials are the garments that people "get sick" of wearing.

EDWARD R DAVIS DIES—HAS NO NEAR RELATIVES

Edward R. Davis, 82, who died at the home of George Denison, near the Road church, Sunday, has been in failing health for a long time, but was confined to his bed less than a week. Mr. Davis was born in Preston, Aug. 6, 1846, the son of Russell and Desire Ayers Davis. Many years of his life were spent in North Stonington, where he lived with his sister, the late Miss Mary A. Davis. After selling their farm, they came to Quiambaug. For the past year, since the death of his sister, he has made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Denison. He was of quiet disposition and highly respected. He never married and leaves no near relatives.

Miss Rachel Buddington of New London has been ill for the past week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Colver.

Mr. and Mrs. John DeGraw and Miss Gertrude DeGraw of Brooklyn, N. Y., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Williams of Old Mystic.

The Ladies' Aid society of Old Mystic Baptist church plans an all-day session in the Conference room, Friday.

The officers and drill team of Mystic Rebekah lodge held a rehearsal in Odd Fellows' hall, Monday night.

The Hoover-Curtis club held a well attended meeting, Saturday evening, in Odd Fellows' hall. The speakers were Col. A. R. Wood and Albert Simms of Hartford. Colonel Wood was a fine speaker, keeping the audience in a happy mood by his anecdotes. Mr. Simms was forceful and gave solid facts to illustrate his talk. The Mystic band played for a half hour before the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Knox and two sons have returned from a 10,000-mile auto trip to California and other points in the west. While in Hollywood, they visited their son, Stuart Knox, who is working in pictures.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Main, Hazel Main, Mystic and Mrs. Sarah Darrow of New London attended Stafford Springs fair.

Mrs. Eugene Jones sang the solo, "I Cried Unto the Lord," at the Congregational church Sunday morning.

Miss Jessie L. Post of Andover, Conn., spent the week-end with Mrs. Effie Mitchell at Willow Point.

Andrew Nogas and Charles Getting have returned to Hartford after being here for several weeks, installing machinery at the Sea Sled Co. plant.

Holders of common stock of N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad have received the second dividend of $1 per share.

Miss Dorothy Gray returned to Providence Monday, having been called here to attend the funeral, Friday, of her grandmother, Mrs. Gertrude Sawyer.

Mrs. Alice Sherburne was in New London Sunday to visit her grandson, who is a patient at Lawrence hospital.

The Union Baptist church appointed delegates to the annual Baptist state convention to be held in Stamford. Rev. and Mrs. L. J. Shepler, Mrs. Hollis Price, Mrs. J. K. Bucklyn and Mrs. D. M. Bennett left Monday morning, all except Mrs. Bennett, to return home this (Tuesday) evening. She will return Wednesday evening.

Rev B. U. Hatfield is to deliver his address, The Land of Evangeline, Tuesday, Oct. 23, at Mystic Library.

Mrs. M. L. Johnson, on her way home to Annapolis, Md., from spending the summer in Maine, stopped here to visit her granddaughter, Mrs. Clarence B. Hall. While there, Mrs. Johnson celebrated her 83rd birthday.

Lawrence Brustolon attended Stafford Springs fair.

At the Union Baptist church, Sunday, it was announced that $185 had been sent to the Red Cross for the hurricane sufferers in Florida and Porto Rico. Copies of the Watchman-Examiner, a Baptist paper, were given out Sunday, containing an article on this church written by Rev. Mr. Shepler. Orville Lewis was the soloist. The first fall meeting of the Missionary society will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. L. P. Allyn, Thursday at 2 o'clock. The first meeting of the Crusaders was held in the vestry, Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Merritt Tooker has returned to Montville.

There are to be services in St. Patrick's church Wednesday and Friday evenings of this week.

Saturday, 127 men and women were made voters here on the Stonington side and 114 men and women were made on the Groton side.

Cornelius Donohue, Jr., of New York was at home over the week-end.

Mrs. Harry Meyers has returned from a visit in Stafford Springs. While there she attended the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Gates and Mrs. Isabelle Neal of Providence arrived Friday to spend a few days at their home on the River road. Mr. and Mrs. Gates' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Ryley of Providence, spent Saturday and Sunday with them.

Edward Potter has closed his cottage on River road and returned to his home in Elmville, Conn.

Miss Bernice Burdick of Westerly and Mrs. Fannie Burdick of Mystic called on Miss Antoinette Burdick, R. N., in Norwich Sunday.

MRS. GEO. C. LADD'S FUNERAL WITH BURIAL IN NORWICH

Funeral services for Mrs. Angelina H. Ladd, wife of George C. Ladd, were held at local funeral parlors, Monday at 2:30 p. m., Rev. Ernest Weiss of Noank officiating. The bearers were J. Lester Harris, Herbert Chapman, Wilfred Robinson, Harold Davis, John R. Ray and Douglas McDonald. Burial was in Hamilton Avenue cemetery, Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Noyes of New York spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Noyes.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tift, their daughters, Florence and Elsie, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Startz motored to Camp Devens and Worcester, Mass., Sunday.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Charles Vinal

Friends and relatives here received word of the death of Mrs. Dorothy Mather Dickenson Vinal, at her home in Guilford, Sunday, Oct. 14. HOOVER'S BOSTON ADDRESS

When Herbert Hoover in speaking to New England, as well as the rest of the country, in his address at Boston dwelt upon the tariff, the merchant marine, and foreign trade he touched upon matters which are of particular interest to this part of the country, but he laid proper emphasis upon the fact that those are by no means local issues for they concern the whole country. What concerns New England concerns other industrial states, what involves the states along the coast has its influence upon states in the center of the country and when foreign trade is brought into the limelight it is not one single group of the states that is affected by the exports or the imports. There is general concern in these questions and in a masterly and direct manner Mr. Hoover not only pointed out this common interest but emphasized the need of government cooperation in further developing foreign trade for "it is more important to New England than it has been before. With the assurance of peace for many years to come the world is upon the threshold of great commercial expansion."

Mr. Hoover called for the maintenance of a protective tariff, with such adjustment as new conditions require. He decried the competitive tariff, referred to the depressing effect of the competitive tariff of 1913 and declared that to attempt a revision under the democratic formula of effective competition would mean "a reduction of the tariff and a depression in American wages and American farm prices." It means a flood of foreign goods, of foreign farm produce, and consequent reduction of wages and incomes, not only of workers and farmers, but the whole of those who labor, whether in the field, at the bench or desk."

Mr. Hoover had good words for the tariff commission but insisted that it could be strengthened. As for giving it the complete authority to handle the tariff question he recognized, as the people thoroughly understand, that they would never deny themselves the right to express themselves upon such a vital question by taking it out of the hands of congress and the president who can be held responsible to the electorate. He regards the protective tariff as one of the most important economic issues of the campaign.

When Mr. Hoover hoped that the country would some day be able to retire from the shipping business he unquestionably expressed the feeling of most people. He proceeded to show why government operation was unsatisfactory but maintains that it is now necessary "until private enterprise can carry the burden and grow in strength".

Referring to the textile situation in New England he declared it was not peculiar to this country but pointed out that the situation here is much better than elsewhere because of the protective tariff and any change in the present policy "would mean no less than ruin to New England industry, both manufactures and workmen."

In his address Mr. Hoover dealt in a deliberate and convincing manner with the questions in which the country is deeply interested. The full text of his address appears on page nine and is worth a careful reading.

INATTENTION.

In studying the fatal automobile accidents in this state for the past two years the state motor vehicle department finds "the great loss of life according to the department's statistics, was directly attributable to inattention. Seventy six deaths were traced to this cause in the first eight months of 1927 and the same period this year. Helped by carelessness, the same cause also figured largely in the deaths of 86 adults and children who were killed while crossing streets during those periods. Speeding, or driving too fast for conditions, was responsible for 42 deaths; defective equipment accounted for 24; skidding 22 and confusion 24. There were 25 deaths in which intoxicated persons were known to have been involved, including 16 operators of cars and nine pedestrians."

That means, when we get right down to brass tacks, that for the most part those who were driving the cars in the fatal accidents were not tending to business in the sense of giving respect to the rights of others or were not prepared to meet the uncertainties which are likely to be encountered along a highway.

Not all fatal accidents can be attributed to the drivers of automobiles. There are others who can be and are equally careless of their own welfare. They neglect to assure their own safety and fail to see that the other fellow is safeguarded.

Just how serious this situation has become is disclosed by the department's finding to the effect that "more than 400 accidents show that a few less than half occurred on roads described as 'near', or without adjacent intersection, curve, hill, or other feature which might add to the primary causes of the accident". In other words those accidents should not have occurred under the proper handling of the motor vehicles, and it is the prevalence of that kind of inattention to the responsibilities of the person behind the wheel that results in so many accidents and fatalities.

The increase in the number of automobiles makes it apparent that if accidents are going to be reduced drivers must take heed of the negligence of others and apply the lessons that exist in the daily crashes as a means of preventing personal experience of the kind which most people ought to want to avoid.

ZEPPELIN TRANSPORTATION

We have seen great progress in the construction and operation of airplanes and we have also seen the dirigible brought to a higher state of perfection. To say that the Graf Zeppelin represents the most that can be expected is to disregard what has been done in the past or the hopes of dirigible experts for the future. Already plans are being made for bigger and better airships of that type.

There is great satisfaction that the trip of the Graf Zeppelin has thus far been successful in spite of the accident to its stabilizer. It isn't the first dirigible to cross the Atlantic to the United States, but it is the first to cover the route that it did and the first to come as a commercial airship carrying a list of passengers. It has demonstrated the possibilities of such a service, although the arrival at Lakehurst breaks no speed records.

Even though the big dirigible required much more time than expected and despite the fact that it took a circuitous route in order to get the most favorable conditions, it had by no means exhausted its fuel or supplies. It is one of those great big gas bags that feels the effect of the winds in a manner different than the airplane but it has a means of sustaining itself in the air which is lacking with the bird-like machine. Navigating the air with both types of craft is undergoing rapid improvement but the demonstration in airworthiness in getting away from unfavorable conditions, in being able to navigate it where desired, in carrying such a load as a ship in the passenger service would have to, in meeting an emergency while over the ocean appears decidedly successful. It was not exactly a trip where everything was favorable, for weather and the damaged stabilizer contributed obstacles, but regardless of them the trip must be regarded as a success and must be looked upon as pointing to increased interest in that type of craft.

There is nothing whatever to support the idea that the dirigible will replace the airplane in air navigation. On the other hand it unquestionably has a place in aviation that will be enlarged and made more secure as development goes on.

WILL THE PUBLIC RESPOND?

Now that Fire Prevention week is a matter of history for another year, it remains to be seen what effect the increased attention that has been given to the subject will have upon the public.

It was a week in which some fire departments were kept busier than they usually are. In Boston it is recorded that the week end showed a total of 17 false alarms among the total of 42 calls. Such a practice doesn't necessarily indicate a lack of fire prevention but it displays a total disregard for the purposes of the department and invites accidents through the needless fast runs of the fire apparatus.

A Boston board of engineers in giving thought to fire prevention makes the suggestion that in addition to a careful study of the fire records there should be a careful survey made of the municipal buildings and of the territory in general for the purpose of learning what the hazards are and what steps should be taken to prevent fires. Such a view is undoubtedly a wise one and in many departments just such a practice is carried out by fire departments for the purpose of not only uncovering conditions which should be corrected but of acquainting the department members with conditions in case fire fighting becomes necessary in those places.

Such an anticipation of trouble is particularly advantageous. Much prevention work about which little or nothing is publicly known is in this manner accomplished. If dangerous conditions are discovered they are ordered cleaned up. If fire regulations are not being respected they are enforced and it is probably true that more serious fires would occur but for the resort to this action. At the same time the information which is gathered concerning buildings contributes to the efficiency of the department when a fire actually breaks out. Knowing in advance what the conditions are and having a plan of action mapped out, even though it is tentative, helps materially in accomplishing the stopping of fires, whether slight or serious in character. If equally valuable preventive measures were taken by the public in general fires would be fewer in number and less destructive.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Graf Zeppelin's flight cannot be pointed to as the fastest way to cross the Atlantic.

There would be no objection if it was a whispering campaign that the back seat drivers were conducting.

Wednesday is the second day for making of voters. Don't miss if you're on the list and haven't been made.

The man on the corner says: If you haven't gotten your overcoat out, it will not be long now before you'll have to.

Now that we have reached the halfway mark in October you can vote for the president, or presidential electors, in just three more weeks.

The Ford factory hasn't been able to develop the desired production as early as desired but the automobile accidents increase just the same.

What must have been the feeling of those Hoppe jurors who were preventing an agreement on a verdict, when the accused stopped their deliberations by pleading guilty.

SCIENCE AND SYSTEM

"I can't understand why you consider getting breakfast such a burden, Susan," airily remarked Baird between puffs of a cigarette. "To hear you groan about having to get up and prepare breakfast while Selma is away, one would imagine that you were obliged to cook banquets every morning, instead of our really simple meal."

"I suppose it is a mere nothing to see that three children are properly dressed, and get our frugal viands on the table, Tom, while you are engaged in the more arduous work of bathing and shaving."

"Oh, well, Susie, you needn't wax sarcastic. I know it's some little job, but I am sure that if you were more systematic—if you employed business methods of attention to details—you wouldn't find it so difficult my dear. Now you know on my camping trips I am really noted for cooking with neatness and dispatch. I may say modestly that there are no wasted efforts on my part. I make every stroke tell, just as I do in business. That's science—science and system is my motto."

"That's very interesting, Tom. Why is it in all the ten years of our marriage you have never given me an exhibition of your culinary skill?"

Baird gave his wife a questioning look, but her eyes were intent on the little sweater she was knitting, and her quiet line betrayed no lack of seriousness. He rose and lighted a fresh cigarette, and posed before her in all his manly strength.

"By Jiminy, Susan, I will show you what I can do. You just take it easy tomorrow morning, and don't come down till I call you to breakfast, and that will be at 8 sharp."

"Oh, Tom that will be lovely," said Mrs. Baird, ignoring the emphasis her husband had placed on the breakfast hour. She had felt his disapproval of her tardy meals, but nothing had been said on the subject. However, the next morning, looking at her wrist watch at five after 8, she smiled. It was just as well, for she had not yet combed all the snarls out of the last little bobbed curls nor tied the shoe laces of the older sisters.

At last all were ready and small Susie was clamoring for "po-lidge." It was 8.25 and no call from father yet. At half past, leaving the older girls to pacify Susie with a picture book, Mrs. Baird went downstairs into the kitchen.

"Anything I can do to help, Tom?" the acted of her flushed and floury husband.

"I'm getting on all right, but there's something wrong with this oven. It won't bake well. I put those muffins in an hour ago, and they didn't bake at all for twenty minutes, and now look at them, they're burned. I guess we need a new stove."

"The oven should be lighted before the muffins are put in, and then the muffins should be watched," said Mrs. Baird quietly. "Why, Tom, what are all these eggs in cups for?"

"I'm going to make an omelette. I should think you would have known your cook book eggs for a soufflé the eggs should be beaten separately. You can beat one or two of them if you want to help."

"It isn't necessary," she replied, and, with admirable self-control, gravely explained the mystery of beating eggs separately.

"Goodness gracious what's in the flour, Tom? Just look at all these specks. I thought I'd stir up some quick biscuits, but I can't use this flour."

"I did spill a little ground coffee in it, but that won't hurt any Susan. That's not unwholesome."

"But unusual. We can have toast. Is the porridge ready?"

"Porridge? We're not having porridge this morning."

"But, Tom, you know the children always want por—"

"Well, if you must know, I did start some, and when I was stirring it my cigarette fell into, so of course I had to throw it out. It won't injure the children to go without it for once. You pamper those youngsters too much, Sue. Hang it all, the coffee's boiled dry. We might as well go round the corner to that good looking cafe in the apartment house, and have a snack there. Maybe the kids will like it."

"Just the idea, Tom. They'll love it. It is fun to pamper them some," agreed Susan, and Baird, ruefully washing his hands at the sink, was mercifully spared the sight of her smiling countenance, when she announced, to the three hungry little girls that dear, thoughtful daddy had invited them all out to breakfast.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

BITES

By Robert T. Morris, M. D., New York, Member Gorgas Memorial

Bites take secure hold upon the imagination of the public because they belong to the unusual and unexpected. Bites from insects for the most part are merly annoying if we except those of the Tsetse fly and the malarial mosquito, for example, which carry organisms into the blood and produce constitutional derangements. As a matter of fact these are not bites—they are punctures; but in commonplace language they fit into a small boy's idiom and small boys who grow up continue this handy classification of injuries from insects.

In higher animal life bites may have very serious consequences because microbes are carried deeply into wounds made by teeth and these microbes are out of reach of first aid remedies which are now becoming so popular. Because of the carrying of microbes deply into wounds by teeth the cases belong to the doctor and very promptly at that. Treatment with home remedies may be disastrous because microbes grow very fast down out of reach. Men do not bite each other very often, but when they do, the sort of men who are likely to bite are just the ones who carry many microbes upon their teth. This kind of bite is highly poisonous for another particular reason—the tissues are bruised in addition to the puncture. Bruised tissues lose their natural resistance to the growth of microbes.

Dog bites furnish a particularly dangerous group of injuries for the reason that all members of the dog family, from the wolf down, have the habit of giving a shake along with the bite. The shake causes deep bruising. On that account dog bites require very prompt surgical treatment quite aside from any question of hydrophobia. Pet squirrels add a bruise to their bite which is quite different from the cleaner punctures made by the teeth of a cat when its tail is looked upon as a handle by the children. The rat bite is a bruise and may be especially poisonous because rats eat decomposing material loaded with microbes.

Horse bites are bruise bites, or to use a technical expression, the wound is "lacerated and contused." Snake bites, which were formerly so greatly dreaded, are clean punctures so far as microbes are concerned, but they carry venom deep into a wound because each fang is hollow like a little tube, and venom is thrown out from the ends of the fangs. Medical progress has reduced the fear of snake bites because two remedies have become popular. A little package consisting of permanganate of potash with a solution bottle and a syringe is now carried by many people in snake regions. The needle of the syringe carried down into a puncture made by a fang injects permanganate solution which neutralizes the poison. Furthermore, we now have antivenin which is kept in stock by drug houses and which may successfully overcome the effect of snake poison even when first aid has not been applied.

Bites of some members of the spider family and some of the larger ants contain a formic acid element that is quickly neutralized by solutions of ordinary household ammonia. These bites are seldom very deep and the ammonia seems to reach to the bottom

Slangy

"The things the children learn in school now-adays are certainly 'modern'," complained the mother of a first grader to a friend at a recent group meeting. "Why, Junior sings the oddest songs that he has learned at school. One of them is 'A Nutty Week Ago'. I can't make any sense of it."

"Well, I can explain that," smiled the friend. "The name of the song really happens to be "A-Nutting We Can Go'."

Different Destinations

Great Aunt Ann had been ill for a long time and having one of her "bad spells", she remarked that she "was soon going to die, wasn't going to be here long."

Little four year old Gene hearing this remark, asked her where she was going. She replied she was "going to heaven." Gene said "I'm not, I'm going to Hartford." His parents were planning a Saturday afternoon motor trip.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 — When George VII of England sets his royal hand to a state paper, an imposing array of kingly and imperial titles denoting his place in the British commonwealth's scheme of things usually is appended lending majesty and pomp to the event. On the contrary, as elected head of a single nation numbering somewhere around 120 million folk President Coolidge merely sets down his two names on the exchange copies of ratified and effective treaties which are the actual written evidence of such international contracts and commitments.

Yet, if he so desired, the president might assemble quite a line of alphabetical handles to signify the various positions connected with government he holds, in addition to his office of president, by constitutional fiat, statutory law or through courtesy and custom. They are all gravely set out in each succeeding issue of that thrilling serial digest of American national political life, the Congressional Directory.

The president might, for instance set his name down on a treaty parchment in this fashion: "Calvin Coolidge, President of the United Sattes of America; COCUSA COCUSN; HESI; PARC; PWNMS; PCID." Admittedly that looks like either an effort to translate his titles and honors into English, spelling of Chinese or Choctaw, or merely a lot of badly mixed radio station call letters. But each group is an official post held by the president and of the existence of which, with some exceptions, it is doubtful if any presidenet has ever been aware. Reduced to understandable form, his titles and designations in addition to that of president are: Commander-in-Chief, United States Army, and Commander-in-Chief, United States Navy, these by specific constitutional warrant; Head of "The Establishment" (whatever that is), Smithsonian Institution; president, American Red Cross; president, ex-officio, Washington National Monument society; patron, Columbia Institution for the Deaf.

Boards Nobody Knows

That is only one curious aspect of the American governmental way of doing things to which the Congressional Directory draws attention. It contains also a page chock full of government boards of one kind and another. These are in addition to 19 pages of better known government boards, corporations, institutions, conferences, commissions and joint commissions, independent bureaus, separate offices unions, academies, councils, administrations and what have you type of administrative agencies which have grown up through the years as adjuncts and appurtenances of the business of government. The twentieth page of the "miscellaneous" section of the directory, however, contains only those smaller activities which the public printer thought did not rate anything better than a "small cap" heading and that in a ten-to-the-page huddle.

Left to the mercy of the name of the board only, mighty few folks would be able even to guess at the nature of the business of these ten government activities. Who knows, for instance, what the Federal Traffic board, or the Federal Real Estate board or the Interdepartmental Patent board, or the Federal Liquidation board, or the Permanent Conference on Printing or the Federal Specifications board does for a living

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Predicts Republican Victory

Mr. Editor: One day this last week I left my car on one of the main streets of Norwich. It bears a Hoover-Curtis sign on the front of it. When I came out from doing my shopping I noticed that the sign had been bent over. They had tried to take it off, but I have it securely fastened so that is impossible. This is not the first time this matter has been brought up, but I have failed to hear any complaints about Al Smith signs.

Now at the Smith-Robinson club the other night they talked about the whispering campaign by the republicans, but all the whispering anyone can hear comes right from among their own ranks, as well as all the religious issues.

If every voter will compare the speeches of the two candidates for president there will be no doubt of the outcome. No one can find any mudslinging or sarcasm or personalities in Hoover's speeches. They are all refined and straight-forward, telling his own convictions. Just the man for the place in other words.

But as for the other candidate there is nothing but mudslinging and personalities and "I", what "I" will do, and what "I" will not do.

We will never have to be ashamed of our next president, "Hoover," as he is going to be elected by the largest majority ever known.

Well, it won't be long now before November 6th, and let's all vote for prosperity and cleanliness in politics by pulling the top lever for a straight republican victory.

The Wisdom of Experience

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Experience to knowledge leads,
And judgment gives for all our needs.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Jimmy Skunk has found an opening under the old barn on the farm next to Farmer Brown's and he had gone under there to explore. Outside he had left a foolish young dog—a very sick feeling young dog—to whom he had just given a lesson. You see, that young dog had never met Jimmy Skunk before and he had foolishly attacked Jimmy.

"I guess he'll know better next time," thought Jimmy as he listened to the whines and whimpers of the dog outside. "There is nothing like experience as a teacher."

Now the owner of that dog up at the farmhouse had heard the excited barking of the dog when he had first discovered Jimmy Skunk. He had gone outside the house to listen. Presently the Merry Little Breezes brought to him Jimmy Skunk's unpleasant perfume. "That dog's got a Skunk down there!" he exclaimed, and started down toward the barn. When he got down there he saw right away what had happened to the young dog. The dog was whining and whimpering and started to come toward him. But, of course, that dog had that perfume

The dog's master was returning with a gun

all in his coat, and his master backed away hurriedly. "Phew!" he cried. "Get away from me! Didn't you know any better than to tackle a Skunk? Well, as long as you've done it you might as well finish the job. He's probably under that barn. Go in there and fetch him out!"

But that dog had learned his lesson. He wanted to obey his master but he had no desire for another dose of that awful smelling scent that had choked him and that made his eyes still smart. He looked up at his master and there was such a pathetic look in his face. His master pointed to the opening under the barn. "Sic him!" he cried. "Sic him! Fetch him out!"

But he refused to go under the barn. He wagged his tail as hard as he could, but he backed away instead of going toward the barn. His master coaxed, but coaxing did no good. He threatened, but that did no good. In the midst of it Jimmy Skunk poked his head out to see what was going on. At sight of him that dog put his tail between his legs and ran away. At a safe distance he turned, with his tail still between his legs, and looked back. His master whistled and called, but the dog wouldn't come. Jimmy walked right out. He walked straight toward the dog's master, and the latter backed away in a hurry. "I ought to have brought my gun," said he. "I'll go back to the house and get it."

So he turned and hurried back to the house. Jimmy Skunk grinned as he watched him go. He took a few steps toward that dog. The dog turned and ran. Jimmy grinned once more. "I guess he has learned his lesson," said he. "I don't believe that dog will ever bother a Skunk again. Experience is a great teacher. It certainly is a great teacher." A few minutes later he exclaimed: "Hello, here comes that man back again! It looks to me as if he had one of those firesticks." Of course, Jimmy meant a gun.

It was true. The dog's master was returning with a gun. Jimmy knows something about guns. "This is no place for me," said Jimmy to himself. And, turning, he went back under the barn. He went 'way back out of sight of the opening. And then, just as if nothing exciting had occurred, he curled himself up in a far corner for a nap. He was safe and he knew he was safe. Under there there was nothing to fear from the terrible gun. (Copyright, 1928, by T. W. Burgess)

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

"Too much acid" in the stomach causes nearly nine-tenths of the misery from gas, sourness and indigestion from which so many people suffer. An acid stomach needs a soothing alkaline like Bisurated Magnesia to neutralize its excess acid, keep its food contents sweet and permit normal painless digestion. Bisurated Magnesia—powder or tablets—is the ideal way of treating acid stomach troubles. It is handy to use, always safe, and gives almost instant relief or reliable druggists everywhere will return its small cost. Used by thousands every day the world over.

That Baby You've Longed For

Mrs. Burton Advises Women on Motherhood and Companionship

"For several years I was denied the blessing of motherhood," writes Mrs. Margaret Burton of Kansas City. "I was terribly nervous and subject to periods of terrible suffering and melancholia. Now I am the proud mother of a beautiful little daughter and a true companion and inspiration to my husband. I believe hundreds of other women would like to know the secret of my happiness, and I will gladly reveal it to any married woman who will write me." Mrs. Burton offers her advice entirely without charge. She has nothing to sell. Letters should be addressed to Mrs. Margaret Burton, a091 Massachusetts, Kansas City, Mo. Correspondence will be strictly confidential.

It is easy to find fault, but it is hard to tell what to do with it.

In Five Million Homes Tonight

What will happen in your household tonight if Baby can't sleep, and won't stop crying? It may be serious, if you've only medicines meant for grown-ups. You needn't worry, if you have a bottle of Castoria. A few drops, and the little one is comforted; a few moments, and all is serene once more. Yet you have given nothing but a vegetable product which doctors approve for the tiniest babies. Just a gentle, soothing preparation the very taste of which tells you it is harmless.

Castoria is always a boon in the home where there are children of any age; for the little everyday ills, fretful spells, or any upset. And a blessing when a sudden attack of colic or acute constipation demands relief. Never be without Castoria; some mothers keep an extra bottle put away. Buy yours now, and have it always ready. But don't regard it as something you must save for emergencies. It is one thing a mother may use freely, as often as needed. A safe and sensible form of comfort for any baby, or twenty-five million bottles would not have been bought last year!

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. Alexis Caya, 546 Hunt St., Woonsocket, R. I., says: "I was in such bad health I couldn't work for a year. I decided to try Tanlac. Now I've gained 30 lbs., my yellow skin has cleared, constipation overcome and appetite returned."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

OBITUARY

Dennis J. Driscoll.

The death of Dennis J. Driscoll occurred Sunday morning at 5.45 o'clock at his home at 157 North Main street. Although Mr. Driscoll has been in ill health for some time the end came rather unexpectedly. Mr. Driscoll was born in Norwich November 2, 1863, the son of the late Richard and Catherine Driscoll. He was married in St. Patrick's church to Catherine Carey, who survives him. He also leaves six children, three daughters and three sons, Mrs. Joseph Bellefleur, Mrs. Harry Washburn, Mrs. George Zatelle, Richard, Howard and Francis Driscoll, also one grandchild, Harry Washburn, Jr., and two sisters and five brothers, the Misses Mary and Catherine Driscoll, Florence, Michael, William, Richard and John Driscoll. Of a retiring disposition Mr. Driscoll belonged to no fraternal organizations but throughout his business career has made many friends in the community who will be saddened to hear of his unexpected death. He was a devoted member of St. Mary's parish.

Mrs. William Finlayson

After a long period of ill health Mrs. Hannah Ward Finlayson, widow of William Finlayson, died Monday morning about 11 o'clock at her home, No. 6 Francis place. Mrs. Finlayson was born in Mearns, Scotland, February 19, 1859 and came to Norwich in 1902. She was a member of the Greeneville Congregational church. Surviving are four daughters and three sons, Miss Jennie Finlayson, Mrs. Howard Adams, Mrs. Henry Pukallus, Mrs. Ellis Sage, and Alexander, Hugh and Neil Finlayson of this city. Mrs. Finlayson was well known throughout the city and town and her many friends, who sincerely mourn her death, extend heartfelt sympathy to the surviving members of the family.

Mrs. William Auwood

Mrs. Annie Glasscock Auwood, 89, widow of William Auwood, died Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lillian Dolbeare, at Quaker Hill. Death was due to ailments of advanced age.

Mrs. Auwood was born in Clavron, Kent county, England. Sixty years ago, with her husband, she came to America. The trip was made on a sailing vessel which took 16 weeks to cross the Atlantic ocean. Mr. and Mrs. Auwood settled at Montville. She lived there 46 years. Her husband died 35 years ago.

Fifteen years ago she went to Quaker Hill to make her home with her daughter. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church at Uncasville.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Dolbeare, the deceased leaves one other daughter, Mrs. Annie Burdick of New London and two sons, Harry Auwood of Quaker Hill and Walter Auwood of Groton.

WEDDING

Johnson-Bauck

Miss Paula Emilie Bauck, daughter of Mrs. Meta Bauck of Waterbury, became the bride of Carl J. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Johnson of Union City, Naugatuck, Friday evening at 5 o'clock at the First Lutheran church, Waterbury. Rev. William Meyer performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Hilmer Larson of the Salem Lutheran church, Naugatuck. The members of the bridal party included Miss Verna Bauck, a sister of the bride, as maid of honor, and Miss Elsie L. Bauck, a sister of the bride and Mrs. Willis O. Peterson, a sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids. The best man was Victor N. Peterson of Naugatuck and the bridegroom's escorts were Hans H. Bauck the bride's brother and Willias O. Peterson a brother-in-law of the bridegroom. The bride was given in marriage by Fred H. Hadeler, her uncle. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother.

Mr. Johnson and his bride will reside at 139 Hillside avenue, Waterbury, until after the first of the year when they will go to Sumatra where Mr. Johnson is chief accountant for the United States Rubber Plantations.

The bride is a former resident of this city, when her father, the late Rev. Theodor Bauck, was pastor of the German Lutheran church.

STRICKEN WITH SHOCK WHILE DRIVING AUTOMOBILE

Henry H Trushonsky of 103¾ North Main street a well known barber, was stricken with a shock Sunday afternoon while driving his automobile and is now a patient at the Backus hospital in a semi-conscious condition.

Mr. Trushonsky was driving his machine on Roath street when he felt the attack coming on, but he was able to throw the machine out of gear and head it into the curb before he was overcome.

He was taken to the hospital immediately and is reported in a serious condition.

Freshman President at Acadia

Ledlie Carson Pitt of this city has just been elected president of the freshman class at Acadia college, Wolfville, Nova Scotia. The young American who has thus won recognition from his class mates in a college under the British flag is the son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. David A. Pitt of Broadway.

"Burton's Agency Sells Another"

Mrs. Charles W. Burton has sold to John A. Caryl her property located at the corner of Oneco and Williams street, consisting of an eight-room cottage with all improvements.

The new owner will occupy it for his home.

The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Mrs. Rosa E. Burton.

INDICATES THREE MAIN FACTORS IN SUCCESSFUL SALESMANSHIP

Instructive and interesting were the addresses delivered by John W. Griest of Chicago at the Monday morning and afternoon meetings of the Better Business Congress conducted at the Wauregan hotel under the auspices of the Merchants Bureau of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce. Two sessions are to be held each day for the remainder of the week with a talk in the morning at 8 o'clock and another at 12:10 o'clock in the afternoon. All addresses are to be given by Mr. Griest from material gathered by Research Secretary Miss Waddell.

The Monday morning meeting attended by about 200 sales persons of the city opened the congress, Mr. Griest's topic being the Winning Salesman. The customer, merchandise and the sales person are three main factors in salesmanship, with the customer outstanding, said Mr. Griest, for he is the one that can make or break the establishment. There are two types of salesmen, the ordinary and winning, a comparison of whom were given by the speaker with a sprinkling of humorous stories. A winning salesman knows the material he is selling while the other does not and consequently the former's sales outweigh the latter's by a large margin.

Successful salesmanship depends upon the way in which the customer is received. A sales person must be careful in handling the prospective customer, sizing him up before trying to sell him an article. One of the main points in selling is to notice the customer's face, a change of expression sometimes telling whether he is or not desirous of buying. Be careful in the way you go about your selling for a sale may be lost quickly through wrong tactics at the start. Observe the type of customer you are dealing with before you attempt to sell and by all means be courteous at all times.

An observant customer notices the personality and appearance of a sales person among the first things. The sales person must get the respect of the customer by saying the right thing at the right time, which goes far in successful salesmanship. Mr. Griest explained the difference in selling to the man and woman, the latter being a born buyer. The woman is mostly interested in the personnel of the sales person, the quality of goods to be purchased; also the difference between the various articles. Durability and price are among the facts that interest the male customer.

Hints on Advertising

In opening his talk in the afternoon on the topic, Helpful Hints on Advertising, Mr. Griest announced that his services would be given gratis in conferences with merchants relative to their businesses with the understanding that they have something definite in mind to ask him. There are several mediums through which to advertise. In advertising direct by mail, a system which has been used for 18 to 35 years the advertiser must be specific and definite. The billboard is a fairly good medium, but is changing rapidly. The passengers in speeding automobiles do not have time to read a long string of words in open display advertisements and so colors, cuts, slogans and art work are taking their place.

The latest thing in advertising is the radio medium, which is a good one, but is to be a great thing in the future, but it requires a great deal of money. If one does not have much money at his command he shouldn't fool with this sort of advertising. The newspaper is considered the surest and best medium in which to advertise, the circulation having a great deal to do with it. The printed page is the firm foundation of all effective advertising, quoted Mr. Griest. Treat advertising not as a condition but as a business builder. Sales cannot be directly traced back to advertising.

Advertising is a business within a business. Treat it as you would a department in your store. Don't fool with it and use it cautiously. Advertising is a system of education. You are trying to educate the public what you have for sale. The first advertisement ever written was the rainbow. One of the principles in advertising is to make it attractive and secondly pleasing to the eye. Make it up in such a way that people will stop and read it. Colored advertising is to be used more in the future in the newspapers, as it has two main factors, it is attractive and pleasing to the eye. The black borders are a thing of the past.

In your advertising do not brag. Stop using the "We and I" and "our store." Instead use the "You" appeal. Don't tell them how long you have been in business and who your ancestors were. They don't care a picayune about that. Be informal. The public is desirous of knowing what you have in the store. Describe in detail with cut what you have to offer them. Use the community appeal. Bring out in your advertisements an event that is or has occurred in the community.

Every advertisement, circular letter, billboard, etc., should reflect the personality of the store. In reading it the public should be conveyed it has dignity and service. Advertisements should not be run in the paper with the same reading more than a day. They should be changed every day. The way to make it attractive is to use a picture, being careful with your vocabulary. Always watch the opening sentence and the first paragraph. Plan your advertisements, using the simplest language.

COVERED 9,000 MILES IN COAST TO COAST TRIP

Close to 9,000 miles were covered by James F. Wicks of Providence, William C. Kendall and Edwin F. Abel of Norwich and George W. Meyer of Lisbon in their coast to coast trip by automobile from which they have just returned. Four weeks were required to make the distance, counting the four days spent with Mr. Kendall's daughter, Mrs. Theodore Goodrum at Vallejo, Cal., and practically three days lost in repairs to the car and tires. The actual running time was 22 days, creating an average of about 400 miles per day. At the end of the third day, 1,371 miles had been driven and on the fifth day a total of 486 miles was made, the biggest drive of the trip.

The particular features were the beautiful weather experienced and the wonderful highways taken on an average. Not a rainy day was had on the entire trip, an occasional sprinkle coming on two days, while the roads were 95 per cent. good, the worst main highway being between Williams, Arizona, to the Grand Canyon of Arizona which was in a deplorable condition. A cutoff between Ogden and Twin City in Idaho was in a more terrible shape, but it was not a maintained highway and was chosen by the travelers by mistake. The fearful condition of the Grand Canyon highway is due to a political rumpus, it is said. A road is now being built by the government, which will afford travelers a scenic drive around the canyon.

The party drove from Norwich to Albany, N. Y., where they picked up the Lincoln highway to Ogden, Utah, leaving it there and taking the drive over the Columbia river highway to Portland, Ore. While visiting the grounds of the Latter Day Saints (Mormons) at Salt Lake City, one of the first settlers of the state favored them with conversation of early days at Salt Lake City and allowed one of the party to snap his picture. He is 87 years old and is hale and hearty. From Portland, Ore., to Roseburg, Ore., the inland route was followed, but on account of a bad detour in the mountains they trekked west to the coast and drove down the Redwood highway, through about 100 miles of big redwoods, averaging from 10 to 18 feet in diameter.

After spending four days at Vallejo, Cal., with Mr. Kendall's daughter, Mrs. Theodore Goodrum, formerly of Taftville, they went through the immense fruit groves in California to Tia Juana, Mex., and from San Diego, Cal., started on the homeward trip on the old Sante Fe trail. Stops were made at the Grand Canyon, the Walnut canyon, ruins of the cliff dwellers, the Painted Desert, the Yosemite valley, the petrified forest and they drove to the top of Mt. Tamalpias, up which the crookedest railroad in the world is built. Many other scenic spots were viewed including the sand dunes in California over which the plank highway was built and can still be seen at intervals, but is not now in use.

STONINGTON MAN IS PETITIONER FOR DIVORCE

Alonzo S. Wilkinson of Stonington seeks a divorce from Mary Wilkinson of Millers Falls, Mass., according to papers filed with Clerk John H. Walker of the superior court here. The couple was married on Aug. 5, 1925 and intolerable cruelty and a statutory offense is alleged since that date.

PUTNAM DEMOCRATS NAME GILMAN FOR SENATOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Oct. 15.—Alexander Gilman of Putnam was nominated for senator from the 28th district at the concention held here tonight at the Putnam inn preceding the democratic rally at which Augustine Lonergan was the principal speaker. Mr. Gilman has held a number of public offices in Putnam being at one time postmaster and former chairman of the water commissioners.

WOMAN'S CITY CLUB BEGINS ITS SEASON

The Woman's City club held its first regular meeting of the season Monday evening in the Wauregan hotel dining room with a large attendance and Miss Marion L. Bishop, the president, conducting the business session.

A membership of 543 was reported and $2,000 in the bank at the first of the year. It was recommended that an initiation fee of $5 be set for members coming in after October 16, and that $420 be placed in a sinking fund.

Announcements were made of the beginning of the current events course, the dramatics department and the parliamentary law class; also of the plans of the girls' work committee. The executive committee of the United workers has offered use of a room for a cooking class. Instructors are needed in cooking, plain sewing and fancy work.

Mrs. Albert H. Chase was the five-minute speaker for the meeting, describing the work of the United Workers in its different departments and stating that although the organization spent $56,000 it only received $1,600 from the people of the town through the district visitation.

The entertainment of the evening was by Miss Sydney Thompson, who completely charmed her audience with her clever and delicate recitations, her gestures and appropriate costuming. She first gave a group of three original plays, followed by selections from mediaeval folk lore, and concluding with old English ballads and madrigals. The musical part of the program was furnished by Miss Frances Kslazek in two groups of pretty soprano solos, some of them in the Polish language. Mrs. Harry Stebbins was her accompanist.

BANQUET TALKS WILL BE ON LOCAL INTERESTS

Well over 150 are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Norwich chamber of commerce this (Tuesday) evening at the Wauregan hotel. The evening's events will start at 6.15 o'clock with a banquet following which will occur the election of directors for the ensuing year and an after dinner programme. Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, will ask the blessing and President H. D. Larrabee of the chamber will preside. The principal speaker will be J. W. Griest of Chicago who will speak on Community Assets and Liabilities and John Walters of Bridgeport will give a talk on Innocuous Exclusivity. Aurin L. Payson of the American Thermos Bottle Co., will give a talk on plans underway in connection with the present expansion at the Thermos plant on Laurel Hill. Secretary Walter Pilcher will briefly address the meeting on the high spots of the chamber's activities the last year. There will be vocal solos, duets and trios.

DISTRICT MEETING BY FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

Members of the fourth district of the county council of auxiliaries of Veterans of Foreign Wars met in New London, Sunday afternoon with representatives present from Richard E. Hourigan post of this city, Hartley T. Chase post of Pawcatuck and Murphy-Rathbun post of New London.

Mrs. Leo Jacques of Norwich presided over the meeting at which routine business was transacted. Tentative plans for a whist and pinochle party to be held in Norwich were discussed.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

For Burial in Fitchburg

The body of Mrs. Frieda L. Neil, wife of James A. Neil, of No. 85 Cliff street, was sent to Fitchburg, Mass., her former home, on the 8.17 o'clock train Monday evening. Burial is to take place Wednesday in the Forest Hill cemetery, Fitchburg. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the local arrangements.

BURNING LEAVES GET CLIFF ST. GARAGE ON FIRE

At 2:55 o'clock Monday afternoon the fire department responded to a telephone call for a garage fire in the rear of No. 158 Cliff street, owned and occupied by Thomas J. Fitzgerald. The garage, a single story frame structure, had caught fire from burning leaves and a stream from an inch and a half water line was used to extinguish the blaze. The front of the garage was somewhat damaged. Squad A, Engine Co. No. 1 and the deputy chief's car responded to the call.

FUNERALS

Charles E. Mulkin

The funeral of Charles E. Mulkin was held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home in Occum with many relatives and friends present from Providence, Worcester, New London and Norwich. Rev. H. H. Conklin of Baltic conducted the service. The burial was in Pautipaug cemetery, Franklin, and Rev. Mr. Conklin conducted the committal service. The bearers were Frederick Beckwith, Fred G. Healey, Louis Pendleton and Herman Gibbs, and there were a number of beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker G. G. Grant had charge of the funeral arrangements.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs. Charles Kaufman of Montauk avenue, New London entertained at the week end with a bridge for Mrs. George Cheney, of Montauk avenue, who has just returned after a two months' tour of continental Europe. Flowers and favors were in Hallowe'en colors. The prizes were won by Mrs. John K. Foran (alerie Shannon, formerly of Norwich) and Miss Foss, of New London. A guest prize was given Mrs. Cheney.

Mrs. Henry D. Johnson, of Lincoln avenue was the guest of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth E. Johnson, a junior at Wheaton college, motoring up for over the week end.

Permit for Gasoline Station

Permission has been given Ernest L. Spencer of No. 29 Bentley avenue to conduct a gasoline station on property owned by Allen and Mary L. LeBonte at the Tantic flats. The permit was granted after a hearing Monday morning before the board of selectmen. There was no opposition.

RED CROSS NURSES SERVE IN CONNECTICUT

More than 18,000 persons in Connecticut have been served by American Red Cross public health nurses during the organization's last fiscal year, according to figures made public by local chapter officials.

With approximately seventy per cent of all school children in America suffering from physical defects, plans are being made to intensify the work in the schools during the coming year in an effort to prevent and correct these defects, which are said to be a menace to the development of children and a deterrent to effective scholarship.

Figures on the year's work in this state show that 17,589 visits to homes have been made by nurses in behalf of cases, more than 150 health conferences, lectures and demonstrations have been held which were attended by more than 1,600 persons; and as a result of more than 1,800 visits to school rooms more than 14,500 children have been inspected.

Searching out the defects in the children, which often go for years unnoticed, the nurses make efforts to have them corrected. When financial difficulties stand in the way of necessary operation, attention to teeth, or the procuring of eyeglasses, they assist the families in overcoming these difficulties.

The work in this state during the year is part of a national campaign the organization is conducting to improve health conditions in the nation. In every state, and in the insular and foreign possessions of the United States 765 public health nurses have been working under the Red Cross flag, and in the last twelve months have served more than 2,000,000 persons.

Courtney Kayses Yarbo

Courtney weighed 164 1-2; Yarbo 162.

Lou Barba, New York heavyweight, won a ten-round decision over Rocky Knight of England, and Georgie Hoffman, another heavyweight youngster, galloped away with a six-round decision over Marvin Shecter of Boston. Shecter went to the canvas for a count of eight in the third round, the bell saving him from what appeared to be certain knockout defeat.

Genaro Beats Belanger

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 15—(AP)—Frankie Genaro of New York successfully defended his National Boxing association flyweight title here tonight when he defeated Frenchy Belanger of Toronto, former N. B. A. champion, in a ten-round bout.

NURSE TESTIFIES THAT MRS. LESTER WAS IN A STATE OF MENTAL TURMOIL

Testimony as to one fruitless attempt to get the late Mrs. Frances Dawley Lester of this city, widow of Daniel M. Lester, to make a codicil to her will after she was told by Dr. Thurman A. Hull of Troy about the death of her favorite niece, Abby Maud Parker, was given before Probate Judge Nelson J. Ayling here Monday afternoon in the hearing on the attempt of a sister and a nephew of Mrs. Lester to break the will with its codicil by which Dr. Hull would receive a considerable portion of what would have gone to the niece. Dr. Hull was Mrs. Lester's attending physician in Samaritan hospital at Troy, N. Y., and there was testimony from a nurse at the hearing that Mrs. Lester was in a condition of mental turmoil while she was at the hospital, was irrational and unable to give intelligent answers to questions.

Because of the number of witnesses in the case and the array of legal talent, the hearing was held in the common pleas court room as the probate court room proved too small. The hearing began in the morning and was continued in the afternoon until after 5 o'clock when adjournment was taken to the next day.

Those contesting the probating of Mrs. Lester's will are her sister, Mrs. Emma Clark Dawley of Brooklyn, N. Y., and her nephew, DeForrest Dawley of Ottawa, Canada.

Mrs. Lester left an estate of approximately $200,000, it is understood, and five-eighths of what would have gone to Abby Maud Parker would go to Dr. Thurman A. Hull of Troy, under the codicil which was dated July 12.

Nurse Gives Testimony

In the afternoon session a large part of the court session was taken up with the testimony of Miss Mary Nancy Collins, nurse on Mrs. Lester's case in the hospital at Troy from June 25, to July 11, 1928. Attorney Charles L. Stewart conducted the examination of the witness, who testified that the Lester case was a private case and that Dr. Hull told her it was a menta case so that she charged $7 a day, the rate for mental cases. Mrs. Lester, she said, was very, very nervous, pacing back and forth, weeping at times, sometimes for two hours at a time, and thought people were talking about her when they were not. She was not rational, the nurse said. The witness told of bringing a box of 500 tongue depressors to Mrs. Lester and asking her to tie them up in bundles of 12 as a means of amusing her. Mrs. Lester worked for hours, the witness said but could not do this and could not tie a knot. Attorney Stewart brought out the fact that Mrs. Lester spoke French very well and the nurse testified to trying to get Mrs. Dawley to count up to 50 in French. She couldn't do it without making mistakes.

Miss Collins said she left the case on July 11. A number of bedside charts made by the nurse were produced and she read from the records which showed of Mrs. Lester being dizzy, unsteady on her feet, imagining impossible things. The record showed that Dr. Thurman Hull visited the patient every day. On July 5 both Dr. Thurman Hull and Dr. Stanton P. Hull visited Mrs. Lester. They saw her alone, the nurse said.

According to the testimony of Miss Collins, she discussed on July 5 with Dr. Thurman Hull the death of Abby Maud Parker. The doctor said, according to the nurse, that this was Mrs. Lester's favorite niece and she had "left everything" to this niece. He told the nurse that Maud Parker had married secretly a man named Jacoby whom Mrs. Lester hated.

Dr. Thurman Hull went in alone to tell Mrs. Lester of the death of her niece, the nurse testified, and when the nurse went into the room afterwards she found Mrs. Lester weeping and calling for "Maud." After that day, the witness said, Mrs. Lester was continually calling for Fanny Wright, Maud Parker and Dr. Hull. There was a change much for the worse in Mrs. Lester and her answers to questions usually had little to do with the question.

Questioned by Attorney Stewart, sometimes over strong objections by Attorney Arthur M. Brown, who is counsel for Dr. Hull, the nurse spoke of conversations with Dr. Hull in which he said that it was up to him and him alone to fix things so that the money wouldn't go to Jacoby. The doctor said, according to the witness, that Mrs. Lester thought much of him and he didn't see why the doctors on the case shouldn't be considered instead of Jacoby.

Miss Collins testified to being in Mrs. Lester's room on a date on or after July 5 when Dr. Hull brought a Mr. Armitage there and introduced him to Mrs. Lester, telling her he was to fix things for her.

Mr Armitage, according to the witness, asked Mrs. Lester, "Did you want me to come?"

Mrs. Lester responded: "Oh, oh, oh, I want Fanny Wright, Fanny Wright."

The nurse testified that Mrs. Lester paid no attention to anything Mr. Armitage said and he withdrew. Mrs. Lester was in a state of mental turmoil all the time and wanted Fanny Wright all the time.

At this point, court adjourned for the day, with Attorney Stewart stating that he had not concluded the direct testimony of the nurse.

Preceding this witness in the afternoon, Attorney Stewart had read a deposition from Mrs. Edith L. Morgan, assistant to the principal of the school of nurses at Samaritan hospital, in which she said that on July 12 she had seen Mrs. Lester tied into a chair with a draw-sheet to keep her from falling or getting out of the chair while the nurse was busy. She said that the woman was irrational and incompetent to transact any business.

In the morning session of court, there was testimony from Dr. H. E. DeForest of Troy, one of the witnesses to the codicil, who said that he believed Mrs. Lester was of sound mind when she signed the codicil. She answered a question about her home by saying it was in Norwich, Conn. The doctor illustrated with Attorney Stewart how Dr. Stanton Hull held Mrs. Lester's hand while she signed the codicil.

There was also a deposition read from Miss Mary McLaughlin, a witness to the will, who is x-ray technician at the hospital. In her deposition Miss McLaughlin said that Mrs. Lester appeared a very sick woman, but denied that she had the stamp of death on her face. She said that she would have given the signing of the codicil as a witness some consideration, if she had known that Mrs. Lester's case was a mental one. The nurse stated that Mrs. Lester's hand was "quite shaky" and that Dr. Stanton Hull, brother of Dr. Thurman Hull, had to steady Mrs. Lester's hand when the latter signed the codicil to her will.

Miss McLaughlin said that she did not know that Mrs. Lester had to be tied in her chair, from falling out, and that she was irrational and was in no condition to understand anything.

The nurse also was unaware of the fact that the matter of signing the codicil was a subject so gross at the hospital that upon complaint of the superintendent of the Samaritan hospital it had been brought before the executive board of the hospital.

DONAHUE OFFERS MANY SUGGESTIONS IN ANNUAL REPORT TO THE N. B. A.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 15—(AP)—Thomas E. Donohue, president of the National Boxing association, endorsed the effects of the federal law taxing admissions of $5 and up 25 per cent., criticized Estic champions who do not choose to defend their titles, and demanded for the association a hand in the crowning of the next heavyweight champion in his report to delegates from 26 states and several foreign countries gathered here today for the annual N. B. A. convention.

After pointing out the increase in power and authority of the association during the past year, Mr. Donohue discussed the status of boxing through the country and analyzed situations in classes where the association is at variance with the New York State Athletic association as to division champions.

"While it is unquestionable that the federal tax of 25 per cent on boxing admissions of $5 and over is unfair, and decidedly class legislation in direct contradiction to the constitution of the United States, the effect, I believe, will be a wholesome one," he said.

"The effect of the tax has already shown itself in that Detroit, Chicago and other large cities in association territory have been unusually successful in attracting matches that otherwise would have been reserved for New York where it had become an accepted fact that big purses only could be had.

"Now that large arenas of seating capacities as great as those in New York and other sections are being built, and the tax has caused promoters to keep the price of tickets within reasonable bounds since the addition of the 25 per cent makes the same tickets fairly prohibitive, boxers and their managers are realizing that purses of good proportions may be had elsewhere than New York.

"The public is benefitted by the tax except in the case of championship bouts where the surcharge is tremendous. The growing tendency is ti keep the prices of tickets below $5 where the tax is but 10 per cent."

Mr. Donohue predicted that the next heavyweight champion will develop from the unknowns of today and will not come to the forefront for at least three years. No one tournament among a few boxers chosen by one promoter will produce the man. Promoters should stage as many tournaments as possible, forgetting that the public demands an immediate successor to the retired Gene Tunney.

Since the heavyweight championship is not merely the concern of New York, "as was most evident in the Philadelphia and Chicago bouts of 1926 and 1927," he asked that the association be represented on the committee, headed by William Muldoon of the New York state athletic commission, which will award the Gene Tunney trophy to the next heavyweight king.

Mr. Donohue branded Mickey Walker a "lardy titleholder" in the middleweight division, unable now to scale 160 pounds, and declared Walker's title defense against Ace Hudkins "unsatisfactory" because a "headstrong" promoter refused to name the challenger from the N. B. A. list of logical middleweight contenders. He asked that the convention recognize Al Brown, Panama Negro, as the bantamweight champion because of Bushy Graham's "excessive" demands for a title match. Joe Dundee's failure to defend the welterweight crown was censured and the president defended his choice of Frankie Genaro as flyweight champion, over Izzy Schwartz, the New York state commission nominee.

Recommendations to the convention included uniform regulations regarding the length of tape used in bandaging hands; acceptance of a universal time for weighing in before matches; adoption of vari-colored trunks to distinguish between boxers; and determination of a specific percentage of a boxer's pay to be posted as a forfeit. Greater caution, he said, should be exercised in dispensing fines and suspensions and a national body should be organized to hear appeals.

The committee on titles issued a revised lists of champions and contenders at the meeting. The list differed from the recommendations, which were announced last night, in that the claim of Brown to the bantamweight title was not recognized. The post was left open with Brown, Bushey Graham and Fidel La Barba, named as contenders.

Duquette Gets Verdict

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 15—(AP)—Earl Duquette of Pittsfield and Boston, 114 pounds, won the decision over Hop Wah of New Haven, Conn., 115, in an eight-round bout here tonight. In the semi-final bout of eight rounds, Kid Decker of Housatonic, 156 pounds, won the decision over Pat Grant of Boston, 155 pounds.

KAPLAN-FLOWER TILT AT NEW HAVEN TONIGHT

Louis Kid Kaplan of Meriden, former featherweight champion of the world, will enter the ring a 6 to 5 favorite to defeat Bruce Flowers, of New Rochelle, the Negro lightweight champion of the world, in their ten-round tilt topping the card at the New Haven Arena tonight.

One year ago Kaplan defeated Kaplan in a hair-raising scrap, barely averting a knockout in doing the job but tonight Denny McMahon expects to see his charge decisively defeat the New Rochelle Negro and even hints that he may knock him out.

The main bout, with its indications of ten rounds of ring fireworks, is ably supported in a preliminary bill which is rated as the strongest ever assembled.

A feature tilt in itself, the return match of Georgie Day and Willie Hussey, makes up the eight-round semi-final. Five weeks ago Hussey defeated Day at Danbury, but Day will be out for vengeance tonight.

A grudge bout heads off the six-rounders with Frankie Marino and Joe Masselli, former New Haven amateurs bracketed. This bout alone will draw many New Haveners who have followed the two youths from the time they started in the simon pures.

Two light-heavies, Joe Barlow of New York and Joe Hanlon of Bridgeport, tangle in the second six-rounder, and in the opening bout, Tommy Hamby of Holyoke meets Eddie Phister, one of Flowers' sparring partners. The first bout is at 8:30.

ACADEMY PREPARING FOR HARDING CLASH SATURDAY

The Academy football squad which came through its tussle with the Junior Coast Guard varsity Saturday afternoon practically unscathed gets down to work today in preparation for the game with Warren Harding at Bridgeport next Saturday. The Harding game is fast becoming the objective tussle of the season both in football and baseball and this games ranks second to the annual Bulkeley clash. The presidents have a less impressive record this season than last having lost to the Torrington team, 3 to 0. However the Bridgeporters are not to be taken lightly and Coach Whitney is sending his charges through their paces with a vengeance.

The Academy showed exceptionally well against the Coast Guards, a much heavier team. Alert football and a well developed passing game netted the Academy boys a victory. The Academy has an exceptionally aggressive line this year with Fox standing out as one of the individual stars. In the game against the Guardsmen it was Fox who continually broke through the line to smear plays before they started. Another boy who showed well in the backfield was Kahn. Kahn developed as a lineman but was shifted to the backfield this season and is a tower of strength on the defense especially. Kahn tackles hard and clean and many times Saturday piled up plays after times Saturday piled up players after they had got by the first line of defense.

FAST AMATEUR CARD AT UNCASVILLE TONIGHT

Harold Talbot, the Fighting Motorman who made such a sensation here last winter, in company with Artie Kumpf (Kid Wilson) a boxer of former days are staging a tip-top card of amateur bouts at Pappas hall in Uncasville this (Tuesday) evening Talbot will appear in the role of promoter instead of a contestant for pugilistic laurels and as both Talbot and Wilson know their boxers it is safe to say that tonight's bouts will be well matched and a card of action is anticipated.

This is the first time that boxing has been put on in many many years and a capacity house should greet the promoters tonight. Wilson who is training a fast stable of amateurs is pitting his boys against some of the best amateurs in the eastern part of the state. A team from Willimantic has entered the lists as well as teams from Jewett City, Danielson and Westerly. Several Norwich amateurs appear on the list of over 40 entries for the bouts. The promoters expect to stage at least ten bouts and if the crowd warrants it there may be an extra bout or two.

HARVARD TRIES NEW PLAYS TO USE AGAINST ARMY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 15—(AP)—The Harvard varsity eleven practiced new plays during a signal drill in today's light workout here, beginning the last week of practice before the first major game of the season with West Point next Saturday.

The Crimson came through the North Carolina game without serious injuries. Douglas and O'Connell, ends and Harper and Guarnaccia, halfbacks, were nursing muscle bruises, but all will be ready before Saturday. Batchelder, first substitute halfback, who was out of the North Carolina game, will be ready by Thursday for active duty.

Team B did not get off so lightly as Team A. They were sent through a scrimmage with Team B of the freshmen, emerging on the long end of a 21 to 0 score. Mason scored two touchdowns, and Ogden, an end, ran 50 yards after receiving a 25-yard forward pass from Crawford, substitute quarter, for the third score.

Coach Horween said that there would probably be no scrimmages for the varsity eleven this week.

HAWLEY DEVOTES AFTERNOON TO HIS SECOND VARSITY

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 15—(AP)—Coach Jess Hawley went to work on his substitutes here today and before he got through the "ghost ball" was in action for the first time this season and Dartmouth's first team was eating its supper. The scrubs scrimmaged for more than one hour while the coach watched. The first team had a chalk talk, a signal drill and then sought the showers while the substitutes went into action.

It was definitely announced that Bart McDonough, first string quarterback, will not play against Columbia Saturday because of the grippe and Bob Harris will continue to fill his place. Because of the lack of quarters, "Chick" Shea reported for the first time this year.

Till Kayoes Fisher

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 15—(AP)—Osk Till, sensational Buffalo light-heavy, added another to his growing list of knockouts here tonight, stopping Caveman Fisher, Syracuse, in the third round. The bout was stopped by the referee to save Fisher further punishment. Till weighed in at 163; Fisher 162 1-2.

Jimmy Goodrich, recent conqueror of Sammy Mandell, lightweight king, won a ten-round decision over Johnny Blair, of Utica. Goodrich weighed 142 1-2; Blair 141 1-2.

AGGIES START PREPARATION FOR LOWELL TEXTILE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 16—The week of preparation for the third game of the season with Lowell Textile next Saturday opened today at the Connecticut Aggies with no practice session this afternoon but a board talk in the evening addressed by Head Coach Sumner A. Dole. The Nutmeg eleven returned yesterday afternoon from the longest trip of the season when they faced Maine university at Orono and battled through one hour in a scoreless tie.

Coach Dole was well pleased with the showing of the varsity eleven in their second start of the year, especially over the fact that the Nutmeg aerial defensive worked well against an eleven reputed for having a complicated overhead attack.

Few injuries were received in the actual contest Saturday although Captain Sayer's back injury developed to a greater extent that is coupled at present with a minor foot bruise. William Knaut, regular center, injured his shoulder in warming up exercises before the whistle but played three quarters before he was taken out. Coach Dole doubted whether the Nutmeg center would be able to don his togs in time to face Lowell next Saturday.

From pre-game reports that come from the camp of the Lowell team, it is apparent that they carry much more power than that of last year when they were easily defeated by the Nutmeggers. They won all their starts so far and defeated Trinity 24-0 in one of the games.

ENTIRE YALE VARSITY NOW READY FOR WORK

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 15—(AP)—For the first time since the Maine game over a week ago, Yale first string men assembled for practice session today. For almost two weeks Coach Mal Stevens has been faced with a varsity squad that has been confined either to the infirmary or to the sidelines, owing to minor injuries or severe colds. Today every first string man was at practice, even Johnny Hoben, quarterback, who has been laid up with a strained leg.

Ferris was elevated to the varsity squad today. He is the Yale heavyweight boxing champion, weighs 189 pounds, and is over six feet tall. He has been playing a strong game in the line with the second team.

Johnny Hoben, accurate passing varsity quarterback, who has been on the sidelines since the Maine game, with a pulled tendon in his leg, was back in uniform, today.

BROWN TO HAVE HARD WEEK OF PRACTICE FOR YALE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 15—(AP)—The Brown varsity football squad got down to business this afternoon in its preparation for the annual game with Yale at New Haven Saturday. Tuss McLaughry gave his charges the weekly complement of new plays and then sent his A and B teams through a two hour signal drill to get the new formations clicked at top speed.

Shade Takes Willis

CHICAGO, Oct. 15— (AP) —Dave Shade, shifty San Francisco middleweight, easily won a ten-round decision over "Cowboy" Jack Willis of San Antonio Texas, in the main event of the boxing program at White City tonight.

JOHNSON SIGNS THREE-YEAR CONTRACT TO MANAGE THE WASHINGTON CLUB

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(AP)—Glad to be back home where he pitched ball for 21 years, Walter Perry Johnson today signed a three year contract to pilot the Washington American league club.

With few preliminaries the old master and Clark Griffith, president of the club, got down to the business of signing the contract in the latter's office this morning. Griffith did not make his new manager's salary public and Johnson did not attempt to clarify the matter.

After signing Johnson walked out into Griffith stadium, where he fought many a valiant battle for the Senators and declared "it's great." He said that his "wing" seemed as strong as ever but that he did not believe he would have to use it again for the Senators.

Johnson told his friends that he expected to spend the winter with his family at Daytona, Fla., until the training season, in February.

Although Johnson would not comment on the prospects fo rthe next season it is known that plans are under way to revamp the Washington club by bringing in some new material. One of his problems will be to replace Bucky Harris, the retired manager who has played second base for the past seven years.

SECRETARY PILCHER WRITES ON REASON FOR VOTING

In the current issue of The Nacos News, published by the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries appears an article entitled "Cast Your Vote" by Walter H. Pilcher, secretary of the Norwich chamber of commerce.

Every chamber of commerce should consider matters of national legislation, coming to its attention through the medium of the national chamber referenda, as deserving of the most careful and painstaking consideration.

Several reasons may be advanced in support of this contention, some of which I have enumerated below:

1. Unequal economic effect of some referenda questions in various localities. While measures passed by congress may apply to the country as a whole, the economic advantages or handicaps in many cases may have an unequal economic effect in different sections. For this obvious reason all chambers in every section should vote.

2. Best means of obtaining accurate and representative opinion. The referenda is the best method of giving the national chamber an accurate contact with American business opinion as a whole. This is made possible because of the clear presentation of all factors in question which tend to enlighten the local chamber committee and thereby produce a more intelligent conclusion on its part. Also because of the way in which the opinion is secured, it represents no special interests, nor is it indicative of any one section of the country or any one race, creed or occupation. It is obtained in a fair and considerate manner, and in an extensive way never before equalled. It comes from the agricultural as well as the mining section, the manufacturers as well as the merchants, the public utilities and the bankers, and it is then presented as a unit and for exactly what it is. That act in itself helps to mould public opinion.

3. Value of chamber's publicity in influencing action of legislators. The very fact that a chamber has taken the trouble to study and determine its opinion on any given referenda, will carry prestige and influence when this information is made public through the press and conveyed to its congressmen and senators.

4. Importance of "tying in" many valuable members. The referenda is a good means of "tying in" some of the members who are sometimes not so actively interested in other chamber activities, who consider it an honor to be asked to serve on a committee dealing with a question of national importance, and having an important bearing on business. They will usually give conscientious and painstaking consideration to the task if it is properly presented to them after sufficient publicity has been given to the matter and the president has officially appointed them to the task.

5. Increased value of larger vote. The larger the number of communities whose organizations vote upon a given question out of the total number of communities in the country, the more weight the result will have in moulding public opinion. Congressmen are not particularly interested in knowing how Norwich feels on any one question of national importance, but they are keenly interested in knowing how all chambers feel and they would be first to recognize the value of such service if each chamber would not only vote on each referendum, but so advise their legislators with their reasons, etc. Conversely chambers who do not vote, help to weaken the national influence of business and its subsequent power in moulding public opinion.

6. Small town vote essentially important. The vote of the small town chamber is doubly important and necessary. However, this thought runs contrary to the general opinion among smaller chambers, as one secretary expressed it: "Our town is so small that its opinion would not be valued anyway." This view is entirely incorrect. The national chamber in its bylaws has specifically provided against even the larger organizations swamping the votes of the smaller. For instance, ten small chambers of 100 members each with a combined vote of only 1000 members, would be able to cast a vote equalling that of a larger city chamber having 5000 members. Therefore, the vote of the small town chamber has a significance of double importance.

7. Value of organized business voicing its opinion through one medium. Organized business moulding public opinion by expressing through one voice and through a single channel its firm desires based upon an accurate inventory of its constituency, should win more often than lose, for the very reason that it is organized. It should make its voice heard on questions of national importance, because never before have government policies so affected business as they do today. And recognizing the disadvantages, if not disaster, which flows from unwise legislation and unenlightened proposals of administration, the counsel of business opinion is important and should be sought by every wide awake chamber that includes in its objects the promotion, protection and interest in industrial and commercial expansion.

8. Chamber not purely a local organization. Many times we hear the sentiment expressed that a chamber is a local organization and should direct its time and efforts in solving only local problems of more direct benefit to its members. Questions of national importance indirectly affect the affairs of every community. That community which exists for itself alone cannot prosper and grow in this nation.

STORY OF CRIME DURING PRIMARIES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—(AP)—A vivid picture of the sluggings, the kidnapings and the slaying during last April's primary election day in the "Bloody Twentieth" ward was drawn by Edwin J. Raber, prosecutor, in an opening statement to the jury that today began the first of the trials growing out of the five-month grand jury investigation.

Sixteen men were in the defendants' box—including alleged henchmen of the ward boss, an ex-policeman and a state senator, all under indictment for conspiracy. They had stolen, marked and stuffed the ballot boxes, kidnaped and robbed the watchers at the polls, Raber charged, and finally they had shot one rival politician and killed another. Back of the conspiracy, he said, were the "America first" republican bosses of the ward, Morris Eller, city collector and candidate for sanitary district trustee, and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller.

Raber told of a meeting at Eller headquarters the night befoare the election, when Eller delivered instructions to his followers.

"'We've got to win this election at all costs.'" Raber quoted the ward boss. "'We don't we are lost. If you need guns, you can get them at Armondo's house. Don't look for trouble and don't drink any whiskey. You can do all your drinking after the polls close, but we have got to win. We have the governor with us, the state's attorney and a judge.'"

PETITIONS RECEIVER FOR THE KU KLUX KLAN

ATLANTA, Ga. Oct. 15—(AP)—The Atlanta Constitution tomorrow will say a receiver for the Ku Klux Klan is asked in a petition presented today to Judge Samuel H. Sibley of U. S. circuit court, who ordered the suit to be filed tomorrow.

The petition, filed by C. T. Rice, who said he was a member of the klan, charges Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard of the order and other officials of the secret organization have expended large sums of money in opposition to the candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith, democratic presidential nominee, because of Smith's religion.

It is also alleged in the petition that "Evans has diverted funds from the organization until it has become insolvent, despite the fact that it has collected more than $100,000,000 from its members."

RARE MUSHROOM GIVES WARNING BY ITS ODOR

NEW YORK—(AP)—A curious orange-and-white mushroom native to South America, has lobbed up at the New York Botanical Garden in Bronx park. It is called the "Stink Horn" because of an offensive odor.

This is the second known discovery of the fungus in the northern hemisphere, says Dr Fred J. Seaver, curator of fungi.

"How the fungus gets to this country can only be surmised," Dr. Seaver says. "Perhaps it comes by shipboard, the spores being transported on plants. But this theory does not fit the case of inland Pennsylvania.

"At an early stage the mushroom looks like a small puffball. Then the puffball bursts open and at the fruiting stage the fungus elongates and consists of a stem with three or four arms united at the top and covered with dark-colored spores.

"The odor is thought to be a device of nature's to attract insects, who eat the slimy material on which the spores are bedded, and carry the spores around on their feet, distributing the fungus. The insects attracted are flies that feed on flesh."

OLD CUSTOMS SURVIVE IN ANCIENT LYNDHURST

LYNDHURST, England—(AP)—People hereabouts still get their firewood "by hook or crook"—the ancient privilege of taking as much wood as can be cut with an ordinary hook and reached with a crook.

Principal among other old privileges in vogue here is the "right of cordwood," which is firewood cut and supplied to those entitled to it at the cost of the crown.

More curious is the "right of turbary, or the privilege of cutting turf in the forest for fuel. By an old law, this right can be enjoyed only so long as thee hinney for which it was originally grafted remains intact. Therefore many comparatively modern houses with ancient chimney shafts are to be seen throughout the forest.

The beautiful old building at Lyndhurst called the "King's House" is the home of the "Verderers Court," one of the oldest of legal links with centuries past. This court, composed of six elected "verderers," is presided over by the "official verderer." It confines itself within the forest or against the commoners.

Among its duties the court keeps a register of all houses and lands within its jurisdiction whose owners enjoy rights or privileges which have descended with the property through the centuries.

SUNKEN GUNS SALVAGED BY RUSSIAN DIVERS

KERCH, Crimea—(AP)—Russian divers have recently found a large number of modern field guns, rifles and machine guns at the bottom of Gerch bay. They were of French and British make, and were believed to have been sunk by General Wrangel's white Russian army after it was driven out of Crimea in 1920.

Part of the recovered ordnance was well enough preserved eight years under water to be repaired and put in the service of the red army.

UNIFORM EDUCATION AIM OF U. S.-MEXICO GROUP

EL PASO Texas, Oct. 15—(AP)—Educators in Mexico and the American states bordering the Latin republic are to become members of the Southwestern Educational association of the United States and Mexico, which has as its object the establishment of a uniform educational system in the two nations.

The organization also hopes to bring about better understanding between the people of the two countries through recognition of mutual school problems.

The association was formed at a recent meeting here of instructors in the border states of the two countries. R. R. Jones, of El Paso, was elected temporary president and Consul General Enrique Liekens, of Mexico, was chosen secretary.

Permanent organization was postponed pending approval of the constitution and by-laws by the Mexican department of public education and the United States bureau of education.

Delegates who attended the session voted to meet again next year in El Paso.

KING GEORGE LIFTS ROYAL BAN ON KIPLING

BALMORAL Scotland, Oct. 15 (AP)—Rudyard Kipling is basking once more in the light of royal favor.

King George, in asking the famous author to visit him here at Balmoral castle, is in effect agreeing to let bygones be by-gones.

When Queen Victoria, King George's grandmother, was on the throne, Kipling wrote a poem about the "Widow of Windsor" to which her majesty took offense.

After that Rudyard Kipling did not travel in the royal circle.

Queen Victoria's son, King Edward VII, did not lift this ban from high society.

Some think that the "Widow of Windsor" poem kept Kipling from becoming poet laureate of England, a post to which many critics think he is more eminently suited than any living British poet.

Some observers forsee in his visit to Balmoral castle the prelude to honors to which Kipling, as one of England's greatest men of letters, is widely believed to be entitled.

FEW INJURIES SUFFERED BY MAJOR TEAMS

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—Without a single injury to mar their chances, Harvard's varsity footballers got down to work today for one of their stiffest tests—the Army game.

Coach Arnold Horween had the first string team practicing new plays in a signal drill but called it a day after that. The Crimson made a good showing last Saturday against North Carolin although the offensive appeared weak except for the one period when all Harvard's 20 points were scored. Horween faces the Army battle with some apprehension for the Cadets' strength is well known. "Biff" Jones gave his soldiers a day of rest at West Point.

After their disappointing showing against Virginia, Princeton's Tigers expected some changes but they hardly were prepared for the drastic action Bill Roper took. First of all Bill ordered a return to the huddle system of calling signals Princeton abandoned the huddle two weeks ago and went back to having the quarterback call signals. The Tigers, however, have experienced difficulty in getting the signals under the old system and the huddle has been restored. Roper announced at the same time that six changes would be made in the lineup fo rthe Lehigh game. Coach Tate gave his Lehigh varsity a light workout at Bethlehem.

With the Brown game next on the Yale program, Mal Stevens got a shock today when every first string man was on hand for practice. Even Johnny Hoben, injured a week ago Saturday, was there. Yale's practice for the Georgia game was badly handicapped last week by numerous injuries but there was nothing wrong with the Elis in the game itself.

Penn State's reverse at the hands of Bucknell resulted in numerous changes in the lineup as the Nittany Lions got down to work for the Pennsylvania game. Penn's hopes were buoyed as James Peterson, star of last year's freshman team reported for practice. Attempts are to be made to convert him into an end where Penn is weak.

Bucknell spent the day celebrating the victory over Penn State but there will be plenty of work before the Lafayette battle.

Columbia, which faces Dartmouth's high-powered eleven next, had an unusually stiff Monday practice session. Charlie Crowley realizes that there is much work to be done if Dartmouth is to be so much as extended.

The coming Saturday's program presents a number of feature games including those between Syracuse and Nebraska; Colgate and Michigan State; Fordham and Holy Cross; West Virginia and Washington and Lee and Duke and Navy.

WESTERLY

MRS. ISAAC G. SMITH HAD SIX RIBS BROKEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 15—The condition of Mrs. Isaac G. Smith, injured seriously in a three-car automobile collision Saturday afternoon on Reservoir avenue, Cranston, and a patient at the Jane Brown Memorial hospital, was reported Monday as somewhat improved. Mrs. Smith had been able to undergo examination, and the physician found six ribs broken, two in two places. There were no breaks of the ribs at the spine, as was at first feared. Mr. Smith fared better in the accident yet he is suffering from bruises. His back is very lame and has been bound, and it is with difficulty that he gets about. The cars which figured in the accident with Councilman Smith's machine was one owned by Wilfred Ward of the Boston Post road, Warwick, formerly of Westerly, and a automobile which left the scene of the accident. Richard W. Ward was driving the Ward car. He was not injured, but his father sustained a bad cut on the forehead, injuries to one knee and several bruises about the body.

Monday afternoon Mr. Ward was confined to his bed, but he is resting comfortably.

On Nooseneck Hill road late Sunday afternoon there was an automobile accident on the crest of which Thomas Flaherty, 48, of 242 Amherst street, Providence, and Miss Grace Studley, 35, of 242 Bread street, Providence, are receiving treatment at the Westerly hospital for injuries sustained. An automobile in which they were riding left the highway near the junction of the Nooseneck Hill and Ten Rod road in the Town of Exeter and crashed into a tree. The man and woman were found injured by persons passing by and took Mr. Flaherty and Miss Studley to the hospital. Miss Studley has a fractured collar bone, lacerations of the scalp and minor bruises. Mr. Flaherty suffered a dislocated shoulder.

Palmer Chapter, No. 28, Royal Arch Masons of Pawcatuck, George Smith, high priest, held a regular convocation Monday evening in the Masonic hall.

Harold W. Merrill Post, No. 18, American Legion, and the auxiliary committees, on the Poppy Day sale, held a joint meeting Monday evening in the post rooms in the Teagle block. Plans were made for the annual sale at the Armistice day observance.

Deborah Chapter, No. 9, Order of Eastern Star, Mrs. Bessie Mayne, worthy matron and Andrew E. Raiston, worthy patron, is making preparations for a visitation Tuesday, Nov. 6th, at the Westerly Masonic rooms of the Rainbow Girls of Providence, in an exemplification of their degree work.

Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi will leave this week end to visit for an indefinite stay with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Rossi, at Arcisate Cosmo Province, near Milan, Italy. Mr. Rossi will sail Saturday from New York for Harve, on steamship Ile de France. He is called to Italy by the serious illness of his father who, after making his home for many years in Westerly, returned some months ago to Italy to join his wife who had preceded him by several months to her native Italy.

A bridge whist tournament was started Monday evening in the rooms of Westerly Cycle club. The players, members of the club, will be led, one team by Club President George Elmer Leonard, and the other by Bernard J. Christy during the tournament, to close just before the holiday season.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Emma Lucas Taylor

Emma J. Lucas, wife of the late Frederick D. Taylor, formerly of Westerly, died Friday at her home, 356 Laurel street, Hartford, Conn. Burial is to be in River Bend cemetery here. Mrs. Taylor was born in Middletown, Conn., and was united in marriage with Frederick D. Taylor, a former resident of Westerly. She had resided in Hartford for 50 years. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Addie Nickerson, of Sag Harbor, L. I., and a number of nieces and nephews, several of whom reside in Westerly.

Lewis Stanton, assistant manager of the Westerly branch of the Industrial Trust Co., is having his vacation and is on a visit to Boston and New York.

Mrs. T. K. Bentley, of Parrsboro, Nova Scotia, arrived in Westerly Monday from Boston to be the guest of Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Mrs. Hatfield at their home in West Mystic.

Mrs. Jennie J. Smith returned Sunday night from a visit to the Jane Brown hospital, Providence, where her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Helen J. D. Smith, wife of Isaac G. Smith, is a patient.

Post Office Inspector Charles H. Pendleton returned to Providence Monday morning.

Mrs. H. J. Kelsey and daughter, Miss Elizabeth D. Kelsey, of Amherst, Mass., arrived in Westerly Monday evening to visit relatives before attending the funeral of Mrs. Kelsey's sister-in-law, Mrs. Sarah J. MacDonald Doty, in Providence.

Miss Mary E. Quinlan of the Westerly town treasurer's office, was a week end visitor in Providence.

Irving H. Champlin returned to Westerly on Monday from a visit in New London.

Charles M. Bauer of Middletown, Conn., was the week end guest of Westerly friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Phelps left Westerly Monday afternoon for New York after a few days' visit at their Watch Hill cottage, unoccupied by them during the summer.

The Rice expert, trained under the personal direction of W. S. Rice, of Adams, N. Y., originator of the famous Rice (Non-Surgical) Rupture Method, will be at Wauregan Hotel, Norwich, Conn., Wednesday, Oct. 17; also at the Mohican Hotel, New London, Conn., Thursday, Oct. 18, to give free demonstration and trial of his safe and painless Method to every man, woman and child who is ruptured.

You have, no doubt, heard and read much about this famous Rice Rupture Method and the wonderful cures which thousands have reported from it. Now, you have the chance to find out all about it—to have it personally applied to your own rupture and learn just what it can and will do in YOUR OWN case. Just call at the hotel and the Expert will give you his personal attention, best advice and complete demonstration entirely free.

Are you tired of that binding, hampering, uncomfortable old truss? Would you like to be done with truss wearing forever? Then investigate the Rice Method and learn the wonderful opportunity for help and cure it offers. Remember it is different from everything else and is accomplishing wonderful results where all other treatments and even operations have failed. It is modern, up-to-the-minute, abreast of the latest scientific developments. It is the one Rupture Method you are not asked to take on faith alone—the one Method that is positively demonstrated to you right on your own rupture, without any charge whatever.

Don't let this great opportunity get away from you. Your call on the Rice Expert is sure to prove one of the best things you ever did. He will be here only one day then your opportunity will be gone. Remember you do not spend a penny unless, after having a complete demonstration, you decide this is the Method for you, and you—you alone—are the sole judge of that.

Call any time from 9 to 12 A. M., 2 to 5 P. M., or 7 to 9 evenings. Simply ask at the hotel for the Rice Expert and he will do the rest. Don't miss seeing the Rice Expert.

How "B.O." almost broke up our engagement

(Body Odor)

THE nicest gentlemen it was—but I still told me clearly why she acted so shyly.

I was close to her—whispering gaily—an offended look passed over her face.

Instantly I drew back. Why had her expression changed? Why was it that lately so many people looked at me queerly whenever I approached them? I was puzzled. But slowly a suspicion dawned upon me. "B.O." —Body Odor!

My guess was right. I never could have won her if I hadn't discovered my trouble and how to end it. To-day we are married. There's no "B.O." to mar our happiness now.

Every guilty of "B.O."?

"Of course, not!" we promptly tell ourselves. Yet, like the chap above, the most fastidious of us may at times offend others—unknowingly.

We must perspire. Even on a cool day, our pores give off as much as a quart of odor-causing waste. Our sense of smell becomes deadened to this familiar odor. But to others, it's unbearably offensive.

Avoid this risk! Use Lifebuoy, the purifying toilet soap. Its bland and abundant antiseptic lather deodorizes pores, ends "B.O."

Splendid for the skin!

This same mild, antiseptic Lifebuoy lather also purifies face pores—keeps complexions smooth and clear. Guards health, too—by removing germs. You'll learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse.

Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today.

DANIELSON

TRACY TELLS HIS STORY AT CORONER'S INQUEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 15—Coroner Arthur G. Bill questioned Herbert Tracy of Plainfield here in Danielson this afternoon relative to the death of Joseph Cardinal in Plainfield last Saturday night. Coroner Bill later said that Mr. Tracy was perfectly frank in his statement as to just what happened. What he said, according to the coroner, may be summed up as follows: "One of my boys—there were two of them riding with me—said he thought I had hit something, with my car and later explaining that he thought it was Joseph Cardinal. I did not stop at the time, knowing that if I was wanted someone would come to my home for me. I drove home, left some groceries I had purchased, and then drove back to the place where Cardinal is supposed to have been hit with my car. There was no one there, so I returned home."

It appears from the investigation that has been underway since the accident that the fatally injured Cardinal had been picked up and carried away between the time he was struck by Tracy's car and the time that Tracy returned to ascertain just what had happened. Officials investigating the case have been very reticent as to how they came to seek out Mr. Tracy Sunday, the day following the accident, and take him into custody. From other sources, however, there is information that there were eye witnesses of the accident, and that while they did not get the number of the car concerned, they did recognize its make and, with other circumstances, were able to give information that led to Mr. Tracy being taken into custody. It appears that the investigating officers found certain damage to the forward part of the Tracy car to indicate that it had been involved in some sort of an unfortunate affair.

Late this afternoon Coroner Bill said that he had arranged to have Mr. Tracy's sons appear before him for examination relative to their recollections of the fatal accident.

Coroner Bill was disinclined late this afternoon to say what procedure he would take against Mr. Tracy for having failed to stop and investigate after one of Mr. Tracy's sons had stated that in his belief the Tracy car had hit something and added his impression that that object was Mr. Cardinal. A decision from the coroner as to his recommendation in the case is to be expected within a few days.

At a session of the town court this morning Judge W. Penner Woodward imposed a sentence of 180 days in jail, and costs of prosecution on Allen F. Rounds, charged with appropriating money that he collected for Harry W. Clarke in whose employ he has been for a long time. Mr. Clarke said this morning that he is unable to determine as yet just how much money Rounds obtained, but has definitely established that he made certain collections and failed to turn in the money. Rounds was taken to jail in charge of Chief John McFarland.

George R. Gravel of Millbury, Mass., was fined $1.00 and costs in the town court this morning for operating a motorcycle without having a Connecticut operator's license. Gravel has credentials for operating motor vehicles in Massachusetts, but the machine he was riding when taken into custody had Connecticut markers. He explained at the time that he had purchased the machine at the Submarine base and was riding it home.

This morning the funeral of Mrs. Helen Mooney, who died in Detroit the past week, was held from the home on South street with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Antholeme Mollard, M. S., Rev. Joseph Berger, M. S., and Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Fr. Demers. The bearers were Gaston A. Malnjon, Henri Allerie, Huber Socquet, A. Leher, Alfred Carton and Camille Renand. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Workmen have constructed half the width of a new concrete dam being constructed across the Assawaga river just above the Franklin street bridge and a short distance from where this river empties into the Quinebaug. The new dam will replace an ancient one that was partly wrecked in the flood of last November. The old dam into the construction of which beams and planking entered is believed to date back at least 70 years. While the new dam is being constructed practically all of the water of the river that is being diverted through the canal of the Powdrell and Alexander mill and very little water is coming under the Main street bridge. Where the building operations are underway a coffer dam has been constructed. Much of the base of the new dam is on a ledge that is in the bed of the river, and the concrete construction is such that this dam likely will remain in place and in good condition for an unlimited number of years.

From various parts of the county clergymen and laymen especially interested in religious education assembled at the Westfield Congregational church this afternoon for the annual convention of the Windham County Council of Religious Education, and the program arranged was carried out, this afternoon and this evening, in accordance with the plan previously detailed in this column. Great interest was manifested in the addresses and in the other features of the convention.

Domas Boulais, local contractor, continues to keep a force of men employed in Pomfret, where he has the contract for the erection of a large dwelling, some cottages, barns and garages on what is to be one of the fine estates of that beautiful town. The property is owned by a Providence man.

H. W. Chapin, jeweler, will open right away on Main St., near Buick salesroom; new fixtures, tools and watch parts—everything new.—Adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Crosby and Vine R. Franklin have closed their cottage at Oakland Beach for the year and have returned to Danielson.

Dr. Warren A. Tanner of Academy street was reported holding his own at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam this afternoon after undergoing an operation for appendicitis Sunday afternoon, though his condition is critical. The attack was sudden for Dr. Tanner was about as usual attending to his practice until Saturday.

Five game wardens are now on duty in Windham county seven days each week, and will continue active patrol of the woods and fields throughout the hunting season.

J. Carl Witter was in Springfield today on a business trip.

Attorney William Citron of Middletown, candidate for congress, continues to give special attention to towns in this part of his district, speaking at open air noon time meetings as well as at assemblies in halls at evening meetings.

The military whist to be held by Danielson chapter, O. E. S., is to be held in Masonic hall, 36 Main street, Wednesday evening, Oct. 17.—Adv.

Assessors of the town have received many lists of taxable property, but filing such lists is a matter that a great many other property owners are deferring until later in the month.

During the supper hour between sessions of the annual convention of the Windham county council of Religious Education at the Westfield Congregational church this evening, L. Edwin Hill, county Y. M. C. A. secretary, was song leader and Miss Marjorie I. Gaffney pianist.

Tons of leaves that will serve as bedding for animals during the winter season are now being raked up and stored in some outlying districts in this part of Windham county.

Tuesday afternoon members of the Ladies' Prayer circle are to meet with Mrs. Vera Reynolds of Mechanic street.

Francis Quinn, who has been a patient at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester for several weeks, has returned to his home here.

William A. Graves, who was injured two weeks ago when struck by an automobile, continues to show improvement.

The Killingly Community Band of Danielson will hold a rehearsal Tuesday at 8 p. m. in American Legion hall.—adv.

MR. AND MRS. L. W. LEWIS TO LEAVE FOR BALBOA, C. Z.

Mr. and Mrs. Lew Wallace Lewis of Balboa, C. Z., who have been spending a week with Mrs. Lewis' aunt, Mrs. Delphina Fish, left last week for a short visit to her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Coleby Morgan, in Mystic, and to Mr. and Mrs. William H. Brooks, in Hartford. They were also to visit her aunt, Mrs. Horace H. Sears, at Hastings on the Hudson, before sailing today (Tuesday) for the Isthmus.

Miss Ruth Greer, a student at New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, visited her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Jerome Greer, over the holiday and Saturday.

A combined service for Rally Sunday, of morning worship and church school session, was held at the Community M. E. church at 10.45 o'clock. The exercises arranged by Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, junior school superintendent, opened with an organ prelude, March—Processional, by Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt. The program, Rally Day Call, was announced by Supt. Courtland E. Colver and was given as follows: Song, Gladly Now We Rally, junior school; address of welcome, Miss Margaret S. Colver; prayer, Rev. Jerome Greer; song, Little Ones May Be Like Fruitful Trees; exercise, Lesson from the Leaves, J. Edmund Norman Jr., Jack Pierce, Rose Norcross, Bernice Percival, Velma Atkins, Jay Pierce; responsive reading, The Feast of the Harvest; song, Happy Little Sowers; exercise, Earth's Harvest Time, led by Miss EmBeth Bennett, as representative of school, and Miss Ethel Main, Queen of the Harvest, LeRoy Gunuskey, Robert Waterman, Ruth Main, Carol Norman, Elizabeth Main, Harold Hurlbutt, Louise Howard, William Davidson; song, Bring the Corn and Bring the Wheat; hospital offerings, Margaret Parker, Ruth Allyn; exercise, Summer Secrets, primary class, Christine Miller, Gerald Gurauskey, Irving Norman, Richard Howard, Madeline Schaeffer, William Newbury, Gertrude Allen, Barbara Hamilton, Ruth Hurlbutt, Enid Latimer; song, The Fields Are All Whiter; exercise, Lesson from the Autumn Leaves, by Mrs. J. Edmund Norman and her class of beginners, Raymond Whincher, Phoebe Norman, William Atkins, Marjorie Hurlbutt, Jean Hurlbutt, with motion song for class, Enid Latimer, Carol Norman and Ruth Hurlbutt; pastor address, Lessons from Harvest Time; song, When the Roll is Called Next Sunday. Special awards were featured on the program, the junior class taught by Mrs. Avery Main, receiving pins from the school for extra honor work and Miss Ethel Main was presented a Bible by Assistant Superintendent Dudley C. Perkins, an award offered by him in a memory contest to the pupil in the senior department having the highest number of points; Harold Hurlbutt received a box of candy in the same contest for having the most points in the junior school. The program closed with the doxology and benediction.

The Epworth league rally service at 7 p. m. was led by Mrs. Jerome Greer, the topic being Facing the Future. In Heavenly Love Abiding was sung as the offertory selection by junior girls. Gladioli, dahlias and other late garden flowers with a background of autumn leaves were used effectively in the decorations. Both morning and evening services were largely attended.

The rally social of the Epworth league chapter Thursday evening at the vestry was enjoyed by members and friends of the league. Mrs. Jerome Greer was general chairman with Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt and Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt on the program committee and Mrs. Nelson Parker and Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins in charge of the refreshments. Sides were chosen at the opening of the program and were captained by Mrs. Parker and Mrs. J. Edmund Norman. Sheets of pink and green paper, with pins, were given out, each member of the teams to make a hat to be worn during the evening. The honors in this contest went to Mrs. Robert Percival and Miss Margaret Colver. An indoor track meet provided much amusement, the several events being as follows: Shot put (peas in boxes); one-yard dash, snowshoe race, (with barrel staves); high jump, (sing highest note and hold longest); hammer throw, (blow up bags and hit hammer handle); relay race, (flatheads, potato on head and run); flower charades, (guessing contest); suitcase race, (dress from garment in and replace in given time). Each side secured 17 points in the contests.

Mrs. Delphine Fish, Mrs. Billings F. S. Crandall and Miss Alice Satterlee, local members of Anna Warner Bailey chapter, D. A. R., of Groton and Stonington, were attendants at the October meeting at the Monument House, Groton, Thursday afternoon.

Frank A. Davis, who has been a patient at the Backus hospital, Norwich, for about six weeks is now able to be at his home in the village.

PUTNAM

PELUSO ORDERED OUT OF TOWN BY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 15—Guy Peluso, of Canal street, arrested Saturday evening after an attempt to take his wife's life with a butcher knife, was presented in police court before Judge Geissler this morning and after a hearing was reprimanded for his act and released.

The near victim, Mrs. Mary Peluso, was the first witness to take the stand. Mrs. Peluso testified that her husband came home from Boston Saturday evening and demanded that she return to his home in Chelsea, Mass. As he had no employment, she refused to go with him. At hearing his wife's decision Peluso became enraged and drew a knife from his pocket, vowing that he would cut her to pieces and "drink my blood," Mrs. Peluso testified, chased her out of the house, she escaping his clutches by seeking refuge at the home of Mrs. Bernice Vermette, who lived nearby.

According to the testimony offered by Mrs. Veremette, Peluso said he cared little for the "electric chair, court procedure or jail sentence," but would complete his deed before he left Putnam for Boston.

Peluso admitted he threatened his wife but only did so to scare her and make her return with him. His plea was not guilty and with only a brief deliberation Judge Geissler ordered the man released, informing him that he must leave town without causing his wife any further trouble.

Peluso left the police station, and within fifteen minutes later an emergency telephone call was received by the police asking assistance at the Peluso home on Canal street. The police found Mrs. Peluso, with her three small children grouped around her, in a state of fear, she telling them that her husband had returned to carry out the provisions of his Saturday evening threat.

Officer Benoi Durand took the Main street route through the Manahansette village, and he encountered the wife beater dashing up the street for the railroad station. Officer Durand re-arrested the man, taking him to the police station for further questioning. Captain Jarvis of the Putnam police stated this afternoon that he could find no further evidence of his mischievous work and he escorted him to the railroad station, placing him on a Boston bound bus.

When asked by the court what his idea of carrying the steel blade was, Peluso answered, "Well I keep that to open cheese boxes with, I eat lots of cheese and the boxes are hard to cut."

Peter Martine of Park street accidentally shot in the left cheek by a bullet from a .32 calibre rifle while playing at the state park at Priest Island last Friday afternoon, was reported today as somewhat improved at the Day Kimball hospital, where he has been a patient in a serious condition since the time of the accident. A new angle of the story was obtained today by Capt. Jarvis of the Putnam police, when Harvey Dennette, 14 year old son of Mrs. William Dennette of Park street told the captain that he had borrowed the gun from a friend to hunt with. On Friday afternoon when he was returning the rifle, Martine and the group of boys met him and took the gun from his possession. Dennette said that the gun was unloaded and he had no cartridges in his possession. The boys acquired a number of soda bottles and procured enough from the sale of them to purchase a box of cartridges.

While the youngsters were at play on the island a shot was fired, striking the boy in the cheek, it later being removed from the back of the neck by Dr. Overlock, surgeon at the Day Kimball hospital.

Dennette today asked the police to withdraw him from any blame in connection with the accident as he had been asked to finance the hospital expense of the injured boy. The police are today gathering further information in connection with the shooting.

The Rev. William Gilbert of Middletown, Protestant Episcopal clergyman and democratic spokesman addressed a gathering of textile operatives this noon on Pomfret street near the Putnam Woolen mills. Gilbert debated the issues of the campaign, stressing the textile points and advantages offered by the democratic party. William M. Citron, democratic nominee for congressman was slated to speak at the same gathering but did not arrive in time.

Funeral services were held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church for Martin A. Chase who died Friday evening at his home on Bridge street. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated with Rev. U. O. Bellerose as celebrant, Rev. W. A. Casey deacon and Rev. Ernest Boileau sub deacon. Special musical selections from Dion's funeral mass were sung by the members of the 9 o'clock mass choir.

The funeral mass was largely attended by the host of friends of Mr. Chase, who for the past forty years has been a resident of Putnam. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Miss Dora Whitney of Apanogue, R. I., was the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Noyes of Quinebaug avenue.

Mrs. Charles R. Young of Wilton, Me., who has been spending the past week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. F. Noyes of Quinebaug avenue, returned to her home Saturday.

Miss Edith Pease of Manchester, Conn., spent Sunday at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Pease of Fremont street.

A slight auto crash occurred Sunday at the junction of Main and Front streets. A car owned and operated by John Ashton of Willimantic, crashed into another driven by Dennis Bohi of Mattapan. None of the occupants of either car was injured and only slight damage was done to the automobiles involved as they proceeded under their own power.

An associated Press dispatch of today said that N. Waldo Kennedy of Pawtucket and Eastford and well known fraternal leader in Putnam has resigned his post as state supervisor and district deputy of the Rhode Island district of the Loyal Order of Moose. His retirement was brought about because of his failing health.

After two denials that they would nominate a candidate to oppose Judge Henry N. Benoit as candidate for the office of judge of Putnam probate court, a member of the democratic town committee said this afternoon that the party was not planning on giving up the fight as in past years by endorsing the republican nominee, but said a plan is now in order whereby a democrat will be named for the office at the party caucus to be held Tuesday evening.

The Boston Post of Monday paid respect to the efforts of Richard Mahoney, student at Clark college in Worcester, Mass., when a number of his fellow students carried him to the registration bureau in Worcester Saturday afternoon where he was sworn in as a voter and pledged himself to the cause of Gov. Alfred E. Smith. Young Mahoney, whose picture appeared in print today, is the brother of James F. Mahoney, Putnam theatre manager and is well known in this city. The younger Mahoney is crippled and is unable to use either his legs or hands. He is working his way through the Clark Engineering institute at Worcester.

John Kegan, committed to the Day Kimball hospital in this city Sunday evening after he had figured in an automobile accident in Plainfield, Sunday evening was reported as resting in a favorable condition today. Kegan is suffering from a laceration of the skull, a broken arm and leg and possible internal injuries.

A number of Putnam residents were on hand at Union station in Worcester this morning when the special train of the presidential nominee, Herbert Hoover, stopped for 26 minutes in Worcester. The throngs at the station listened to the nominee give a short address before he continued on to Boston where he will campaign.

Know Her?

You ought to know this lovely New York City girl because her blonde beauty has been displayed on so many magazine covers. She's Marion Dahl, 35 Clarkson St., Brooklyn. Artists say she's a "type!" They fairly rave over her delicate flesh tints and the golden glory of her hair!

Miss Dahl says: "Everyone I know, tells me how wonderful my hair looks nowadays. I don't feel like it's a personal compliment, however; I take it more as a compliment to the method I'm using to care for it. It's the rage among girls here in New York. All you do is put a little Danderine on your brush each time you use it. My hair was wiry and hard to keep in place, but Danderine makes it soft and easy to dress and holds it like I arrange it, for hours! My scalp fairly tingles with vigor after I use it, and it keeps my head so clean I don't need to shampoo half so often. It brings out the color of my hair marvelously, making it fairly glisten!"

Every application of Danderine tones and refreshes your scalp. It removes the oily film from each strand, and makes dull, stringy hair gleamy, soft and easily manageable. It dissolves dandruff and keeps it out of your hair. It isn't sticky or oily. It doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe still heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

MARKET SHOWED STRENGTH IN THE FACE OF HIGHER CALL MONEY RATES

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—The stock market gave an impressive demonstration of strength today in the face of a marking up of call money rates from 6 1-2 to 8 per cent. More than two score issues were elevated to new high records, several of the gains running from 5 to nearly 25 points. Total sales ran over 4,000,000 shares.

Sale of a New York Stock exchange seat was arranged this afternoon at the record-breaking price of $480,000, $15,000 above the record established only a few hours before and $30,000 above the high price set last week. A committee of the exchange was appointed to consider increasing the membership of the exchange above the present limit of 1,100, which has remained unchanged since 1879. An effort to increase the membership by 25 in 1926 was defeated.

Marking up of the call money rate followed the calling of upwards of $35,000,000 in loans, due to heavy mid-month and payroll demands. The high rate is regarded by bankers as temporary. There was no change in time money and commercial paper rates. With fall commercial demands about at their peak an easing of credit conditions is considered likely until the holiday demands begin to make themselves felt late next month.

Recapitalization plans formed the basis for the advance in several of the high priced stocks. Directors of the American Smelting & Refining company today recommended a 3 for 1 stock split up stockholders of the Atlantic Refining company approved the 4 for 1 split up recently recommended by directors, and Safeway Stores stockholders approved a 5 for 1 split up. The United States Steel, Union Carbide, International Harvester and Case Threshing companies were all mentioned in current recapitalization rumors. The annual dividend on Calumet & Hecla was increased today from $2 to $4.

Case Threshing was the spectacular individual feature, soaring 24 1-2 points to a new high record at 398 1-2 and closing near the top. National Tea soared 18 points to a new top at 293 and eased to 291 and Montgomery-Ward ran up nearly 12 points to a new peak at 204 3-4 and retained all but a fraction of its gain. Industrial Rayon, International Harvester, Motor Products, Otis Elevator, and General Cable all established new high records on extreme gains of 5 to nearly 15 points.

Fresh buying came into the oil shares on expectations of unusually favorable third quarter earnings, particularly by the refining companies. Special strength of Mexican Seaboard, which crossed 39 to a new high, was based on the recent discovery of a gusher well in Kings county, Southern California. Beacon Oil opened with a block of 15,000 shares at 22 and then moved up to a new top at 23 3-8.

Predictions of higher copper prices and increased dividends stimulated the buying of the copper shares. Chile climbing more than 4 points to 54 7-8. American Smelting fell back 5 points on the traditional "selling on the good news," but recovered most of its loss.

New peak prices for the year also were established by U. S. Steel common, Bethlehem Steel, American Can, Park & Tilford, Simmons Co., International Business Machines and Coca Cola. Chrysler ran up more than 5 points and Hudson received fresh buying support but General Motors turned heavy. Heaviness also developed in Coty, Curtiss, International Nickel and Warren Bros. Selling of Goodyear which broke 5 points, was attributed to the delay in the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary. Sterling cables ruled a shade lower around $4.85 1-32.

Commodity prices were mixed. Wheat futures yielded a fraction of a cent a bushel but cotton rallied 25 cents to $1 a bale. The census bureau's consumption report of 492,221 bales for September was about in line with trade expectations. Coffee and sugar prices showed little change.

HOOVER STRESSES IMPORTANCE OF REPUBLICAN PROTECTIVE TARIFF

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15—(AP)— The text of Herbert Hoover's address at Boston, Mass., tonight is as follows:

Economic questions have over the past fifty years grown to a larger and larger proportion of our national issues. Today these questions are more dominant than ever. Upon their sound solution depends our prosperity, our standards of living, and the opportunities for a fuller life to every home. I make no apologies therefore for speaking to you tonight on economic questions, as they are affected by the tariff and our foreign trade, including our merchant marine. Obviously the policies of our government bear the most important relationship to the maintenance and expansion of foreign trade, and the government is the sole origin of the tariff.

I have been told that traditionally these subjects are of less interest to the women of our country than to the men. This I do not believe. Not alone are women today a large part of the army of industry, but they are also the treasurers of the household, and the security of the family income is to them of primary concern.

There are no more important questions to the people of New England than this. Nature has given you no coal mines, no oil wells, no vast expanse of prairie—in fact no great possessions of raw materials. Your transportation relations both inland and overseas do not present to you economic opportunity for basic raw material industries.

But New England has something even more important than all this. It has from the very beginnings of our history provided industrial and commercial leadership and skilled workmanship in the United States. The courage, genius and lofty integrity of that leadership has for two hundred years carried New England through a score of those inevitable crises that come from invention, from change in demand.

New England began with a shipping industry as her dominant commercial occupation. She succeeded in it because she built better ships, because she was more skillful in ship construction and because she developed great skill in operation. She spread her ships over all the seas. She was the first part of our country to develop the factory system. She trained the first skilled workers, erected the first machinery and set up the first equipment of modern industry. Her people have developed not only a great industry and commerce but a great inheritance of method and skill. It is not simply a great past, it is a great present.

Today with her reservoir of skilled artisanship, of able technologists and administrators, with her own capital, with access to the markets of our own country and to the world, New England is, and will continue to be over many generations to come, the great American center for production of those articles where we require quality rather than quantity. But the very nature of her location, the character of her industry and her resources makes New England on one hand dependent upon the tariff to protect certain of her industries in the American market, and upon the other hand the development of foreign trade to find world markets for others.

Importance of Foreign Trade

And today the whole nation has more profound reasons for solicitude in the promotion of our foreign trade than ever before. As the result of our inventive genius and the pressures of high wages, we have led the world in substituting machines for hand labor. This together with able leadership and skilled workers enables us to produce goods much in excess of our own needs. Taking together our agriculture and our manufactures and our mining we have increased our production approximately 30 per cent during the last eight years, while our population has increased only about 10 per cent.

This increase of production has been absorbed in higher standards of living, but the surplus grows with this unceasing improvement. To insure continuous employment and maintain our wages we must find a profitable market for these surplus.

Nor is this the only reason for lending high importance to our foreign trade either for New England or the country as a whole. Our business ideal must be stability—that is, regularity of production and regularity of employment. We attain stability in production, whether it be in the individual factory or in the whole industry, or whether it is in the nation at large, by the number of different customers we supply. The shock of decreased demand from a single customer can be absorbed by the increase from another. If distribution be diffused. Consequently our industries will gain in stability the wider we spread our trade with foreign countries. This additional security reflects itself in the home of every worker and every farmer in our country.

The expansion of export trade has a vital importance in still another direction. The goods which we export contribute in the purchase from foreign countries of the goods and raw materials which we can not ourselves produce. We might survive as a nation, though on lower living standards and wages if we have to suppress the 10 per cent or 10 per cent of our total production which is now sold abroad, but our whole standard of life would be paralyzed and much of the joy of living destroyed if we were denied sufficient imports. Without continued interchange of tropical products with those of the temperate zone whole sections of the world, including our own country must stagnate and degenerate in civilization. We could not run an automobile, we could not operate a dynamo or use a telephone were we without imported raw materials from the tropics. In fact, the whole structure of our advancing civilization would crumble and the great mass of mankind would travel backwards if the foreign trade of the world were to cease. The great war brought to bold relief the utter dependence of nations upon foreign trade. One of the major strategies of that hour was to crush the enemy by depriving him of foreign trade and therefore of supplies of material and food stuffs which were vital to his existence.

Trade in its true sense is not commercial war; it is vital mutual service. The volume of world trade depends upon prosperity. In fact it grows from prosperity. Every nation loses by the poverty of another. Every nation gains by the prosperity of another. Our prosperity in the United States has enabled us in eight years to make enormous increases in the purchase of goods from other nations. These increasing purchases have added prosperity and livelihood to millions of people abroad and their prosperity in turn has enabled them to increase the amount of goods they can buy from us.

Growth of Our Trade.

Realizing these essentials, one of the first acts of the republican administration when we came into power seven and a half years ago, confronted as we were by millions of unemployed—was to devise measures to vigorously restore and expand our foreign trade. It was evident that we must sell more products abroad if we would restore jobs, maintain steady employment for labor and activity for our industries. It was clear that we must dispose of the farmers' surplus abroad, if he was to recover stability and an ability to buy the products of our labor. As an aftermath of the war we were confronted with a total disorganization of our export trade. Our exports of war materials had been brought suddenly to an end, but more than this, the trade of the entire world was demoralized to the extent that the actual movement of commodities between nations was less than before the war. We set out on a definitely organized campaign to build up the export of our products. To accomplish this we reorganized the department of commerce on a greater scale than has ever been attempted or achieved by any government in the world. We mobilized our manufacturers and exporters, and co-operated with them in laying out and executing strategic plans for expanding our foreign trade with all nations and in all directions.

The republican administration by this action introduced a new basis in government relation with business and in fact a new relationship of the government with its citizens. That basis was definitely organized co-operation. The method was not dictation nor domination. It was not regulation, nor subsidies nor other artificial stimulants such as were adopted by foreign nations in similar plight. It was the government with all its prestige interested solely in public welfare, acting through trained specialists in voluntary co-operation with committees of business men to promote the interest of the whole country in expansion of its trade and its ultimate expression which is increased and stable employment. It was the promotion of initiative and enterprise which characterized our business men and nowhere greater than in New England.

In the year 1922 our foreign trade upon a quantitative basis was almost the same as it was before the war, that is, if we reduce the values by the amount of inflation of the dollar. Since that time our trade has increased steadily year by year until in the year 1927 our exports amounted to the gigantic sum of $4,865,000,000—or a billion dollars increase under republican rule. Our imports increased in the past seven years by over $1,675,000,000 to a total of $4,185,000,000. There never have been such increases in a similar period before in our history. Today we are the largest importers and the second largest exporters of goods in the world. Our exports show on a quantitative basis an increase of 55 per cent over pre-war, while our imports are 80 per cent above pre-war. The other combatant nations are only now barely recovering their pre-war basis. All this has a very human interpretation. Our total volume of exports translates itself into employment for 2,400,000 families, while its increase in the last seven years has interpreted itself into livelihood for 500,000 additional families in the United States. And in addition to this, millions more families find employment in the manufacture of imported raw materials. The farmer has a better market for his produce by reason of their employment.

Nor has New England failed to participate fully in this great advance.

With perhaps pardonable pride I may point out some indication of the assistance which the government has given to this great expansion of our export trade through searching out opportunity for American goods abroad. I know of no better index of what the federal government's contribution has been in this enormous growth than the number of requests which come constantly to the department of commerce from our manufacturers and exporters for assistance and service of one kind or another. During the year before we understook this broad plan of cooperation the government at its various offices over the world received less than 700 such requests per day. These demands have increased steadily until the this last fiscal year they exceeded the enormous total of over 10,000 daily. Unless these services to individual manufacturers and exporters were bringing positive results in dollars and cents, we should never have seen this phoenomenal growth.

Foreign Monopolies.

Nor is the government solely concerned with the sale or our products abroad. We are deeply interested in many ways in our imports. One of the most intricate questions has been to secure the supply, at reasonable prices, of raw materials which we do not produce. Beginning soon after the war, certain foreign governments possessing practical monopoly of such materials began the organization of controls designed to establish prices to the rest of the world, and especially to us, the largest purchaser. These controls increased in number until they embraced nearly one-third of our imports and the undue tax upon our consumers reached hundreds of millions of dollars. We regarded such controls to be in the long run uneconomic and disastrous to the interests of both producer and consumer. We, however, felt we had no complaint except in cases where these methods resulted in speculation and consequent unfair prices to our people; we wish to pay fair price for what we buy just as we wish to secure a fair price for what we sell. It was necessary for us to demonstrate that the consumer has inherent rights. Our government used its influence to assist American industry to meet this situation, by encouraging the use of substitutes and synethetic products, and by recommending public conservation at times of absolute necessity. Happily the trends in the creation and management of these monopolies has reversed itself, and I believe this question will present no further difficulty.

The government bears other direct responsibilities in promoting and safeguarding our foreign trade. It can prosper only under sound financial policies of our government; it can prosper only under improving efficiency of our industry. In fact its progress marches only with the march of all progress whether it be education or decrease in taxes. Foreign trade thrives only in peace. But more than that it thrives only with maintained good will and mutual interest with other nations.

One of these mutual interests lies in the protection of American citizens and their property abroad, and the protection of foreign citizens in our borders. The world's trading operations are by necessity largely carried on through the agency of their own citizens who migrate to foreign countries; so that in the pursuit of foreign trade we have an exchange of citizens as well as of goods. Furthermore our citizens who go abroad to develop foreign countries, our citizens who loan their savings to develop foreign countries are contributing to the advancement of trade. But they do much more. They build up the standards of living and the prosperity in other countries. Unless there can be constantly evidenced amongst all nations that the lives and property of all citizens abroad shall be protected, the foreign trade and the economic life of the world will degenerate instead of thrive. This does not imply that our citizens going abroad are not subject to the laws of the country where they reside. They must be subject to such laws unless these laws are a violation of international obligation. This implies no imperialism. It is the simple recognition of the principle of comity and mutual interest among all nations. Confidence in this principle is a necessity to the advancement of civilization itself. Fortunately the occasions where it has been necessary to send armed forces to preserve this principle are diminishing. Aside from the great war the democratic administration found it necessary to take such action on nine occasions. While during this administration only four such incidents have arisen. Every American must hope that they will not again arise.

Government cooperation in promoting foreign trade is even more important to New England than it has ever been before. With the assurance of peace for many years to come the world is upon the threshold of great commercial expansion. The other great nations of the world have been slowly recovering from the war. They have attained a very large degree of economic stability. They are developing increased efficiency in production and distribution and promotion of trade. Almost every month brings some deputation from abroad to study our methods and processes, which they soon translate into their own use. We do not begrudge them all of our technical and other information. We search with equal diligence to translate their methods of progress to our own use. We have the intelligent self-interest to realize that it is in the prosperity and progress of the world as awhole that we must seek expansion in our foreign trade. Nevertheless, as the stability of foreign nations becomes greater and their methods improve their competition for neutral markets will become sharper. To receive our due share of prosperity in these markets we must continue an increasing vigorous cooperation from our government.

The Tariff.

One of the most important economic issues of this campaign is the protective tariff. The republican party has for 70 years supported a tariff designed to give adequate protection to American labor, American industry, and the American farm against foreign competition.

Our opponents, after 70 years of continuous opposition to this republican doctrine, now seek to convince the American people that they have nothing to fear from tariff revision at their hands. The democratic platform states that they will revise the duties to a basis of "effective competition." They did this once before. When the Underwood tariff bill was introduced to congress in 1913 the democratic ways and means committee of the house presented it to the country as a "competitive tariff." That measure was surely not a protective tariff. It greatly reduced the tariffs on American manufactures and it removed almost the whole protection of the agricultural industry. The competition which it provided was competition with foreign wages and standards of living. The democratic tariff was subjected to test only a few months prior to the outbreak of the war. Those few months showed the beginnings of disaster in both industry and agriculture. The production of goods abroad competing with our goods ceased during the war and tariff rates became relatively unimportant. It was not until peace was restored that its ill effects were completely disclosed to the American people. It would seem fair to assume from the declaration of the authors of the measure at the time the Underwood bill was passed that it was the ideal of an "effective competitive" tariff. Be this as it may, competition, to be effective, must mean that foreign goods will have opportunity of successfully invading our home markets. The effect of the formula there set forth means a reduction of the tariff and a depression in American wages and American farm prices to meet foreign competition. It means a flood of foreign goods, of foreign farm produce with the consequent reduction of wages and income of not only workers and farmers but the whole of those who labor whether in the field, the bench, or the desk. The republican party stands for protection and on coming into power in 1922 it enacted again a protective tariff to agriculture and industry.

Every argument urged by our opponents against the increased duties in the republican tariff act has been refuted by actual experience. It was contended that our costs of production would increase. Their prophecy was wrong, for our costs have decreased. They urged that the duties which we proposed would increase the price of manufactured goods—yet prices have steadily decreased. It was urged that by removing the pressure of competition of foreign goods, our industry would fall in efficiency. The answer to that is found in our vastly-increased production per man in every branch of industry, which, indeed, is the envy of our competitors. They asserted that the enactment of the tariff would reduce the volume of our imports. Yet, during the last seven years, our total imports particularly of goods which we do not ourselves produce have greatly increased. They predicted that with decreasing imports it would follow that our sales of goods abroad would likewise decrease. Again they were wrong. Our exports have increased to unprecedented totals. In fact every single argument put forth by our opponents against us at that time has proved to be fallacious. The tariff written by the republican party in 1922 has been accompanied by everything which our opponents predicted that the tariff would prevent. It has been accompanied by employment and prosperity.

The tariff commission is a most valuable arm of the government. It can be strengthened and made more useful in several ways. But the American people will never consent to delegating authority over the tariff to any commission, whether non-partisan or bypartisan. Our people have a right to express themselves at the ballot upon so vital a question as this. There is only one commission to which delegation of that authority can be made. That is the great commission of their own choosing, the congress of the United States and the president. It is the only commission which can be held responsible to the electorate. Those who believe in the protective tariff will, I am sure, wish to leave its revision at the hands of that party which has been devoted to establishment and maintenance of that principle for seventy years.

No tariff act is perfect. With the shifting of economic tides some items may be higher than necessary, but undoubtedly some are too low. This is particularly true so far as New England is concerned. New England has many protected industries. One important branch of them, the cotton and wool industries, have not for the past few years been in a satisfactory condition. They comprise about 26 per cent of New England's industrial life. Their depressed condition has not been peculiar to New England. The same situation has prevailed throughout the world and is due largely to the same factors—style changes, production in new areas, and decided changes in the trends of consumption. There has been keen hardship in the United States than abroad, and that fact has been due to the partial protection afforded in the tariff against inundations of foreign goods.

Any change in the present policy of protection would, without question, result in a flood of foreign textile products which would mean no less than ruin to New England industry, both manufactures and workmen.

That our American textile industry and its workers need solid protection is clearly demonstrated by a comparison of wages and it must be remembered that our most severe competition from abroad always come in those types of cloths in which the element of labor represents the chief item of cost. A woolen and worsted weaver in the United States earns an average of 65 cents an hour, in Great Britain 30 cents, in Germany 29 cents, in France 12 cents, and in Italy 8 cents, the American cotton weaver earns an average of 40 cents an hour, the German 17 cents, the Frenchman less than 11, and the Italian 7 cents an hour. And New England wages are higher than these averages for the whole country. The American protective tariff is the only insurance to our 600,000 families who earn their livelihood in the cotton and wool manufacturing industries against the wages prevalent abroad and the conditions and standards of living which necessarily result from them.

The prospects for the textile industry are today much more favorable than for some time past. Both the world situation and domestic situation are improving. I believe these industries have turned the corner, and there are omens of much broader significance which sustain me in my beliefs. As never before in the industry there is demonstrated a will to pool its best brain resources in the solution of present and future problems in order that there shall be mutuality of benefit to manufacturer, worker, and consumer. Elimination of waste in production and distribution are in progress. Security and steady employment are more assured than for a long time past.

Protective Tariff and Expansion of Exports Are Not Inconsistent

During this compaign some of our opponents have asserted that it is inconsistent to support the protective tariff and at the same time expect a greater expansion of our foreign trade. Their presentation of this theory at least indicates that some of them have not departed from their long-held free-trade theories.

Their theory is that if by a tariff wall against competitive goods we reduce the sales of goods to us from foreign countries, we thereby diminish the resources of those foreign countries with which to buy goods from us and thus in turn our sales abroad are decreased. It is still further asserted that if we by the tariff reduce the shipment of goods into our markets then we diminish the ability of foreign countries to pay the principal and interest on the debts which they owe us. This theory was sound enough in the old days of direct barter of goods between nations. The trouble with it is that it has lost most of its practical application in a modern world and especially as applied to the American situation. Economic theories and hypotheses just stand the test of fact or experience or show application to new circumstance. Responsible men can not daily with critical policies which affect the well-being of peoples on the sole basis of a theory. The birth of modern science was the realization by the scientists that every theory and every hypotheses must be placed upon the scales where the weights were in quantities not arguments.

One primary fault of this economic theory is that foreign trade is no longer a direct barter between one single nation and another. World trade has become more of the nature of a common pool into which all nations pour goods or credit and from which they retake goods and credit. Let me give you an example: We ship more goods to Great Britain than we receive from her. But we buy vast quantities of tropical goods and she in turn supplies the tropical countries with her manufactures. In this way the settlement of international balances and obligations is lifted entirely out of the category of direct barter.

The first answer, however, to this theory is that 65 per cent of our $4,185,000,000 of annual imports are admitted free of duties because they are raw materials, tropical products, and other articles which we do not ourselves produce. Of the remainder, from 6 per cent to 7 per cent are luxuries upon which duties are levied for revenue and which are bought by our people irrespective of price. The purchasing power of foreign countries is certainly undiminished to the extent of this 70 per cent.

A further answer is that 30 per cent or $1,250,000,000 of imports came in over the tariff wall and paid duties to the useful revenue of the government of about $470,000,000. The purchasing power for our goods was undiminished by this amount.

A still further answer to this theory opposed to the protective tariff is the enormous increases of what are usually called the "invisibles" of foreign trade. That is the expenditures for freights, for insurance, by tourists, by immigrant remittances, for interest and a hundred other items. Some years ago believing that these transactions were of vastly more importance in the determination of our national policies than had been credited to them, I instituted an annual determination of the facts. These determinations show that foreign nations now receive from us about two billions of dollars per annum for services, including such items as $770,000,000 paid out in foreign countries by our tourists and $240,000,000 remitted by immigrants in our country to relatives abroad. This sum of two billions, can be applied by foreigners to the purchase of goods or to payment on debts or for services in the United States just the same as the money which they receive from the sale of goods to us. If we add this two billions to the $4,185,000,000 goods they sell us it makes their purchasing power over six billions, so that the proportion of the foreigners' buying power which is affected by the protective tariff diminishes to even a smaller ratio.

Still another answer is that the volume of imports is in fact determined by the degree of prosperity of nations. Our domestic prosperity has been greatly increased by the building up of wages and standards of living, to which the protective tariff has greatly contributed. By the very result of the tariff we have been able vastly to increase our imports of luxuries, raw materials and things we do not produce. With our domestic prosperity we require more raw materials and by that same prosperity we have the resources with which to buy them. By our prosperity we have been able to go abroad as tourists and also to remit to our relatives in Europe. This I believe, finally extinguishes the already depleted importance of this theory that our tariff seriously damages the buying power of foreign countries and thus diminishes our export trade.

But if any more answers are needed to this theory there is that of actual practical experience. I have already observed that we have increased our imports during the last seven and a half years under the present tariff act by over $1,675,000,000 annually or 40 an amount at least 30 per cent above the pre-war average after allowing for the higher prices. The exports of five leading manufacturing nations of Europe to the United States have increased 73 per cent since 1913 whereas the sales of these same nations to the rest of the world have increased 72 per cent. Certainly that does not indicate any great destruction of their ability to sell us something despite our tariff. In short there is no practical force in the contention that we can not have a protective tariff and a growing foreign trade. We have both today.

Foreign Loans

I spoke a few minutes ago of loans which our citizens make to foreign countries. It is an essential part of the sound expansion of our foreign trade that we should interest ourselves to the development of backward or crippled countries by means of loans from our surplus capital. They bring blessings both to the lender and the borrower. When we make a loan abroad the amount of that loan is not ordinarily exported in gold but in goods or services either directly or indirectly. Most of them find their way out of our country in the form of farm products, of machinery, plant equipment and supplies purchased of us. We receive the first benefit in markets for our farmers and for the making of these goods and that gives additional employment to our people. The borrower receives the second benefit because the installation of American machinery and equipment whether it be railways, power plants, harvesting machinery or typewriters, brings greater productivity to the receiving country. Its prosperity is thus increased and the whole world trade benefits. Some of this new industrialization abroad may result in occasional competition with items here and there in our export trade; but the broad, general results of world betterment are as I have stated them. If foreign loans are applied to constructive development in foreign lands and if they are provided from capital beyond that which we require for our own needs then they are necessarily beneficial.

War Debts

Two assertions have been made in connection with our war debts and foreign trade that merit a word. The first is the one I referred to before that tariff prevents the imports of goods necessary to repay interest and capital upon these loans; and the second is that these payments must be ultimately made in goods and that these goods will some day replace the output of our factories and reduce the employment of our workmen. This latter argument has been vigorously put forward as a reason for cancelling our war debts. I deny its practical validity.

The whole of the weights which I have applied to the fallacy that the protective tariff ruins our export trade applies equally to this matter. As I have said, the tariff can effect but a small percentage of the buying power of foreign countries. In the end it probably increases imports because by increasing our domestic prosperity, it enables us to buy far more goods of the raw material, tropical and luxury type. All the facts I have stated showed the increased buying power of foreign countries, apply equally to their ability to pay loans and interest. The $320,000,000 annually due us upon war debt settlements represents today less than 8 per cent of the present total annual buying power of foreign countries for our goods and other purposes. Of this 8 per cent, four-fifths would be paid through invisibles as duty free goods and only 1 per cent, at the largest computation in competitive goods. A hard, practical fact enters here also, which is that their buying power from us is constantly increasing. The fact is the increase in our tourist expenditure alone in Europe since the war would enable them to take care of the entire amount of their annual payments on these debts. The increase alone in our imported goods since 1922 would pay the whole amount three times over. And the polyangular course of trade which I have mentioned does not require that these transactions be directed with any nation.

While I am on this subject of our war debt I should like to call attention to another current misrepresentation. That is the statement that we made a profit from the World war and that these debts were wrung from the blood of other countries. This is absolutely untrue.

While certain individuals may have profited, as a whole this country was a great loser by the war. We emerged from it with the loss of life of our sons, with the depleted health of others, with a huge debt, increased taxes, inflated currency, inflated agriculture, useless factories, with a shortage of housing and other facilities for the very basis of living, with suspended public works and inadequate communications, demoralized railways and countless other national losses which will continue for a generation.

The increase in wealth and prosperity in the United States has come since the war—not during that time. It is due to the hardworking character and increasing efficiency of our people and to sound government policies. And in the largest measure the adoption and application of these policies were due to that great son of New England, Calvin Coolidge.

This great prosperity, this great increase in wealth has been one of the greatest blessings that has ever come to the world. It has enabled us from our reservoir of wealth to contribute the force of our capital to the reconstruction of the war-torn countries. But for our aid South America and many other parts of the world would have been compelled to suspend their development and expansion for lack of capital. Had it not been for the industry and genius of the American people in the last seven years, recovery of the world would have been delayed a quarter of a century.

Merchant Marine.

A merchant marine under the American flag is an essential to our foreign trade. It is essential to our defense. There is only one protection of our commerce from discrimination and combinations in rates which would impose onerous charges upon us in the transportation of our goods to foreign markets—that is, a merchant marine under the control of our citizens. We have had need to revise our vision upon overseas transportation during the past few years. It no longer comprises large numbers of tramp steamers going hither and yon. From the point of view of our commerce it consists of about 25 important sea routes which are the extensions to foreign destinations of our inland trade routes, upon which we need regular, ferrylike service of large cargo liner ships. This development of large units and regative operation fits with the character of our industrial development and opens wider hope for our return to the sea.

We have endeavored for two generations to find methods for restoration of that prestige on the ocean which New England at one time gave to us. During late years we have tried government ownership and operation. No one can claim that government operation gives promise of either efficiency or performance. But by government operation we have maintained our independence and our defense in the meantime. By it we have been able to pioneer the trade routes and to build up substantial flow of goods. Thus far it has been successful but at heavy cost. As these routes have gained in strength many of them have been disposed of to successful operation by private enterprise. With the legislation passed by the last congress through which a number of indirect aids are given to the merchant marine there is real hope that the government will ultimately be able to retire from competition with its own citizens in the shipping business but I can not rest until we are sure that private enterprise can carry the burden and grow in strength. It is a certainty that government operation will always be unsatisfactory. The government can not operate cheaply; it can not ride itself of tortuous bureaucracy and politics; it can not avoid the interminable difficulties and wastes which come from this kind of organization and direct or indirect political pressures. The hope of a substantial merchant marine lies ultimately in the new character of over sea shipping, in the energy and initiative of our citizens with assistance and cooperation of the government. That assistance and co-operation is now being given and must be continued.

Conclusion.

Now let me sum up the thought I should like to leave with you. I have talked to you about the tariff, about international trade, the merchant marine, and other economic forces which may, at first glance, seem far removed from our daily lives. I have tried to make the point that these subjects are no longer remote from any one of you. The time may have been, as someone once said, when the tariff was a local issue or foreign trade and shipping concerned only the local seaports. It is so no longer. Touch the tariff on textiles and North Carolina feels the blighting influence as quickly as Massachusetts. Nor does it stop there. The farmer finds a diminished market in the lessened demand caused by lower wages. Unsettle the credit structure and it is not Wall street that suffers most; it is the little bank, the little factory, the little farm, the modest home. A shortage of shipping to the gulf ports at once decreases prices to the farmer in Kansas, for he must take more expensive routes to foreign markets. The old local decisive issues are largely gone. The present issue is the well-being and comfort and security of the American family and the American home. On that issue my party presents, as proof of its capacity, the record of growing comfort and security of the past seven years.

I could not as a Californian conclude without attribute to the large part which New England men have played in the advancement of my state. They pioneered its first commerce. A Boston man, Thomas O. Larkin, was one of the first American consuls in Mexican California, and in large part to his ability and courage was due the peaceful annexation of my state. It was Daniel Webster who moved California's admission to the Union. It was New England men who established our school system and our universities. Today the sons of New England are among the leaders in our public affairs.

Here in New England, American business began, and because the prosperity of industry and commerce affects the life of every man and woman, every day and night I have dealt with it in this address. But there are other things more important. Because I talk of business it does not mean that I place material things above spiritual things. On the contrary, I see prosperity merely as the rich soil from which spiritual virtues as well as education and art and satisfaction in life can grow.

Your founders came to these shores not through lure of gold; not with the ambition to establish great mercantile enterprises; not with the thirst for adventure. Their first objectives were far different and more lofty.

When the necessities of life and of the spirit had been attended to, their first great desire was to advance learning and perpetuate it for posterity. Out of that lofty ambition came the creation of a score of institutions of higher learning. Later the same spirit inspired the establishment of other colleges in order that women might share equally with men in the opportunities of higher education. And from these institutions went forth the men and women who dotted our western country with colleges and universities which now become great and who carried a love of learning that has led our central and western states to endow their public schools and universities not with millions of dollars but literally with hundreds of millions.

New England taught us the ways of business. But you gave us something far finer and more precious. You sent us men and women on fire with the passion for truth and service. You sent us the first example in patriotism. The early New Englanders cast their lot for liberty in words that can never die, when the people of Roxbury declared: "Our ancestors fathers died with the pleasing hope that we, their children should live free. Let none, as they will answer it another day, disturb the ashes of these heroes by selling their birthright." These words did not spring from any consideration of material advantage. Those of our New England citizens who came in later times have caught that spirit and have carried it forward. It has spread its influence to all our country. As a westerner, I make grateful acknowledgement of our everlasting debt. Your example set the pattern for America's development.

JUDGE O'CONNELL AGAIN NOMINATED JUDGE OF PROBATE

At the republican probate convention for the district of Stafford which includes the towns of Stafford and Union, held in Warren Memorial hall Saturday afternoon, Judge Michael D. O'Connell, democratic nominee and present incumbent of the office, was nominated for judge of probate. For the past five terms, Judge O'Connell has been the candidate of both political parties.

Hannibal Alden was chairman of the convention and Kingsley Converse was clerk. Hannibal Alden of Stafford and H. R. Howard of Union, were named as a probate committee for the next two years.

George Greendonner of Lowell Textile school, Worcester, has returned to his studies after spending the week end at home.

Miss Mary O'Halloran has returned to her home following a minor operation at St. Vincents hospital, Worcester.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Mullins of Hartford were recent visitors with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gillingham of New York, formerly of Stafford spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Murray.

Miss Mary Burrill of Boston was a recent visitor at her home in Westford.

Mr. and Mrs. James Houle spent the week end with relatives in Worcester.

The registrars of voters and the selectmen met Saturday from one to six p. m. to receive applicants who wished to qualify to be made voters for the coming election. Saturday, October 20th the board will again be in session and this is the last time this year that prospective voters may be made.

SPEAKING CONTEST PRIZES WON AT OLD MYSTIC

An interesting speaking contest was held at Old Mystic Methodist church Friday evening. The following program was presented:

Musical selections, Chopin waltz, MacDowell's Shadow Dance, Miss Mabel Hammond, pianist; Be Strong (Maltbie D. Babcock), Russell Tift; selection from The Building of the Ship (Henry W. Longfellow), Allen S. Williams; Young Fellow My Lad (Robert W. Service), Edna Pierce; America for Me (Henry Von Dyke), Lucy Barnes; soprano solos, My Ladie (Thayer), Mighty Like a Rose (Nevin), Miss Fay A. Johnson; The Minuet (Mary Mapes Dodge), Frances Thomson; Seven Times One (Jean Ingelow), Virginia Gasparino; Little Orphant Annie (James Whitcomb Riley), Russel Medbury; The Wind (Robert Louis Stevenson), Iola Young; musical selections, Serenade (Widor), Gondolieri (Nevin), Spring Song (Mendelssohn), Miss Mabel Hammond, pianist; Mrs. Oliver Hoyt Anderson, violinist; Oliver Hoyt Anderson, cellist.

Prizes, which were won by Edna Pierce, first, Allen Williams, second, were awarded by Lawrence S. Williams. The judges were Miss Grace D. Wheeler, Miss M. E. Poindexter and Mrs. Fred Welman. The contestants were trained by Miss Emma A. Williams.

Government home economics experts studied fashion patterns since 1918 and discovered that a dress takes about one and two-thirds yards less material than nine years ago.

Because Necessity Demands the Best

COMMANDER BYRD SELECTS Armour's Star Ham and Star Bacon

Commander Richard E. Byrd (right standing); Four of His Associates and His Supply Ship "City of New York"

Vital among the health protecting, nourishing, energy producing foods that will sustain Commander Byrd and his daring associates in their Antarctic explorations are Armour's Star Ham and Star Bacon.

In the balanced diet that makes for vigorous men, Ham and Bacon are essential. They satisfy and nourish.

They are served from four to five times a week and because they are served so often, to avoid monotony the flavor must be the superlative—enticing, far beyond the flavor of ordinary ham and bacon

So the Hams and Bacon must be the best. They must be good to the taste of those men who face the rigors of the Antarctic. They must have keeping qualities, for once in the Antarctic there is no convenient store at which supplies can be replenished.

Necessity demands the best! So Commander Byrd selects Armour's Star Ham and Star Bacon. He knows and relies upon them.

Commander Byrd has proved the quality of Armour's Star Ham and Star Bacon. With him they went on his history making expedition to the North Pole. Now they go to the South Pole. Good food of dependable quality is a necessity. The name "Armour" on a food product is an absolute assurance of quality.

You can get the same good Ham and Bacon very easily—Just ask your dealer for "Armour's Star." Insist on getting it.

BOZRAH

A large congregation attended the Sunday morning service at the Center church. Rev. George H. Strouse preached an inspiring sermon from the theme "The Great Race," Heb. 12. Next Sunday he will preach from Heb. 12:25-29 "Things That Cannot be Shaken." Sunday evening the union services of the Fitchville Baptist and the Center Congregational churches was held in Fitchville, Rev. J. F. Speech preaching the sermon. There was special music by the choir of the Baptist church.

This was the sixth of the union meetings held by these two churches during the last two weeks. The interest was good and there was evidence that both churches had been quickened spiritually and in fellowship.

Friends in this locality were saddened to read of the tragic death of Lawrence Hutchins of Columbia, at Flint, Michigan recently. Mr. Hutchins' mother, Mrs. Henry Hutchins before her marriage was one of the grade school teachers of the town.

At a meeting of the grange to be held Wednesday evening at Grange hall the first and second degrees will be given several candidates.

ALLANACH AND J. P. SULLIVAN FOR PLANNING BOARD, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 15—All members were present except Mayor Scott, who was unavoidably absent because of a slight illness, at tonight's meeting of the city council. About 30 permits for building were granted. Material was ordered purchased for the Riverside sewer, two carloads of cement and 900 feet of cast-iron pipe. A request of the fire chief was presented by the city manager for more hose; after some discussion it was granted. It was voted to accept the Columbus statue presented the city by the Italian people of New London and a vote of thanks was extended them. Councilor May moved for the changing of the name of Tyler square to Columbus square. The matter was referred to committee.

An exchange of land between the city and Patrick Harkins was made. This became necessary because of the removal of the bethel to permit the widening of Jay street. It was voted to extend Beckwith street to the south side of Squire street.

Frank A. Allanach and James P. Sullivan were elected to the planning board, the former for four years and the latter for five, succeeding himself.

It developed that the electric traffic signals were on trial for a period of 30 days, at a cost of $700 for what is here. Councilor May suggested that an appropriation be made to extend them throughout the city where they are needed. Council Twomey asked for the laying of sidewalks on Garfield avenue and this was taken under advisement. Property owners on Central avenue asked for the laying of sidewalks and the improvement in the highway. Business people on Hamilton street petitioned for the laying of a pipe in Shaw cove creek and this was referred to the city manager for report. Council May moved to prohibit parking on Howard street, near Woodbridge, and he also moved for the prohibition of parking in front of the county historical society building. Both of these matters are in the power of the city manager.

A movement was started to secure a demonstration of the voting machines prior to the presidential election. The statutes require that they be demonstrated three days prior to election. Councilor May said that he demonstrated them to 320 new voters Saturday in the city hall and he was willing to perform suitable service in the future. It was voted that the council designate some one to officially have charge of that work.

NORWICH TOWN DRIVER CARELESS ABOUT LAW

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 15—James E. Filburn, Norwich Town, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Elwood Bailey charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances in parking in restricted area on Broad street. He will be in the police court Tuesday. Another violator of the parking laws, is James J. Murtagh, box 22, Shannock, R. I., who parked his automobile on restricted area on Broad street. He was also ordered to present himself in the police court tomorrow.

John Stern, arrested by State Police Officer William G. Visokay, of Groton barracks, will be in the police court the 22nd inst. for he was ordered to do following his violating the auto law on State street this afternoon.

Still another violator of the park-ing law is Jacob Weinburg, Bronx, New York, arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy charged with parking his car in restricted area on Main street.

The uniformed men of the Coast Guard, state pier, are to have their appetites whetted if service counts for anything for Joseph Goodwin has purchased in Elizabeth, N. J., a lunch wagon and dining car, which is to be located at the foot of Sixteenth street, at the approach of the state pier. The eating outfit was purchased for $5610 and is an elaborate affair.

OBITUARY

Charles Wheeler Hubbell

Charles Wheeler Hubbell, 93, died early this morning at his apartment at the Hotel Mohican, where he had been a resident for several years, prior to which time he resided on Montauk avenue. So far as is known, Mr. Hubbell, leaves no relatives. He was a 32nd degree Mason. Mr. Hubbell was born in New York, but had resided in New London about 12 years. He was head bookkeeper of the Park National bank, New York, when his health started to decline and he moved to New London and occupied a residence on Montauk avenue, later removing to the hotel. The body will be taken to Brooklyn.

An automobile driven by Donald Leighton, 18, of Providence was wrecked and some of the passengers injured last night when the car collided with a trolley car rail at Trail's corner, causing the auto to overturn, only to right itself and come to a stop in a field. Leighton was arrested by State Police Officer Donald G. Curtis charged with reckless driving, but when the accused was presented before Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court today the charge was amended to that of speeding. Leighton in rounding the curve and being confused with the layout of the highway, drove the car alongside the trolley tracks which caused the car to overturn. He was fined $10 and costs, the latter amounting to $11.55. Payment was guaranteed by State Treasurer George Clark, Rhode Island. Leighton had several passengers in the auto George Dacey Wilson street, Providence, received a fractured arm; Dorothy Donovan, Providence, sustained an injury to her left knee; Donald Leighton and Miss Vivian Perry, both of Providence, sustained bumps and bruises.

FUNERAL

Joseph Longo

The funeral of Joseph Longo, Shaw street Italian, who succumbed to heart failure, while participating in the Columbus day parade, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's bark for South America before the assemblage of mourners, among whom were members of the Italian societies. The high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. Acquaintances of Mr. Longo acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Mattie B. Dowsett, wife of Frank L. Dowsett, died this morning at her residence, 34 Washington street, after an illness of several years. Besides her husband, Mrs. Dowsett is survived by several children.

The funeral of John Brown was held this afternoon at 2.30 at Shiloh Baptist church, the services being conducted by Rev. Sinclair Grimstead. The bearers were members of the colored lodge of Elks. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

CARELESS DRIVERS REBUKED IN COURT ON MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 15—About a dozen drivers of automobiles, who persist in violation of traffic laws and more especially the failure to heed the automatic signal recently installed at the corner of Bank and Howard streets, were in the police court this morning, but in each case judgment was suspended after the drivers had been given advice to heed the signals and all others in the future. The offending drivers were Alex Rovenchuk, Uncasville; Barbara Sexton, 189 Parkway; John G. Janson, 43 Alger street; Solomon Winer, 109 Sachem street, Norwich; Philip Brenner, 53 Summer street; Warren Hartwell, 313 Pequot avenue; Francis A. Reed, 13 Amity street; Aaron Agrin, 89 Squire street; Mario Malnati, Niantic; Peter Drago, 39 Jefferson avenue; John G. Lebert, East Lyme; Edward Connell, 28 Pearl street and John Havrilla, Little Boston road, East Lyme. All of the drivers refused to heed a red signal set against their passing the intersecting streets and were arrested by Traffic Patrolmen Dennis and Thomas Cavanaugh.

Lawrence McEwen, 782 Montauk avenue, Emil Samuelson, Mystic and George S. Montrello, 57 Warren street, charged with violation of the city's parking ordinances, failed to appear in court and their bonds of $2 were declared forfeited.

Dorothy Lewis, colored charged with breach of the peace and intoxication as the result of a disturbance she created Saturday afternoon near her home, 211 North Bank street, was fined $10 and costs.

Pete Aguinaldo, United States coast guard academy and Christy Dixon, 40 Blinman street, a carpenter, were charged with breach of the peace. The case against Aguinaldo was continued to Monday next and the charge against Dixon was nolled. Aguinaldo furnished a surety on his bond of $50 for his appearance in court next week. The men engaged in a fight on Bank street Saturday night and were arrested. Aguinaldo is a prize fighter and has fought in this city and New Haven several times during the past two years.

Fred Lavoy, New York sub-station employe, charged with breach of the peace had his case continued to Nov. 15. Lavoy was arrested at the union station Sunday morning by Special Agent Harold Swanson and upon complaint of Harry Hanson, a New Haven railroad employe.

Salgatore Sylvester, 49 Harrison street, was charged with breach of the peace and in court today the case was continued a month. Sylvester was arrested Sunday by Patrolmen Dennis Murphy and Frank Philopena upon complaint of Mrs. Sylvester, who sought her husband's arrest when the latter returned home and abused her. Judge Victor Prince instructed Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield to use his best efforts in bringing to an end the domestic rows between the husband and wife.

A case of intoxication was disposed of when the accused, who was arrested at the New London line pier Sunday, failed to present himself in court and his bond was declared forfeited.

Michael Rollo, 280 Main street and Abe Goldman of Lebanon, charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances, failed to present themselves in court and their bonds of $2 each were declared forfeited.

Arch'e Blatchford, taxicab driver residing at 477 Williams street, was charged with breach of the peace, but the case was nolled. Blatchford was arrested a week ago when he is alleged to have gone to his home where a social gathering was going on and to having struck the little son of Mrs. John Laskey, 31 Shapley street. When Mrs. Laskey reprimanded Blatchford for his act, he handled her roughly and she made the complaint to the police that resulted in Blatchford's arrest.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Another fine film production is added to those fans should not miss in First National's big special "Lilac Time," which is showing all this week at the Breed theatre. A dramatic portrayal that overshadows anything we have seen on the screen in many months is given by Colleen Moore in the stellar role.

Miss Moore, heretofore known chiefly as a comedienne, can now rank with the finest dramatic artists on the screen. She surprised and delighted her most ardent admirers in the role of Jeannine, the little French girl behind the lines in France, and her rendition of the part created by Jane Cowl in the stage version of this same story was a revelation. Gary Cooper, leading man, shares acting honors with the star.

"Lilac Time" is ably produced by John McCormick and splendidly directed by George Fitzmaurice. It is a simple, realistic and charming romance with the World war as a background.

"Lilac Time" adapted for the screen by Willis Goldbeck from the stage play by Jane Cowl and Jane Murfin, is a genuine treat, and a compelling and sincere romance.

The supporting cast includes such fine players as Burr McIntosh, George Cooper, Kathryn McGuire, Cleve Moore, Eugenie Besserer, Emile Chautard, Jack Stone, Edward Dillon and Dick Grace.

"Lilac Time" should pack the Breed theatre at all performances this week.

Moxie Contest

Rivalling even the intensity of the Republican-Democratic election, the Moxie Contest, recently announced, is the sole topic of interest among the boys and girls of New England at the moment. In the contest, which is interesting in itself, the Moxie Company offers to the winner a new Chrysler Plymouth model, 5 passenger sedan. The second prize is a Majestic all-electric radio set with built-in dynamic speaker in a beautiful cabinet. The third prize is an Iver Johnson bicycle and so on down the list, consisting of 114 prizes.

The boys and girls of New England are invited to send in Moxie caps gathered at home and from their friends. Each Moxie cap counts one vote in the contest and the boy or girl sending in the greatest number wins the Chrysler sedan. The next highest number receives the Majestic radio and so on down the list. The contest closes at midnight Dec. 23rd and the prizes will be awarded right after the Christmas holidays at one of the local theatres.

The awarding of prizes will be a gala event in itself. The festivities and entertainment planned, includes the leading theatrical stars and entertainers under the direction of a master of ceremonies, who will be chosen from the ranks of the most popular comedians showing in Boston. This contest is one of the biggest events yet announced by Moxie to the boys and girls of New England. For years Moxie has always had something of interest to announce to the kiddies. The Moxie Lollypops are known and loved by every boy and girl in this country. The Moxie "push-mobile", the Moxie "pull-mobile", the Moxie crystal radio set—these are only a few of the endless number of novelties that have been given away by the Moxie man. In every event of importance to boys and girls, the Moxie man has been present with his gifts—marbles for the marble tournaments, free Moxie for picnics and outdoor events and Lollypops for everybody, everywhere. The ingenious toys and playthings invented by the Moxie man number by the dozens. He is a real New England Santa Claus who is known and loved by every boy and girl in New England. He does not come down from the North Pole with his reindeers at Christmas; he rides each day along country roads and city streets in a curious thing he calls a "horse-mobile" distributing his largess in abundance to the kiddies he loves.

DEMOCRATS NAME LINCOLN AND LEFEBVRE FOR ASSEMBLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 15—The democratic caucus of the town of Windham for the nomination of two representatives to the general assembly held in the superior court room in the town building tonight named Frank M. Lincoln and Joseph Lefebvre as candidates. The names of Attorney Arthur T. Kelley had been presented for second position by T. Frank Cunningham but Atty. Kelley who was present declined on the grounds of business pressure. The names of ten candidates for justices of the peace as brought in by a committee comprising James J. Lee, James F. Twomey, and Albert J. Piche were nominated in the following order: Attorneys E. Frank Bugbee, Arthur T. Kelley, and Samuel B. Harvey, Eugene E. Hickey, Aime J. Martineau, H. Max Scheinman, Thomas H. Killoulery, Edmund R. Portelance, Mrs. Alice D. Stoughton, and John R. McCarthy. The name of William C. Backus had been presented for justice of the peace but it was pointed out by Robert O. Snow, clerk of the caucus, that he was beyond the age limit. The meeting which lasted about 20 minutes had an attendance of 65. It was called to order and presided over by Valentine L. Murphy, chairman of the democratic town committee.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Happiness Boys Featured at the Elks Fair in Novel Presentation.

Let the suppe dishes wait, put on your hat and coat; bring the children with you to the Elks fair at Armory Wednesday and meet Billy Jones and Ernest Hare, the Happiness Boys.

Here is your chance to see both these fun-makers at their best. You have often heard them Thursday and Friday nights on the radio and on phonograph records but no doubt you wondered what they looked like. This is your opportunity to find out.

The Happiness Boys are known throughout the entire country for their ability to chase the "blues" away. No matter where they go, their inimitable personalities radiates happiness. When you see them you will realize why thousands tune in to hear them and buy phonograph records sung by them. Don't forget they will have Dave with them. He is the big fellow who performs miracles on the piano when he accompanies them.

Their antics and capers as they sing the popular songs will make you smile, grin and then shout with laughter. They are a treat to everyone regardless of age. Like a couple of schoolboys on a vacation, Billy and Ernie will make you laugh with them. And when you leave you will smile and think of them all the way home.

MONTVILLE

Montville troop No. 6, Girl Scouts of America, held their first meeting since June at 7.30 Friday evening in Palmer Memorial school. There were 17 present. They made plans to march in the parade Armistice day in New London.

GREENEVILLE

WEDDINGS

Kotecki-Poreda

At St. Joseph's church Monday morning at 8 o'clock a very pretty wedding took place when Rev. William Topor united in marriage Miss Sophia Poreda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Poreda of 3 Golden street and Charles S. Kotecki, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaw Kotecki of 44 Devision street with a large attendance of family friends and relatives. The bride was handsomely attired in a white satin gown and wore a tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms. Her bridesmaid, Miss Eleanor Poreda, sister of the bride, was charmingly gowned in robin egg blue satin and wore a picture hat to correspond. The bride's bouquet consisted of white roses and lilies of the valley while the bridesmaid carried an arm bouquet of pink chrysanthemums. Joseph Wisniewski, an intimate friend of the groom, acted as best man. After the church ceremony a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents at 3 Golden street. Late in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Kotecki left on a wedding trip which will take them to New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Atlantic City. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts, namely, linen, silver, gold pieces, furniture and checks for substantial amounts. The bride wore a gown of pansy blue as a going away dress. Among those present were guests from Springfield, New Britain, New London, Bridgeport, Boston, New Jersey and Willimantic. Upon their return, in about ten days, the newly married couple will make their home with the bride's parents.

Johnson-McNeeley

A very pretty fall wedding took place Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth O'Connell, 456 North Main street, when Miss Harriet Elizabeth Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Johnson, of Mohegan Park road, and James Maxwell McNeeley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McNeeley, of 508 Boswell avenue, were united in marriage by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of Greeneville Congregational church. A large attendance of relatives and friends were present. The bride was beautifully attired in a white satin gown and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Elizabeth O'Connell was her bridesmaid and she was charmingly attired in a robin egg blue crepe de chene gown and carried a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums. After the marriage ceremony a wedding reception was held with 75 guests being present from Boston, New London, Montville, Willimantic and Salem. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. The grooms present to the best man, Louis Metevia, a personal friend, was a pair of gold cuff buttons while the bride gave her bridesmaid a beautiful string of pearls. Mr. McNeeley is a foreman for a local contractor while Miss Johnson was formerly employed with the United States Finishing company. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. McNeeley left by automobile for a ten day wedding trip which will take them to New York, Washington Philadelphia and Atlantic City. Upon their return they will occupy their newly furnished apartment at 464 North Main street.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Edwin W. Loomis

On Monday afternoon funeral services for Mrs. Edwin W. Loomis was held at 2 o'clock at her late residence, 224 Prospect street, with Rev. Harry Brothwell, pastor of the Third Baptist church, conducting the services. There was a large attendance of relatives and family friends. Burial was in the Pautipaug cemetery at Franklin where Rev. Mr. Brothwell conducted the committal service. The bearers were Rockwell Ring, Louis Browning, Henry Brewer and Winthrop Abell. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful, speaking a mute testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held by her many acquaintances in this vicinity.

Miss Jane Suplicki has returned to the Willimantic State Normal Training school to resume her studies after spending the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Suplicki, of Golden street.

The Misses Jean and Violet Slovak are spending a few days in Jersey City, N. J.

CITY MEETING ACCEPTS COMMISSION'S REPORT, ADVERSE TO CONSOLIDATION

By a viva voce vote, a special city meeting, held Monday evening at the town hall, accepted the consolidation commission's report which is adverse to the consolidation of the city and town or any part of the town. In the report the committee stated that at the present time consolidation is not advisable. It was at a city meeting last April that the commission was created to consider the matter of consolidation and to report back to a special city meeting not later than the 15th of this month. The commission held meetings from time to time and gave all parties interested an opportunity to submit reasons for or against consolidation. Taxpayers residing outside the city limits expressed themselves as overwhelmingly against consolidation but taxpayers in the city made no use of the opportunity to express their sentiment in writing to the commission.

There was evidently little interest in the commission's report on the part of the taxpayers residing in the city, as a whole, as there were only approximately 75 present in the town hall when the meeting was called to order by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins and some of those present were taxpayers residing outside the city limits.

The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by Mayor Robbins and after the city clerk had read the warning, Edmund W. Perkins, secretary of the consolidation commission, submitted the report. The city clerk read the report as follows:

Your commission created by the city meeting held April 26, 1928, submits the following report upon the issue of consolidating the city of Norwich and the town of Norwich or any part of said town.

The commission has convened from time to time and has given the parties interested in the issue an opportunity to submit in writing reasons for and against consolidation.

The commission has made as complete a study as time would permit of the geographical, population-distribution, economic and governmental elements in the situation.

The town includes the city, and four-fifths of the population of the town reside in the city, while the remaining one-fifth reside outside the city limits.

Of the last town tax amounting to $594,368.86, four-fifths or $475,495.09 is paid by those tax payers living within the city limits.

The remaining one-fifth, $118,873.77 is paid by tax payers living outside the city limits.

Of the last city tax amounting to $470,262.03, five-fifths is paid by those tax payers living within the city limits.

In all that follows, the above fractions apply, remembering that when the city raises money, it comes entirely from tax payers within the city, but when the town raises money four-fifths comes from tax payers within the city limits and one-fifth comes from tax payers outside the city limits.

Bearing in mind the facts stated in the preceding paragraphs it is apparent that if consolidation were effected demands for the extension of city facilities would be made by the inhabitants of the territory consolidated and the tax payers within the city would probably be called up to pay four-fifths of the cost for such improvements.

An exclusive advantage which the city taxpayer receives from the city tax, is the maintenance of facilities to remove ashes and garbage and a sewer system. No inhabitant of the town receives any such service at the expense of the city.

A city taxpayer receives practically the exclusive advantage of fire and police protection, the expense of which is a large item in the city tax. The fire department does, however, render a very limited fire protection to inhabitants of the town, and during the last five years the fire department has responded to about one-half of the calls from the town, and has actually rendered assistance at eighty-three fires in the last five years. For these calls the city has made no charge against the town of Norwich or against the individuals served.

During this period the town has maintained at Yantic and Taftville fire apparatus which would have responded to a call from the city, and the town apparatus has on several occasions responded to such calls. The Ponemah company of Taftville also maintains fire apparatus and has been and is ready to render aid to the city.

The police department renders a limited police protection to inhabitants of the town and during the last few years has sent officers into the town on an average of fifty occasions each year.

The city supplies inhabitants of the town with water at the rates paid by the inhabitants of the city plus two mills on the assessed value of the customer's real estate which is supplied, so that inhabitants of the town pay this extra charge for the water used by them.

The city supplies the inhabitants of the town with gas and electricity at the same prices paid by the inhabitants of the city. In cases where an extension of lines is necessary, the customer pays the cost or an increased rate that will give the city a reasonable profit on the investment.

Both the city and town maintain a street lighting system. The gas and electrical department bill the city for all electricity at cost, and the town at a reasonable profit for all electricity used for street lighting in the town.

The town builds, controls, supervises, maintains and pays for all schools located in the city and the town and not a mill of the city tax is spent on the public schools, although as previously stated, four-fifths of the cost is borne by city tax payers as tax payers of the town. The town school committee asks the town to appropriate the sum of $307,312.92 for the coming year.

The town pays the city $23,000 annually toward the maintenance of streets and highways located inside the city limits. The four-fifths rule applies here.

The town maintains out of the taxes paid it, all bridges located inside the city limits, and no part of the expense of bridge maintenance comes out of the tax collected by the city. The four-fifths rule applies here.

The town maintains all the poor, needy, and insane, who require aid, whether they are inhabitants of the town or of the city. This is a substantial item and the taxes raised by the town for this purpose for the year ending September 15, 1928, amounted to slightly over $33,000. The four-fifths rule applies here.

The salaries of the town officials aggregate $4,600 a year. Consolidation of the entire town would eliminate any item for salaries of the town officials, but it probably would effect no saving, as the item might be off-set by increased salaries which should be paid city officials for the increased work thrown upon them, if no additional offices were created to take care of the duties now performed by the town officials.

The city is maintaining its sewerage system, ash and garbage removal, fire and police protection, on an economical basis. If consolidation is effected, a large section of the town will be entitled to and should receive these same services and the expense would increase in proportion. Probably, a larger sewerage system, a larger ash removal system, and a larger fire and police department cannot be maintained more economically than the smaller ones now in existence. The city is under no obligation to render any police or fire protection to the town. Fire and police protection and charges for water, gas and electricity are within the control of the city, and if there are any inequalities in these matters the city has a direct and effective remedy.

The sentiment of the taxpayers of the town residing outside the city limits, as expressed to the committee in writing, was overwhelmingly against consolidation. Taxpayers of the city made no use of the opportunity afforded to communicate their opinion in writing to the committee.

In the light of the above mentioned facts and because of the genuine and sincere opposition to consolidation on the part of the residents of the town beyond the city limits, the committee concludes that at the present time consolidation is not advisable.

Mayor Robbins, just prior to the reading of the report stated that the commission included the president of the gas and electric commission, Joseph P. Connor but that Mr. Connor was ill during the period covered by the activities of the commission and at the present time is out of the state. For this reason he was not a signer.

Before asking for a vote on the acceptance or rejection of the report, Mayor Robbins said that he noticed that some people present were not residents within the city limits and requested them to refrain from voting.

William H. Shields, Jr., made a motion that the report be accepted and that the commission be discharged with thanks.

Miss Nancy Lucas said the report was a very disappointing one. She said that she and others hoped that a section of Norwich Town, thickly populated, would be taken into the city. Miss Lucas said it was an injustice to many people that a large section of Norwich Town, thickly populated, should not be taken into the city and pay city taxes. "I do not like the report and others do not like it," said Miss Lucas.

As no one else expressed a desire to remark on the motion, the question was put to vote by acclamation and was overwhelmingly accepted there being but three or four noes.

As there was no other business to come before the meeting, adjournment was taken, on motion of Henry H. Pettis, about 8:20 o'clock.

The members of the commission follow: Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, Senior Alderman Harold C. Dahl, Corporation Counsel Edmund W. Perkins, President Joseph P. Connor of the gas and electric department, Fire Chief Howard L. Stanton, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, Shepard B. Palmer, Henry A. Tirrell, John C. Cantlin, Charles V. James, Frank H. Quinley, and Harold D. Larrabee.

NORWICH TOWN

At the First Congregational church there were two visiting speakers Sunday. At morning worship Wallace I. Woodin of Hartford gave an address and at the evening service Gustave Gochman was the speaker. At the morning service, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached from the text Psalms 21:1, The Integrity of Rulers. During the service Mr. Woodin gave a short address.

Preceding the Young People's C. E. service, the October business meeting was held at 6:30. Mr. Bochman who represents the citizenship department of Connecticut C. E. union, gave a powerful address at 7 o'clock on "The Christians Duty As a Voter," holding the close attention of his audience. Matthew 22:15-22, was the scripture reference. Mrs. Ruby Jordan was the efficient leader of the meeting.

"Spelling Obey With Our Lives," was the theme of the Junior C. E. service Sunday afternoon, at which time the leaders were Elaine Barrett and Esther O'Mara. Mrs. Charles Barber played for the hymns sung.

The mid-week service of conference and prayer Thursday evening in the Congregational chapel, will have for its questions for discussion under the general theme of Temptation, What is Temptation? How Does it Attack One? How Can it Best be Met and Repulsed? Scripture James 1:12-18. Alternative topic—Luke, the Beloved Physician. Luke 1:1-3; Acts 1:1-5.

Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters of the First Congregational church, has planned a meeting at the home of Miss Mary Wattles of East Town street, Wednesday evening.

James Harvey Floyd, V. M. D., who recently located in Norwich Town, having completed ten years successful practice in Glens Falls, N. Y., attended the morning worship on Sunday at Bozrah Congregational church, when the pastor, Rev. George H. Strouse preached. The offertory solo was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Albert J. Bailey. Dr. Floyd was accompanied by Theodore Sterry and Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb. Sunday afternoon Dr. and Mrs. Lamb were automobile guests of Dr. Floyd on a trip to Salem.

Guests Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy of Norwich Town, included Mrs. Kennedy's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Dwyer, also her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. M. Dwyer, all of Webster, Mass.

Rev. George Warren Potter, pastor of the Methodist church preached Sunday morning on "Saving Faith" before a congregation of about 70. Text, John 3.15. "Whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have enternal life." The choir under direction of Mrs. Lewis Aldrich rendered an anthem. Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter told the children a story entitled "The Kid Glove Lady."

Charles H. Walden, Mrs. Ethel Walden, Edward Walden and Ethel Walden of Portland, Conn. and Mrs. Bruno Daigle of Middletown were guests at the Methodist parsonage Sunday.

Norwich Town Wolf Cub Pack met in the Boy Scout quarters at the Methodist parsonage Saturday afternoon in charge of their cubmaster, Rev. Mr. Potter. The meeting opened with a salute to the flag, the repeating of the Wolf Cub veil, the cub promise and the cub laws. The cubmaster gave a talk and read part of the eighth bite from the manual. A contest between two teams captained by Sixter Frederick Ross and Sixter Clarence Smith ended with the latter winning by one point. The new caps were given out and the boys were delighted with them. There was an attendance of 16.

Recent guests at the Methodist parsonage were Mr. and Mrs. J. Elbert Haviland of Port Chester, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McLeod, Mrs. Anna Dunbar and Norman Dunbar of Hartford.

Mrs. Lewis Aldrich led the C. E. meeting at the Methodist church Sunday evening and gave a very good talk on the subject, "The Christian's Duty as a Voter." The pastor preached on the subject, "Thornes."

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laramie of Plainfield have been guests this past week of Mr. Laramie's brother-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith and Miss Lillian Laramie, of North Bartlett.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Robinson and son, Melvin, have been recent guests of relatives in Auburn, Mass.

FUNERAL

Lorenzo Paradis

Funeral services for Lorenzo Paradis were held Monday morning from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis N. Paradis, 30 South A street, at 8:30, followed by a requiem high mass at which Rev. Francis X. Chicoine was celebrant, at Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. There was a large attendance at the church and many beautiful flowers. A delegation from the St. Louis society, of which the deceased was a member, was present. The bearers were six cousins, Charles, Regis, John, Leo, Theodore and William Paradis. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike, where Rev. Frederick R. DesSurenault read the committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Hormidas Turcotte have sold their residence on the Old Canterbury turnpike to Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Godere of Providence street. Besides the dwelling house, the property includes a barn, poultry houses and several acres of land.

Rev. George H. Reese of Central Village was the preacher at the morning service of the Taftville Congregational church on Sunday. The pulpit of Mr. Reese's church was occupied by Edwin Hill, secretary of the Norwich Y. M. C. A.

The members of Peter Gallan post No. 104, American Legion, held a stag party at the Naturalization club on Pratte avenue, Saturday evening.

MANNING OF STONINGTON FOR 20TH DISTRICT SENATOR

Mason Manning of Mystic, who represented the town of Stonington at the legislative sessions of 1923, 1925 and 1927, was unanimously nominated for the state senate at the republican 20th district senatorial convention, which was held here at noon Monday. The district comprises 16 towns and includes every town in New London county with the exception of Norwich, New London, Groton, Ledyard and Preston.

The convention was called to order by State Central Committeeman George H. Bradford of Montville, chairman of the senatorial committee. E. F. Goodenough of Griswold was elected permanent chairman and Mrs. Lue Rudd Bump of East Lyme, was named clerk.

Mr. Manning's name was placed before the convention by Jerome Anderson of Stonington.

Following his election Mr. Manning spoke briefly and completed his remarks by inviting the delegates to join him at lunch and the convention adjourned to the main dining room of the Wauregan hotel, where a fine luncheon was served.

BACKUS HOSPITAL SUPT. READS PAPER AT BOSTON

Last week in Boston the 11th annual conference on hospital standardization was held in the Statler hotel and the Copley Plaza. The conference was in session four days, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Delegates from Canada, Australia and all over the United States were gathered, registering to the number of over 1,200.

The papers and discussions emphasized how to give the patients and communities served by the hospitals better service, such as "How the Patient's Star in the Hospital May Be Shortened," "Beauty in the Hospital," "Appraisal of the Nursing Service" and other allied subjects. The Wednesday afternoon session was given up to the problems of the "Small Hospital."

Miss Lucy B. Abbott, superintendent of the Backus hospital, was invited by Dr. MacEachern of Chicago, a director of the American College of Surgeons, to give a paper on "How a small hospital can build up the essential special service to a degree acceptable for approval, particularly clinical laboratories, x-rays and other special services." This paper was given on Wednesday afternoon and was well received. A discussion followed on the points brought out.

Mrs. Walter F. Lester, secretary of of the executive committee, attended part of the sessions of the conference.

EGG PRODUCTION DROPS IN CONTEST AT STORRS

Production dropped five points during the forty-ninth week, the contest flock laying 3,331 eggs or at a rate of 33.8 per cent. This is 533 eggs less than last week and 440 eggs less when compared with the production for the corresponding week a year ago. Up to last Monday night a grand total of 256,678 eggs had been produced by the contest birds. This is an average of 1,333 eggs for each of the 140 pens or an individual average of a little over 183 eggs each.

Once again a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Clarence E. Lee of Auburn, N. Y., was an easy first for the week with a score of 53 eggs. The leading pen of the contest owned by George Lowry of West Willington, Conn., was second with a yield of 49 eggs. A pen of White Leghorns owned by Spring Brook Poultry Farm from Senaca Falls, N. Y., was third with a lay of 48 eggs. Fourth honors went to a pen of the same breed owned by Jos. W. Means of Berlin, N. H. This pen laid 46 eggs.

We find at the end of the forty-ninth week that two more White Leghorns have passed the 300th mark. This makes the total 300-egg birds to date seven, of which five are White Leghorns and two are Rhode Island Reds.

The following table gives a list of the 300-egg birds to date:

Name	Breed	No.	Date
1. George B. Treadwell, R. I. Red		436	Sept. 15
2. Charlescote Farm, R. I. Red		545	Sept. 24
3. Broadview Farm, W. Leg.		642	Sept. 29
4. Hollywood Farm, W. Leg.		779	Sept. 29
5. George Lowry, W. Leg.		665	Sept. 30
6. George Lowry, W. Leg.		660	Oct. 6
7. George Lowry, W. Leg.		661	Oct. 6

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

Barred Rocks—R. W. Davis & Sons, Rockland, Maine, 2050; Kerr Chickeries, Frenchtown, N. J., 1969; Spring Brook P. Farm, So. Wethersfield, Ct., 1853.

White Rocks—Granite Springs Farm, Granite Springs, N. Y., 2105; E. A. Hirt, South Weymouth, Mass., 2091.

White Wyandottes—Fisher Poultry Farm, Ayton, Ont., 2185; The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn., 2131.

Y. M. C. A. Sunday Service

There was a fine audience at the picture service at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. After the customary hymn, Scripture and prayer, the special feature moving picture, "The Way of All Flesh," was shown. The story featured an affectionate family broken into by the Demon Rum, the father, yielding to the temptation of drink, lost his fine position and became a vagabond, still retaining in his heart love for his family, who believed him dead. Hugh Kinder furnished very appropriate music for the picture. General Secretary Hill gave a brief talk and he spoke in part as follows: "Humanity has many enemies. There are all kinds of germs tending to shorten the lives of human kind and specialists are working almost day and night to destroy the germs. Bad habits are enemies of humanity. The cross word: break the harmony and happiness of mankind. Profanity is a bad and very foolish habit and it is insulting to man and God as well. The habit of impurity is a terrible enemy of the race and it is sending many to premature graves. Intemperating drink is one of our greatest enemies because it begets the habit that develops drunkards. The evil of drunkenness is far-reaching and has broken the hearts and lives of many mothers and children. We will do well to put the man in the White House in November who will stand for all the high ideals of our America, including the 18th amendment. "Let us do all we can to lessen the evils in our land."

GOV. SMITH CHALLENGES REP. CLAIMS OF ECONOMY

At Sedalia, Mo., the Democratic Presidential Nominee Declared That, According to His Idea, the Harding and Coolidge Administrations Had Been as "Wasteful as Any the Country Had Ever Known"—Asserted That the Reports of the U. S. Government Come as Near to a Chinese Puzzle as Anything He Had Ever Seen.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 16.—(AP)—A challenge to republican claims of economy in administration of the federal government was issued tonight by Governor Alfred E. Smith, who declared in the only formal speech prepared for delivery before a Missouri audience that according to his idea the Harding and Coolidge regimes had been as "wasteful as any the country had ever seen."

"They attempted to give away our natural resources," he said. "They have postponed and neglected the most pressing needs."

The democratic nominee explained there were three pictures he desired to place before the country. One, he said, was that which the republican party would like to have the American people believe, "as showing great efficiency and great economy."

The second, he added, was a picture setting up real facts which shows that the government is costing more this year than when President Coolidge took office, while the third he argued disclosed the "republican lack of ability, lack of efficiency and lack of business methods."

The governor contended that republicans were "lacking an issue" and for that reason had attempted to put into the minds of the people what "they are pleased to term Coolidge economy" and declared he regarded this as the "grossest misrepresentation" so far made. Further, he said that Herbert Hoover, the republican standard bearer, had a "large share in the painting of this false picture, when in his acceptance, he said:

"By rigorous economy federal expenses have been reduced by two billion dollars per annum."

Asserting that "no more misleading statement could be made in the campaign," the democratic nominee added that Mr. Hoover "knows better, or should know better."

"He knows, or he should know," the governor continued, "that the two billion dollar reduction is the difference between the peace time cost of government and the war time cost of government.

"If he were talking out straightforwardly and fairly to the American people, that is what he would say. He chooses, however, to attempt to conceal the true state of facts. I challenge to make good his statement that 'republican economy made a difference of two billion dollars in the cost of running the government. He knows that is not so, and he could never in his life time make good his misleading claim.

"The finishing touches were put to the false picture by the secretary of the treasury, Mr. Mellon, in a talk over the radio only a few nights ago, when he said that Governor Smith and the other democratic speakers were seeking to withhold credit from the Coolidge administration for reducing expenditures."

"Well we certainly are, because there has been no reduction. In fact, the expenditures have been increased and Mr. Mellon and Mr. Hoover know that to be the fact.

"Now that I have finished the false picture, let me paint for you the real picture. Anticipating just such a speech as this, the republican campaign managers produced their alibi in advance. They destroyed the false picture when in their campaign book of 1928, they say the following:

"Neither is there any denial that more money is being appropriated to operate the government than was appropriated three or four years ago.

"In painting the real picture, it is obvious that a comparison between 1921 when the country was on a war time basis and the peace time 1928 would in no way reflect the true situation.

"In the real picture, let me first call your attention to the fact that $2,500,000,000 worth of assets acquired during the Wilson administration for the purpose of progressing the war were turned into cash in peace time by the succeeding republican administrations and no credit given on the Wilson side of the ledger. This, the secretary of the treasury admits in his annual reports.

"The annual report of the secretary of the treasury for the year 1927 shows that if it had not been for the assets left behind by the Wilson administration, there would have been deficits in the years 1923 and 1925, and very substantial reductions in the surplus in the years 1924, 1926, 1927 and 1928."

"The public to discover this would be compelled to delve into the treasury reports. We would never hear of it from the republican campaign orators. We would never hear this from the political bookkeeping of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Mills, or the republican national committee.

"But, of course, when you are painting a false picture, overlooking a little item like $2,500,000,000 is not of much consequence."

The governor declared he wished to add that the "fiscal reports of the United States government come as near to a Chinese puzzle as anything" he had ever seen. He decided it looked as if the "whole system was devised to confuse and mystify."

"Certainly that has been the effect," he added.

The democratic nominee ripped into Director Lord of the bureau who in June, 1925, declared that "because of the budget bureau established under President Harding it was possible to come within $48,000,000 of reducing the cost of government by two billion dollars, between 1921 and 1925."

"The true explanataion of this reduction, however, he did not discuss," the nominee continued. "How a man of General Lord's ability could get into his mind that the people of this country would be prepared to believe that you could reduce the cost of government by two billion dollars simply by the introduction of a budget bureau is more than I am able to understand. Some of the samples from his report are both interesting and amusing."

The governor said the budget director had told of messengers going through waste paper baskets in the navy department to salvage pins, paper clips and pieces of pencils; also of the elimination of blue strines from mail bags and red strines from towels, and of an American consul who had rearranged the lighting in his office to save $45.21 a year.

On the other hand the governor said, there was a picture of wilfull waste by the administration with respect to property acquired for public buildings throughout the country. He argued that the government caused a loss to a community when it acquired a site, which removed it from taxation, and then failed to build promptly.

Long before Gov. Smith put in an appearance at the livestock pavilion at the state fairgrounds, every seat had been filled and the doors closed. The arrangements committee placed the seating capacity at 14,000. The aisles, however, were choked and many boys and men had climbed on the steel rafters.

The governor reached the pavilion at 7.56 p. m. He got inside the doors just as a long threatened thunderstorm let loose a downpour which scattered the crowd milling around outside.

As the nominee walked to the front of the speakers' platform, the crowd began cheering. The demonstration lasted six minutes.

Senator Harry D Hawes, in introducing the nominee, compared him with Mr. Hoover, declaring "one speaks frankly and the other reads an essay."

The governor began speaking at 8.10 p. m

HICKMAN PREPARED TO DIE ON GALLOWS FRIDAY

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif., Oct. 16—(AP)—Prepared to die on the gallows here Friday, William Edward Hickman, slayer of 12 year old Marian Parker of Los Angeles, today said he was sorry he "had not stood up like a man, pleaded guilty and made my peace with God the way I should have done."

"I am really sorry that I pleaded 'not guilty by reason of insanity'", he declared.

Governor C. C. Young at Sacramento today declined to halt the execution of Hickman, set for 10 a. m. Friday, expressing disbelief in the theory of insanity made in an appeal to him by the youth's father, Thomas Hickman of El Paso, Tex., and his attorney, Jerome K. Walsh of Kansas City. Earlier the governor had received a letter from the youth's mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman of Kansas City, pleading for commutation of the sentence of life imprisonment.

40 HARVARD PROFESSORS TO SUPPORT NOMINEE SMITH

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 16—(AP)—More than 40 Harvard professors, including Prof. Charles T. Copeland, Boylston professor emeritus of rhetoric and oratory and Dean David L. Edsall, of the Medical school, issued a joint statement tonight through the democratic state committee supporting the candidacy of Gov. Smith for the presidency.

The professors said in part:

"Some of us favor prohibition and some oppose it. We think that differences of opinion on this question should not be allowed to overshadow other important matters, such as the establishment of friendly relations with other countries, including Latin-America; the protection of national water-power; and the relief of agricultural depression, as to which Gov. Smith's desire for action contrasts sharply, with the eight years' inactivity of the administration to which his opponent belonged.

"The best hope for a return to the liberalism of Roosevelt and Wilson lies in the election of Gov. Smith."

MORRIS ATTACKS REP. STATE ADMINISTRATION

ANSONIA, Conn., Oct. 16—(AP)—The growth of popular government in Connecticut, malfeasance in high office under republican administration, the power of J. Henry Roraback, of the republican state committee and the alleged shortcomings of the present republican state administration, were among topics discussed by Charles G. Morris, democratic nominee for governor, at a party gathering here tonight.

Mr. Morris said that hundreds of tubercular children are needing treatment "which they cannot get because the republican legislatures of recent years under Mr. Roraback's thumb, could see no votes in providing hospitals for children. There are some of the first fruits of the ripened powers of centralized government which we now actually have in this state. Do you like it?"

EVIDENCE OF "PHANTOM STABBER" IN STAMFORD

STAMFORD, Oct. 16—(AP)—The "phantom stabber," is believed to have visited here tonight when Miss Anna Davis, 18, reported to the police that she had been stabbed. She was walking on Bedford street toward the center of the city, when a man bumped into her and she felt a sharp twinge in her left breast. She ran to a store where she is employed, only a short distance from where the attack took place, and her employers notified the police. It was found that her breast had been slightly cut by a sharp instrument and the weapon had cut through her raincoat and dress.

LONERGAN ADDRESSED DEM. RALLY IN NAUGATUCK

NAUGATUCK, Conn., Oct. 16—(AP)—Opposition to the exploitation of women in industry and equality of women with men in all political and governmental matters as provided for in a plank in the national platform, were discussed tonight at a democratic rally here by Augustine Lonergan, nominee of his party for U. S. senator.

Marooned By Snow On Crest Pikes Peak

Three Persons Were Left Stranded by the Elements —Safe in Summit House.

DENVER, Oct. 16—(AP)—Winter made a flying assault on the middle and southern Rocky Mountain range states today, spreading a thick mantle of snow over the area as the season's first storm was driven down from the northern states of Montana and Wyoming by rising temperatures and sunny skies.

The greater part of Colorado was blanketed in white. Moving swiftly from the north, where it left a toll of one dead and hampered air, rail and motor transportation, the storm belted the Colorado mountain and plain area and made itself felt in northern New Mexico and adjoining states.

On the crest of Pike's Peak near Colorado Springs, more than 14,000 feet above sea level, three persons were left stranded by the elements. A storm enveloped the peak and the little party found itself unable to penetrate the huge snow drifts.

They were safely housed in the Summit house at the peak tonight, waiting the arrival of a cog road train to take tem to safety tomorrow. Four other motorists were marooned at Glen Cove, about midway up the mountain on the automobile road, where 16 inches of snow made the highway impassable.

In many parts of Colorado rain and snow fell steadily throughout the day. There was an exception in western Colorado, however, where the sun melted yesterday's heavy snowfall and enabled some 400 deer hunters to have a better chance to return to their homes.

The three-day open season on deer in Colorado closed last night and it was believed that the storm had saved the lives of many deer.

TESTIMONY IN THE LEOPOLD MURDER TRIAL

WATERBURY, Oct. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Margaret Moynihan, mother of John and Joseph Moynihan, the two children burned to death in the fire in the Leopold building on Baldwin street on Feb. 5, took the stand this afternoon as a witness for the state in the trial of Louis N. Leopold. Leopold is charged with first degree murder, causing death by wilful burning of a building and arson. Mrs. Moynihan told of being thrown from her bed by an explosion at 2 a. m., on Feb. 5, and their escape from the building with the exception of the two boys.

The finding of the bodies of the two boys was described to the jury this afternoon by ex-Fireman James J. Lynch, formerly attached to the Hook and Ladder company at station number three, on East Main street. He said he found both of the bodies of the boys and after rolling each in a sheet carried them to the rear. The oldest boy, John, 10, he said, he found first a short time after he and seven other members of the company went to the fire at 8 a. m., to relieve members of the night shift who had been there since 2 a. m.

PLANS FOR EXPANSION OF MONTGOMERY-WARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—(AP)—An immense scheme of expansion that would develop Montgomery-Ward chain stores department stores, and mail order distributing centers into what he termed the largest general merchandising chain in the world was revealed to stockholders today by George B. Everitt, president, coincidentally with announcement of a large stock melon.

Directors of the company approved an increase in Montgomery-Ward stock from 1,285,000 authorized shares to six million, and offered stockholders, subject to their approval at a meeting Nov. 19, two additional shares at $37.50 each for every share now held.

The stock split-up was followed by a post-dividend reaction in quotations on the New York stock market, where the company's stock has scored a remarkable rise in the last few weeks' bull market. Touching $306 shortly after the opening for a new high record, the stock dropped off to $291 at the close.

BORAH CAMPAIGNING IN NORTH CAROLINA

SALISBURY, N. C., Oct. 16—(AP)—Carrying the presidential fight of Herbert Hoover into the traditionally democratic state of North Carolina, Senator Borah of Idaho, in a speech here tonight, called upon the women voters to prevent the overthrow of prohibition by electing the republican candidate.

Suddenly changing the program of his campaign trip, which follows roughly the line of the recent tour of Governor Smith, the senator late today accepted an invitation of Salisbury Hoover supporters to make a brief speech while traveling to Charlotte. He previously had planned to make only one address at Charlotte tomorrow night, but after his arrival there he motored to Salisbury, 40 miles northeast of Charlotte, to deliver tonight's speech.

THREE BOYS SENTENCED FOR CRACKING SAFE

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 16—(AP)—Edward R. Ducharme, Eugene Hamel and Lionel Hamel, all of Waterbury, Conn., pleaded guilty in superior court today to having cracked a safe in the home of Edward Phenix of Webster on October 7, and were sentenced by Judge David F. Dillon to indeterminate terms in the Concord reformatory. The young men are claimed to have stolen from the safe $15 000 worth of stocks and bonds.

The court was informed by District Attorney Charles E. Rugg that the securities were taken to Waterbury and that there the boys buried them in a spot from which they were recovered by the police.

BREAK IN RANKS OF DEMOCRATS IN ARKANSAS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 16—(AP)—A resolution advising county central committees that certain nominees for county offices in Arkansas "renounced their allegiance" to the presidential and vice-presidential nominees and urging the county committees to take such candidates' names off the ballot and substitute the name of a regular democrat, was unanimously adopted today by the democratic state central committee.

Sinclair Oil Contract Is Held To Be Invalid

Company Had Obtained Government Royalty Oil Worth $33,757,350.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—The contract of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company through which it obtained government royalty oil worth $33,757,350 between 1922 and 1928 from the Salt Creek field in Wyoming today was held to be invalid by Attorney General Sargent, who was instructed by President Coolidge to investigate the lease.

The interior department announced immediately after receiving the opinion that it would take steps at once to "carry into effect the legal conclusion of the attorney general" and prevent the further sale of the oil to the Sinclair company, a subsidiary of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil company.

The lease was negotiated by Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior and now under indictment on charges of having conspired with Harry F. Sinclair to defraud the government in the lease of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

The ruling by Attorney General Sargent was based on two points. He wrote that he had "come to the conclusion that the contract referred to has no binding effect upon the United States."

"The contract," the opinion read, "which purports to have been let upon public bidding as required by statute, was not let in the manner required by law; and second, the contract contains an option provision in favor of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company which it was beyond the power of the secretary to give."

The original contract was negotiated by Fall, December 20, 1922, and was for five years. It was renewed February 20 last by Hubert Work, then secretary and now chairman of the republican national committee, when he said he was advised by the solicitor of the department that he had no alternative but to renew the contract under the opinion. It was extended to January 1, 1933 by Work.

The Sinclair contract has been the subject of debate, and the senate last spring empowered the public land and surveys committee to inquire into it as well as other leases from royalty oil in that field. Senators Nye and Walsh, chairman and prosecutor of the committee insisted that the contract was not legal and its renewal last winter brought bitter objection from them.

The attorney general said the investigation was "initiated in response to instructions given me on March 2, 1928, by President Coolidge, who forwarded me some correspondence and papers sent him by Senator Walsh of Montana."

During the five year period between 1922 and 1928, the Sinclair company took 19,543,536 barrels of oil from the Salt Creek field at an average rate of $1.73 a barrel, for a total of $33,757,350.

HOOVER PLANNING RETURN TRIP ACROSS CONTINENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—Herbert Hoover, in spite of the fatigue of his New England campaigning, today turned anew to the consideration of plans for his return trip across the continent during the closing days of his campaign for the presidency.

With three of the four speeches he is to make in the east out of the way and arrangements virtually completed for his journey to New York next Monday to deliver the final one, the republican candidate now is close enough to the time of his departure to begin mapping out the itinerary for the trip.

The trans-continental journey will see the delivery of his last speech but one of the campaign. Just where this will be made yet has to be decided, but it was indicated at his personal headquarters today that serious consideration was being given to proposals for its delivery at St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, and Minneapolis also have been suggested.

NEW YORK WELCOMES CREW OF GRAF ZEPPELIN AS HEROES

Party Was Given an Enthusiastic Greeting—Members of the Crew Were Showered With Honors—The Feat of the Dirigible Was Hailed as Symbolic of a New Era of Transportation of Passengers and Cargoes—Acting Mayor McKee Gave the Visitors Their Formal Welcome—President Coolidge Has Invited the Party to Breakfast at the White House.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—Two score of gallant men who had shown a new way to the commerce of the air by their flight in the Graf Zeppelin from Germany tonight were the guests of an enthusiastic city after a tumultous welcome in the late afternoon.

The largest city of the land forgot its business for a time to hail the crew of the dirigible, symbolic of a new era in transportation of passengers and cargoes.

The visitors were landed from the municipal tug Macom at 3:50 p. m at the Battery, that small clear space at the tip of Manhattan on which the skyscrapers encroach as close as they can. Patient men and women had waited since early morning and at the landing time a chorus of ten thousand voices was on hand to cheer. A light sprinkle of rain failed to diminish the crowds.

The grey office buildings had blossomed forth with the flags of the two republics, Germany and the United States, and from their upper stories, as the parade formed and moved up Broadway, came that paper storm which office workers delight to shower on the heroes who pass below them.

The mounts of patrolmen cavorted ahead of the automobiles bearing the city's guests and behind marched smartly picked detachments of the army and navy. The sidewalks were packed from curb to wall and at street intersections extended further back.

The crowd cheered Dr. Hugo Eckener, the commander, and his son who dared the storm to repair the crippled ship. But it cheered as heartily the cook, the steward, mechanics and all the others of the little band. The last previous Germans whom New York had welcomed so enthusiastically were Baron Huenefeld and Captain Koehl of the airplane Bremen, first to cross the Atlantic from east to west.

A ticket was necessary to enter City Hall Plaza, terminus of the parade, and that was no assurance that one could make one's way through the throngs outside the reserved section.

Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee gave the visitors their formal welcome.

"You are creating and beginning," he said, "a new intercourse between nations—an intercourse of friendship—an intercourse of commerce, whereby the wants and needs of the people of the world will be better served. Your coming is the fruition of that for which men of the air have labored, struggled and died, the dedication of a new means of intercourse for the advancement and betterment of mankind."

He added his congratulations to the German people who had made the flight possible.

Dr. Eckener returned his thanks for the welcome of the city and said he hoped the flight might bring the two peoples nearer together. He expressed appreciation of the assistance and facilities given him on this side of the Atlantic.

After the formal exercises, the guests were escorted to their hotels and a little later were guests at a private dinner presided over by the acting mayor. This evening they occupied the choicest seats at a musical show and topped that off by a special showing of moving pictures which preserved for history their flight.

Tomorrow another round of festivities has ben prepared in which German-American organizations are taking a large part.

THE ZEPPELIN PARTY INVITED TO WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—President Coolidge today invited Dr Hugo Eckener and members of his party coming to Washington to breakfast at the white house on Friday morning. The fliers will be guests of the German embassy while in the capital.

SCANNING GRAF ZEPPELIN FOR ANY POSSIBLE INJURY

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 16—(AP)—Lashed to the floor of the hangar while workmen appeared and disappeared over her silvery sides scanning their eyes for any possible injury, Germany's Graf Zeppelin was given much attention today in preparation for her proposed tour of the United States.

Throngs, turning their backs to the Los Angeles, United States naval dirigible and the two smaller semi-rigid dirigible, watched the expert repairmen as they mounted nigh to the tops of their ladders and then climbed over to the smooth coating of the air leviathan.

The first attention of the men was turned to the rent in the portside. They ripped off the fabric and the process resounding through the building, sounded almost like rapid gun fire. A huge piece of the cloth fell on the floor with a loud smack.

The covering, which is placed over the frame of the ship, is in sections. As soon as the fabric in this particular division was removed the cranes, ready to hoist whatever metal necessary for the frame, drew alongside.

Hundreds of persons, these tremendous pieces of aircraft, tons of working material and apparatus, all seemed to have plenty of room within the four walls of the hanger. With all the activity on the outside of the ship, others went through the big envelope to check up the condition there. Sixteen men of the crew, who came across the seas with the Zeppelin, remained nearby as they watched and made the workmen familiar with the various parts of the craft.

The spectators marvelled and there were many gasps as the workers dropped over their ladders to the smooth surface of the envelope. The repairmen, however, who have sealed the sides of the Los Angeles many times, had no difficulty in keeping their places.

As soon as the metal work is finished, new fabric will be laced on and coated. The Zeppelin, after her engines are inspected, will be ready to show herself to the United States, it was said at the station.

FLIGHTS TO BE MADE BY THE GRAF ZEPPELIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener expects to start the Graf Zeppelin on its return flight to Germany in about ten days.

"But first," he said today, "we will fly to Pittsburgh, Akron, Detroit and perhaps Chicago and some other cities."

In company with Captain E. A. Lehmann, his first officer, he outlined the future of the huge Zeppelin as he neared the reception New York had prepared.

"The damaged horizontal will be fixed by the end of the week," he said. "It is only the cover that is damaged. We will be ready to go back by the end of next week."

"With favorable winds we will probably make the return journey in three days," Captain Lehmann estimated, "but it is not safe to make guesses. I cannot say what the cause of the damage to the fin was, no definite statement should be made until after a complete investigation."

BROADCASTING ALLOCATION TO BECOME EFFECTIVE NOV. 11

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—Nation-wide changes in the allocation of broadcasting stations made public by the federal radio commissioner September 10, were announced by the commission today. The new allocation is effective November 11.

The changes apply to stations on clear and regional channels. Alterations in the assignments of some of the local or small power stations will be announced later. In revealing the modification of the allocation plan, the commission issued the following statement:

"The changes are due in part to the fact that extensive checking has revealed possibilities for deriving greater service to the public on certain channels and for more economical use of day-time hours; in part to the desire to remedy certain injustices to particular stations and certain sections of the country without the expense of a hearing; and in part to the necessity of correcting a few sources of interference."

The list of the changes includes:

Connecticut: WTIC Hartford, temporary operation on 600 kilocycles, 250 watts, full time pending completion of 50,000 watt transmitter which will be assigned half time on 1060 kilocycles.

WATKINS FINED $10,000 AND SENTENCED 9 1-2 TO 10 YEARS

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 16—(AP)—Roger W. Watkins, confessed embezzling Hartford investment broker, who had pleaded guilty on various charges, was sent to state prison this afternoon by Judge Allyn M. Brown, as were his wife, and brothers-in-law, Maynard and Guy Tressler, all of whom were involved in his misdoings.

Watkins was fined $10,000 and given 9 1-2 to 10 years for making false reports to the bank commissioner and five years additional for conspiracy with intent to defraud.

Maynard Tressler was given one to two years and Guy Tressler two to four years and Mrs. Margaret E. Watkins, one year in jail.

The main charge against Watkins was that of stealing $141,000 from the National Associated Investors, Inc., which he had formed and among whose stockholders had been Gov. J. H. Trumbull and many others in official life. He was indicted on many counts but the court imposed sentence on certain counts as recommended by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn.

DEXTER, Me., Oct. 16—(AP)—Buried under a pile of autumn leaves by her playmates, Sylvia Ruth Ham, 4 years old, was killed today when a wagon driven by her father, Isaac Ham, ran over her. The child was playing in front of her home at Lincoln Mills near here, when the wagon, loaded with potatoes, went through the leaves and crushed out her life.

DUTCH STEAMER BATTLED WITH A FURIOUS STORM

BOSTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—The Dutch steamer Calaeno arrived here today, three days overdue from Rotterdam after a battle with a furious storm in mid-ocean which claimed the life of one of her crew. George Scheffer, 21, an Argentine seaman was swept over the side on October 3. He was not seen after the wave engulfed him.

OBITUARY

Benjamin Strong

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—Death today claimed Benjamin Strong, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, and generally regarded as one of the outstanding bankers of his time.

He passed away in the New York hospital after years of illness and slightly more than a week after he had undergone an operation for intestinal abscess resulting from diverticulitis. Twice Governor Strong's normally rugged constitution had enabled him to overcome tuberculosis, first of the lungs and again of the throat, but during the past few years he had been far from a well man. Only a few months ago he went to France to rest, but his sojourn there was broken by consultations with foreign bankers on various international financial problems. Governor Strong long acting as a "contact man" between the bankers of America and foreign countries. He was 56 years old.

Governor Strong is survived by two sons and three daughters.

OVER 250 ATTEND STATE K. OF P. CONVENTION HERE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 16—Over 250 delegates and guests registered here this forenoon as the annual convention of the grand lodge of the Knights of Pythias and grand temple of Pythian Sisters of Connecticut got officially under way. The grand lodge sessions were held in the Elks' Home and the grand temple delegates met at Odd Fellows' hall. The delegates and grand lodge officers were extended a welcome by Mayor Charles A. Gates, a member of Natchaug lodge, No. 22, of this city and a past grand chancellor of the order. E. Erwin Jacobs, past supreme representative of New Haven made the response. Grand Chancellor Walter R. King of Natchaug lodge who presided over the sessions of the grand lodge, also occupied the chair for the initiation into the grand lodge circle of a class of about 100 past chancellors of the various lodges in the jurisdiction.

Reports were made to the convention by the following grand lodge officers: Grand Chancellor King, Grand Keeper of Records and Seals Edward E. Aspinall of Terryville, Grand Master of Exchequer William N. Potter of this city and Grand Trustees Burton H. Woodin of Hamden, John A. Doland of New Britain and Ernest J. Mannweiler of Seymour.

Grand Keeper of Records and Seals Aspinall reported the grand lodge as being in excellent condition. There have been increases in the value of holdings of subordinate lodges and cash in the treasury for the support of lodges. Property of the lodges is listed at over $60,000 and cash to the lodges' credit amounts to over $175,000. The total value of holdings and cash is $347,677.84. The total membership of the 67 lodges of the state is now over 10,000 and shows a slight gain during the year. There were no new lodges instituted during the year.

In his 31st annual report, Grand Master of Exchequer Potter showed that although there had been heavy expenses during the year the treasury was in excellent condition with a substantial cash balance on hand. Cash accounts have been well kept and building property of the grand lodge is in excellent condition, according to the report of the trustees.

The memorial service for members whose deaths occurred during the year was held late in the forenoon. The necrology list totals 135. Rev. George Brooks, past chancellor of Damon lodge No. 17, of Rockville, delivered the oration. The session closed with a general discussion on matters appearing under the head of new business.

The grand temple of Pythian Sisters met in convention at 10:30 o'clock in Odd Fellows' hall. Nearly all of the 41 temples of the order were represented. Mrs. Clara Heaton, grand chief of Wallingford, presided. Mrs. Hazel Townsend, grand mistress of records and correspondence, of Branford, read the roll call. The welcome address was delivered by Mrs. Therese Manley, chief of Purinton temple, No. 2, of this city. Past Grand Chief Mrs. Amanda Chamberlin of West Haven made the response. The ceremony attending the initiation of past temple chiefs into the grand temple was then carried out in charge of Grand Chief Mrs. Heaton. Reports were made by the grand chief, Grand Mistress of Records and Correspondence Mrs. Townsend and Grand Mistress of Finance Mrs. Veronica Carter, all of the reports being most gratifying. Grand Chief Mrs. Heaton reported the 41 temples as having a total membership of 3,672, of whom 2,214 were women and 1,458 men. An increase was made in membership during the year. Much philanthropic work has been done during the year by the grand temple officers and heads of the various temples. Over $3,000 was spent in this altruistic endeavor. Grand Mistress of Finance Mrs. Carter reported the grand temple and subordinate temples were in prosperous condition financially. With the adjournment of the morning session the delegates were served dinner at the Congregational church house by the Ladies' society of the church, Mrs. R. H. Fenton chairman.

The memorial service, in charge of Sister Laura Otto of Seymour, and reading of the necrology list was held at the opening of the afternoon session of the grand temple at 2 o'clock. The address was given by Mrs. Mary Jeffries of New London, past grand chief. Reports of committees were accepted and resolutions adopted. Guests of the grand temple at the convention included the following grand lodge officers from Massachusetts: Bertha D. Lovering of Campello, grand chief; Helen P. Young of Springfield, grand mistress of records and correspondence, and Miss Edith Horrocks of Brighton, grand mistress of finance.

The past grand chiefs met during the convention and formed an organization to be known as the Pythian Sisters Past Grand Chiefs' Club association. The following officers of this new organization were elected: Amanda Chamberlin of New Haven, president; Eva Adams of this city, vice-president; Jennie Mayberry of Seymour, secretary; Lenore Atwell of Wethersfield, treasurer; Elizabeth Fairman of Thompsonville, Martha Snyder of Hartford and Lena Gates of this city, executive committee. The purpose of the association is to promote extension of fraternalism in the grand temple. Meetings will be held as often as possible and annual sessions will be called in connection with the convention of the grand temple. There have been in total 25 grand chiefs, 19 of whom are living. There were 15 of these who were present to accept membership in the association.

The roll call of the grand temple convention showed an attendance of 150 delegates. During the session, which was the 28th annual, 34 candidates were taken in. The following officers were elected during the afternoon: Grand Chief, Edna Eastwood, Middletown; grand senior, Nellie Bailey Durham; grand junior, May Williams, New Haven; grand manager, Frances Chambers, Manchester; grand mistress of records and seals, Hazel Townsend, Branford; grand mistress of finance, Veronica Carter, Plainville; grand protector, Sarah Hart, Hartford; grand outer guard, Margaret Houston, Torrington; grand press correspondent, Charlotte Fowler, Norwich. The installation of the officers by Past Grand Chiefs Lenore Atwell of Middletown, Martha Snyder of Hartford and Past Mistress of Finance Clara Campbell of Middletown followed. The invitation of West Haven to hold the 1929 grand temple convention there was accepted. Final adjournment of the convention was made at 5:30 o'clock.

Grand lodge officers were elected as follows: Grand Chancellor, Louis A. Beehler, West Haven; grand vice-chancellor, Melvin R. Marquand, Stamford; grand prelate, Joseph J. Kopleman, Hartford; grand master-at-arms, Herbert J. Evans, Waterbury; grand inner guard, Ernest C. Falk, Torrington; grand outer guard, H. S. Wheeler, Derby; grand trustees, Ernest J. Mannweiler, Seymour; Burton H. Woodin, Hamden, and John A. Doland New Britain, the latter being re-elected. Edward E. Aspinall of Terryville was re-elected grand keeper of records and seals and William N. Potter of this city was given an ovation upon his re-election to serve his 32nd term as grand master of the exchequer. The supreme representatives elected were Emanuel Cave of Bridgeport and Thomas H. Troland of New London. The new officers were installed by Past Supreme Representative E. Erwin Jacobs of West Haven. It was voted to hold the next convention in West Haven. During the convention the delegates were profuse in their admiration of the beautiful Elks' Home in which the sessions were held. This favorable comment extended to the beauty and comfort of the spacious lodge room of the home and to the general hospitality found in the city.

Minority Leader William M. Citron of Middletown, candidate for congress in this district, began his campaign in this city by giving an open-air talk to the workers of the American Thread Co. at No. 2 gate of the plant on Main street this noon. A crowd of over 300 heard Candidate Citron expound the issues of the campaign from a democratic standpoint. He explained that the tariff was not an issue any more as the democrats stood for protection. Nor was the talk of prosperity an issue, he declared, because both parties and all classes in the community stood for prosperity.

On the subject of prohibition, Mr. Citron said that he supported Governor Smith and like Smith he opposed the return of the saloon. "Yet, Smith," he said, "is offering the public an honest and safe solution of a nasty mess."

REV. ALISON PAYS VISIT TO THE ROTARY CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 16—Rev. John Alison of Holyoke, Mass., past governor of the 30th Rotary district, was heard in a most inspiring talk on Club Service in which he propounded the placing of service above self, at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel this noon. There was a large attendance of members and several guests. President Raymond A. Parker introduced the speaker in the absence of Justice George E. Hinman, chairman of the Club Service committee. The coming of Rev. Mr. Alison was also the occasion for renewing friendships made during his governorship. In his opening remarks, Rev. Mr. Alison, who had not been in this city for four years, complimented the club on the excellent hotel accommodations and service made available through the erection of the Nathan Hale hotel, a community enterprise. Volunteers were asked for by Kenneth N. Hillhouse, chairman of the boys' work committee, to take three crippled children to one of the free clinics at Newington. Guests were: Max Goldstein, Abe Corn and Max Stein of New Jersey, introduced by John F. Ahern; H. P. Morton, who is on the charter list for the new Rotary club at Canton, Mass., and Michael Roth, master carver, introduced by Kenneth N. Hillhouse, and Prof. Albert E. Moss of the forestry department at Connecticut Agricultural college, introduced by Prof. Richard E. Dodge.

Seven cases of violation of the motor vehicle laws, the result of the drive locally by the state police, were disposed of at the police court session this morning. All of the cases had to do with driving automobiles with defective equipment. Three of the accused received nolles of their cases on payment of the costs. These three were: A. R. Delude of 75 Quasqua street, Robert Newton of R. F. D. No 2, Mansfield Center, and Earl W. Moulton of North street, Pittsfield, Mass. They were charged with failure to carry their registration certificate. Fines of $2 and costs were imposed on Orrin A. Cone of 106 Quercus averue, and Edward Geigler of Mansfield, charged with having no tail lights on their cars. Roy C. Fredericksor of South Coventry was charged with having a defective tail light on his machine and he was also fined $2. Ignace Stokhansky of Colchester faced two charges; no tail light and not endorsing his operator's license. The latter charge was nolled on recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney H. S. Gaucher and on the first charge he was fined $2 and costs, the fine being remitted in this case. Judge Foss granted continuances in the following cases: Fred E. Chapman of this city and Andrew Spellman of Box 361, Danielson, charged with having no tail lights on their cars, both continued to next Friday; Nathan Rubin of 417 Edgewood street, Hartford, charged with having no operator's license nor registration, continued until next week; John E. Stone of North Wilbraham, Mass., charged with failure to display the weight capacity on his truck and no tail light, continued until Wednesday.

Dominick Buomono of 107 Railroad Hill street, Waterbury, will be arraigned in police court Wednesday on a charge of reckless driving. He was arrested by Officer Albert Montie early this morning after his car had collided with the silent policeman on Main street, near the Bridge street junction.

Success is the prediction of the annual two-night harvest bazaar for the benefit of the missions of Rev. William J. Dunn, which starts at the Knowlton Memorial hall in Warrenville Wednesday evening. Inasmuch as the new state highway to Warrenville is now complete it is expected that the patronage from this city will be on a much larger scale. Members of San Jose council, No. 14, Knights of Columbus will assist Rev. Father Dunn in conducting the affair.

Attorney Frank H. Foss and the Windham Collection agency, of which A. R. Handfield is representative, have leased the suite of rooms on the second floor of the Union block on Main street and are preparing to remove there from the Jordan block as soon as alterations and renovations are completed.

You can't convince an editor that "no news is good news."

COLCHESTER

BOTH PARTIES NOMINATE UNUSUALLY STRONG TICKETS

Preference was omitted in Saturday's news to Samuel Freedman, the republican running mate of Samuel P. Willard for the office of representative to the state legislature. Mr. Freedman, who has been a resident of Colchester for many years is well known and highly respected by the townspeople. He has held several town offices in previous years and for the past few years has been registrar of voters. For many years he has been an untiring worker for his party and should prove a strong candidate in the coming election.

From all appearances, the November election will be a close one. Both parties have nominated unusually strong candidates, men prominent in the life of the town. Candidates on both tickets for justice of the peace as well as representative and judge of probate are all men well equipped for performing the duties of the offices to which they may be elected. The large number of new voters and the added incentive in the presidential election are expected to bring out the largest vote in years.

Luck—something most men get in large quantities, but of the wrong kind.

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system, indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascarize the bowels! They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time. Until you don't feel the need of any aid of any sort for weeks-on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy Cascaret is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY drugstore has them.

DANIELSON

PACO BUYS PLANT FROM CONN. MILLS CO.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 16—Announcement is made of the purchase by Powdrell and Alexander from the Connecticut Mills company of what for years was known as the Danielson Cotton company property, at Main and Maple streets, and originally as the Sherman mill. For several years Powdrell and Alexander has been operating this mill under lease, and now has exercised its option to purchase. This gives ownership to Powdrell and Alexander of five of Killingly's manufacturing plants—the original Paco mill on Furnace street, the Main street, the Main street plant (Sherman's mill) and the mills at Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pineville purchased two years ago from the Attawaugan company.

It is understood that the P. and A company's purchase from the Connecticut Mills company includes the tenement houses on Water street, on the White Row and in the vicinity of the plant that were in the original mill company holdings, as well as the stock house on the railroad siding at Cottage street and certain parcels of land.

The Connecticut Mills company acquired the property it now has sold to Powdrell and Alexander from the Danielson Cotton company during the boom years of the war period. Scores of thousands of dollars were spent by the Connecticut Mills company in rejuvenating the mill, which was thoroughly overhauled and repaired, practically all of the machinery it contained at the time being junked. With the nation-wide slump in business in 1920, there came a slowing up of the tremendous volume of business the Connecticut Mills was transacting, so the concern never conducted any operations in its Main street mill. The big plant, a four-story brick structure, with a two-story modern brick weave shed with saw-tooth roof stood idle at the time when Powdrell and Alexander began its amazing expansion and that concern took a lease of it, the lease containing an option to purchase. That option has just been exercised. Since the plant was taken over by Powdrell and Alexander a vast amount of new machinery has been installed and a bleachery added. It has been operated steadily during the P. and A. occupancy, night work being regularly included in its schedule of operations, and it is now giving employment to several hundred people.

Today Coroner Arthur G. Bill had not completed his inquest relative to the death of Joseph Cardinal at Plainfield last Saturday evening and the subsequent taking into custody of Herbert Tracy of Plainfield, Tracy being the driver of the car that it is charged struck Cardinal and caused the injuries that brought about his death. However, Coroner Bill said this afternoon that he is satisfied from what he has learned to date in his investigation that Cardinal was under the influence of an intoxicant at the time of the accident.

The first quarterly county dairy institute is scheduled to be held at Brooklyn Wednesday of next week under the auspices of the Windham County Agricultural society cooperating in the extension work in agriculture and home economics of the state of Connecticut. A series of such meetings has been planned by the county dairy committee cooperating with the county agent. At the first meeting, on October 24, there are to be morning and afternoon sessions. The first speaker at the morning session is to be J. Stanley Ownes, crop specialist. His subject is to be Pasture Improvement. At this session County Agent Raymond E. Wing also will speak, his subject being Dairy Herd Management with Relation to Low Cost Production. A basket lunch is arranged for the noon hour.

At the afternoon session, opening at 1.15 Robert E. Johnson will speak on the subject Infectious Abortion. A. R. Merrill, Dairy specialist, will follow with a talk on Cow Testing associations. The final period will be given over to considering matters from the question box.

The body of Mrs. Emily Bailey, 91, widow of Benjamin A. Bailey, will arrive here Wednesday from East Orange, N. J., where she died Monday after a long illness. Mrs. Bailey was a resident of Danielson for many years. Her husband for a long period was the agent of the Quinebaug mills. He has been dead more than a score of years. Mrs. Bailey leaves two sons, Benjamin, of Wallingford and Milton of Providence and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Newell of East Orange, N. J., at whose home she died. Miss Emma A. Burbank of the West Side is a niece of Mrs. Bailey's.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, Brooklyn, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange, has announced a special meeting of the organization to be held at Abington on Saturday, Oct. 27, with Wolf Den grange. The fifth degree is to be conferred. This Pomona grange has been holding evening meetings for several months past, but this one is called for 3 p .m. The address at the meeting, on the subject The Basis of Liberal Action, is to be delivered by Rev. Thomas Benjamin Powell. Other features of the meeting are to be a selection by the Ash Family orchestra, a vocal duet by Mrs. Archa Walker and Mrs. Charles Buell, a vocal solo by Mrs. A. Gallup, orchestra selection. Wolf Den grange is to serve a supper from 5 to 7 o'clock, and there is to be an evening session, opening at 7.30, at which the sixth degree will be conferred by state officers.

The Brooklyn Savings bank is engaged at this time in hunting depositors of the institution whose accounts have neither been added to, except for interest, or subtracted from, through withdrawals, in from 13 to 25 years. There are about 30 of these accounts, the majority of them inherited when the Brooklyn Savings bank absorbed the Windham County Savings bank back in 1915. The Brooklyn bank has arranged to advertise the names of the owners of these inactive accounts in an effort to locate the owners of them or their heirs or someone who may know where the depositors are at this time, if living. Through the years some of the accounts have grown to considerable proportions, while others are small. The bank is interested in establishing contact with the depositors themselves or someone who may know about the people who have for so many years made no inquiry relative to the money they have in this bank.

Jeremiah Sullivan, 88, a native of Ireland and for 56 years a resident of Plainfield, died today at his home in the Flat Rock district of that town. He leaves three sons, Simon, of Plainfield and Daniel and James of Worcester and one daughter, Margaret, of Plainfield.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home in Dayville funeral services for George F. Gay were conducted by Rev. S. F. Maine of Attawaugan. There was a large number in attendance. Burial was in the High street cemetery at Dayville. The bearers were Louis Bayles, Henry Bear, Harry Brearley, Charles Franklin, Harry Wakefield and Joseph Grenier. There were many beautiful floral pieces. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

From the home on the West Side this morning the funeral of Mrs. Yvonne LeHoux was held, with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S., conducting the committal service. The bearers were William Dupris, George Bassillion, Napoleon Bassillion, William Leclair, Edward Allaries and Herbert Belanger. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

W. H. G. Herklots has purchased the William Clewly house in Brooklyn and with his family will remove there from Danielson after the home has ben modernized.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the Danielson fire department left here today to join chiefs of other New England departments at Providence for a trip to Philadelphia, where the International Fire Chiefs association will be in session this week.

Rev. and Mrs. Harding W. Gaylord, Mrs. Helen I. Gaylord and Mrs. Agnes H. Paine were in Bridgeport today, representing the Westfield Congregational church, at the annual convention of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

Douglas Logee, third year student at the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, has been a visitor here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Logee.

This afternoon the temperature ran up to 74 degrees in Danielson and, with the bright sunshine, made a marvelous October day.

Their manager, Jeremiah Doyle, has arranged a concert and dance in honor the Pee Wee ball team of Wauregan for Friday evening. The team has made a fine record for two or three years past.

H. W. Chapin, jeweler, will open right away on Main St., near Buick salesrooms, new fixtures, new tools and watch parts—everything new.—adv.

Arthur C. Hoban of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Officials here anticipate that they may be called upon to make as many as 200 more new voters next Saturday. At least there is more than that number of applications pending.

Practically the entire front gable of the new Brooklyn Savings bank building has been completed. It is of ornate design in white marble and artificial stone.

There are frequent reports now of flocks of wild geese flying southward over this territory.

Dr. Warren A. Tanner's condition remained practically unchanged at the Day Kimball hospital. He was reported as holding his own and his condition quite critical.

Mrs. C. B. Wheatley of Broad street is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, where she was taken for treatment of a slight fracture of the wrist and some cuts and abrasions that she sustained when she lost her balance and fell down a flight of stairs at her home.

LEDYARD

Mrs. A. O Ackley and daughter, Mrs. G. J. Schwarer, of Gallup Hill, entertained at dinner Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. John Colver of Poquonoc Bridge, also a granddaughter and niece, Miss Eva Bauman of Westfield, N. J., and Fred Corcoran of New York city. Miss Bauman is head teacher in the Westfeld school. Her engagement to Mr. Corcoran has just been announced.

Two souls with but two different thoughts may be won in time.

PUTNAM

J. J. CHARRON NAMED FOR PROBATE JUDGE BY DEMOCRATS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 16—The democrat electors of the town of Putnam met in caucus at the municipal building this evening and nominated candidates for the town ticket. John J. McGarry was nominated moderator with Alexander Gilman being appointed clerk. The following candidates were nominated for office: Judge of probate, James J. Charron; representatives to general assembly, Leon A. Talbot and J. Otis Fox; justices of peace, Edmond Dubois, J. J. McGarry, J. J. Charron, Alexander Gilman, Frank Vadnais.

The electors also voted to empower the town committee to fill vacancies that may occur during the year.

There was general surprise expressed by those in attendance when the democratic slate contained the name of James Charron to oppose Judge Henry M. Benoit for the office of judge of probate. It was expected that the republican candidate would be endorsed by the party as in past years. All offices were uncontested.

LAPOINTE GETS SUSPENDED SENTENCE; JODOIN TO CHESHIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 16—Victor Lapointe arrested last Thursday evening by the Putnam police after he had entered the grocery store of E. W. Mullan on Main street and taken from the cash drawer a sum of money amounting to $85, in addition to the theft of an automobile tire was arraigned upon a bench warrant at a special criminal session of Windham county superior court at Putnam this morning. Through Public Defender Harry E. Back, Lapointe entered a plea of guilty.

State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford recommended that Judge Yeoman's impose a sentence of a year in the state reformatory at Cheshire and suspend the sentence placing the defendant in care of a probation officer. State's Attorney Bradford explained to the court that the act was committed while the man was in a drunken condition, although it could not possibly be offered as an excuse for his thefts, and also made the fact known that Lapointe had three dependent children as well as his wife who needed his support.

Judge Yeoman's granted the recommendations of the state's attorney, appointing Attorney Back as a special probation officer and placing Lapointe in his care for a period extending over a year.

Jodoin Goes to Reformatory

The second criminal case presented before the court was that of Harold Jodoin of Plainfield and Mechanicsville, charged with the theft of an automobile, the property of Horace Hayes of Putnam, as well as a number of other minor offenses. Jodoin entered a plea of guilty to all counts.

State's Attorney Bradford told the court of the long list of criminal acts committed by Jodoin, who is but 22 years of age and said the only form of punishment that will make him in later years a citizen worthy of liberty would be an indefinite sentence to the state reformatory at Cheshire. Judge Yeoman's immediately sentenced the boy to the state institution as recommended by Mr. Bradford. Jodoin on a previous offense was sentenced to Cheshire and was in confinement but a short time when he made a successful escape.

Civil Session

Following the two criminal cases Judge Yeoman's presided at the special session of civil court. The first case was that of David Myer of Brooklyn vs. The Globe and Rutgers Fire Insurance company of Hartford. The case grew out of a fire in a store owned by the plaintiff, who was insured by the defendant. The insurance company, Myer testified, only paid him a small percentage of the amount of his loss, which was even greater than the amount he was insured for. The case was presented to the court and attorneys completed their arguments, Harry E. Back for the plaintiff and Broder and Shew of Hartford for the defendant, but at the closing hour of court Judge Yeoman's had reserved decision until a later date.

Myrtleine Martin of Thompson was granted a divorce from her husband Arthur Martin on the grounds that Martin had been convicted of a crime, abandoning his wife. Mrs. Martin was represented by Attorney Irving H. Miron of this city.

Mrs. Martha Macdonald Moffett of Willimantic was granted a divorce from Albert L. Moffett on grounds of intolerable cruelty.

Also on the trial list was case of Mick Vitiaz vs. Steven Karpick, of Norwich. The case until late afternoon had not been completely entered to the court.

The second of a series of democratic rallies was held in St. Jean's hall on Providence street Monday evening with an attendance of about 300 people. Preceding the indoor speaking a torchlight parade was held in which St. Mary's Boy Scout band and about fifty automobiles took part.

The first speaker of the evening was candidate for U. S. Senator Augustine M. Lonergan of Hartford. Mr. Lonergan is a native of Mechanicsville and had for some time lived in Putnam. He was well received by the gathering who acknowledged his presence with cheers as he entered the small auditorium. Lonergan stressed the need of democratic cooperation to combat the republican threats in this stronghold of Connecticut. He talked on tariff issues and prosperity issues under democratic administrations and lauded their success. He charged the republican newspapers as being silent on the great depression of business in New England and Connecticut especially, daring them to answer him on these factors.

The other speakers at the large meeting were Dr. E. O. Dolan of Manchester; Rev. George Gilbert of Middletown; Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett of Putnam, secretary of the "Al Smith" club; William M. Citron of Middletown; Hon. Frank D. Potvin of Pawtucket; William Palmer of Oxford, Conn., and Candidate for Lt. Governor Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic.

The speakers one after another addressed the gathering which held out strong until Mr. Fenton finished but a few minutes before midnight.

Head COLDS Checked this Modern Way

HEAD colds are not so dangerous in themselves. But, if neglected, they mean increased discomfort, and often lead to serious trouble.

At the first sneeze, place some Vicks up each nostril and snuff well back. Also melt some in a bowl of hot water and inhale its healing vapors. This quickly opens the air-passages.

To get the benefit of the healing vapors all night, rub Vicks on the throat and chest at bedtime. It is then the warmth of the body that releases the vapors. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice.

MAKING VOTERS

From many directions there comes information to the effect that there is an unusual registration of voters. That means in states where it is necessary to register before each election there is a record breaking interest. It is also evident that there is a similar interest being shown in connection with the making of new voters. Those who have become of age, those who are entitled to become voters, are displaying a keener concern over the matter of voting this year.

A presidential year always brings out the largest number of those seeking to be made voters and it is expected that registrations will be large. It is a time when they should come out in big numbers if they are ever going to, and that is true in the towns as in the cities, in the boroughs or in the biggest centers of population.

This year special efforts are being put forth in order to get a big vote and the first step is to get many who have never been made voters to get into the contest and, after qualifying as voters, make use of their franchise. In New York city and New York state there is a record breaking registration. But that seems to be a nationwide characteristic.

Norwich has a record breaking list of applicants on the list of voters to be made. That is good as far as it goes, but it amounts to nothing unless those whose names appear there go before the voter-making board and qualify.

Today is the second of the days designated for the making of voters. More than the customary number of voters was made last Saturday, but not as many as should have been if the work should be fairly equally distributed between the three days first named. The decision of the board to sit a fourth day, next Friday, should aid in relieving the possible congestion on Saturday the final day, but those who can get before the board today should not wait until Friday or Saturday.

The few minutes that are required in order to be made a voter should be eagerly given for the sake of being placed in a position where there can be the best possible exercise of one's citizenship.

BUILDING HIGHWAYS

When traffic on city streets gets to the point where it cannot be handled efforts are put forth for the widening of streets. There are times when this cannot be done. That is, to tear down buildings, construct new fronts and meet the damages that would accrue would be prohibitive, but there are cities where street widening operations are going on much of the time. It goes with growth.

For the same reason that the city streets are widened there are frequent demands for the broadening of highways between cities. They are obliged to handle such a volume of traffic that there is congestion and the lanes of traffic are jammed. It is a case of getting into line and staying there until the destination is reached. Pleas for a widening of such roads are inevitable.

Present day conditions are in marked contrast to those of the early days of modern roads. It was then a question of getting a better surface on which the vehicular traffic could move. The roads were then wide enough, but with the encouragement given to motor vehicle traffic there has been a response which means there are many vehicles today where there was but one a quarter of a century ago. Not only are there more vehicles but they are of a different type. Much of the transportation that was once handled over the roads is today being moved on the highways. This means large vans and trucks occupy much of the roadway so that the hard surfaced 18 foot road is not sufficient to meet requirements if it runs between large cities.

The result of such conditions is that there is a demand for three and four lane roads, and while there is no difficulty in pointing out the need of such betterment each and every such plea awakens a demand from other sections which insist upon getting accommodations in the way of good roads, hard surfaced if possible, before other sections which have been getting that benefit for years receive additional advantages.

Meeting the real requirements and meeting the sectional demands therefore requires much study on the part of the highway departments.

SUBMARINES

Once again attention is focussed upon the submarine by the loss of the French underwater boat, Ondine, with a crew of 43. This craft, rammed by a merchant vessel while on a test, encountered a fate which is similar in some respects to the sinking of the S-4, although it was possible to locate and raise the latter, while the French submersible will probably never be found.

Little has been revealed regarding the circumstances under which the Ondine was sunk. Nevertheless it would appear from the rules which govern such a craft that it should have known of the presence of the merchant ship and taken the proper precautions to keep out of its way. It is, however, another instance which goes to show the peril that exists in the navigation of such war vessels.

Only recently it has been declared by this government that it would be willing to abolish the submarine if other nations would do likewise. That might appear to be a proposition in which all could agree, inasmuch as the elimination of submersibles would be common treatment for all. But it is to be remembered that there are European nations which attach great value to the underwater boats for defense purposes. They figure that they are probably the least expensive and are able to furnish valuable coastal protection. Among the nations there has been none which has stood out more persistently for submarines than France. It simply would not listen to the idea of abolishing them, and so far as known it has not experienced any change of heart.

The loss of the Ondine is certain to make a deep impression in France. Nevertheless it is not probable that it sufficiently alters the sentiment of that government concerning submarines to have it endorse the recent offer by this government.

Submarine disasters are not partial to any one nation. All of them have had them and all of them have deplored them and yet the submarine continues, along with the struggle to improve their operations and to make safer the position of those who are stationed within the steel walls to die like rats in a trap in case they are lost, even in time of peace.

TOLL BRIDGES

According to the statements of Congressman Kelly of Pennsylvania he favors the adoption by congress of a bill that would give congress the authority to determine whether toll bridges should be erected on public highways for use in interstate traffic.

He stands as an opponent of toll bridges, but it is extremely doubtful whether congress will take any such stand unless it be in the matter of obtaining uniformity for granting such privileges.

It cannot be said that toll bridges are exactly popular, and yet it must be fully recognized that they render a service in many instances which would not otherwise be available. Many are the instances where the motor traffic of today is able to get fine accommodations, and reduce by many miles and many minutes the distance and time that formerly were required, through the toll bridges.

Toll bridges have been built to replace ferries, where long and tedious waits were required through inadequate accommodations. This is of particular advantage to the motorist. He would have had to pay his ferriage after a long wait under the old plan, but now he quickly pays his toll and is on his way. He is assisted and if he is mindful of the change he will appreciate it.

In other instances there are bridges constructed where toll is charged which could not be constructed for an indefinite period of time if there were no toll collected. This accommodation is invariably worth all that it costs.

The toll bridge is most often sanctioned as providing the means of meeting the construction cost. Once that is met it becomes free, or in the case of a private enterprise the state reserves the right to step in and obtain control at a fair price. The idea of preventing toll bridges cannot get far without taking into consideration the handicap it would be to present day traffic.

RED CROSS WORK

When an appeal for the provision of means to relieve distress among suffering humanity comes from the American Red Cross, it has become the habit of people of this country to dig down and produce. They have found by experience that that organization can be relied upon to deal effectively with whatever situation is faced, to do it effectively and to give satisfaction not only to those who need the help but to those who provide the means.

When the Red Cross asked for $5,000,000 for the relief of the situation in Porto Rico, Florida and the Virgin Islands it had already sent forth leaders and supplies to render first aid. It drew upon its funds and relied upon the American people to furnish the remainder. That they have done in full confidence that it will be employed to the best advantage.

It is a case of having faith in an organization which has proved its case. Voluntarily the people of this country have responded to the need of helping fellow men. It has been done before on many occasions and it can be safely said that there will be occasions in the future when similar action will be taken. It is one of the greatest endorsements of the work of this great organization. The Red Cross long since passed the experimental stage, and when it calls for more support in its work it is understood there is justification for it.

PEGASUS AGAIN

"Have you greased today?"

"Do your gassing here."

"Try Sam's auto wet wash laundry—flat work, rough dry. It satisfies."

But before you fully can appreciate these three meritorious suggestions, you must learn a little of Miss Amelia and of Sandover House which had had its day like every dog, even pedigreed hounds.

The day of Sandover House was one of dashing little gray mares, surreys, fringed buggies, family plate, and genuine walnut four-posters. In 1928 it occupied a sad-eyed obscurity immediately adjacent to "Michigan boulevard," where gassy ozone, auto sirens and "tires, $20 and up" asserted an age of motors.

There was a mounting stone, worn smooth by feet of a former era. It said "Sandover House" in century scroll. And there was Pegasus, the haughty-necked, iron-bodied hitching post, with a restraining ring in his nose. The mounting stone, Pegasus, and Sam'l, the footman, who always wore white gloves, belonged to the Sandover House of another age.

Mrs. Samuel, who did the little work there as to be done with great ceremony, hung apprehensively over Miss Amelia's shoulder. The story of Miss Amelia's ledger book was short and one-tracked. Most of the possessions of Sandover House had gone the silent path. Only Sam'l and Mrs. Sam'l clung, like the English ivy on the north wall. It was a story much like that of the Brown mansion and the Jackson homestead, neighboring, who resignedly closed their doors one day to reopen the next as the Mid-West Bond and Mortgage company, and Anne's Tearoom. Across the drive grew a flaunting creature with striped awnings and a soul which awoke only after dark. It called itself, "The Purple Pancake. Exclusive Night Club"— Anyway, Miss Amelia didn't really need a new ledger book to tell all this.

"I hate tea rooms, and the thought of a night club drives me desparate, Samuel, we're down to rock bottom."

"H'm, Miss Amelia, not yet, leastways, not for awhile—"

"You like automobiles?"

"I don't dislike them terribly."

"Wal. I been poking aroun' the Mid-West company's garage some. Autos, Miss Amelia, eats gas and oil instead of oats, and they goes on wheels instead of laigs. But they both need the same kind of rubbing up and oiling down."

"Yes—"

"We can knock out the front of the basement and put in a plate glass winder, and set out a gas tank, a free air reservoir and a greasing pit."

"Sam'l, I do declare," said Miss Amelia, scandalized. "After all these years, to think—"

"I'll wear dirty overalls—the dirtier the more business-like, the more business-like, the more trade. I'll chew tobacco and say 'hell' and 'dam!' "

"Sam'l, your immortal soul—"

"And what's more, I'm Sam, the Auto Man from now on."

"At your age—"

"I've thought up some wollaping signs—" Miss Amelia, overcome, departed, using her apron as a tear blotter.

"Samuel, you may do as you see best," she said in a give-up voice.

Whether Sandover House changed for the worse or for the better is a matter of perspective. Among the subsequent desecrations was the utilizing of a worthy old bureau as a nut, bolt and tool container. A gateleg table held a display of skid chains.

"That is, if you don't mind, Miss Amelia—"

"No, I don't m-mind, I'm sure, Samuel."

Just the mounting stone and Pegasus preserved untainted identities. Sam, the auto man, prospered as Sandover House melted quietly into the horizon, like the Brown mansion and the Jackson homestead.

"Say, Miss Amelia, cumere for a minute, down to the front sidewalk. Got an idea. How'd you like this new sign I fixed?"

"Have You Had Your Oil Today?" it said.

"Why, fine, I believe."

"It's goin' to be a wow right out here close to the drive."

"Sure, like this, suspended from old Pegasus' nose ring, with a couple cans of oil set upon the mounting stone—that is, if you don't mind, Miss Amelia—"

"I—why, I'm sure I don't mind—my goodness, Samuel, what was that?"

"What?"

"It sounded just like a horse whinnying."

"I didn't hear anything, Miss Amelia."

"It's just nonsense, Samuel; neither did I. Your sign looks very pretty, Samuel, very pretty, indeed."

And to show her appreciation of Samuel's artistries, Miss Amelia dabbed at her eyes with worn, lace-bordered handkerchief.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota, who sets himself down in the records of congress as a "Roosevelt republican," apparently is finding some difficulty in determining just what the scope of Roosevelt republican activities in the Hoover campaign for the presidency should be.

His solution has been not to be active at all, due to a warning from his doctors that he take things easy for a time. But the senator is a very frank person by nature, and he smiles a bit when he makes that explanation of his comparative idleness in Washington at a time when the political pot is boiling so vigorously out in the voting center from which he hails.

Playing Safe?

Not that the Hon. Peter has any doubts about how South Dakota is going in November. He professes entire confidence in a smashing Hoover victory. He feels quite justified in heeding his doctor's advice on that score alone. Yet, even so, there is a slant toward liberalism about the South Dakota republicans who elected him on a Roosevelt republican ticket that no man desiring to remain a senator from that state indefinitely could quite afford to ignore.

There could conceivably be a reaction against men over active in behalf of the republican nominee should Hoover in the White House prove to be more conservative than suited South Dakota taste, or show too great a leaning toward the industrialist notions of government with which his commerce department experience brought him into close contact.

Brookhart's Situation

Some senators who have looked over the situation in Iowa in the past few weeks are frank to say privately that Senator Brookhart is already experiencing such an unfavorable reaction there due to his active campaigning for Hoover. The liberal republican support which carried Brookhart into the senate last time is said to be wavering behind him now, to put it mildly. While Iowa is claimed as safe for Hoover by all of these republican observers, they have begun to profess worry over state reaction against some of the tactics alleged to have been employed in Hoover's behalf.

Brookhart was drafted into the North Dakota fight by the Hoover supporters. Norbeck had something to do with that, but it was quite noticeable that he did not volunteer his own services to stump the neighbor state for Hoover. The liberalism or progressivism or whatever it is in North Dakota republican politics that is not exactly regular made it expedient that some strong Hoover man of the irregular republican wing in the senate be called into action, and Brookhart filled that bill.

At any rate, Norbeck came back to Washington planning no campaign activities at all. In the circumstances, it is possible he views the physical condition which necessitates this inactivity on the political sidelines, just at this time, as not an altogether unmixed evil.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Days of Torchlight Parades

Mr. Editor: In writing these letters from time to time I have but one desire, one wish, to bring back to the memory of those who are slowly but surely growing gracefully old some of the scenes and some of the places that we knew and in our thoughts will never forget. We are now in the throes of another election for the chief executive of this, to me and what thousands of others know and feel, is the greatest and most glorious land under the sun—a country that guarantees to every man, woman, and child the right to live and have that happiness that should be the heritage of every one who loves his country and obeys its laws, and it gives that right to every one to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience. I thought today of the wonders that are unfolding before our eyes in this the most wonderful century in the history of the world, with the telephone, the radio, the airplanes that fly through the air like so many gigantic birds, and now as the climax we see and hear the Vitaphone and in imagination we see the living person and hear their voices. I could not help but think, will wonders never cease? and still some of these things come to us with a little regret for it in some ways marks the passing of some of the things that we have looked upon and come to look forward to. One of the vanishing American customs is the old time torchlight parades, the election parades of some few years ago. How we recall the good old days even going back to the days of the so-called "Wide Awakes," and then in later years the "Tanner Boys" in honor of your great Union general who was a candidate for president, U. S. Grant; also Henry Willson of Massachusetts and also Colfax, and their opponents, Horace Greeley and B. Gratz Brown of Missouri. Then up to the days of James G. Blaine and John A. Logan, who was affectionately called by the Boys in Blue, Black Jack Logan. With all these we had marching clubs and during the regime of Blaine and Logan we were always somewhere as the "Plumed Knights," who were so-called in honor of the senator from the state of Maine. How I can recall them when they would turn out to show their numerical strength to their opponents and after the parade we would go to Breed hall and find things to eat that I may say were fit for the gods. All these were prepared by those daughters of Norwich who in my happy recollections were in a class by themselves as wonderful cooks and had fathomed the secret of reaching a man's heart through his stomach. I even today can see, in a mental picture, the interior of these halls as we entered them, just like a wonderful picture. Not alone in Breed hall, but when we would go to Taftville and enter the Ponemah hall and saw those tables so tastefully arranged it seemed a shame to make a wreck of them. But that is what happened when we great big half starved hungry men got at them. And the women who were a great and responsible part of this were there. Even now I in fancy can see them, ever on the alert to make the affair a success, just the real girls of yesterday and the grandmothers of today.

On the other side the democratic clubs too had their marching clubs. One of which stands out today—the "Jackson Guards," and they were under the command of a man named Gorey who lived in the Kelly hill section and who put them through their paces up near the school on Prospect street. Oftimes when the weather was not fit they would hold a meeting in the post office which was at that time in the Mowry building at the corner of 5th and Main street. The postmaster was Albert C. Greene who many times when their arguments got too heated would ask them to take the air. This happened at one time that I recall and Gorey told his men well if we can't hold our meetings here we will go out and hold it under the free "canister" of Heaven. No doubt he had been reading some of Mrs. Partington's sayings.

Postmaster Greene as I recall him was a wonderful exponent of the science of political economy, and in a debate on any of the questions of the day there was no one who could best him in an argument. I used to look upon him as an authority on all the questions that perplexed the minds of men in those days. I hope this may catch his eye and he will here get my opinion for it has never changed.

Can you old timers recall the wonder banquet that we had in the Chelsea Paper Co's yard between 4th and 5th street and Main, with plenty of orchard tea, oysters and everything that one could think of? Can they ever be forgotten! Yes those old days in Norwich and the torch light parades are still remembered and, with Oliver Twist, I can say give me some more, for I like it.

Those good old times I do not think would have been the success they were without the thought, the work and cooperation of the women who worked early and late—a labor of love—to make it a wonderful success, and may I render this toast—To woman—the absolute tyrant whose subjects are willing slaves, and whose slightest caprice is law, and from whose decision there is no appeal, God grant that she may reign forever—

And in conclusion, didn't we have lots of good times after all?

C. H. "DAD" SHAW.

YOUR HEALTH

STOMACH PAINS MAY INDICATE DISEASE ELSEWHERE

By R. L. Sanders, M. D., Memphis, Tenn.

In a recent study of four thousand people, whose chief complaint was some sort of stomach trouble, we found that less than 10 per cent. of them actually had anything wrong with the stomach itself. The distress of which they complained was caused by some other organ or condition that manifested its complaint through the stomach.

The stomach seems to occupy a sort of sentinel position; it is the "mouthpiece" for the majority of the abdominal organs that have no other means of expressing distress. Nausea, vomiting and stomach pains are frequent symptoms of gallstone colic, acute appendicitis and intestinal obstruction. Such symptoms are often seen also in cases of stones in the kidney. In none of these conditions is the stomach the seat of the actual disease; it is simply telling the story for the other organs that are in distress. Thus often it is accused of crimes that cannot rightfully be laid at its door.

Considering the abuse that the stomach receives during the lifetime of the average individual, especially men, it is surprising that it is not diseased more frequently than it is. Evidently through years of experience of hard knocks and abusive treatment the stomach has acquired a certain amount of immunity and resistance to the ordinary insults accorded it by hot, rough and irritating foods and drinks.

After middle life most people rather expect to be bothered at times with a certain amount of indigestion and stomach complaint. Such people often suffer a long time before submitting themselves to a thorough examination. Probably the most common cause for procrastination in such examinations is the fallacious notion that most everyone must suffer a certain amount of dyspeptic complaint with advancing years. This is not necessarily true. A large per cent. of our people who have real diseases of the stomach, such as ulcers and cancers, apply for examination long after the first symptoms have manifested themselves. Unfortunately, lack of time, fear of expense, lack of cooperation with the physician and possibly incomplete examination on his part often fail to reveal the potential or real condition in the stomach until long after the period has passed when a cure may be effected. Therefore, it is incumbent upon everyone past middle life to seek a thorough investigation of all dyspeptic symptoms.

A gnawing in the stomach or an excessive sensation of hunger coming on from two to three or four hours after meals and promptly relieved by the taking of food or soda water indicates the possibility of an ulcer in the stomach or in the first portion of the small intestine known as the duodenum. If such spells of stomach complaint appear in the middle of the morning or afternoon, and are repeated daily for a few weeks in the spring and fall and then completely remit during the summer and winter, there is a very good chance that an ulcer does exist. On the other hand, a pain may be present in the pit of the stomach almost constantly and be aggravated by food. If such is the case, a complete examination is all the more imperative to rule out the possibilities of cancer.

Repeated attacks of gall-stone colic with an associated dyspepsia that causes much gas and eructation, with associated fullness and bloating after meals may signify disease of the gall-bladder. Such gall-bladder disease often poisons the liver to such an extent that through its impairment the health is seriously affected, and when some intercurrent illness is superimposed the individual is not able to withstand it.

Every adult, especially past middle life, who becomes aware of any unusual stomach complaint should immediately seek competent medical advice and submit himself to a thorough and painstaking examination.

SUPT. GENTER VISITED HIS FIRST PASTORATE

District Superintendent Myron E. Genter returned last Saturday from a trip to Barneveld, N. Y., formerly known as Trenton, where he gave the chief address of the occasion on Thursday evening, October 11th. It was a special Old Home Day, after many improvements having been made in the church, and this was Mr. Genter's first pastorate, where he was resident for five years. Mrs. Genter accompanied him and the drive through the Berkshires, Mohawk Valley and the foothills of the Adirondacks, during ideal weather, was delightful.

Rev. and Mrs. Genter will observe Annual Open House Day for Methodists of the district and friends, at the District Parsonage, 56 Williams St., Friday, October 26, from two to seven o'clock.

Lemingwell Chicken Pie Supper

Tuesday evening the Ladies' Aid of the Lemingwell church held a most successful chicken pie supper in the vestry. About 150 enjoyed the following menu: Chicken pie, mashed potatoes, sweet potatoes, turnip, rolls, cranberry sauce, cake and coffee. The dining room was decorated in hallowe'en colors and the waitresses wore hallowe'en caps and aprons. The waitresses were Mrs. John Ross, Mrs. Frances Rose, Mrs. Roy Beard and Mrs. N. E. Whiting. The cake was in charge of Mrs. Silas Lemingwell. Those assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. John Rathbone, Mrs. Forest Lefingwell, Mrs George Borden, Mrs. A. H. Beebe, Mrs. Clinton Rogers and Mrs. Ellis.

Bride from Lebanon

Announcement has been made by Mrs. Roger L. Blake of Norwich of the marriage of her sister, Miss Doris Briggs, a nurse at the Lawrence-Memorial and hospital in New London, Nelson Dexter of Poquonoc Bridge. The ceremony was performed September 1st in Mystic. Mrs. Dexter is the younger daughter of Judge of Probate George E. Briggs of Lebanon.

Ends All Signs Of Filthy Dandruff

Best Way To Prevent Baldness

Filthy dandruff in your hair and on your shoulders is as conspicuous as a red flag. Dandruff always irritates the scalp, strangles the hair and makes it fall out—as millions of baldheads can tell you.

Before dandruff has made you a baldhead get a bottle of Parisian Sage and start using it today. Your hair and scalp respond to the very first application. All itching instantly disappears—hair stops falling out and every bit of dandruff is destroyed.

Parisian Sage is more than a dandruff destroyer—it makes the hair live looking, vigorous, glossy and easy to manage. Pleasant, not a bit sticky or greasy—so use it freely. Lee & Osgood Co. and all druggists sell Parisian Sage with guarantee of money back if you are not thoroughly satisfied.

Leonard Picord, 21, of 10 South A street, sustained lacerations of the face, neck and left side Tuesday evening at Taftville when the motorcycle he was riding crashed into the side of a small coupe on Merchants avenue at the Taftville fire station. The coupe was driven by Fred C. Geer of 32 Peck street, who is to appear in the city court on a charge of failure to grant right of way, which is made against him by Officer Paquette.

Mr. Geer had driven his machine off the street into the roadway at the entrance to the fire station and was driving back onto the street when the motorcycle hit his car, it is understood.

Picord was attended by Dr. George Thompson and taken to the Backus hospital.

FRIDAY IS EXTRA DAY FOR MAKING VOTERS

The board for making voters in Norwich has decided to be in session for an extra day this week in order to give three days to handle the great number of applications which are yet to come before the board.

The extra day chosen is Friday. This will give three days, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, of this week in which to complete the work. As there are still over 2,500 of those who put in applications which are yet to be made voters, it is considered that these three days this week will be none too much time to get through with the work. Saturday is positively the legal limit on which voters can be made so that it is advisable for all who have not come before the board to do so without waiting until the last minute.

WAGE CUT ANNOUNCEMENT IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT MILLS

According to an announcement made at Providence Tuesday, a five per cent wage reduction is to become effective next Monday in several eastern Connecticut mill corporations, viz: The Wauregan company, Aldrich Bros. company, the Totokett Manufacturing company and the Lawton Mills corporation.

Nearly 5,000 workers will be affected.

The cut by the Wauregan firm will affect the Ponemah mills at Taftville, the Wauregan mills at Wauregan and the Quinnebaug mills at Danielson. The Aldrich Brothers plant is at Moosup, the Totokett plant at Versailles and the Lawton mills at Plainfield.

Announcement of a wage cut was posted Tuesday at the Baltic company mill at Baltic.

EXPECTING INJUNCTION AGAINST GAS & ELECTRIC DEPT.

It is understood that a movement has been started among local merchants engaged in the retailing of electrical appliances to secure an injunction from the superior court restraining the city's gas and electric department from selling electric appliances. There has been more or less feeling among local electric appliance retailers over the retailing of such appliances by the gas and electric department. No verification of the reported movement to secure an injunction could be made Tuesday.

DECLARES MOST VALUABLE ASSET OF NORWICH IS ITS YOUNG FOLKS

The old idea of the chamber of commerce, to get a new industry, is passe, said J. W. Griest of Chicago, the principal speaker at the annual meeting and banquet of the Norwich chamber of commerce, Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Griest said that the chamber of commerce stands as the largest institution in the community and that no corporation is as big or as broad as the chamber.

Six directors were elected by the chamber members, during the evening, to replace six retiring directors. The full board of directors will meet some time within the next ten days to elect officers.

With nearly 200 present, members of the chamber, their wives and other guests, the annual banquet got under way about 6:15 o'clock in the large dining hall. The blessing was asked by Rev. Gordon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church. Norwich Town. The menu served was as follows:

New England Fruit Cocktail
Hearts of Celery — Stuffed Olives
Fresh Vegetable Soup
Roast Prime Ribs of Beef au Jus
Yorkshire Pudding
Mashed Potatoes — Stewed Corn
Cold Slaw — Pimento Salad
French Bread — Assorted Cakes
Chocolate and Vanilla Ice Cream
Coffee

Throughout the menu a most pleasing musical programme was given by St. Mary's male trio, Edward T. Connelly, M. J. Farrell and Nicholas J. Spellman, Mr. Spellman presiding at the piano. Their programme included the following numbers: Medley, Old Airs (Brauen), by the trio; Answer tenor solo (A. S. Robyn), Mr. Connelly; Mississippi Mud, baritone solo (Harry Harris), and whistling imitations of the birds of the forest by Mr. Farrell; In the Gloaming (Harrison), by the trio.

A special feature of the musical programme was a quartette number by Joseph C. Worth, William G. Park, Frank R. Murdy and James L. Case, who were called on by Mr. Connelly, the song leader, during the dinner. There were also community song numbers.

Directors Elected

About 7:30 o'clock, Harold D. Larrabee, president of the chamber, called the gathering to order and announced that the first business would be the election of six new directors as successors to six whose terms are expiring. Mr. Larrabee announced that by the provisions of the by-laws nominations are brought in by a nominating committee and that nominations could also be made from the floor. He submitted the six names as brought in by the nominating committee, as follows:

George Fellows, Cyril E. Fitch, Henry F. Lowers, Abner Schwartz, John R. Tarrant and Joseph C. Worth.

Mr. Larrabee asked if there were any other nominations. As there were none, a motion closing nominations was adopted after which the secretary was instructed to cast one ballot in favor of the committee's nominations and the nominees mentioned above were declared elected. Their election was greeted with applause.

Financial Plea for United Workers

Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert made a plea for increased support, financially, of the United Workers. She called attention to the fact that the annual district visitation of the United Workers is at hand. The organization's expenses the past year were $56,000, she said, and of this amount the Norwich public contributed $1,600. "If we had plenty of money to carry on our work we shouldn't say a thing," Mrs. Gilbert said. "For three years our work has had to be curtailed." She spoke of the varied and numerous activities of the United Workers in the several departments and called attention to the fact that in addition to carrying on these activities the organization cares for the operation of the Rock Nook Home and the Sheltering Arms. "Don't let your wives do it all," said Mrs. Gilbert. She said that if anyone wished to designate a gift for any one department or split it among the various departments, such designation could be made at the time of the gift. Contributions as low as 25 cents are welcome, Mrs. Gilbert said, but she added that she hoped the contributions would be larger than that sum.

Expansion at Thermos Plant

Following Mrs. Gilbert's talk, Mr. Larrabee presented James E. Roantree, treasurer of the American Thermos Bottle Co., who briefly told of the expansion at the Thermos plant on Laurel Hill. Mr. Roantree said the company has been using a great deal of outside space for the storage of merchandise raw and finished, and that this was the prime motive for the building of the new structure at a cost of $100,000. It is evident, from this, that we have confidence in Norwich, he said. He spoke of the company's appreciation of the co-operation of the gas and electric department of the city and of the chamber of commerce with the Thermos company.

The new structure will provide 40,000 additional feet of space and will provide ample storage space for the company and also additional manufacturing facilities for the company when such facilities are needed.

High Spots of the Year

Secretary Walter Pilcher of the chamber followed Mr. Roantree. Mr. Pilcher reviewed, briefly, some of the more prominent activities and accomplishments of the chamber the last 12 months his topic being, High Spots of the Past Year. After telling several humorous stories, Mr. Pilcher said that 124 members out of the total membership, 400, have actively served on committees the past year.

I must mention a few of these men, said Mr. Pilcher. They are the answer to my subject. The High Spots of 1928. These accomplishments have not been the work of the secretary but of the organization. I mention the names of some who have participated in this work to give you an opportunity to judge whether the chamber of commerce has been on the job.

Among those mentioned by Mr. Pilcher as especially active in committee work the past year were: Max Hanover, chairman of the publicity committee; Arthur L. Peale, who compiled a good deal of the material in the chamber's publicity booklet, just issued; Charles W. Taggart of the industries committee, who, Mr. Pilcher said, went out day after day with prospects who were considering locating industries in Norwich; Henry D. Johnson who has had charge of the preparation of the monthly business survey of Norwich; E. O. Rodier, who headed up the chamber's preliminary campaign committee; Abner Schwartz, chairman of the retail merchants' bureau; Joseph C. Worth, who, Mr. Pilcher said, did a fine piece of work on the Norwich exposition; John R. Tarrant, who handled the funds of the Norwich exposition; Roy D. Judd, who steered the finance committee throughout the year; James L. Case, prominent in many chamber activities, and who, Mr. Pilcher said, succeeded in getting a subscription for the newspaper of $500 to be taken out in advertising during the year.

There are many others who participated in the chamber's activities, Mr. Pilcher said. The Norwich chamber of commerce is not dead, by any means. In the opinion of the state chamber, the local membership have put over one of the finest chamber of commerce programmes in the state, said the secretary.

Assets of Norwich

Mr. Larrabee introduced as the principal speaker of the evening, J. W. Griest of Chicago who is conducting the merchants' institute here this week. His topic was "Community Assets and Liabilities."

After speaking, in a general way, of the settlement of Norwich some 225 or 230 years ago, the purchase of land for $300 and the present bank accounts totaling millions of dollars, Mr. Griest said it had occurred to him that the people of Norwich have some assets they have forgotten about. God gave you so much and in New England that he had to pile it up, he said. He gave you farm land and access to the sea. He gave you rock and stone. You have in New England, farms, factories, mines and the sea. It was not dollars and cents, but the spirit of the people that gave you wealth.

Those who inherited the wealth of their forefathers inherited their civic spirit, their enterprise, and courage to go out into the world. A community must run like the devil to stay where it is. It is the spirit of the people that has made some of the communities of the nation famous.

The Los Angeles calamity, the earthquake, was converted into an asset. When the flood came to Galveston the spirit of Galveston came back and built a bigger Galveston. What made Scotland what it is and what made Holland what it is? The spirit of the Scotch made Scotland and the Dutch made Holland.

Mr. Griest said there is a vast difference in creating wealth and getting wealth. Florida, he said, had to settle back to the basic principle of creating wealth. Let us get the salesmanship to sell our town to the stranger within our gates. Let us quit worshipping at the shrine of our fathers, telling what they did. Let us do something for ourselves. When we hear the industries of New England are slipping, I am going to tell you the industries of New England are not slipping. You are only changing from one to the other. He said the reason so many industries have gone south is because New England overlooked the relation of the human element to industry.

He said the most valuable asset in Norwich is the human element. You are overlooking it, the speaker said. I refer to the young man and the young woman. You have not provided sufficient recreation to take care of the idle hours spent by the human element, in your community. Mr. Griest made the prediction that the five-day week will come to stay "whether we want it or not or whether we believe in it or not." Manual labor is being replaced by machinery, he said.

With reference to the recognition of the value of recreational facilities in the south, Mr. Griest said that in any cotton mill community in the south there will be seen swimming pools, recreation grounds, with paid supervisors, and band concerts.

The chamber of commerce is one of the greatest assets you have in your community. Not only speak well of your city but speak well of each other. You can't sling mud with clean hands. Mudslinging always smears some bystander. Mudslinging is the last resort of the defeated. Let us turn over a new leaf and from now on see if it isn't possible to get cooperation and work together.

The tourist business is the largest business in the world. What are you doing to get the tourist trade? Get some signs out, more than you have. Make this city a place where the tourists will stop. Advertise what you have. You haven't advertised to your tourists to make them want to stop. Cash in on what you have in assets. Let the world know it through publicity and advertising. Transform your liabilities into assets.

Mr. Griest was giving a rising vote of thanks for his instructive talk, after which John H. Walters, of Nichols of Bridgeport, was introduced as the final speaker. Mr. Walters, whose topic was Innocuous Nebulosity, gave a highly humorous talk that met instant favor with the gathering. His humorous comments on the proceedings of the meeting on individuals present, the city and his comical references to Nichols and Bridgeport were heartily applauded. Mr. Walter's entertaining talk brought the annual meeting and banquet of the chamber to a close about 9.30, the singing of The Star Spangled Banner marking adjournment.

NIECES FOUND MRS. LESTER UNABLE TO TALK TO THEM

Two nieces of the late Mrs. Frances Dawley Lester, who lived in this city at 26 Warren street and who died in the Samaritan hospital at Troy, N. Y., on July 22 last, furnished the principal evidence Tuesday afternoon in the hearing before Judge of Probate Nelson J. Ayling upon the admission to probate of a codicil to Mrs. Lester's will, under the terms of which codicil Dr. Thurman A. Hull of Troy is one of the beneficiaries. The codicil was made ten days before she died and while she was a patient at the hospital in Troy. Mrs. Lester's sister, Mrs. Emma Clark Dawley of Brooklyn, N. Y. and her nephew, DeForrest Dawley sister, Mrs. Margaret Dawley Caruso of of Ottowa, Canada, are the contestants of the codicil.

It is estimated that Dr. Hull would be a beneficiary under the codicil to an amount of approximately $125,000 or more, Mrs. Lester's estate amounting to between $425,000 and $475,000.

Mrs. Lillian D. Schafhirt of 1950 Nostrand avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., and her Newark, N. J., daughters of Charles Dawley, a brother of Mrs. Lester, testified to calling on Mrs. Lester at the hospital on July 18. Mrs. Schafhirt said that Miss Jennison, a nurse, was in the room and that Mrs. Lester was in bed and looked so bad that the witness thought she was going to die. The witness said she started to cry. Mrs. Lester did not say a word, but only made a gurgling noise in her throat. Mrs. Schafhirt testified that Mrs. Lester had been in the habit of sending a check monthly to her father, but the July check had not come, and she asked Dr. Thurman Hull who was taking care of Mrs. Lester's affairs. He said he was and he would have Mrs. Lester sign a check to send to Mr. Dawley.

The witness told of leaving the hospital with her sister in an automobile which Dr. Thurman Hull drove. On the way the doctor asked about Eddie Jacoby whom Maud Parker, Mrs. Lester's favorite niece, had married secretly.

"Who is this Jacoby? Is he a Jew?" the doctor asked.

"Yes, I think so."

"Well, you didn't suppose I was going to let this Jew come up here and get your aunt's money? I had her draw a codicil on Maud Parker's share."

Mrs. Schafhirt said the doctor told them eight people were to divide Maud Parker's share. He mentioned Fanny Wright, Dr. Walker and the Ross girls. He didn't say anything about himself.

Continuing her testimony, Mrs. Schafhirt said that Dr. Hull said that Jacoby would no doubt try to break this codicil, but he could put it over because of his influence in Troy. She said the doctor gave them the impression that he was a big man in Troy. Asked if one of his assets towards greatness was because he was a Methodist deacon, the witness said the doctor didn't mention that. He told them that he had not witnessed the codicil but had had three other doctors sign so that he would not be implicated in it.

When they separated, the doctor said to them: "You are going home with more information than you expected to get and if you hadn't looked all right I wouldn't have told you. You girls stick to me and this Jew won't get your Aunt Fanny's money."

Mrs. Margaret Dawley Caruso of Newark, N. J., another niece of Mrs. Lester, followed Mrs. Schafhirt on the stand and testified as to the visit at the hospital on July 18 with Mrs. Schafhirt in which the witness largely corroborated the testimony of the former witness as to Mrs. Lester's appearance and the conversation in the automobile with Dr. Thurman Hull.

In regard to the conversation Mrs. Caruso said Dr. Hull said he knew what he was doing and he could put this over in Troy, so that Jacoby would get none of this money. Dr. Hull did not tell that he was included in the codicil, the witness said, but said there in it were people who had been kind to Mrs. Lester.

On cross examination by Attorney Brown it was brought out that Maud Parker was married to Jacoby about two years before she died, but the family had no knowledge generally of the marriage, and the witness said she didn't know of the marriage until after Maud Parker's death.

Testimony by Interne

Dr. Harry B. Franchere, interne from Aug. 1, 1927 for a year at Samaritan hospital, testified that he first saw her at the hospital on July 8, following an order to take a history on Mrs. Lester's case. The doctor said that it had come indirectly soon after Mrs. Lester became a patient that internes were to stay away from her.

Dr. Franchere said that Mrs. Lester was sitting in a chair and gave no sign of recognizing his presence when the nurse told Mrs. Lester what the doctor was there for. At no time when he saw Mrs. Lester did she ever speak a word to him, Dr. Franchere said. The doctor testified to seeing Mrs. Lester on July 9, 10 and 11, her condition continuing in a bewildered state.

The doctor read a progress sheet on the patient which showed she died July 22. From July 8 till she died, the doctor said she never recognized him, was never rational and incapable, in his opinion, of the simplest business transactions.

On cross examination by Attorney Brown the doctor said the Samaritan hospital did not take mental cases if they knew it first. He had never known a patient turned out if the case happened to be a mental one.

On redirect examination by Attorney Stewart, Dr. Franchere said he did not know whether Dr. Hull had written more than one history of Mrs Lester's case and he did not know whether any early history of the case written by Dr. Hull had been destroyed. The doctor said he knew that bedside records and charts on this case were kept under guard to protect them against mutilation and theft. Miss Allison, the superintendent, told him she had them in her safe in the hospital.

Asked whether he hadn't told Dr. Hull and his brother, when he met them in the post office lobby, that he had seen Mrs. Lester two or three times, Dr. Franchere said he had, but this was only a casual answer and the number had no significance.

Nurse Finishes Testimony

Miss Mary Nancy Collins, the nurse, who had been on the stand when court adjourned Monday, continued her testimony Tuesday morning. She was given a stiff cross-examination by Attorney Brown in the course of which she denied having any knowledge of feeling by the hospital authorities against the two Doctors Hull, either for political or any other reasons. Miss Collins was sharply questioned by Attorney Brown about the oath nurses take about holding in confidence whatever transpires in relation to a patient. She called it the Nightingale oath. He inquired if she had regarded that oath when she "spilled" all this to Attorney Stewart in Troy. The word "spilled" brought an objection from Attorney Stewart. The nurse said that she and three other nurses who were here to testify had consulted the hospital authorities and the board of trustees and had been told to go ahead.

Incidentally Miss Collins was the means of reminding the court that it was time for the noon recess. While Attorney Brown was discussing with her Mrs. Lester's and her own acquaintance with the French language.

"Now," said the attorney, "if I should ask you in French what time is it, how would you answer."

"I should say it was time to eat," the witness replied, while he court room burst into a roar of laughter and Judge Nelson J. Ayling ordered a recess as he noticed that the hands of the clock pointed to five minutes before one.

During the court session Tuesday four nurses from the Samaritan hospital who were to testify were excluded from the court room while a deposition from Miss Grace E. Allison, superintendent at the hospital was read.

The hearing will continue today (Wednesday).

ADVISES TRADE EXPANSION BY MERCHANTS' COOPERATION

As far as I can see Norwich is in a satisfied state, the chief reason for which is lack of vision, said John W. Griest of Chicago in his address on Cooperative Plans for Trade Extension at the noon day meeting of the Better Business Congress held Tuesday at the Wauregan hotel under the auspices of the Merchants bureau of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce. You have been satisfied with the trade you have been getting and have allowed New London and other cities to reach out and slowly get your trade away through cooperative efforts. For his topic in the morning, Mr. Griest took the second factor, Merchandise, given by him Monday morning as one of the three factors of successful salesmanship. The other two are the customer and the salesperson.

Cooperate For Trade Extension

Cooperative Plans for Trade Extension is practically new in the field of advertising, said Mr. Griest at the noon day meeting of the Better Business Congress at the Wauregan hotel, and as advertising is a system of education cooperative plans for advertising must be carefully planned. In cooperative efforts you must sacrifice things and go with the other fellow as far as he is willing to go. The daily paper is an excellent medium to reach out into the field. The idea of cooperative advertising must be sold to at least 100; not only a half dozen or 25.

Mr. Griest cited where special supplements had been used in other cities in cooperative advertising and not only increased business had been the outcome, but new industries had come into town. The first step to be taken is to agree to advertise regularly once a month for a period of twelve consecutive months. It should not be done at spasmodic intervals, and all kinds of businesses ought to join in the idea, not only a few, for in bringing the people into Norwich everyone is benefitted. Mr. Griest pointed out several instances where cooperative advertising had been successful in other towns and before closing his remarks presented the merchants a code of ethics that might be followed. They are:

1. We agree to conduct trades days regularly once a month for a period of twelve consecutive months.
2. We agree to conduct these trade days on the second Tuesday of each month.
3. We agree to advertise not more than three and usually two articles at genuine trade day prices. These articles to be seasonable and reasonably priced.
4. We agree to place these articles in our windows the Saturday preceding the trades day with a card stating these articles on sale at this price trades day only.
5. We agree to advertise no article at trade day prices that another merchant is offering on the same day at a trade day price.
6. We agree to direct a customer to the proper store when that customer asks for an article in our store on trades day at the trade day price offered by another merchant.
7. We agree to abide by the decision of a vigilance committee, this committee to be a secret committee.
8. We agree to serve on the vigilance committee when appointed.
9. We agree to attend an evening dinner on the evening of the trade day. This dinner to be paid for out of the trade day funds.

Minor changes can be made to the above code of ethics, said Mr. Griest but the third one should stand as written at it is the golden rule of cooperative efforts. Asked as to whether four times a year was sufficient for cooperative advertising, Mr. Griest responded that three or four times was not sufficient, there being space for once a month in between.

Mr. Griest will continue his addresses today (Wednesday), speaking upon the subject, Push, Pep and Personality, in the morning and at the noon meeting What Business Management Means.

At a recent reunion of the Fisher family in the town of Scotland, seven children were present with their families making a total of twenty-nine. The reunion was held at the home of the parents of the 7 children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher.

Absolute dependability is aviation's first law and that is why I use dependable Champion Spark Plugs.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive silimanite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

Beginning October 4th and every Thursday thereafter the Champion Sparkers will broadcast over the Blue Network of the National Broadcasting Company from 8:30 to 9:00 p. m. Eastern Standard Time.

DUWELL CLUB DISTANCE MEN IN RACE WITH HOPE A. C. SATURDAY

The Duwell distance runners who have been inactive, except for semi-weekly workouts, since the recent New Haven police meet, will swing into action here Saturday afternoon when they match strides with the harriers from the Hope A. C. of Westerly in a five-mile team race.

Arrangements for the race were completed last night with the receipt of word from the city across the border that the team would be able to come here Saturday afternoon. Although the Hope A. C. had accepted the challenge of the local club earlier in the week a definite date for the match was not set until last night. The race will be run over a five-mile course through the principal streets of the city and the winner will be determined through the low point system.

Each team will be allowed to enter as many men as it desires but only the first five of each club to finish will count in the scoring. To the club placing the first five men will be awarded a trophy and the individuals to count in the scoring will receive medals. Place prizes for the first three men to finish, regardless of what team they belong to, will also be awarded.

Although the Duwells have taken part in over ten races to date this season, the race with the Hope A. C. will be its second team match. On July fourth, the Duwells went to South Manchester and decisively defeated the team representing the Board of Recreation, taking every prize. At the time, it was agreed that the men from the Silk City would give the locals a return match at home, but the affair never materialized.

In the Westerly outfit, the locals will meet with much stronger competition than was provided at South Manchester, and it is expected that the race will be hard fought throughout the entire five-mile distance and that each of the athletes to finish will figure prominently in the scoring. Although neither organization figured in the team scoring at the annual Memorial day race here, the Hope A. C. placed well ahead of the locals. The big race, however, was over a ten-mile course and the local men figure that they will do much better over the shorter distance.

The men who it is expected will wear the blue and gold of the Duwell A. A. are the Keeley brothers, Austin and Johnny; Johny Boldergbine, Alfio Urbanatti, William Kerr, Eddie Enos Eddie Antoofian, Harry Rollband and Nipper Zinavage. The Westerly lineup has not been announced as yet but in all probability it will be headed by Chief Horatio Stanton, lanky Narragansett Indian, who placed fifth in the Port Chester marathon a week ago.

EASTERN ELEVENS PREPARE FOR MAJOR CONTESTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—"Harvard" beat the Army today but it was only in practice.

The Army scrubs, using Harvard formations, scored twice on the first string team at West Point and thereby caused "Biff" Jones considerable concern. The varsity will be given lots of work to do for the next few days so that it will be on edge when it clashes with the Crimson at Cambridge this Saturday. It will be the first meeting of these two teams since 1910 and the Cadets have yet to record a victory.

With the return of Norman Hall and Firpo Greene, guards, only Johnny Hoben was missing as Mal Stevens put the Yale squad through a light scrimmage. Hoben, however, is expected to start against Tuss McLaughry's Brown Bears.

With the return to the huddle system, Princeton had its snappiest workout of the year. The Tigers who meet Lehigh next, appeared more comfortable with the huddle than they were when the quarterback was barking the signals.

Charlie Crowley, breathing optimism after Columbia had gone through with a brisk workout, fought shy of making any rash predictions but did say he thought the Lions would be a surprisingly good showing against Dartmouth.

Frank Cavanaugh drilled his Fordham team in the defensive side of the game, well aware of the scoring potentialities of Holy Cross which the Maroon meets at Worcester.

Payne Beats Schaaf

BOSTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—Tiger Jack Payne, New York Negro heavyweight won a decision over Ernie Schaaf, Boston sailor, in a ten round boxing bout here tonight. Payne weighed 178 pounds and Schaaf 196. Schaaf had weight, height and reach on Payne, but was clearly outpointed.

CUBS SILENT ABOUT RUMORED HORNSBY DEAL

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—(AP)—Whether Rogers Hornsby, the much tossed about manager of the Boston Braves, would appear in the Chicago Cubs' lineup next season, was more or less a conjecture today as William L. Veeck, president of the Cubs, would neither deny nor confirm the rumor.

"I am in no position to say anything at present," said Veeck. "We would like to have Hornsby, as would any other club in the major leagues, and are in the market for available good players to bolster up the team."

Veeck declined to deny reports that the Cubs' management was negotiating with Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston club, for the transfer of Hornsby's contract.

"I have nothing to say on the matter," said the Cubs' president. "Too many deals have been ruined by publicity, and if the Cubs purchase Hornsby nothing will be said officially until the deal is completed."

Rumors of the trade, one of the most important in baseball history, have been circulated since the start of the world series. At that time both Veeck and Fuchs denied they had discussed the possibility of the Boston manager joining the Cubs. Hornsby, however, said he expected to be wearing a Cubs' uniform next season.

Baseball gossip has it that the Cubs' president and Fuchs first discussed the subject a month ago. Fuchs, facing a deficit for the season, was said to have agreed tentatively to the proposition. Later discussions were said to have brought up the subject of price, the Braves placing a price of $250,000 on their manager and two or three players.

Freddy Maguire, second baseman, Pitcher Charlie Root and either Outfielders Cliff Heathcote or Earl Webb were mentioned as players who might be involved in a deal that would bring Hornsby to Chicago. President Veeck, however, denied that Heathcote would be included in any trade.

A month before the season closed Hornsby was reported to have signed a six-year contract at Boston. This later simmered down to a three-year contract with option of renewal. Hornsby's annual salary was reported close to $40,000. If the Cubs purchase the Braves' manager it would make over the contract.

HARVARD SCORES FOUR TIMES AGAINST SCRUBS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 16—(AP)—Using his plays it will attempt against the Army on Saturday, the Harvard varsity football team today scored four times on the scrubs in a 45 minute scrimmage.

Captain Arthur French made the first touchdown with a seven yard end run, two resulted from forwards, and the fourth came when "Red" Grant, a third string halfback, carried the ball over on a line plunge after Crawford advanced it 20 yards.

A significant shift was made in team A's lineup when Head Coach Arnold Horween switched Dick O'Connell and Frank Pickard, who have been playing left and right end. O'Connell's weight was believed to have been Horween's motive. Jim Douglas, another end who is considered on a par with O'Connell and Pickard, was not in uniform today. He was bruised in the North Carolina game and it was not considered likely that he would play against the Cadets.

Up to today the Crimson varsity had a repertoire of but seven plays, four running, two forwards and one lateral pass. Horween has been slow in giving his players more until they had digested these but he added eight more, including several which he classed as deceptive during the practice session.

HOME TOWN CELEBRATES IN HONOR OF COCHRANE

BRIDGEWATER, Mass., Oct. 16—(AP)—An unofficial holiday was declared today here to give the townsfolk an opportunity to celebrate over the honor bestowed on the town's most famous son, Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane, the young catcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, who has been named as the most valuable player in the American league.

Cochrane himself, was missing. He is now hunting in the New Brunswick woods. His young wife, the former Mary Bohr, of this town, their small son and the ball player's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cochrane, appeared in his stead to receive the congratulations of his boyhood friends and well-wishers.

SCHWARTZ MAY GET CENTER BERTH SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 16—After a day of rest from active workouts, the Connecticut Aggie varsity took to their daily practice sessions this afternoon with renewed vigor and displayed a mid-season drill exhibition replete with dummy scrimmage, signal practice, and new plays. Head Coach Sumner A. Dole took the player under hand this afternoon following the descriptive board talk, given last night, in order to formulate a well-rounded out week of drilling for the Lowell Textile contest Saturday at Lowell.

The general physical condition of the squad on the whole is fair, considering the strenuous hour of football indulged in at Orono last Saturday when the Nutmeggers struggled with Maine in a scoreless tie. Captain Sayer's leg injury is slowly responding to treatment but in the meantime Coach Dole is using Moe Levson at the tackle position. Levson is the Aggie chieftain's understudy and while only a sophomore, he has displayed a capable ability at the position. William Knaut, varsity center, who received a shoulder injury in the game following a recovery from a hand bruise in scrimmage before the season opened, was on the sidelines in civilian clothes and it is very probable that the snapper back will be out of the fray Saturday. John Stangle, a junior, has been used in the center position in alternation with Frederick Schwartz, and at present it is a toss-up as to which one will get the assignment Saturday. Rhoar Flydal, regular fullback, was given a continued rest for another day, due to some minor injuries, but he is expected to be back in football togs soon. Coach Dole used Sam Harger in the fullback berth this afternoon.

The Blue and White machine is expecting a close game with Lowell who has won every start thus far this year. They defeated Trinity in their second game, 24-0, and the Coast Guard eleven in the opener, 12-0. Last year the Textile machine was defeated in their first meeting with the Aggies at Storrs, 28-6. The comparative scores seem to indicate the Lowell eleven as having a much stronger aggregation this fall.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER FOR VETERAN SPORTS WRITER

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 16—(AP)—Forty years of newspaper work passed in review tonight, when Richard Howell, "Dick" to thousands of his friends in public and sporting life, was the guest at a reception and dinner in the Stratfield hotel in recognition of 40 years relationship with the Bridgeport Herald. It has been 40 years of news writing, editing, interviewing, sitting on the news desk, going to fights and the legislature, hobnobbing with politicians, and in these later years expertly analyzing the fistic sport and the political outlook and the men in both.

Dick Howell, and his ten-gallon sombrero, has been a character figure equally at the ringside, the political gatherings and the halls of legislation. A claim well supported for him is that he is the dean of newspapermen in the state among those who have "followed their nose for news." Others may have had longer service but it has been at the editorial desk that kept them from interminglingg with those who have been at the scene of action.

A devotee of the fistic sport, Howell has been to nearly every world's championship fight in a quarter of a century, and his wide acquaintance among those who followed sports was added to by his leadership in the old days of the rattlesnake hunting expeditions in the Schaticoke mountain region, in Kent, when "a cure for bites" could be legally carried on the hip of every hunter.

All these incidents in Howell's busy life were given the "once over" formally and informally, tonight as the veteran stood in the center of the gathering, and where he sat at the head of the bountifully spread and lavishly adorned table.

Newspapermen from all over the state and elsewhere were present, and what was said was in praise of the good sportsmanship of the guest of the occasion.

ELIZABETH ST. ELEVEN BEATS THE BLACKHAWKS

The Elizabeth street school football team defeated the Blackhawks in a fast and close game Tuesday afternoon by a score of 12 to 6. Romanowski and A Kirstein scored the two touchdowns for the schoolboys, while Sadusky scored the single touchdown for the Hawks. Lacey, Sikorski and DeKoven were the other stars for the Lizzies. Segel, Hoffman and Sadusky starred for the Hawks. The lineup:

Babe Dye Goes to New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—Purchase of Babe Dye, heavy scoring wing of the Chicago Black Hawks, was announced today by the New York Americans of the National Professional Hockey league, the price was reported to have been in the neighborhood of $15,000.

COCHRANE VOTED MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—(AP)—Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane, 25-year-old catcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, today was named as the most valuable player to his club in the American league's 1928 season. Cochrane won the award by a margin of only two points over Heinie Manush, St. Louis outfielder.

In addition to having his name inscribed on the junior circuit's honor roll along with the previous winners, Cochrane will receive $1,000 in cash. The award was made by a commission of baseball writers from each city in the league.

In the voting, Cochrane received 53 points while Manush, who finished second in the American league's individual batting race, received 51.

Every member of the commission voted for Manush, two placing him first, one second, four third and one fifth.

Cochrane who joined the Athletics in 1925 and immediately broke into the regular lineup, ranked fourth last year, with 18 votes after receiving four votes in 1926. Mickey came up to the Connie Mack club from Portland, Ore., of the Pacific coast circuit where he started his professional baseball career after an eventful baseball and football career at Boston university. He caught in 130 games in the season just closed.

While only hitting .293, Cochrane was ranked by members of the commission as being largely responsible for the showing of the Athletics during the closing days of the campaign. His throwing arm and ability to tag runners out at the plate placed him high in the estimation of the baseball writers.

Under the American league's most valuable player award conditions, none of those who previously had won the honors was eligible for consideration. The previous winners were: George Sisler, St. Louis, 1922; Babe Ruth, New York, 1923; Walter Johnson, Washington, 1924; Roger Peckinpaugh, Washington, 1925; Geo. Burns, Cleveland, 1926, and Lou Gehrig, New York, 1927.

The commission making the selection was composed of Paul Shannon, Boston Post; Harry Neily, Chicago American; Ed Bang, Cleveland News; H. G. Salsinger, Detroit News; W. B. Hanna, New York Herald-Tribune; James Isaminger, Philadelphia Inquirer; J. Ed Wray, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and Denman Thompson, Washington Star.

The official vote follows:

Gordon Cochrane, Philadelphia, catcher, 53 points.

Henry Marush, St. Louis, outfielder, 51.

Joseph Judge, Washington, first base, 27.

Anthony Lazzeri, New York, second base, 27.

William Kamm, Chicago, third base, 15.

Leon Goslin, Washington, outfielder, 13.

Earl Combs, New York, outfielder, 13.

Charles Gehringer, Detroit, second base, 12.

Charles Myer, Boston, third base, 11.

Waite Hoyt New York, pitcher, 8.

James Fox, Philadelphia, catcher, first, third, 7.

Joe Sewell, Cleveland, short, third, 6.

Luke Sewell, Cleveland, catcher, 6.

Ira Flagstead, Boston, outfielder, 5.

Edward Morris, Boston, pitcher, 4.

Harry Heilmann, Detroit, outfielder, 4.

Carl Lind Cleveland, second base, 4.

William Cisell, Chicago, shortstop, 4.

Owen Carroll, Detroit, pitcher, 3.

Harry Rice, Detroit, outfielder, 3.

Lew Fonseca, Cleveland, utility, 2.

Ted Lyons Chicago, pitcher, 2.

Urban Hodapp, Cleveland, third, first, 2.

Alex Metzler, Chicago, outfielder, 1.

William Regan, Boston, second base, 1.

FOUR FAST BOUTS FEATURE FIRST AMATEUR SHOW AT UNCASVILLE

Amateur boxing was ushered in at Montville last evening amid a blaze of glory and a rather small crowd for some unknown reason. If the hall had been filled not over 200 could have got it, but aside from the balcony there were quite a few vacant seats. Kid Wilson and Harold Talbot have inaugurated boxing and have started an athletic club in the town, and have worked hard to give the Montvillites a glimpse of amateur fighting right in their own back yard. For this reason it is surprising that so few turned out. However, after the Uncas club which they have named their organization gets going in good shape, more of the fans will get into the habit of turning out.

Especially will they fill the hall next week when their popular neighbor and exalted brother, Harold Talbot, the "Fighting Motorman," will toe the mark against his hated rival, "Farmer Steve," the Norwich bearcat. About a year ago these two lads had the town on their feet and no one can forget the battles that they put up. So save an open evening next week and journey down to witness a whirlwind affair, between two rough tough lads.

The lack of suitable boxers forced the management to put on only four bouts. Although this fact was rather disappointing it was consoling to know that the four were very good. Three o fthem gave the fans knockouts in slam bang bouts while the other was hard fought.

Kid Lewis of New London dropped the decision to Shiek Godear, the pride of Palmertown. The Shiek took the aggressive and kept on top of his man, and drove his blows in from any angle. Lewis was rather slow in getting going and the whirlwind style of the Shiek had him all at sea. Both weighed 142.

Billy Bicknell of Willimantic and Young Filippen fought the next battle of what started off to be three rounds. But it only lent two. The dusky Filippen, after clowing for two rounds and being dropped a couple of times managed to get over a wild right to Bick's jaw and the latter went down for the count, with about a minute to go in the final round. Both lads weighed 122.

Ted Biside of the West Side met a tough customer in Clif Martin of Palmertown. Clif connected several times with his hard, swinging left and his wild right, but Ted continued to drive in his hard rights and lefts until he finally wore Martin down. The Norwich boy set Martin down in the second with some stiff punches and had him on the verge of a K. O. when the referee stopped the fight. Ted had to fight his best to win over the game, tough villager. The former tipped the scales at 148, and Martin 150.

The final bout was a peach. Two little fellows evenly matched and both with terrific punches pummeled each other for about two minutes of the first round. They stuffed more action into that first round than is generally seen in three.

Eddie Sharkey of Norwich and Norman Reo of Montville drove each other around the ring with both lads trying to get over their rights. Norman connected first and Sharkey went down. But his good condition saved him. He hopped up fighting and after missing a right drove one to Reo's jaw which sent the latter down, for the count of nine. He was bleary-eyed on arising, and the fight might have been declared over then. He stood up unprotected, while Eddie waded in and dropped him again, and it was all over. Another match between these lads will certainly be interesting. Both weighed in at 112.

YALE VARSITY IS NOW AT FULL STRENGTH

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 16—(AP)—The "broken down" Yale football squad which since the beginning of the season has been represented in its games with only part of the regular material, today assumed full strength for the first time in a workout that consisted of light scrimmaging and passing and kicking the ball.

The return of Norman Hall to his old position of guard and Firpo Greene, mainstay on the other side of the line next to center, left only Hoben, first string quarterback, out of today's work. However, Coach Mal Stevens expects to be able to use his star signal caller against Brown on Saturday if his leg injury continues to improve. Hall returned with a healed foot he cut while in training last summer and it was thought he would not be able to play football until the Army game.

Supervised scrimmage was the order of the day with the varsity team playing a line only and making no attempt to score. Most of the varsity backs were used in the drill and several linemen took the places of regulars. Wilson, third string quarter, ran the team in signal drill but gave way to Ellis and Billhardt.

Among those who witnessed the practice today were Tad Jones, former head coach, and Jack Owsley, former assistant Yale coach and head coach of the Navy grid team.

Seals Win P. C. Pennant

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 16—(AP)—The San Francisco Seals today won the 1928 Pacific Coast league pennant by defeating the Sacramento Senators by a score of 9 to 5 in the sixth game of the play-off series.

SEVERAL HOLD-OUTS LISTED IN RAILS OF HOCKEY PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—Baseball has closed its doors for the season but the term "holdout" still lingers in the professional athletic directory.

This time it is hockey. The first star of the ice world reported at variance with his owners over the size of his pay envelope was Frank Boucher, crack center ice man of the New York Rangers in the National Hockey league. The remainder of the team that won the world professional hockey championship in the Stanley cup series last spring—the brothers Bill and Bun Cook, in the forward line, the defense stars, Ching Johnson and Taffy Abel, and Lorne Chabot, the goalie—have come to terms.

Boucher, high scorer of the Rangers last year, is reported to have many fellow-holdouts in various teams throughout the circuit. Boucher's demands and the Ranger offer are far apart and there appears a possibility that the center ice star may be traded before the season opens Nov. 15.

Reorganization of the New York American team which finished last in the international group in 1927 was approved at a recent meeting of the league directors. Naming of Tommy Gorman, manager of the American marks the second managerial change since last season. Herb Gardiner has taken over the Chicago Black Hawks, replacing Barney Stanley. Shorty Green, former pilot of the Americans, has been traded to Boston.

The league heads made several changes in playing rules. A ten minute over-time period will replace the "sudden death" sessions designed formerly to end games tied at the close of the regulation play. A penalty at the discretion of the referree has been added for "ragging" the puck, shooting the disk the length of the ice, or skating back and fourth behind the goal to waste time.

Drastic changes in the rules governing the playoffs for the right to enter the Stanley cup finals have been made in an effort to cut down the length of the series. The teams finishing first, second and third in the International and American divisions of the league will meet in simultaneous series in the first round of the playoffs. Winners of the series between the two second and two third teams will meet in another series with the winner opposing the victor of the first team series in the Stanley cup final.

KAPLAN TAKES EASY VERDICT FROM FLOWERS

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 16—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Meriden buzz saw, fought his way through 10 rounds to gain an easy decision here tonight over Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle lightweight. The former world's featherweight champion from Connecticut puzzled his opponent with his boring in style of fighting and piled-up points in every round. No knockdowns were scored. The winner weighed 133 pounds while Flowers scaled 135 1-2.

From the beginning of the contest Kaplan swarmed over Flowers and failed to let up until the finish. The former feather king was an elusive target for the New Rochelle Negro to find and aided by his short stature, kept in close under protection to find his way to Flowers' ribs.

The contest became more one sided after each round until half the distance was over and here Flowers ensued to attempt to carry the fight. His swinging choppy blows seldom landed with effect and an occasional uppercut only caused Kaplan to become more infuriated and to fight with more vigor.

Hardly in any round did Flowers show to any advantage, so bewildering was Kaplan's relentless attack. Toward the close of the fracas both boys stood and swapped punches and only in this exchange did the Negro show any of his fighting form.

The match was their second meeting and the second win for Kaplan. A crowd of 6,000 attended.

For action, George's Day, New Haven tornado, and Willie Hussey, Bridgeport, fighting in the lightweight class supplied more excitement punch for punch than the featured performers. Day won his bout but when the rounds ended, Hussey was still on his feet and looking for more. The Bridgeport boy was at his best for the first few seconds in the seventh when he stood toe to toe with Day and swapped punches that hurt.

Nick Patterson, of Newark, N. J., substituting for Jack Scott, of the same city who was unable to box because of an injured foot, took more punishment from the gloves of Joe Barlow, of New York than has been seen at the arena in a long time. Floored twice in the third he staggered to his feet again only to be disqualified in the fifth when his legs refused to hold him up any longer and he fell without being hit.

In the opening preliminaries Eddie Plister, New York, 158 1-4 knocked out Tommy Hamby, Holyoke, 158 in the first round of a six round bout and Frankie Marino, New Haven, 124, defeated Joe Masselli, New Haven, 125 1-2, six rounds.

AMERICAN SOCCER LEAGUE TAKES CASE TO COURT

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—The American Soccer league, engaged in a bitter battle with the U. S. Football association, has taken its side of the dispute to the courts. Injunction proceedings have been filed against several players of the New York Nationals who "jumped" the club because they feared they would be declared ineligible performers if they appeared in any more American league games.

The manager and all the regulars of the Nationals resigned last Thursday just before a scheduled game with the Brooklyn Wanderers. They pointed out that since the league has been suspended by the U. S. Football association there was a strong possibility that they would be declared ineligible if they continued to play. Since then, however, seven of the players have returned to the Nationals' fold, deciding that they had acted rather hastily. The injunction proceedings were filed against those who have not yet agreed to return.

The league, reduced to seven clubs when the New York Giants, Bethlehem and Newark were suspended for entering the football association's national tournament, has been increased to eight with the addition of Philadelphia. The schedule for the week end is:

SATURDAY: Boston at Philadelphia, Brooklyn at New Bedford, Fall River at J. and P. Coates, Pawtucket.

SUNDAY: Brooklyn at Providence, Boston vs. Nationals at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, New Bedford at Fall River.

The dispute between the team organizations started with the suspension of the three clubs who filed entry in the association tournament after the league had voted not to participate. After the league refused to restore the clubs to good standing, the football association, suspended the league. The Giants, Bethlehem and Newark immediately started a new league—the Eastern Soccer league—and started their schedule last week.

MRS. SCHOEMMEL OUT FOR ENDURANCE RECORD

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Lottie Moore Schoemmel broke the monotony of her non-stop float in a hotel swimming pool today, long enough to grant a strange interview in which she confided a new-born ambition. She wants to make a record of staying up as long as the Graf Zeppelin did.

Mrs. Schoemmel is not at all sure she can do it, although supremely confident that she can continue to support herself in the unstable element without touching the sides or bottom of the pool for a total of three days and nights. This would give her a new world's record of 72 hours, shattering the mark of 65 hours and two minutes set by a Jimmy Cherry last Sunday in Los Angeles.

"How long did the Zeppelin stay up?" was one of the young woman's questions as she came nearer to the side of the pool after two days and nights afloat, raised one side of her bathing car and dug the white grease out of her ear.

"One hundred and eleven hours and 38 minutes," she was told.

"Phew," and the pleasant face with its health; coloring broke into a broad grin. "Wouldn't it be great if I could stay up that long."

"Sometimes," she said, "I feel as though I could keep on going indefinitely.

"Yes, I do get sleepy—but of course there's no chance to sleep. It's the worst between 3 and 6 o'clock in the morning. I yawn for three or four hours but finally I fight it off and don't feel it any more.

"I'm always hungry. They feed me baby food. Oatmeal and chicken broth and crackers. Once in a while I have coffee."

"When I get cold," explained Mrs. Schoemmel, "Why, I exercise in the water, put on more grease or have the water heated."

The temperature of water and room is about 80 degrees. Mrs. Schoemmel wears a white bathing suit and cap and white grease covers all but her face.

"It's monotonous, staying in one place," she said. "I'd rather go try and swim the Atlantic ocean or something. That music helps," she added, indicating a blaring radio loud speaker.

"Then last night my boy, Harold, came to see me and brought about a dozen other boys."

Harold is 12. Mrs. Schoemmel, who is blonde and 29, also has a daughter, Ruth, 9.

The new rival of the Zeppelin is not one of those ponderous and pudgy swimmers who have taken so many of the world's aquatic laurels. She weighs but 152 pounds and expects to register about 132 when she leaves the water.

Most of the time she treads water, moving her legs as though climbing endless stairs and lazily fanning her arms.

"She's a professional swimmer," said her manager, "but what do you suppose she does on her days off? She goes swimming."

PAUL PREHN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF N. B. A.

TORONTO, Oct. 16 — (AP) — Paul Prehn, head of the Illinois state athletic commission, was elected unanimously to the presidency of the National Boxing association today. His name alone was placed in nomination.

The delegates of 26 states and several foreign countries, meeting in their annual convention, chose S. Isaacs, of the Ohio delegation, vice president; B. Allan, of Kansas, second vice president; A. C. Foster, of Providence, Rhode Island, third vice president, and J. C. Taylor, of North Carolina, fourth vice president. The delegates refused to accept the resignation of Secretary Cogswell, of Baltimore, Md.

Chicago was selected for the next convention site. The date suggested was the third Monday in September 1929, invitations were received from Detroit and Quebec.

A striking contrast between the Borah of the senate and the Borah of the present campaign, Senator Joe T. Robinson contended in a campaign speech in Boise, Idaho, that the Idaho statesman at election time, puts aside "his armor of righteousness" and becomes a "swashbuckling political partisan."

POETRY

Gentian

So all day long I followed through the fields
The voice of Autumn, calling from afar;
And now I thought: "You hazel thickets yields
A glimpse of her," and now: "These asters are Sure sign that she of late has passed this way."
Lo! here the traces of her yellow hair
And once I looked and seemed to see her stand
Beneath a golden maple's black-drawn boughs
But when I reached the place, naught but a band
Of crickets did perform their tuneful vows
To the soon fading grass, and through the leaves
The quiet sunlight, falling, blessed my brows
Till, as the long rays lengthened from the west,
I came upon an altar of gray stone,
O'er which a creeper flung with glorious zest
Her flickering flames. About that altar lone,
The crowding sumac burned with steady fire;
Before it, stately, stood a priestess, one
Who turned to me her melancholy eyes
I saw her beauty, ripe with color's breath,
Yet veiled as when on wood and hill there lies
A mist, a shadow, as of coming death
And while I gazed she faded; swift I clutched
Her fringed cloak, which rent, my grasp beneath.
And she was gone, as fluttered to the ground
Its many fragments, I, with sudden fears,
Stooped, vainly seeking them, when all around
The blue fringed gentian smiled up through my tears,
As one who knows his welcome will be warm,
Although sad news to his beloved he bears.

—Elizabeth Green Crane.

Little Boy Blue

The little toy dog is covered with dust,
But sturdy and stanch he stands;
And the little toy soldier is red with rust,
And his musket moulds in his hands.
Time was when the little toy dog was new,
And the soldier was passing fair;
And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue
Kissed them and put them there.

"Now, don't you go till I come," he said
"And don't you make any noise!"
So, toddling off to his trundle-bed,
He dream' of the pretty toys;
And, as he was dreaming, an angel song
Awakened our Little Boy Blue—
Oh! the years are many, the years are long,
But the little toy friends are true?

Ay, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand,
Each in the same old place,
Awaiting the touch of a little hand,
The smile of a little face;
And they wonder, as waiting the long years through
In the dust of that little chair,
What has become of our Little Boy Blue,
Since he kissed them and put them there.

—Eugene Field.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What about the school of experience?"

"So few of the courses are optional."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Host—Shall we join the women?

Guest—I'd rather not just yet. My lungs are a trifle weak; I can't stand the smoke.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Smith—How did you get those two black eyes?

Scrapp—My wife gave me a pair of socks for my birthday.—College Banter.

Mistress (to green help)—Did you empty that pan of water under the refrigerator, Norah?

Norah—Yes, mum, and I replaced it with fresh.—Christian Science Monitor.

"Immediately after he married my daughter the bounder touched me for 500 pounds."

"And have you had anything back from him?"

"Yes; my daughter." — Passing Show.

The Dean—The undergraduates complain that your language is too pedantic and unintelligible.

Professor Letterking—Impossible! Why, sir, to employ a vulgarism, perspicuity is my penultimate appelation.—Vancouver Province.

The woman was planning for a summer bungalow. She was put to it for a name. "Put-Inn," "Tarry-Inn," "Come-Inn," all these names came to her mind, but most of them had been used many times and did not seem very appropriate anyway to her particular abode.

"I'll tell you just the name for it," said one who knew her well. "Call it 'Seldom-Inn'."—Boston Transcript.

The famous criminal lawyer had won a shockingly bad case by eloquence and trickery, and a rival lawyer said to him, bitterly: "Is there any case so low, so foul, so vilely crooked and shameful that you'd refuse it?"

"Well, I don't know," answered the other with a smile, "what have you been doing now?"—The Farm Journal.

They yearned for their usual life on the farm in Sanbornton, from which they never before departed, so much that a veterinarian who was called in after the oxen took sick ordered them back to the farm.

Pink-tinted coal may be the latest fashion in anthracite if experiments now being made by a Pottsville (Pa.) prepaying company are successful. The object of the colored anthracite would be to give it a distinctive advertising feature and distinguish it from other coal. The paintlike substance is put on the coal with a sprayer, and it is said not to interfere with the burning quality.

Tourists to Italy who follow the advice given in guidebooks as to bargain stores and shops may now find it very difficult, if not impossible, to get even a few cents taken off the prices asked. Following the revolution of the era, a decree has been issued making fixed prices obligatory on all shopkeepers. Only in the case of high-class jewelry, valuable pictures and antique furniture, may bargaining still be resorted to legally.

WESTERLY

LOCAL FRIENDS PRESENT AT MRS. DOTY'S FUNERAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 16—Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock for Mrs. Sarah J. Doty of 124 Granite street, Tuesday, Westerly, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Koelb, 257 Doyle avenue, Providence. Mrs. Doty, mother-in-law of Councilman Isaac G. Smith, received fatal injuries in an automobile accident on Reservoir avenue, Providence, Saturday and her death occurred four hours later at Jane Brown Memorial hospital, where she was taken after the accident.

The home was filled with relatives and friends, many attending from Westerly and there were beautiful floral tributes. Services were conducted by Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, Westerly. Burial was in Riverside cemetery, Pawtucket, the bearers being Norman Crooker, Arthur Scott, Forrest Morgan, Fred Smith, Franklin C. Smith and Orlando R. Smith of Westerly.

HOOVER SPECIAL RUNS THRU FROM BOSTON TUESDAY 12.52

The special train of Pullmans on the New Haven railroad, bearing Republican Presidential Nominee Herbert Hoover and party, returning from a campaign tour throughout the Bay state, passed the Westerly station, west-bound at 12.52 a. m. Tuesday. A heavy and long freight was sidetracked on No. 5 siding, Bradford to Westerly, and the Quaker express was just a few minutes late at the Westerly station stop, the campaign special having preceded it by a few minutes. The train was darkened and proceeding at a 60 mile clip. Only a few passengers waiting for the Pennsylvania train, saw the special, which had left Boston shortly after 11 o'clock. A passenger on the Quaker express who had waited at Providence stated that no one appeared on the special for the few minutes it stood at the Providence station, there being some forty present and eight policemen.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR TO SPEAK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 16—Democratic spell-binders will visit Westerly this week, when Senator Alberic A. Archambault of West Warwick, democratic candidate for governor, will be the principal speaker at a democratic rally to be held Thursday evening in Morrone-Castagna hall, Canal street, under the auspices of the Westerly Smith-Robinson club. Fights To Hold Passengers

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Central railroad has learned that it must consider the comfort of its passengers, internally as well as externally, regardless of the expense. The system lost $1,272,000 on its 156 dining cars last year. The line has entered upon an intensive program to stave off the losses in passenger service which has effected the railroads generally since the rapid growth of automobile and motor bus travel. Sample "de luxe" day coaches are being tried out.

NOANK

DANCE HALL ELEVEN LOSES TO E. PROVIDENCE

Dance Hall football team left the fishing village by bus early Monday morning for East Providence to play the East Providence Wildcats, reaching that city at 10 o'clock and putting up at the Far West Hotel until game time. Coach Hurry Bennett told his players to look the city over and be back to the hotel at 12 o'clock for dinner. Then off to Peters field for the battle. It was 2.30 o'clock when the referee got the game under way. Coach Bert Lipp for the Wildcats had his strong lineup in the field. Coach Bentley was looking for his four horsemen in the backfield to go right through the city giants. Dance Hall eleven kicked off and Lightfoot Peter made a long run for 20 yards before Shoeless Keith Ebbetts sent him to the ground. Then the air attack got working and put the ball on the Dance Hall team's 5-yard line. The crowd of 3,000 fans was calling for the Wildcats to push it over. But the Charleston dancers' line held fast and in four downs they could not gain an inch so the ball went to Noank on their 3 yard line. A signal came and quickly DeBiase made a good kick out of danger and the half was over. The rest did both teams good, the score was 0-0. The coaches were pleased with the game. Soon the third quarter was on and the two-steppers from the fish town tried forward passes as Smokey Joe Walsh was there with a 35-yard heave and another one 30-yards that put the ball on the Wildcats 5 yard line. Here was where the city boys had to hold, for Noank was mad and battled for a touch-down, as the Noank rooters were calling "We want a touchdown!" Coach Lipp for the Wildcats was telling them to hold that line and never was a stone wall stronger; that line held for four downs as the four horsemen could not push the ball over. The ball went to East Providence and a short forward pass, Snappy Jones at right end caught it for a 22-yard run and tried to rush the ball through the center of Noank's line but it could not be done. The quarter ended with East Providence still holding the ball. In the final quarter a break was soon due for some team with only one minute to go. Snow was rushed in with the ball on the 47 yard line, the Wildcats had it and 15 yards to make for the first down. With a pretty drop kick and the wind taking the ball through the air over the bar for a 47 yard kick from the good right hoof of Minute Stone. It won the game for East Providence, 3 to 0. It was the best drop kick seen on that field in 25 years. The fans went wild over the hero carrying him about the field as the Wildcat cheering squad did the snake dance and a war dance.

BIG COD FOR CHOWDER WHEN CLUB HAS SMOKER

The fleet is fishing nights now, they claim it is better than the day time for the fish are caught and they are fatter and worth more at Fulton market, New York. Fifteen boats are trying their luck at night fishing. The full moon has a lot to do with the flat fish running. The boat Doris C. Capt. Durwood Main and Mate Frank Muse was off the shores of White Rock Sunday night and found the fish were running good. In one drag they got 71 barrels of cod with other fish. One cod was over 4 feet long and 11 inches around Mate Muse was all smiles to get this monster of the codfish family—the largest cod brought into the village in 20 years. Capt. Main gave the fish to the Sardine club where the members are to put on a smoker. Steward Duke Hiscock, Jr., will make them a real Noank codfish chowder this week. The boat also got eight barrels of fish for a night's work.

Eugene Sullivan has resigned as cutter at Park's market.

Look for Work—Disappointed

About 20 young fellows came into the village Monday looking for work. They heard that Noank had a big shipyard and was going to build a large steamer. That is the report they got in their home town in Massachusetts. On asking John Ashly about the shipyard, he said that only a hand full of men is working there and who ever told that story must have had a dream. "We have been all over the section as far as New York and cannot land a job! Is it on account of the coming election that work is so dull?" The men beat it home disappointed.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Palin of Providence are spending a few days in the village.

Mrs. J. Mullen of Atlanta, Ga., is visiting Mrs. H. Park.

STONINGTON

WESTERLY MAN FINED—OBSTRUCTED SIDEWALK

Dominic Nigrelli of Westerly was in Stonington town court Monday morning before Judge William A. Wilcox on a charge of obstructing a sidewalk, contrary to the town by-laws. He pleaded not guilty. He was found guilty and fined $1 and costs of $9.45. He paid.

Maj. O. Taylor was tried on a charge of failure to grant right of way on the Westerly road, causing an accident when his car hit another coming from the opposite direction. He was represented by Attorney Patrick E. Curran of Providence. He entered a plea of not guilty but after testimony by State Policeman Smith he was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $5 and costs of $12.40.

Amaror Barroni of New Haven failed to appear to answer to a charge of operating a trailer without the proper registration. The case was carried over to Monday, Oct. 22.

The case of Wshid Kirty was continued to Oct. 20 on his cash bond of $200. He figured in an accident with Miss Annie Shaw on the Stonington-Mystic road some days ago.

Miss Julia Garity has returned to New York after spending the week-end here with her parents.

The October meeting of Ocean View commandery 620, U. O. G. C., will be held this (Wednesday) evening.

Mrs. Ernest Striphandt and Mrs. Helen Hermans are spending a few days in New York, where they will make plans for a trip to Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Herbert and family of Narragansett Pier, R. I., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lewis entertained John Lewis of Bridgeport over the week-end.

John McCormick has returned to New York following a lengthy visit here.

The members of Neptune Engine company had a chowder Saturday evening, prepared by Steward George Francis. Following supper, the members were entertained by a program arranged by the social committee, Manuel Davis, Alva Allen and Fred Fallon.

At Fanquemarque, France, Mme. Labre, dean of women railroad employes, has just retired at 99. She thinks she holds the record of crossing watchman and switchman with 46 years on the one job. She is the mother of 14 children.

Insists His Discovery Opens Up Catarrh Stuffed Nostrils In Three Minutes — Sometimes Less

Advises All Catarrh Victims to Throw Away Stomach Medicines. End Loathesome Catarrh with Opex and Get Rid of Disgusting Mucous Forever

Catarrh, one of the most loathesome of diseases, is caused by germs—wicked, vicious, persistent pests that multiply rapidly and by digging into and devouring the tender membrane cause soreness, swelling, inflammation and mucous discharges.

A few years ago, Catarrh was considered incurable, because no one was clever enough to get a formula that would spread over the membranes of the nasal tract a purifying substance in which catarrh germs could not exist.

But Opex changed all that and now all you have to do to get rid of catarrh is to spray on Opex and send the germs to eternity.

Just note the picture showing how Opex puts catarrh out of business. See the steam-like smoke going in one nostril and out the other.

When you use Opex you see the healing, purifying vapor as fine as smoke coming through the nostrils—and it will come through no matter how stuffed up they are.

That's the way, to end catarrh and to lessen those annoying, ringing, buzzing noises in the ears. Many people say it is the only way.

Opex will end the most stubborn case of catarrh in a few days, because it soothes and heals the sore, inflamed membranes, reduces the swelling and purifies the entire nasal tract.

To make it easy for catarrh sufferers in this vicinity to secure a bottle of Opex and a specially constructed Opex atomizer, Lee and Osgood has agreed to keep a supply on hand at all times and will gladly show anyone how easy it is to get rid of disgusting catarrh at trifling cost.

Opex is sold for $1.00 with the distinct understanding that if you are not satisfied at the end of 30 days your money will be gladly returned. Opex is delightful to use because of its wholesome fragrance.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

Gray Squirrel

I always see him on my morning walk,
Wee prisoner in a cage of strong wire net;
He comes and claws the wires and wants to talk—
Somebody's darling furry little pet.

"You look so sad, gray prisoner," I said,
"And yet your master must be kind and good."
He curved his bushy tail and cocked his head:
"I'm lonesome for my tree-home in the wood!"

—Marie Barton.

The Beetle

The Beetle, the Beetle, he drifts to my pane;
He flutters across it again and again;
He sinks to the shadows, a moment lost,
A phantom of fields so lately crossed;
He lies to branches the breezes search,
A bit of June-time there in the virch!

A red rose leans on a slender stem;
The dew-drops there—he scatters them—
And swings all surely to and fro
Across the shadows high and low;
A glint of bronze in the starry dark;
A flock of flame, an amber spark!

The Beetle, the Beetle—a flurry, a fall;
A rustle of wings at the garden-wall;
A lone owl up in the sycamore;
A white moon on the lake's still shore;
A picture painted in silver and gray;
A petaled dreamer there in a spray!

—Leslie Clare Manchester.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES

In Hawaii, one of the many islands far out in the Pacific ocean, the natives have names for 80 or more different birds. Years ago there were many different kinds of birds in Hawaii, but the earlier birds are now rarely found. Among the rarest were the iiwi, mamo and the oo. The iiwi is still found, but almost entirely in the Mauna Loa district, 4,000 feet above sea level. The distinctive markings of this bird are wonderful golden feathers on its back. Another Hawaiian bird had peculiar golden feathers also, but it is now extinct. It was a small black songbird, the oo, with just two golden feathers on its breast. The oo and the mamo, another black bird but having scarlet feathers on its wings, were highly prized in early days for these bright feathers, which were made into capes. The golden feathers of the oo seemed most in demand for these glorious capes, which reached from the neck to the knees, and were worn only by people of quality and rank; particularly did warriors delight in this method of displaying their rank when going into battle. Since a bird never had more than two of these gold feathers, at a time, and several hundred thousand were needed for a cape, the lives of those birds had to be protected and there was a royal edict forbidding them to be killed. Natives caught them in traps so as not to harm the bird, plucked the coveted plumage and let the oo go. Later, two more golden feathers would grow to replace the plucked ones. In those days a great many natives paid their taxes in feathers of the iiwi and oo.

The native religion regarded birds as messengers of the gods and their lives were protected, hence bird life was flourishing. With the coming of Christianity and the downfall of the ancient cults birds are killed by anyone so desiring and natives no longer consider capes made of these bright feathers a prerogative of the higher classes, consequently the birds with those feathers have become almost extinct. The iiwi has withdrawn to the elevated region of Mauna Loa and thus escapes somewhat, but the oo and mamo are gone.

In the museum at Honolulu there is a cape made of the feathers of the oo, once the property of Kamehameha, who ruled Hawaii from 1736-1819, and there will never be another such cape. It is kept in a steel vault and is insured for $1,000,000.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

A Soldier's Watch

Dear Uncle Jed: Once upon a time there was a poor Prussian soldier. He wanted a watch but was too por to buy one. So he fastened a bullet to a cord and hun it from his pocket-rest. The soldiers thought that was a funny joke so they went and told the king.

One day King Frederick was walking down the street and happened to meet him, so he asked what time it was. The soldier was struck dumb at that question. He felt the blood run from his feet to his head. "Your Majesty," he said, "my watch does not tell me time but says that I must die for you any minute."

The king was so astonished and surprised that he took his own watch and presented it to him.

HELEN YOUNG, Age 14.

In the Attic

Dear Uncle Jed: This time I am going to tell you and the Wide Awakes about Fun in the Attic. One rainy day my cousin and I thought we would go up in the attic to play as it was not very nice out of doors. Finishing our dishes and other tasks we started for the attic. On the way up the old stairs I found old tools which were used by the Indians in the early days. When we reached the top of the stairs we felt the attic was very chilly and found that one of the windows in the attic was open and the rain pouring in. After we had closed the window we started to open the trunks.

My cousin started to dress up in old fashioned clothes which my mother wore when she was small. As I was not interested in what my cousin was doing I went over to the other end of the attic. Opening one of the old trunks I found many old papers which were written by men. One paper was an old one and in it there was an old picture of the soldiers at Valley Forge. After a while I found many books which were written by hand before my grandmother was born.

As I heard a noise I went over to see where my cousin was, but to my surprise she had gone. Afraid to stay there alone I went down stairs. When I reached the bottom my foot hit something. Picking it up I found that it was an old dime which was dated way back to 1816. I ran quickly to my mother and showed her the dime. She told me to keep it so I put it in my bank. Finding me cousin I told her about my adventure up in the attic. Mother son called us to supper and that ended our fun. Hope all the Wide Awakes enjoy going to school.

Disagreeable Children

Dear Uncle Jed: I must write you and my little Wide-Awake friends a story about two small boys.

I will call them Tom and Lewis. They are brothers. Tom is 7 and Lewis a little younger.

These boys always quarrel. They never want to play with the same toy. They always want one of their own.

One day their father brought home a brand new coaster wagon. When Tom saw it he wanted it, and Lewis wanted it. So their father said: "I have an idea. We will go out in the yard and play with it. Lewis shall drive the wagon and Tom will sell Lewis the leaves."

So when Lewis had spent a half hour driving the wagon Tom drove and Lewis sold the leaves.

So now the boys play with the wagon every day.

I hope that none of the Wide-Awake girls and boys behave the same as Tom and Lewis.

I hope you enjoy reading my first letter to you.

WILLIAM W. RIOUX, Age 7.
Sterling.

At the Shore

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first story to the Wide Awakes and I hope they will enjoy reading it. One hot summer day in June we thought of going swimming. We all made some lunches and took our bathing suits with us. When we got there it was ten o'clock so we did not go in swimming as soon as we got there because the water was too cold. So we stayed on the park. We went over to see the monkeys, ducks, peacocks, rabbits and the other animals.

When we got tired we went to the merry-go-round, and the swings. Then about twelve o'clock we went down to see how the water was. The water was warm so my sister and brother went in. I was afraid to go in at first so I watched my sister and brother. I was putting my feet in the water and my sister came along and pushed me in when I was not looking.

We stayed in the water for quite a while and then we thought we would go home. On the way we picked huckle berries and played games. I think we had a very nice time.

HELEN WAJDALOWSKY, age 13
Norwich

The Lost Rooster

Dear Uncle Jed: I enjoyed your talk to the Wide Awakes about the ants. It was very interesting.

I am going to tell about a roster that belongs to my brother.

My brother is ten years old, he has three roosters and three pulleta. They are nearly the same size. One night after they had gone to roost, he was down looking at them. One of the roosters was gone. So he looked all around, most every where he could think of, but could not find it. So he came in the house and told his mother the rooster was lost. He felt pretty bad about it. In the morning he went to look at them again and didn't see it.

There was a bushel basket near where they roosted. He saw it move so he looked under there and saw the rooster. We thought he must have flew up on the edge of the basket and it tiped over and shut him under. When he came up and told us about it we all had to laugh.

BERNICE WATROUS, age 13
Mystic

A Few Hints

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you and the Wide Awakes and hope they will enjoy it. I am going to give the Wide Awakes a few hints about how the boys could help their mothers. The first one is they could run errands and carry up the wood and coal. The second one is every boy should tell his mother where he was going when he left the house. I am trying to follow these rules at home and hope I will succeed in doing it. Many thoughts to you and the Wide Awakes.

HOWARD ARNOLD, age 13
Norwich

My First Letter

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you I would like to tell you about a large pine tree we found that had been struck by lightning. The lightning went right through it and came out near the root, then followed the root to the end. Now the tree is dying.

LOUISA HAISCH, Age 7.
Norwich.

Tom, Dick and Harry

Dear Uncle Jed: One day last summer my father found a nest of eleven eggs. He decided to let her hatch. One morning he went out to find she had three baby chicks. As she had so few, he thought the best way was to break the hen up and bring the chickens up by hand. He gave them to my brother.

A few days later my brother said he didn't want them and I offered him three candies for them, and as he is fond of candy he gave me the chickens. I named them Tom, Dick and Harry. I brought them in the house and put them in a box behind the stove. Later I made them a box out of-doors. Every night they came up to the back door to wait for me to come and carry them to bed. I think they are spoilt children, don't you? And as they are no longer small they are quite an armful.

ALICE L. BROWN, Age 12.
Colchester.

The Wolf Den

Dear Uncle Jed: We took a trip Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There were three machines to carry us to Putnam, Conn. to see the wolf den. While we were on the way we saw three deer. The den we went to was where Israel Putnam killed the last wolf in Connecticut. The den was narrow and three or four yards long. We had to use flashlights to see into it. After we left the den we went to Brooklyn to see Israel Putnam's statue. On one side there was a little statue of the wolf he killed. On the way home we went to the Wauregan milk bar and had some ice cream.

STEPHEN ZUGURSKI, Age 9.
Moosup.

Fun After School

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide-Awakes about some after-school fun I had. My friends and I made a small fireplace of bricks in our garden. After the fireplace was made we started the fire. Soon the flames were popping and jumping. Then we filled the pan full of grapes and water and put them on the fire. In about an hour we had the grapes all boiled and they were all grape jelly. There was a little sugar put into it. It is now grape jelly. I hope you will like my story.

PUTNAM

County Farmers association in Putnam came the announcement of a large meeting of the dairy men of the county to be held at Brooklyn Grange hall on October 24, with an elaborate agricultural and dairy programme to be presented.

Among the list of speakers is J. Stanley Owens, crop specialist at Storrs college, noted authority on pasture lands and the growing of crops. The list also includes Raymond E. Wing, county agent of the association, Robert E. Johnson, of the dairy department of Iowa State college. Mr. Johnson is a graduate of Storrs college and is known in the farming regions of Windham county as a specialist in his work.

A. R. Merrill of the dairy department of Storrs college will also speake in the interest of better methods of production.

A basket lunch will be served at noon, each one planning to attend should cooperate by bringing lunches. The committee cooperating with County Agent Wing in the arrangement of the programme is composed of S. H. Peckham of Woodstock, A. H. Amidon of Abington and P. J. Chabot of Thompson.

Work has been started on the repair of the Putnam high school athletic field on School street Principal E. L. Robinson of the high school has allowed a filling station contractor who is engaged in excavating a lot on School street to dump the excess gravel on the lot, which will result in a great saving to the athletic association as well as greatly improve the field for the remainder of the football season, final work to be started in the spring. Plans are now in order whereby a small stadium will be built around the field to allow the crowds to be seated during any of the contests which are played on the field.

Line gangs of the Southern New England Telephone company are engaged in the construction of cable lines in several sections of the city. On Ring and Narrow streets where the telephone wires are exposed to the elements, new poles are being sunk into the ground to carry the small cables which in the future will carry the wires and considerably improve the service. The telephone men are also mapping out other sections of the city in the same interests of their subscribers.

The police were today warned of a magazine fund solicitor who was going about the city on a house to house canvass seeking subscribers. The plan was to give the agent a substantial portion of the amount of a year's subscription, thereby giving him a number of votes in a contest which would enable him to complete a year's work at college. The credentials furnished by the gentlemen were not good enough to warrant every one approached to believe in him, due to past experiences and his presence in the city was reported to the police. Until late this afternoon he was not found.

The New Haven contracting concern, owners of the contract to recondition the Providence street bridge have arrived here with a number of men and have started the preliminary features pertaining to the work of reconstruction. They will be delayed for another week, before the main portion of work begins due to the shipment of the "eye" beams which are to be replaced to strengthen the structure.

NERVOUS WOMAN FINDS RELIEF

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rose, Kansas.—"I was so weak and nervous and had such a tired, worn-out feeling that I had to go to bed. Friends who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound told me how much good it had done them so I thought I would give it a trial. I could tell a difference after I had taken the first bottle. It has done me worlds of good. I am gaining in strength and recommending it and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation."—GOLDIE MCFADDEN, Rose, Kansas.

JEWETT CITY

K. OF C. INSTALLATION BY DIST. DEPUTY HENNON

At a largely attended meeting of the local council, Knights of Columbus, Monday evening, the following officers were installed by District Deputy John F. Hennon:

Grand knight, William McGovern; deputy grand knight, James Morey; chancellor, Archillie Ciocher; warden, George LeFavre; recording secretary Richard J. Dudkowski; treasurer, Thomas Barnett; advocate, Timothy Shea; inside guard, Dennis Griffin; outside guard, John Tracy; trustee, Frank Minski.

Following the installation there were brief addresses looking toward the order's general welfare and speaking of its past beneficial influence, by Rev. John J. McCabe, and Deputy Hennon.

Many other pleasant features marked the evening's entertainment. Favorable reports were heard in reference to the proposed fall and winter whist series which in seasons past has proven so popular and entertaining.

With an afternoon mercury reading of 76 with oppressive humidity, Tuesday should have shown up last August.

Dennis Sullivan, junior clerk at the postoffice, was painfully injured on Monday while dumping sacks during the distribution of the heavy morning mail, his foot was injured by a saw that fell from one of the bags. He will be off duty for several days.

Irving O. Burdick's son took a short hunting trip Monday morning over on the mountain, near his home in the south part of the town. The young man now holds the ribbon on woodchucks. Between him and the dog they brought in one in 15 minutes that tipped the beam at an equal number of pounds.

During the late afternoon Tuesday, the horizon all about the borough was dimmed by low lying clouds of smoke.

Considerable lead is being thrown about in the local woods, but with little game to show. Young hunters are generally in the woods the minute the law is off, with the old-timers waiting until the leaves have fallen to such an extent that aim may be more certain.

A surprise party was given Mrs. Albert Malek recently, proving a pleasant time for everyone who attended. Games were enjoyed and refreshments served. These present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ruszenas, Mr. and Mrs. Glowacki, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Malek, Mr. and Mrs. Strano of Norwich, Mr. and Mrs. Jaskiewicz, Mr. and Mrs. Andrewcik, Mrs. Papinska, Mrs. Dudkowski, Mrs. Tenczar, Mrs. Ozga, Mr. and Mrs. Stadnicka, Mrs. Wojdan, Mr. and Mrs. Jameszko, Mrs. Novak, Mrs. Nowakowski, Mrs. Wozniak, Mrs. Jurak, Mrs. Matcha, Mrs. Pajak, Mrs. Gawronska.

A. C. G. CLUB MEMBERS MEET AT GREENEVILLE

The A. C. G. club was entertained Monday evening in Greeneville by Mrs. Tyler Gilbert at her home on Prospect street. Mrs. Gilbert served a delicious supper of chicken salad, olives, pickles, Parker House rolls, Neopolitan ice cream, lady fingers, macaroons, salted nuts and hot chocolate. The dining room was festive and spooky with its Hallowe'en decorations of witches, black cats and hob-goblins. The guests were Misses Isabel Marshall, Bessie Thompson, Julia and Ruth Sayles, Mildred McCluggage, Mildred Olson, Margaret Gohery, Doris Burr, Marian Jeffers, Harriett McCluggage, Loretta Alley and Mrs. Bernice Purvis. The officers of the club are: President, Julia Sayles; vice president, Mildred McCluggage; secretary, Margaret Gohery; treasurer, Isabel Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Richardson have returned from an automobile trip covering two weeks.

THE OIL SHARES AND HIGH PRICED INDUSTRIALS FEATURED MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—Revival of activity and strength in the oil shares and the extension of recent advances in several of the high priced industrials and specialties featured the irregular price movement in today's stock market. Profit-taking sales brought about sharp recessions in some of the recent leaders, but more than two score issues were marked up to record high levels during the session, some of the gains ranging from 3 to nearly 10 points. Trading was again in large volume, the day's sales running over 4,500,000 shares. The ticker was 40 minutes late in recording the final quotations.

Extensive readjustment of the bank's positions at the federal reserve bank caused another temporary stringency in call money, which held firm all day at 7 1-2 per cent. An early return flow of funds to New York is expected by bankers to bring the rate down to around 6 per cent before the end of the week. Time money was in more plentiful supply at 7 per cent, with the demand relatively light.

The sudden outburst of buying in the oil shares was based on three factors: 1, the conference of oil executives looking to a curtailment of Venezuelan production which is believed to be part of a world curtailment program; 2, the announcement of plans for the formation of an oil export company under the Webb act, and 3, the publication of excellent third quarter earnings reports by the Tidewater Associated and White Eagle companies.

Barnsdall, Beacon Oil, Penick & Ford and Mexican Seaboard all touched new high levels for the year. Pan American B, Sinclair, Texas Corporation, Phillips and several others changed hands in tremendous volume, the gains ranging from fractions to nearly 4 points.

The growing tendency of corporations to split up the high priced stocks in order to assure wider distribution, which gained impetus today by the announcement of a recapitalization plan for Montgomery-Ward whereby each stockholder will be entitled to purchase two additional shares for $17.50 each for each share now held, provided the background for the advance in several of the so-called "blue chip" issues.

Montgomery-Ward attained a new high record at 306 and then broke to 291 1-2, off 12 1-2 net, on the traditional "selling on the good news." Motor Products was weak all day, closing 16 points lower at 195. Case Threshing touched a new top at 403 and then slipped back to 393 3-4, up 8 points net. National Tea soared 9 points to a new high at 300 and retained most of its gain. International Harvester reached a new high at 328 3-4 and then broke to 322, off 6 points net.

Dupont advanced 5 1-2 points to 407, the best price in its history, and closed at the top. General Motors crossed 221 to a new peak and then settled back to 218 3-4, up 1 3-4 net. Chrysler fell from an early high of 139 5-8 to 136 1-2, off 1 point net.

New peak prices for the year, or longer, also were registered by American Express, Grand Union common and preferred, F. & W. Grand Stores, Victor Talking Machine, Industrial Rayon, Union Carbide, National Cash Register, Mathieson Alkali, Cushman, Chile Copper, Calumet & Hecla, Hennecott, Household Products, Booth Fisheries first preferred, and several others.

The run-up of more than 4 points in Kansas City Southern to a new high at 66 1-2 and the establishment of another new peak by Rock Island common at 132 3-4 divided speculative interest in the railroad group.

Foreign exchanges moved within extremely narrow and irregular limits, with sterling cables holding steady around $4.85 1-32.

Except for a slight recession in coffee prices, most of the leading commodity markets pointed upward. Cotton rallied $1 or more a bale and wheat futures advanced a fraction a cent a bushel.

Burgess Bedtime Story

The Setting of the Traps
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Beware of traps; they hidden lie
To catch the careless passerby.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Jimmy Skunk was comfortably napping under an old barn. Jimmy didn't know what was going on outside, and he didn't care. But something was going on out there that would have interested Jimmy if he had known about it. You see, the owner of that barn knew that Jimmy was under it. The owner of that barn was not as wise as Farmer Brown's Boy in the ways of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. More than this, he was very much put out with Jimmy Skunk. You see, his dog had tried to kill Jimmy and Jimmy had used his little scent-gun. Now that dog would not be allowed to come near the house for some time.

"I believe that Skunk is still under this barn," said the man, as he stood

"I believe that Skunk is still under the barn," said the man outside with a terrible gun in his hand. "That silly dog won't go in and bring him out, and I certainly can't go in. I'll set a few traps. I don't want any Skunks about my place."

New Farmer Brown's Boy could have told that man something about Skunks. Farmer Brown's Boy knows that Jimmy Skunk is a very useful citizen. He knows that Jimmy does a great deal of good. Farmer Brown's meadow was a much better meadow than the meadow of this neighbor who was planning to set traps. And one reason was that Jimmy Skunk had made it his business to dig out and eat all the white grubs that live in the grass roots in Farmer Brown's meadow. All the year 'round Jimmy is busy doing things that help the farmer. But, like this man who was planning to trap him, many farmers don't know this.

First, the man went all around the barn and blocked up every hole that Jimmy could get out through. He wanted to make sure that Jimmy would be in there when he returned with the traps. Then he went back to the house and presently he returned with three steel traps, those wicked things that cause so much suffering to those who are caught in them. He opened the place where Jimmy had gone in, and taking great care, he set the three traps in such a way that no one could go in or out without stepping in one of them.

"There!" said he. "I guess I'll have that Skunk by morning. Skunks are not very smart. He'll just walk right into one of these traps. I won't even have to bait them. Some animals would suspect a trap, but a Skunk isn't smart enough."

Satisfied that the traps were properly set, and that Jimmy would sooner or later be sure to step in one of them, the man went back to the house. All the time Jimmy Skunk was comfortably sleeping in a far corner under the barn. Traps had never entered Jimmy's head. He was quite unconcerned. He had been so long independent that he wasted no time worrying.

"Let other people do the worrying," is a favorite saying of Jimmy Skunk's, and he lives up to it. It was a long, long time since Jimmy had been really bothered by anyone and he had grown to expect that no one would bother him. So he slept comfortably, with pleasant dreams, and there around the entrance hole three grim steel traps lay in wait for him.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—(AP)—Despite announcement of 33,670,000 bushels increase of the world's wheat available supply, wheat prices today scored an advance. Indications here pointed to larger export business in progress than is being made public, and word was at hand that snow and sleet is causing delay to domestic winter wheat seeding west.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-2c to 7-8 net higher, with corn 1-2c to 3-4c up, oats showing 1-4c to 1-2c advance, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 80c.

Unlooked for strength of the Liverpool wheat market helped give an upward trend from the outset today to the price of wheat in Chicago. It quickly became evident also that lively exchanging of wheat future delivery contracts was going on here for seaboard account, cash delivery being substituted in quantities which implied that export business in wheat from North America was of heavy volume, much in excess of what current estimates would point to as probable. Meanwhile, also considerable significance was attached to the fact that latest figures on the wheat crop of Italy showed nearly 2,000,000 bushels falling off compared to the previous generally accepted total.

Housed with eastern connections were active on the buying side of wheat in the late dealings. Strength of the corn market acted likewise at times as a bullish influence on wheat, and so too did talk which was heard that the Chicago wheat market is present evidence of becoming easily oversold, a circumstance that appeared to give warning against any aggressive bear pressure. It was also a subject of comment that huge receipts now both in this country and Canada were failing to bring about corresponding further setbacks in price either here or at Winnipeg.

Wet weather, export business, and scanty receipts combined today to strengthen the corn market. Arrivals of corn in Chicago were restricted to 18 cars and the amount of new corn booked to arrive was only 10,000 bushels. Throughout the corn belt weather appeared to be decidedly adverse for field work and for conditioning the new crop. Oats averaged higher owing to sympathy with other grains.

Provisions had a downward slant, largely as a result of an easier trend in hog values.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

HAPPINESS BOYS ARE APPEARING AT THE ELKS' FAIR

During the opening of a store in Plainfield, New Jersey, the Happiness Boys, Billy Jones and Ernest Hare brought forth such a crowd of potential listeners that both front windows of the store were broken. To quell the eager mob, the police reserves of the town were called out. This helps prove the "smashing" popularity of the Happiness Boys, Billy Jones and Ernest Hare.

Comes to the state armory for the Elks' fair Wednesday night and listen to them. You will agree that their popularity is justified. It will be the first appearance of the Happiness Boys in this town and we want to give them a rousing reception, one that they have never seen and one that they won't forget in a hurry.

Both Billy and Ernie are noted for their versatility. Not only do they appear on the air in addition to their personal appearances but they are noted for their recording ability. These two boys have made more records than any other team in existence. Their popularity on the air and the tremendous sale of their records make them a big feature that we are glad to have with us.

When Ernie starts to croon a southern song, Billy joins in with a rich, mellow, tenor voice, that seems to carry you "w-a-a-a-y down south." Their harmony is unequalled.

DeSoto Production Reaches 500 a Day

That production of the Chrysler-built new DeSoto Six had reached nearly 500 cars a day by the end of September, was revealed yesterday by C. W. Matheson, DeSoto vice president in charge of sales, from which it would appear that in less than two months after its announcement, the DeSoto Six is being produced on a scale never before attained by any other company in the same space of time.

The speed with which the production and sales of this new Chrysler product have been developed has certainly surprized the industry and the public.

Breed Theatre

"Lilac Time," Colleen Moore's special production, now attracting record throngs to the Breed theatre, is a screen version of the celebrated stage play of the same name by Jane Cowl and Jane Murfin. It was directed by George Fitzmaurice and produced for First National Pictures by John McCormick.

"Lilac Time" has been called "the most beautiful romance," and centers upon two youngsters. One is Jeanine, protrayed by Miss Moore, a little French girl on whose mother's farm a squadron of young British flyers are quartered. The other is Capt. Philip Blythe, a ridiculously youthful pilot in that spectacular and heroic suicidal division, the Royal Flying Corps, played by Gary Cooper.

John McCormick produced "Lilac Time," which Carey Wilson prepared for filming from Jane Cowl's and Jane Murfin's triumph.

Broadway Theatre

One of the first and most successful Talking Pictures, "The Lion and the Mouse" Warner Bros.' extended run production, comes to the Broadway theatre tomorrow for a run of three days only Thurs. Fri. and Sat. This is an adaption of the famous Charles Klien play, which was the dominating stage success of its time, following a long Metropolitan run by tremendous success on the road. The screen version has caught all the verve of the original and has the added attractions of setting which is one of the advantages of the cinema, and also the marvellous talking sequences.

The all-star cast is headed by tiny, captivating Mae McAvoy and Lionel Barrymore, acknowledged as one of the greatest actors of the generation. Alec Francis, affectionately remembered for his work in "The Music Master" and "The Return of Peter Grimm," is prominently cast. Willie Collier's talented son plays juvenile. And the veteran of many hits, Emmett Corrigan, has a sympathetic role. All who saw comical Jack Akroyd as Alf in "The Better 'Ole," will welcome him in "The Lion and the Mouse."

The story is that of "Ready Money" Ryder, a man of wealth and power, who has been angered by the decision of a certain judge, affecting his holdings. In retaliation Ryder suavely advises the judge to buy certain stocks, and when he does so publicises the fact that he has accepted a bribe. The judge is ruined financially.

Shirley, the judge's daughter, is a sculptress in Paris, and there meets the rich man's son, Jeff, who comes with her to America. In order to get a certain letter from her father's persecutor, she gets an order to make a bust of Ryder, Sr., and for the purpose of the sittings lives in his home. With the boy's help, search for the letter is made. Ryder discovers the two, and accuses his son of theft. The boy has been insisting that he means to marry Shirley, to which his father objects, not knowing that the girl in his home is the same person. When the two are discovered, the girl makes a clean breast of things—and the dramatic story reaches the finest of its many flights of emotion.

Lloyd Bacon directs "The Lion and the Mouse." It is a play that no lover of realistic romantic drama should fail to see.

JUMPED FROM FERRYBOAT—WOMAN SAVED BY SAILOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 16—Tired of life and presumably this condition being brought about by a love affair, Miss Bessie Reed, about 25, of 13 Amity street, attempted suicide this afternoon by jumping into the Thames river. A sailor who saw the young woman floundering about in the water rescued her.

The young woman had been observed the greater part of the afternoon loitering about the Union station and about 5 o'clock she boarded the ferryboat for Groton. While the boat was at the slip and unobserved by employes on the boat or by passengers, Miss Reed passed through the gates at the forward end of the boat and jumped overboard. Charles F. Mosher, a member of the coast guard boat Falcon, was on the municipal pier and seeing the woman in the water, dove into the river and swimming to her kept her afloat till employes of the ferryboat pulled sailor and woman to the dock. The police were notified of Miss Reed's act, and Patrolman Harry Watterson, who went to the municipal pier, had Miss Reed wrapped in blankets and taken to her home.

The Cotton Future Brokers' association has called a meeting for Oct. 18 to consider again adoption of exclusive 50-bale unit for future market. The unit at the present is 100 bales.

THE WILLIAM W. BACKUS HOSPITAL, a Connecticut corporation at Norwich in said State, vs. Leon Morris, formerly of New London, Connecticut. Court of Common Pleas. Supplemental Order of Notice.

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss. October 12th, 1928.

Upon the complaint of the said William W. Backus Hospital, claiming, for the reasons therein set forth, Two Hundred Fifty dollars, damages, now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of July, 1928

It appearing to and being found by the Court that the said Defendant, formerly of New London, Connecticut, has gone to parts unknown—and that notice of the pendency of the complaint was given as required by order of notice heretofore issued, and now the Plaintiff asks for a further order of notice in the premises.

It is therefore ordered, that this action be and is hereby continued and postponed for a period of three months from this date, and that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given said Defendant by publishing this order in The Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, two days successively, commencing on or before the 17th day of October, 1928.

By order of Court.

SEVEN NEW WARRANTS ISSUED BY NEW LONDON TAX COLLECTOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 16—Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander today issued seven tax warrants, which call for the sale at public auction of various properties, because their owners owe the city back taxes, some of them dating back six or seven years. The owners of the properties, the various amounts of money due the city, together with the date of sale, are Reuna M. Brockett, Ocean avenue, $690.15. Sale Dec. 18 at noon. John P. and Annie Crowley, Willetts avenue and Smith streets, $280.44. Sale Dec. 18 at 4 p. m. Rosie DeLuca, Moore avenue, $568.09. Sale Dec. 18 at 2 p. m. Emma Janet Fordham, of Sag Harbor; property located on Grove street extension, $95.50. Date of sale, Dec. 19 at 10 a. m. Isadore Goodman, Blydenberg avenue, $1,355.56. Date of sale, Dec. 18 at 10 a. m. J. Walter Libbey, Grove street, $72.59. Date of sale Dec. 19 at noon. Josephine Marino, Moore court and Bank street, $1,597.64. Date of sale, Dec. 20 at 10 a. m.

Tax Collector Alexander also issued a release of tax warrant against Thomas F. and Charlotte W. Dorsey. The warrant was issued a week ago and called for the sale of the Dorsey residence, Neptune avenue, Ocean beach because taxes were unpaid. A date for the sale of the premises was fixed, but since the issuance of the warrant the tax has been paid.

Other cases of violation of the auto law, parking in restricted areas, were presented. The accused were Jacob Weinberg, New York; John Gadbois, Niantic; Antonio Pucci, 144 Canal street, Westerly and Mrs. R. A. Horton, Ridgewood Park, Waterford. They failed to appear in court and their respective bonds of $2 were declared forfeited.

Three members of the United States Coast Guard were arrested by the shore patrol last night, but they were not presented in court, being turned over to the patrol and taken back to the state pier for military discipline.

Another case of intoxication was presented and a fine of $10 and costs was imposed.

Salvatore Annello, 78 Jefferson avenue, was arrested today charged with breach of the peace and will be in court tomorrow. Annello went to his home about noon and according to his wife, he abused her. Mrs. Annello made complaint to the police and her husband was arrested by Acting Sergeant William Graham and Patrolman Albert Iverson.

City Manager William A. Holt has started on his vacation and will be absent from the municipal building two weeks. Until City Manager Holt's return his duties will be fulfilled by Director of Finance Carey Congdon.

Mrs. Hota Brown Gamble, 365 West Rayen avenue, Youngstown, Ohio, has communicated with the police requesting aid in locating her sister-in-law, Mrs. Grant H. Brown. Mrs. Gamble said that Mrs. Brown formerly resided in this city.

The annual Hallowe'en parade, conducted by the Y. M. C. A. will be held on the night of the 31st inst., and already arrangements for the event have been started by the appointment of several committees.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Swanson, of 11 Grand street entertained last night on the fourth birthday of their son Eric, Jr. Ten children spent the evening in playing games. Refreshments were served.

Tomorrow night members of the Harbour club will be guests at a turkey dinner given by the Faire Harbour club. Dinner will be served under the direction of Mrs. John F. Noyes.

At Connecticut college over 100 students have formed a Hoover club. Later a smaller number formed a Smith club. Both organizations plan to hold several rallies in the city between now and election.

Republican campaign headquarters in the Neptune building this city will be open every day from now until November 4. Mrs. Frederick S. Weld is in charge of the office and will have the assistance of women workers.

A mass meeting on the World's Mission of Christianity is to be held in this city Thursday at the Methodist Episcopal church. The meetings will be held jointly with the Norwich District Ministers' association.

Last night two small boys were discovered in the act of removing articles from a car back of the Hotel Mohican. They were taken into custody and turned over to Probation Officer George E. MacDougal, awaiting a hearing before Judge Prince.

PRESENTED GATELEG TABLE ON WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 16—Friendship circle of the King's Daughters of the Second Congregational church presented Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Edson of Perry street a beautiful mahogany gateleg table last night on their fifth wedding anniversary. A social evening was spent after which refreshments were served. Those present were Mrs. Cecil P. Calkins, Mrs. H. A. Gilman, Mrs. Frederick Beebe, Mrs. C. Ernest Cadmus, Mrs. Harry Norman, Mrs. Howard E. Beckwith, Mrs. William G. Dunn, Mrs. Albert E. Saxton, Mrs. William A. Scholfield, Mrs. Frances S. Barnes, Mrs. P. W. Miller, Mrs. Elmer E. Kenerson, Mrs. John H. Bell, Mrs. Florence Coldwell, Miss Mary A. Winchester, Mrs. Elizabeth M. McDougal, Mrs. George R. Morris, Mrs. Calvin A. Beebe, Mrs. Fred Malcolm, Mrs. Earl N. Parks, Mrs. Charles A. Edgerton, Mrs. Clarie L. Star, Mrs. George H. Swanson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horton, Miss Lois Horton, Bradley Edson and Beula Star.

Members of the Mothers' Guild of the Methodist church held a Halloween party at the church tonight, under direction of Mrs. Raymond H. Stearns and a committee.

The fall rally of the First Baptist church held last night proved very enjoyable. A program of music and readings was rendered and a style show was held. More than 175 persons were in attendance. At the conclusion of the evening refreshments were served. The decorations were prepared by members of Circle No. 7 of the church.

Miss Bernice Chappell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Chappel of Willimantic and Edward McKinney of the same city were married Sunday. The bride was formerly in the employ of the G. M. Williams Co. of this city.

A birthday party was given last night for eleven-year old Selma Kaplan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Kaplan, 44 Blackhall street. The house was attractively decorated and the evening was spent in music and games following which refreshments were served.

The winter class in health of the Y. W. C. A. opened last night. Fourteen members were present and listened to an address on gymnastics given by Miss Reba Coe, recreational secretary of the Y.

Leon Jarvis of Poquonoc Bridge; Billy Saunders, United States Coast Guard and John Maynard, 408 Ocean avenue, the last named one of those struck by fragments of a bomb in connection with the Columbus day celebration at Morgan park Friday, were patients discharged today at Lawrence Memorial hospital. Mr. Maynard's daughter, Elizabeth, also injured in the bomb explosion, is still a patient at the hospital, but will be discharged within a few days.

Robert Howard, driver of one of the American Express trucks made complaint to the police this afternoon that as he was driving from Willetts avenue into Maple avenue, a woman driver caused her machine to make a left-hand turn resulting in her machine colliding with the truck and damaging a fender. Howard did not obtain the markers on the colliding auto.

Mrs. Arthur Diaggio, 495 Montauk avenue, a patient at Home Memorial hospital where she has been under treatment about three weeks, is reported as being somewhat improved.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Clark S. Rogers

Mary Morgan, 83, widow of Capt. Clark S. Rogers, died last night at her residence, at Great Neck, Waterford, death being caused by infirmities attending Mrs. Rogers' advanced years. She had been feeble for a long time. She is survived by four sons, Willard A. Rogers and Cady S. Rodgers, of this city, Capt. Joseph S. Rogers and Iva M. Rogers, Rensselaer, N. Y., and by six grandchildren, Mrs. Phoebe M. Skinner, Miss Jean Grant, and Mrs. Earl Vaughn, of this city; Mrs. Donald Daboll, Waterford; Stoneson Grant, Salt Lake City, Utah and Iva M. Rogers, Jr., Rensselaer. Two great-grandchildren, Gladys R. Skinner, of this city and Marion Daboll of Waterford, also survive. Mrs. Rogers was born in Waterford and had always resided there. She was a member of the Waterford Seventh Day Baptist church. Capt. Rogers died about 35 years ago.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Victor Simo.

The funeral of Mrs. Annie Simon, wife of Victor Simon, formerly residing on Cohanzie road, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Michael Reagan. The bearers were William T May Edward J. Murray, George Riordan and Leon St. Germain. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

OBITUARY

Marian C. Russell

Marion C. Russell, well known resident of Niantic, died this morning at his residence, after a lingering illness. Mr. Russell is survived by his wife, three brothers, Frank and Ernest Russell, and Claude Russell of Niantic. Mr. Russell was a stone-mason and had always resided in Niantic.

One of the larger types of locomotives used by the New Haven railroad in hauling freight trains, was derailed at the approach to the Fort Neck bridge this afternoon, causing a slight delay to west-bound traffic. The cause of the derailment was the engine splitting a switch.

Allen M. Strickland, 62, died yesterday at Hartford, where he had been a resident since his removal from this city many years ago. Mr. Strickland, who was a carpenter is survived by a son, Harry A. Strickland, of this city; a daughter, Mrs. Mary J. Teffy, of Oakdale and three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Beebe, Mrs. A. J. Beckwith and Miss Annie Strickland, all of New London. The body will be brought to New London for burial.

RUN OVER BY HIS CAR, GEO. CHAPPELL MAY LIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 16—A slight improvement was reported tonight in the condition of George Chappell, about 45, who was run over by his own automobile in Waterford last Saturday night. Chappell sustaining internal injuries, as a result of a crushed chest, besides lacerations of the scalp and left leg. He is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Chappell sustained his injury when the starter on the engine of his Dodge car became defective. While the car was set in gear, Chappell attempted to start the engine by cranking it and after two or three attempts succeeded, but as he did so the car started forward, knocking Chappell down and running over the upper part of his body.

For six days prior to the presidential election a demonstration of the voting machine will be held in this city, that an opportunity for local voters may be available to familiarize themselves with the workings of the machine. Great stress is being laid in urging all who have not previously used the contraption to make sure and learn its workings. Otherwise many errors in voting might occur.

The continued cases of Lorenzo Montali, 28 East street; Augusto Peroni, 26 Nameaug street; Arturo Pettinari, 48 East street; Raymond Giustini, 54 Smith street; Vincent Gauderizi 54 Goshen street and Gino Angelo, 25 Fourth street, charged with breach of the peace and inciting to riot, were again continued, in the police court, this morning. The continuance is to the 23rd inst., and the accused furnished sureties on their respective bonds for appearance next week, when it is believed that the cases will be disposed of. The six men, it is claimed engaged in a free-for-all fight with other Italians and it is claimed used blackjacks and sections of lead pipe as weapons. The cause of the fight, it is also claimed, was a controversy arising out of arrangements for the Columbus day parade and started a few minutes before the starting of the parade on Steward street, a short distance from where the parade formed.

Several more autoists were presented in court because of their failure to hed a traffic signal set at danger at the corner of Howard and Bank streets, all of the arrests being made by Traffic Officers Dennis and Thomas Cavanaugh. In each case suspension of judgment was given. The offending drivers were Frank Wyrod, 869 Bank street; Hamilton Jewett, Old Lyme and William T. Sizer, 118 Howard street.

GREENEVILLE

At St. Mary's Memorial church on Monday morning at 1.30 o'clock a month's mind mass of requiem was offered by Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor for the repose of the soul of the late Joseph R. Portelance. Mrs Michael J. Farrell, organist, had charge of the musical program. Many family friends and relatives attended.

Miss Mary Mallon has returned to resume her studies at the Baltic academy after spending her week end recess at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Mallon of Convent avenue.

The second meeting of the K. B. sewing circle of Auxiliary No. 18, L. A., A. O. H., was held at the home of Mrs. Dennis E. Sullivan of North Main street Wednesday evening. A large class attended and several new members were voted. A busy hour was spent in the making of lampshades, fancy work, boudoir pillows, and other articles. Mrs. Sullivan served refreshments which consisted of rolls with frankfurters, assorted cake and fancy wafers and coffee. The hostess was ably assisted by Miss Carroll and Mrs. Theodore Levitsky. Piano and vocal solos were rendered by several members during the social hour which followed.

The evening proved to be very pleasant to all attending. The next meeting of the class is to be held at the home of Mrs. Peter Mitchell and Mrs. Eugene Sabourin of 469 Main street.

Mrs. Frank H. Riordan has returned to her home at Providence after spending a few days at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Riordan of 134 Prospect street.

Mrs. Mary Gately has returned to her home on North Main street after being the guest of relatives at Bridgeport.

The H club held their regular weekly meeting in the clubrooms Monday evening with a large attendance, with President Wallace Atterbury presiding. The committee in charge of ladies' night, which will be held in the near future, gave favorable reports.

Lynwood Crary has returned to his home in Preston after a recent visit at New Bedford.

Mrs. Edward Riordan has returned to her home after spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Riordan of Providence.

Miss Delia and John O'Shea have returned to their home at Jewett City after spending a few days as the guests of their cousin, Mrs. Michael Shea, of 495 North Main street.

John McClafferty has returned to Southbridge after spending a few days at his home on Hickory street.

Morris Goldblatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Goldblatt of North Main street, has been pledged to the Tau chapter of Phi Alpha at William and Mary college. He was an athletic star at the Norwich Free Academy.

At a mark of respect to the former assistant manager, United States Finishing Co., William H. Collins, who was buried from his late residence, 63 McKinley avenue, work was stopped for a minute throughout the factory and the factory whistle blown three short blasts. Tuesday. Mr. Collins had been connected with this company as an overseer for a long term of years.

Frederick Carter has returned to his home on Central avenue after spending a few days at Brockton.

NELSON ROACH LEFT SUM FOR CEMETERY CARE

E. Nelson Roach of Ledyard left the sum of $1,000 by his will, the income of which is to be used for the care of his burial lot at Ledyard Center and on his father's cemetery in Ledyard on the Roach farm. The money is to be deposited in the savings bank and the selectmen of Ledyard are to have charge of it.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS BY LEGION AUXILIARY

The regular meeting of Robert O. Fletcher auxiliary was held Monday night in the Legion rooms. The officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Mrs. William R. Denison, president; Mrs. Leslie Fletcher, first vice-president; Mrs. Harlow Bogue, second vice president; Mrs. Frank Kimball, treasurer; Mrs. John B. Oat, secretary.

Many plans were made for the coming year. It was announced that a food sale would be held in the Boston store and a rummage sale will be held very soon. The meeting closed in the usual form

MAYOR SUGGESTS COMMISSION GIVE HEARING ON ELECTRIC RATES

According to a letter from Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, which has been sent to members of the gas and electric commission, the mayor has been at the receiving end of complaints from many citizens over the recent changes in the rate of charging for electricity and he makes the suggestion that the commission arrange for a public hearing at which complaints could be received and explanations could be made.

In his letter Mayor Robbins states that many have pointed out increases in their charges for electricity which went as high as 300 per cent, and he remarks that the necessity for such increases in the face of the profit showing made by the city gas and electric department last year is not apparent.

Mayor Robbins suggests also that such a hearing would afford opportunity to sound public opinion upon the department's practice of selling appliances.

The Mayor's Letter

The letter from the mayor to the gas and electric commissioners is as follows

"Many citizens have expressed themselves to me as not comprehending the necessity for the recent changes in your basic rates for electricity. Much more dissatisfaction seems to exist than would ordinarily follow an increase in the cost of a commodity. Many have pointed out to me increases in their charges for electricity amounting to as high as three hundred per cent. The necessity for such increases in the face of your showing of profit for the last fiscal year does not manifest itself. The basis for the new rates is not readily understood by the average tax payer and many inform me that they have been unable to obtain a satisfactory explanation.

"While I personally understand that these new rates are the results of careful study by experts and are fixed upon a business basis, nevertheless, even if theoretically correct, results so obtained are not always practical and often fail to work out equitably.

"I fully appreciate that you are working for the best interest of the tax payers by trying to improve local conditions for consumers of electrical current with the object of making electricity cheaper to the majority of them.

"I believe it to be equally true that your earnest endeavor is to sell this wonderful convenience cheap enough so that even the small consumer may afford to enjoy it.

"Under the circumstances if there are exceptions where the new rates fail to meet both of your efforts, would it not be well to learn of them and try to correct them?

"Therefore, I respectfully submit for your serious consideration the advisability of holding a public hearing where those interested may learn your side of the question and present to you instances where the application of the new rates appears to be resulting in hardship.

"Our town hall is available for this purpose and a better understanding of the respective problems would be sure to result from such a meeting.

"At this same time it might also be desirable to sound public opinion upon the question of the sale of appliances by the gas and electric department.

"As a commission acting in a governmental capacity you surely desire to carry out the wishes of the people to whom you are accountable and I propose this method with that thought in mind."

RALLY PLANS MADE FOR GIRLS OF 16 CHURCHES

Plans were completed for the girls' rally to be held at the Central Baptist church Sunday, Oct. 21, at the regular business meeting of the Norwich Council of Girls Workers Monday evening at the Community house with Miss Elizabeth Pullen and Mrs. William H. Dawley acting as hostesses. The devotional services were led by Mrs. Catherine Floyd of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. Plans were discussed for the annual stunt night to take place in the early spring, the subject to be on some incident from the life of some great character. The president, Mrs. Emory H. Davis, was in charge of the meeting.

The programme for the girls' rally night, to which the public is cordially invited, is as follows:

Miss Margaret Leith presiding. Organ prelude, Miss Louise Fuller; processional, "Lead On, O King Eternal"; roll call responded to by verses on citizenship from the Bible, (President Mrs. Emory H. Davis to call the roll); hymn by congregation, "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life"; anthem, "Beautiful Land Called Home," Christ Episcopal girls; Scripture reading by Esther Evans; prayer, Mrs. Emory Davis; offertory solo, Miss Viola Hill; report of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education, summer assembly, Edna Sandberg; report of the Y. P. B. Emily Hill; paper on citizenship, Emily Bidwell; hymn dramatized, Universalist girls; pageant, "The New Era," Taftville girls; salute to the flag of the United States and to the Christian flag; benediction, Dr. David A. Pitt.

A member from each of the following churches will take part in the programme: Central Baptist, Mt. Calvary, First Baptist, Trinity M. E., Universalist, Taftville Congregational, United Congregational, A. M. E. Zion, Park Congregational, Grace Methodist, Christ Episcopal, Grace Episcopal, Greeneville Congregational, Norwich Town Congregational, Norwich Town Methodist, Third Baptist and Trinity Episcopal churches.

JUMPED INTO RIVER WITH SUICIDAL INTENT

Mrs. Angelina Gardenia, 29, of Bridgeport, who has been a patient at Norwich state hospital for about three years past, took her own life there Tuesday afternoon by jumping into the Thames river after breaking away from a group of patients with whom she was talking an after-dinner walk in charge of an attendant. According to the hospital authorities, Mrs. Gardenia had always been a quiet, tractable patient, had never run away or shown any suicidal tendencies so that her sudden act Tuesday was entirely unexpected.

While the group of trusty patients was taking their customary walk after dinner, Mrs. Gardenia broke from the line, ran through the woods towards the river and plunged into the water. The nurse and two trustees who tried to catch her were unable to do so, reached the river bank just as the woman plunged in. She got about 15 feet from shore and sank struggling in the water. Roland Monty, a boy who had seen her jump, secured a boat and got the body out of the water and onto the bank where efforts to resuscitate the woman were made but without success.

Mrs. Gardenia's husband was notified of his wife's death and is coming to the hospital to arrange for the burial in Bridgeport.

FOREST ASSOCIATION TO MEET AT HAMPTON ESTATE

A field and business meeting of the Connecticut Forest and Park association, which is to be held at Hampton next Saturday, will meet at 11 in the morning at the home of James L. Goodwin where there will be a tour of plantations and other forestry operations on the Goodwin estate. After the basket lunch at noon, for which hot coffee and sweet cider will be furnished, the programme will be continued as follows:

1:00 p. m.—Business meeting to consider incorporation of the association. 1:30 p. m.—Address of welcome, James L. Goodwin, director Connecticut Forest and Park association; "Forestry and the Private Owner," J. A. Gibbs, forest extension specialist, Connecticut Agricultural college; "Forestry and Regional Planning," Benton MacKaye, vice-chairman, Regional Planning Association of America. 2:15-4:00 p. m.—Automobile tour to Natchaug state forest, and Gen. Nathaniel Lyon Memorial state park.

Roads will be posted for the meeting.

Returns from Havana Convention

John Hubbard of No. 170 Sturtevant street, returned Monday evening from Havana, Cuba, where he attended the ten days convention of the Spanish War Veterans. The veterans were royally entertained at the Cuban city, and found the weather unusually warm.

ARGUMENTS IN THREE SUPREME COURT CASES

The supreme court of errors for the second judicial district, comprising New London county, convened in Norwich this morning with Chief Justice Charles W. Wheeler and Associate Justices William M. Maltbie, Frank E Haines, George C. Hinman and John W. Banks, on the bench.

The first case argued was that of James W. Johnson, Jr., against Charles E. Wheeler, both of Mystic. Wheeler appealed from a decision of the superior court in which judgment was given the plaintiff, a schoolboy, in the amount of $1,200 for injuries received when struck by an automobile owned and operated by the defendant.

The accident occurred on Sept. 4 1923, in Mystic. Attorney Benjamin H. Hewitt, counsel for the appellant, Wheeler, argued the appeal, while Attorney George Curtis Morgan, counsel for the boy, argued to have the judgment sustained.

Arguments were also heard in the case of Maurice O'Donnell, Jr., an electrical welder of New London, against the borough of Groton, in which the plaintiff has taken the appeal from a judgment for the defendant, rendered in the superior court.

O'Donnell sued for $15,000 damages claiming that while working at the plant of the water and electric department of the borough of Groton, he was seriously injured in an explosion which occurred there on May 21, 1927. A jury in the superior court disagreed when the case was first tried and on a retrial the jury brought in a verdict for the defendant, the borough of Groton.

Attorney Arthur T. Keefe appeared for O'Donnell, while arguments to have the verdict stand were made by Attorneys Morris Lubchansky and Harry C. Brogan, counsel for the borough of Groton.

The court concluded the business of the session and adjourned after the arguments in plaintiff's motion for re-argument in the marine insurance suit of Melville Smith and another vs. Automobile Insurance company of Hartford. This involved an insurance claim upon the steamer Atlantic which sank at a dock in a southern city. The case has once been to the supreme court in which the Mr. Smith, owner of the boat, lost the decision. Attorney George H. Gilman, counsel for Mr. Smith, argued the motion for reargument.

NORWICH BUILDING PERMITS MADE GREAT INCREASE

In the monthly statement on business conditions in the state for September, supplied through the state chamber of commerce, the following is the report of Secretary Walter H. Pilcher of the Norwich chamber of commerce:

Building permits issued during September this year amounted to 741 per cent more than the value of the permits issued during September, 1927. The value of the permits issued last month was $144,576, and those for September, 1927, being valued at $17,181. Bank debits for September, 1928, amounted to $9,067,873, a decrease of 8.8 per cent over the corresponding period for 1927. Savings bank deposits amounted to $39,154,415 on Sept. 30, 1926; $41,196,997 on Sept. 30, 1927, and $44,111,183 on Sept. 30, 1928. Gas consumption last month amounted to 14,694,000 cubic feet, an increase of 2.3 per cent over September, 1927. Electricity consumption this September was 17 per cent greater than during September, 1927, when 711,296 KWH was used. There was a net increase in telephones during September, 1927, of 38. This year there was a loss of one telephone. Postal receipts for September, 1928, amounted to $8,721 a decrease of 4.4 per cent from the $9,126 in receipts for September, 1927.

STEAM ROLLER'S SPARKS SET BARN ON FIRE

A call was received by the fire department at 4.55 o'clock Tuesday afternoon for a fire on the roof of the two story barn at 154 Main street owned by the Gordon Bros., and occupied by Louis Strom, dealer in horses. The blaze, which was extinguished with three gallons of chemicals, was caused from sparks from a steam roller used in repairing High street. Engines 5 and 6, the chief and deputy chief responded to the call.

GETTING READY FOR CHRISTMAS SEALS SALE

Mrs. Richard B. Snow and Mrs. Philip T. Welles attended the regional conference of chairman of Christmas seals sales committees for Connecticut and Massachusetts held at Springfield Monday, at which plans were discussed for this year's sales which will open soon.

On Breach of Peace Charges

Two men were before the city court Monday morning on breach of the peace charges and both were fined. They were Frank Hoxie, 56, this city and Samuel Sebastian, 24, of the Indian reservation at North Stonington and were charged with breaking in doors in local houses. Hoxie was charged with breaking in a door in a house Saturday and Sebastian was fined $15 and costs.

TAFTVILLE

George H. Vidal of Centerville, R. I., was one of the speakers at an overflow republican rally held at Riverpoint R. I., on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Vidal is a former Taftville resident, and is at present practicing law in Centerville. Mrs. Vidal has also taken an active part in republican politics in Rhode Island. She is the former Miss Elmina Belair of Providence street. Both Mr. and Mrs. Vidal have been highly commended for their creditable work among voters of Canadian extraction in Rhode Island, during the past few years. Other prominent speakers at the rally, which was held in Odd Fellows' hall, were Judge Felix Hebert and Col. H. Anthony Dyer.

A number of Taftville people motored to Providence Monday to attend the second annual Rhode Island radio exposition which is being held at the Rhode Island auditorium.

Herbert P. Hoyle of North Third avenue has been visiting friends in New Bedford, Mass.

Strangers motoring through this vicinity never fail to comment on the brilliant coloring of the autumnal foliage of the trees bordering the Quinebaug river near Tunnel Hill in Lisbon.

Local sportsmen note with interest that the state fish and game commission, in common with the commissions of other states, is to import from England several hundred cock pheasants. This will not only increase the number of male birds, which each year is lessened during the hunting season, but will introduce new blood and thereby decrease the possibility of the native birds inbreeding. During the past three years, the Taftville Rod and Gun club has liberated hundreds of English ringnecks in this locality, and they appear to be thriving well, with the number of hens increasing each year.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cotter and children and Mrs. John Brennan of lower Norwich avenue have been in Bondville, Mass., where they have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Luke Moore.

George N. Beardow and Timothy J. Sullivan, assistant registrars of voters in the fifth district, have posted in conspicuous places about the town the names of the men and women voters and those to be made voters this year.

Local friends of Edmund Davignon, who has been in the employ of the carding department of the Lawton Mills of Plainfield, have been glad to learn that he has accepted a position as assistant superintendent of a large textile manufacturing plant at Montreal, P. Q., Canada. Mr. Davignon is a former Taftville resident, as also is his wife, who is a daughter of Mrs. Timothy McCarthy of Merchants avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Davignon plan to move soon to take up their residence in Montreal.

Edmund H. Hindle of Norwich has been a recent guest of Rene Bissonnette of North B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lambert of North B street had as week-end guests their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Emile J. Dubeau of Plainfield.

Among the announced winners at the licensed dog show held in connection with the annual fair at Brockton, Mass, appears the name of Richloff of Rurik, bred at Rurik Kennels at Taftville, who won the blue ribbon of his class.

At least a dozen hunters tried to bag a cock pheasant in Lisbon on Saturday, but the wily old bird is still doing duty on the farm of Charles Schmidt on the Newent road. Mr. Schmidt shot the bird some time ago and had it mounted, and having become a little the worse for wear, placed it out in his cornfield. Practically every automobile that was carrying hunters to the surrounding woods, came to a halt at the stone wall, the men would jump out and blaze away at the bird—then drive away in disgust when they realized their mistake. One man threw a bushel or so of rocks at the specimen of the taxidermist's art.

To the 5000 who daily become owners of the new Ford car

THE service obligation of the Ford Motor Company and its dealer organization is now growing at the rate of 5000 cars a day. It is to these new car owners that this message is addressed.

The new Ford is a remarkably fine car for one that costs so little. It is simple in design, constructed of the finest materials, and built to unusually close measurements.

These are the reasons it performs so wonderfully. These are also the reasons its service requirements are so few and the up-keep cost so low.

When you receive your new car, the dealer will explain the simple little things that should be attended to at regular intervals to insure the best performance. He will also tell you something of his own facilities for doing this work promptly and at small cost.

With the purchase of your car, you are entitled to Free Inspection Service by your dealer at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. This service is due you and we urge you to take full advantage of it. Proper care during this breaking-in period means a great deal to the life of your car.

Included in the Free Inspection Service is a check-up of the battery, the generator charging rate, the distributor, the carburetor adjustment, lights, brakes, shock absorbers, tire inflation and steering gear. The engine oil is also changed and chassis lubricated.

No charge whatever is made for labor or materials incidental to this inspection service, except where repairs are necessary because of accident, neglect, or misuse.

The labor of changing the engine oil and lubricating the chassis is also free, although a charge is made for the new oil.

We believe that when you see the good effects of this inspection you will continue to have it done regularly throughout the life of your car.

You will find the Ford dealer very helpful in keeping your car in good running order for many thousands of miles at a minimum of trouble and expense.

He operates under close factory supervision and has been specially trained and equipped to do this work promptly, thoroughly and economically.

FINDS HOOVER ALWAYS HAS BEEN AN AMERICAN CITIZEN

Investigation by the Department of State Shows That Hoover Had Registered as an American Citizen in London in 1908—Has Always Retained His Residence in the United States—Facts Dissipate "One of the Most Unjust Whispering Campaigns in the History of Presidential Contests"—Crew of Graf Zeppelin Will Visit Mr. Hoover Friday Morning After Having Had Breakfast at the White House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(AP)—The state department in a formal statement today said that it had investigated the antecedents of Herbert Hoover, the republican presidential nominee, and had found that he always has been an American citizen.

The department explained that it had searched its lists of registrations in London from 1908 to 1918 and found that Herbert Hoover had registered as an American citizen in 1908 in London and that a number of passports had been issued during that period to Mr. Hoover and that he had retained his residence in the United States during all that time.

The statement was issued in the form of copy of a letter addressed to an unnamed correspondent by Assistant Secretary of State W. R. Castle, Jr. In it Mr. Castle said that Mr. Hoover always had signed his applications for passports and had made his original registration at the consulate establishing the United States as his permanent residence. In every application, he said, Mr. Hoover signed the usual form that he intended to return to the United States with the purpose of residing and performing the duties of citizenship.

"There never has been the slightest question of Mr. Hoover's American citizenship," Mr. Castle wrote.

Simultaneously with the formal declaration by the state department that Herbert Hoover has always been an American citizen, Chairman Work of the republican national committee today charged that the republican presidential nominee "has been the victim of one of the most unjust whispering campaigns in the history of presidential contests."

Chairman Work charged that fund has been raised by the proponents of the whispering campaign to misrepresent Mr. Hoover through the publication of photographs of English voters rolls listing the nominee's name. He declared that this would be "an outrage on Mr. Hoover and a fraud on the American people," because, he said, Mr. Hoover never applied for British citizenship, was never a British citizen, never voted, or attempted to vote in England and was never entitled to a vote at the British polls because he was an American citizen.

The whispering campaign has been to the effect that Mr. Hoover was at one time a British citizen or applied for British citizenship, Chairman Work said, adding that he denounced "all statements to that effect" as false and all purported copies of such applications as forgeries. For some time, he continued, he had in his possession a certificate from the proper authorities in Great Britain certifying that no application "of this character or a similar character was ever considered or presented."

BORAH PRAISES HOOVER'S WAR FOOD ADMINISTRATION

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 17—(AP)—The World war food administration record of Herbert Hoover was declared to have been "entirely friendly" to the American farmer by Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, in his second and final campaign address here tonight in the traditionally democratic state of North Carolina.

Replying to democratic critics of the republican presidential nominee's attitude on agriculture during his food administration service, the Idaho senator dealt in his speech with the farm problem of the nation, and touched upon a number of other leading issues of the political contest.

The senator said that Hoover did not have in his food administration, "one iota of power" except that delegated by President Wilson, nor did he adopt any other course than a friendly one toward agriculture.

SEC'Y. KELLOGG PAYS TRIBUTE TO HOOVER

ST. PAUL, Oct. 17—(AP)—Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg today paid tribute to Herbert Hoover, republican presidential nominee, in an address before the Ramsey County Women's Republican club. Secretary Kellogg is at his home here for a brief visit.

Praising the republican presidential nominee as "exceedingly able, conscientious and high-minded," Secretary Kellogg said that during the World war Hoover had the confidence of democrats and republicans alike.

He credited Hoover with having "knowledge and capacity" to deal with economic problems facing the country. The secretary of state said he had nothing against Gov. Alfred E. Smith, "but I ask you if there is any reason why he should be preferred to a man of the training, experience and vision of Hoover, the republican candidate."

SEN CURTIS CAMPAIGNING UP THE EASTERN COAST

WILMINGTON, Del. Oct. 17—(AP)—Hurrying up the eastern coast, Senator Charles Curtis, the republican vice-presidential nominee, carried the republican campaign into two more states today—West Virginia and Delaware.

Tonight at Wilmington, the senator lauded his party's administration of the last seven years, and advocated the tariff as a means of raising revenue as well as of protecting American industry.

In a brief visit at Martinsburg, West Virginia, this afternoon, the nominee assailed the prohibition and immigration views of Governor Smith before a crowd gathered in the city square.

He was cheered as he declared against "any states going into the whiskey business" and denounced the proposal of Governor Smith for a modification of the immigration law lest it threaten employment through a flood of new immigration."

In his prepared address for tonight, Senator Curtis reviewed tariff history and declared that the last three democratic presidents had been required to recommend revenue legislation, increasing taxes, "in order to pay the running expenses of the government which couldn't be met because of the loss of revenue resulting from their lower tariff acts."

Late tomorrow, the senator proceeds to New Jersey and he will spend two days in that state.

WEDNESDAY BUSY DAY FOR NOMINEE HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(AP)—Herbert Hoover continued to give his thought today to the speech he is to deliver next Monday night in the stronghold of his democratic opponent, Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

The republican presidential nominee interrupted his work on the Madison Square Garden address during the morning to greet Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, the two aviators whose attempted flight from Rockford, Ill., to Stockholm, ended when they were forced to land in Greenland.

The two fliers were accompanied by Assistant Secretary William P. MacCracken of the department of commerce, who later escorted them to the White House.

Other visitors of the day at the headquarters of the nominee were Jane Adams of Chicago, noted social worker, and Secretary Wilbur.

It became known during the day that members of the crew of the Graf Zeppelin would visit the nominee on Friday morning after they have breakfasted at the White House with President Coolidge.

While the nominee was devoting his attention to plans for the New York speech, which will be his last one of the campaign east of the Mississippi, some thought also was being given to his forthcoming return trip across the continent to his home at Palo Alto, California, where he will vote.

The trip, during the closing days of the campaign, will see the delivery of his last speech but one of the drive for the presidency. He will conclude the campaign in a radio speech on the night before the election, but the address that he will make on his cross-country swing is one from which his advisers are expecting much.

St. Louis is being regarded seriously as a site for the delivery of this final effort to capture the farm belt vote, although strong claims have been advanced in behalf of Milwaukee, Chicago and Minneapolis.

SOCIETY GIRL TO BECOME MISSIONARY IN INDIA

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 17—(AP)—A sail to far away India will be taken by Miss Dorothy Frink Patton, Milton, Mass., society girl and college graduate that will culminate in her marriage to Edson Clarke Lockwood of New Britain, and a life of missionary work among the natives. She will leave on the trip in 11 days and the ceremony will be performed in Madura, India, on December 8.

Both are graduates of Brown university. Mr. Lockwood leaving last year to prepare for teaching under the American board of commissioners for foreign missions in Madura college. For the past two years Miss Patton has been teaching in a private school at Providence and tomorrow night she will be commissioned for foreign missionary service.

TO SERVE AS CO-PILOT ON BELLANCA PLANE ROMA

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Oct. 17—(AP)—Captain Ronald Smith, World war aviator, with the British army, who has been employed as an aviation instructor here, today announced he had accepted an offer to serve as co-pilot of the Bellanca plane Roma in its projected trans-Atlantic flight from Old Orchard, Me. Smith said the offer came to his from Captain Sabelli, Italian aviator in charge of the proposed flight.

Captain Smith said he would leave here within the next few days for Wilmington, Del., to fly the Roma to Mitchel Field, N. Y., and then to Old Orchard. The ocean flight is expected to start within ten days, he said.

MISSINARIES WELCOMED IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Missionaries are welcomed in foreign countries and not unwanted as "superficial travelers and fly-by-nights around the world," declared Rev. Ashley Day Leavitt, pastor of the Harvard church at Brookline, Mass., speaking before the annual meeting of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions here tonight.

Dr. Leavitt told his hearers that Christianity is lodged in China to stay and should all aid and leadership be withdrawn by the older Christian countries. Christianity would nevertheless go on "winning its victories from year to year."

THE TUNNEYS LEASE A HOUSE IN LONDON

LONDON, Oct. 17—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tunney, according to report, have taken the lease for a year of a house in the Mayfair quarter of London where, after their honeymoon, it is said they intend to form a literary salon.

Harry Preston, English sportsman and friend of the retired world heavyweight champion, today said that he still expected to see Gene enter the ring again. He said, that he had told Tunney that there remained one record for him to break, referring to the occasion three years ago when Jack Dempsey fought four English heavyweights in success at a boxing tournament.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Oct. 17—(AP)—The world famous collection of Dutch art, formed by Burgomaster Six who was a patron of Rembrandt and commissioned him to paint portraits of his family, was dispersed at auction yesterday. The sale attracted dealers and connoisseurs from all parts of the world. The collection had remained intact for four centuries. Its last owner died about a year ago. The sale realized $825,000.

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 17—(AP)—Clashes with police, resulting in several minor casualties and numerous arrests, marked the general strike at Lodz, called in sympathy with the striking textile workers of that community. Nearly everything in the city is tied up except the electric plants and the newspaper and printing offices. Outside the Lodz the strike is only partial.

SMITH TO SPEND TWO FULL DAYS IN CHICAGO

SMITH SPECIAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Swinging eastward after what he described as a "satisfactory" drive through the border states, Alfred E. Smith arrived tonight on Illinois soil to give added impetus to a determined democratic bid for the third largest vote in the electoral college.

For two full days and a part of the third, the democratic nominee will stay in Chicago for conferences with party chieftains in the state which with 29 electoral votes is exceeded only by New York and Pennsylvania as a political prize.

Normally Illinois is a republican stronghold. Four years ago it registered 1,453,321 votes for Coolidge to 576,975 for Davis and the combined vote of Davis and LaFollette fell 446,310 votes short of that received by the republican nominee. Nevertheless, the democrats are out to change, if possible, its political status.

The governor's schedule today included stops at Alton, Springfield and Joliet on the way to the Lake Michigan city where he was due at 9.55 p. m. Upon his arrival, the program called for his immediate departure from the special train for the Congress hotel which will be his headquarters until his departure for Albany, N. Y., Saturday morning.

His only formal speech in the state will be given Friday night at the 131st National Guard armory from which a radio hookup will again carry his voice out over the nation. He has not disclosed the subject for that address.

SEN. ROBINSON'S TOPIC RELIGIOUS INTOLERANCE

OGDEN, Utah, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The "propaganda" that Governor Smith, if elected, president, would turn the government over to the pope of Rome was declared by Senator Joe T. Robinson tonight to be subversive of intelligence and happiness and "seeks to undermine the foundations of liberty and equality."

Devoting virtually an entire campaign speech to religious tolerance Senator Robinson declared "that the preservation of liberty—liberty in its full and comprehensive sense—is an issue of this campaign." He said to "an organized political effort" a spirit of intolerance such as prevailed in the dark ages.

MELLON REGENTS SMITH'S CRITICISM OF TREASURY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Criticism of federal finance methods and accomplishments voiced by Governor Smith, democratic presidential nominee, at Sedalia, Mo. yesterday drew prompt fire today from administration spokesmen.

Secretary Mellon from the treasury department issued an official statement declaring that Smith's "whole address exhibits the most superficial knowledge of what has actually taken place, and in citing figures he has been guilty of what even the most charitably minded would have to describe as inaccuracies."

Chairman Work for the republican national committee, challenging the Smith address, asserted that "there is not an individual or business concern in the United States but is paying less money into the treasury now than in 1921, due to the tax reduction program of the republican administration."

"Under ordinary circumstances I would not think it worth while to answer a purely political speech," Mr. Mellon said.

GOV. SMITH ARRIVED IN CHICAGO LAST NIGHT

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The special train bearing Gov. Alfred E. Smith, democratic candidate for the presidency, arrived at the Union station in Chicago at 10 p. m. tonight. A large crowd, who had been waiting more than an hour, cheered as the nominee appeared.

TO CONTINUE STUDY OF DIVORCE PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(AP)—The special commission of the Episcopal church, appointed three years ago to study the divorce problem, was today ordered continued by a unanimous vote of the bishops. The action followed presentation of a report of its survey to the general convention of the church, which recommended no changes in the Episcopal church law.

The report, presented by the Rt. Rev. Herman Page, bishop of Michigan, and chairman of the commission, noted that the "greatest need is for more homes that are really animated by the ideals of Jesus Christ," and "for the development of such homes we require the right sort of training for marriage and the right sort of education in religion."

Suggested means of making the marriage ties happier and more likely to endure included courses of instruction in schools and colleges on the subject of human relationships.

CABLES

PROSECUTION ARRESTED ONE OF ITS OWN WITNESSES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17—(AP)—The trial of Matthew Patterson, republican ward leader and member of the state legislature, and of Charles W. Schoenleber, suspended police captain, jointly charged with bribery, extortion and conspiracy in protecting bootleggers, was delayed today when the commonwealth arrested one of its own witnesses.

The witness, Francis J. McKeown, a saloonkeeper, was held in $5,000 bail by Judge James Gay Gordon, Jr., on a charge of perjury. Denial on the stand of his previous statements in the district attorney's office that he had paid protection money to keep the cops away" led to McKeown's arrest.

Threats Of Murder And Of Kidnaping

Warning Has Been Sent John Hertz, President of the Yellow Cab Co. of Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17—(AP)—John Hertz, president of the Yellow Cab company, reported to police today that his life had been threatened and that he had been warned his grandchild would be kidnaped.

Acting States Attorney George E. Gorman, following the complaints of Mr. Hertz, prepared subpoenas for Robert McLaughlin, head of the Checker Taxi company and Attorneys Arthur Albert and Edgar Cook, representing the Checker company.

Two weeks ago two Yellow Cab garages were bombed and racing stables of Mr. Hertz were burned, destroying eleven thoroughbred race horses at a loss of $200,000. The trouble was described as an outgrowth of a taxi war after a Checker driver was shot and killed.

COTTON INSTITUTE MAY FORM EXPORT ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—Walker D. Hines, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, in reviewing the activities of the organization at its annual meeting today intimated that the institute may find it advantageous to form an export association under the Webb act, similar to those already formed by the steel, copper and lumber industries.

"One thing that is very clear and which we propose to emphasize in the report," he said, "is that mills which desire to participate in a substantial way in the export business must, unless they are exceptionally large so as to have an adequate independent export establishment, identity themselves with some form or organization which will be sufficiently large to do the export business on a large scale and in a permanent manner.

To effect this method of handling the business, it may be necessary in many instances to work out some sort of affiliation among mills or their selling houses, or through some more formal character of association, such as the formation of corporations for export business."

ASKED TO SEARCH FOR A PIECE OF A PULPIT

HARTFORD, Oct. 17 (AP)—The state police department has been asked to search for a piece of a pulpit. The request comes from the Italian government through P. DeCicco, Italian vice consul in New Haven. Often the department is called upon to search for some man or woman wanted in a foreign country, but seldom to look for stolen art treasures which are believed to have been brought here from across the seas. The letter to Commissioner Robert T. Hurley from the vice consul says that last year some unknown thieves stole part of the bas-relief in wood from the pulpit by Donatello, in the cathedral of St. Lorenzo in Florence, and that there are good reasons for believing the work of art, valued highly by the city of Florence and the Italian government, has found its way to this part of the United States.

JOSEPHUS DANIELS' SECOND GEORGIA ADDRESS

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 17—(AP)—Espousing the cause of Jeffersonian democracy, Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, invaded the gateway to the solid south tonight with a second Georgia address in two days in the interest of the candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith, democratic nominee for president.

Declaring that there is needed a man in the white house "with the backbone of a circus pole," Mr. Daniels pointed to the New York executive as one who would "restore government to the people and administer public affairs upon Jeffersonian principles."

"What is needed in Washington," he said, "is a chief executive who will unhorse privilege and restore equal rights to all and special privilege to none."

Mr. Daniels specified twelve reasons why he is supporting Governor Smith.

PROTESTING ATHEIST IN JAIL IN LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Oct. 17—(AP)—As a protest against anti-Atheist laws in Arkansas, which he said denied Atheists full rights as citizens, Charles Smith of New York, president of the American Association for Advancement of Atheism, is in jail here tonight serving out a fine of $25 imposed upon him as a result of his activities against a proposed anti-evolution law to be voted on in the general election next month.

Fined on a charge of distributing printed material "calculated to provoke a breach of the peace" Smith first made an appeal bond but later decided to submit to voluntary imprisonment as a protest, he said, against state laws which prohibit Atheists from testifying in courts or holding public office.

BABY DAUGHTER BORN TO MRS. LORRAINE M. GOULD

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—Jay Gould and Lorraine Manville (Gould) now have a baby daughter around whom to build the home for which they deserted the Broadway stage upon their marriage a year ago. The baby was born to Mrs. Gould at the Harbor Sanitarium here today.

The Goulds departed from behind the footlights at the height of their popularity in a musical production "Plain Jane." The father reaffirmed tonight that they "never again would appear on the stage—particularly now." Mrs. Gould inherited $9,000,000 from the estate of her father, the late Thomas Manville, asbestos manufacturer.

HOLD-UP IN BRANCH BANK IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17—(AP)—Using a special police officer as his unwilling aide, a man held up and robbed a downtown branch of the Bank of Italy here today of $7,000 and escaped. The robber carried a bomb with which he forced E. F. Kaduck, the officer to accompany him to a teller's window.

In a low voice, Kaduck told the teller: "This is a holdup man; give him some money." The money was obtained in currency.

Financial Report Of Dem. Nat. Committee

Campaign Receipts, $2,753,192; Disbursements, $2,555,353; Balance on Hand Oct. 15, $197,838.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(AP)—A complete accounting of all contributions to and expenditures by the democratic national committee from shortly after the Houston convention to October 15, received today by the house campaign funds investigation committee, show total receipts of $2,753,192 and disbursements of $2,555,353, with a balance on hand October 15 of $197,838.

In a separate letter, James W. Gerard, treasurer, informed Chairman Lehlbach that up to October 8, $203,937 had been contributed by the committee to the Smith independent organizations committee, Chicago, of which George N. Peek, a strong proponent of McNary-Haugen bill, is chairman. The financial accounting also showed that another $100,000 had been put at the disposal of the independents working from Chicago between October 8 and October 15.

The contributions between September 30 and October 15 were listed for the first time in today's report, and these showed that John J. Raskob, chairman of the national committee, and W. F. Kenny, a New York contractor, active in support of Governor Smith prior to the democratic convention, had each advanced a second contribution of $50,000 to the democratic cause. This made them the largest individual contributors to date. Receipt of $60,000 from Thomas F. Ryan of Waynesboro, Va., also was shown in the report.

The financial statement likewise revealed that included in the report of contributions between October 1 and 15 was a loan of $500,000 from the County Trust company of New York.

In his letter, Mr. Gerard said that expenditures from the payments to the Smith independents in Chicago would have to be accounted for by the leaders of the respective branches of the work being done on behalf of Governor Smith there.

ZEPPELIN PARTY STICK TO EIGHT DAY "GAG RULE"

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—Still bound by the eight day "gag rule" imposed upon them by a contract between the Zeppelin works and an American news syndicate, about half the people who flew from Germany in the dirigible Graf Zeppelin attended a luncheon at the Advertising club today and limited themselves to purely perfunctory remarks.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, pilot of the dirigible, voiced humorous comment on his somewhat broken English, saying that since his arrival here on Sunday he had made all the grammatical errors there were and so now felt he could talk freely without any fear that he would make new mistakes.

Lady Grace Drummond Hay, the only woman passenger on the list, was introduced as the "flower of the passenger list." She merely said that the "emotional strain" of the reception was too great for her and gave way to Captain E. A. Lehmann, first officer of the Graf Zeppelin.

Captain Lehmann then Dr. Ernst Brandenburg, director of aeronautics in the German ministry of transportation, expressed brief appreciation for the American reception to the dirigible.

The contract between the Zeppelin company and the news syndicate forbids both passengers and crew from saying anything for publication about what happened on the flight for eight days after the arrival here, retaining the news monopoly for the syndicate during that period.

CONNOLLY AND SEELY TO BE SENTENCED SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—Maurice E. Connolly, for many years a powerful democratic leader in Queens borough and president of the borough for 17 years until he resigned last April under fire, was sentenced today to serve one year in prison and fined $500. He was convicted by a supreme court jury of a charge of conspiracy to defraud the city in the construction of the $29,000,000 Queens sewer system. The penalty was the maximum.

His former sewer design engineer, Frederick Seely, was convicted with him on the same charge, but Supreme Court Justice Tompkins postponed sentence until Saturday in order to have time to study the evidence.

The jury brought in its verdict after it had been out more than 25 hours.

Connolly and Seely were remanded to jail while the former borough leader's attorneys made preparations for him to take an appeal subsequently.

DISTRICT CHAIRMEN OF HOOVER-CURTIS LEGION

HARTFORD, Oct. 17—(AP)—Col. Charles H. Allen, of Rockville, chairman of the Hoover-Curtis legion for Connecticut, today announced the appointment of 18 district chairmen who have charge of the organization of the legion in their territories. The appointments are:

BRITON ATTEMPTING SOLO FLIGHT ACROSS ATLANTIC

Commander H. C. MacDonald, 28, Took Off From Harbor Grace at 1.21 p. m. Yesterday—Plane, a Tiny Gypsy Moth DeHaviland, Has a Range of About 3,600 Miles or 35 Hours—Is Without Wireless and, Because of Small Size, Wears No Floats to Permit Landing on Water—Provisioned With a Quart of Coffee and Two Dozen Sandwiches.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Oct. 17—(AP)—A daring young Briton, Flight Commander H. C. MacDonald, retired, took off from Harbor Grace early this afternoon ostensibly to attempt what only Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has accomplished, a non stop solo flight across the Atlantic.

When the 28 year old former naval officer stepped into his tiny gypsy moth De Havland some of his friends said his hop was to be only a five hour duration test, but in the plane's tanks was a full load of fuel and complete equipment for an ocean hop. It was assumed that England was his goal.

The take-off was at 1.21 p. m. (11.15 a. m., eastern standard time). The plane rose easily from the field, circled a few moments and then turned eastward.

MacDonald had been in Newfoundland since September 18 testing his ship and awaiting favorable conditions for a flight to Britain, but the weather has been bad. Today, however, the meteorological reports showed no serious storm areas over the ocean and indicated that a plane could be favored by following wind that might reach a velocity of 20 miles an hour, a distinct aid to so tiny a traveller as the gypsy moth.

Reports from Harbor Grace were fragmentary during the afternoon, suggesting that MacDonald's take-off was the result of a sudden decision.

The aviator himself is something of a novice at piloting, although he has had considerable experience at navigating. His flying record is eighty hours, but into that comparatively short time he has crowded at least one long flight—a trip from London to Bagdad a few months ago. He had flown alone for only eight hours when he made that journey.

His gypsy moth De Haviland established a name for itself before MacDonald brought it to Newfoundland on a steamer last month. It was in this craft, known as an aerial sports car, that W. L. Hope won the last King's cup race around England. Captain G. DeHaviland used it in making an altitude record for two-eaters.

Its power plant is a four cylinder, air cooled motor of from 80 to 100 horsepower, but the engine has enough stamina to run for 24 hours and more.

The plane's wing spread is only 26 feet, extra fuel tanks, installed during preparations for the trans-Atlantic flight, give it a range of about 3600 miles or 35 hours. No wireless is carried, and the ship, because of her small size, wears no floats to permit landing on water.

McDonald had said that he planned to head straight for Ireland, if the plane were running smoothly when he reached that island he intended to continue to England.

Only a few persons witnessed the take-off, for the bad weather of the past three weeks led to the belief that MacDonald had abandoned his project. Last night, however, the young aviator received weather reports indicating favorable conditions over the Atlantic and decided to make the attempt today.

Early in the morning he started making a final examination of the plane and with his mechanic, began the tedious task of fuelling it. This was completed at 1.15 p. m. and MacDonald climbed into the plane. The mechanic stood by ready to spin the propeller and a moment later MacDonald gave the signal.

The plane taxied down the field for a distance of 300 feet and then gracefully left the ground and rose to an altitude of 500 feet. He circled the airport once and then turned eastward on his long journey.

MacDonald carried 100 gallons of gasoline which he estimated will carry him to his destination. Before starting he said he hoped to reach London and that he hopes to land early tomorrow morning.

He took a quart of coffee in a Thermos bottle and two dozen sandwiches.

LONDON THRILLED WITH MACDONALD'S VENTURE

LONDON, Oct. 17—(AP)—London thrilled today to the news that Commander H. C. MacDonald had hopped from Newfoundland on a trans-Atlantic flight in a tiny moth airplane.

Because of the size of his machine and his own limited flying experience, the attempt was hailed as probably the most intrepid air exploit ever undertaken. British airmen found it hard to believe that their comrade was in real earnest and not making a short test flight.

They pointed out that while the moth machine was supposed to have a fuel capacity sufficient for 35 hours flight, it was a question whether this gave enough margin of safety. The experts figured that MacDonald would run a big risk of finding himself without fuel if he met unexpected head winds or other delaying factors on his route to Ireland.

No storm centers have been reported over the North Atlantic and along the Irish western coast the weather is fine and dry with an entire absence of wind and rain. Fitful gleams of sunshine gave unaccustomed autumn warmth to western Ireland today and forecaste point to a continuance of this weather until at least Friday. Information also was received that winds at sea also would favor the airman.

Ireland expects MacDonald to take much the same course as did Alcock and Brown on their flight from Newfoundland in 1919. They came down at Clifden, Ireland. MacDonald, it was though, would land somewhere on the Galway coast.

SCANT CLEWS TO SLAYER OF MRS. ALTIE BONELLO

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(AP)—Scant clews and a theory that she may have been killed because she "knew too much" about a Kansas City bank robbery united police tonight in their investigation of the slaying of Mrs. Altie Bonello, wife of an alleged Kansas City gangster. The woman is said to have been a night club hostess.

A detective who went to her apartment in Sunnyside, Queens, this morning in search of information about the bank robbery found her body on a bed, with the throat cut and the head crushed.

A carving knife and an electric flat iron, both blood stained, were on the bed near the body. These, and the head of a small hammer found the on floor, were held as clews.

Known at the apartment house as Mrs. Alta Woich and as Mrs. Leo Gordon, she was actually, police say, the wife of Anthony Bonello, who was arrested here two months ago and taken to Kansas City as a suspect in the robbery of the Home Trust company there during the republican national convention. In their flight, the robbers shot and killed a policeman on traffic duty.

Bonello is being held in Kansas City for trial.

Any theories of suicide were set aside this afternoon when an autopsy disclosed that Mrs. Bonello's death was caused by blows on the head with the flatiron or the hammer.

CATTAGES COST ONLY $750 TO RENT FOR $1.10 WEEKLY

THORPELESCKEN, Essex, England, Oct. 17—(AP)—Four room cottages that cost only $750 to build, and which will rent at $1.10 weekly, were opened here today by Viscountess Byng of Vimy, wife of Lord Byng. She had the homes constructed as an experiment in rural housing.

Lady Byng unlocked the doors with a silver key and threw into each cottage a loaf of bread and a piece of coal. This ceremony symbolized the old Essex custom of wishing that those living in the houses would never lack for food or warmth.

HICKMAN TRANSFERRED TO DEATH CHAMBER

SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Oct. 17—(AP)—William Edward Hickman, sentenced to die on the gallows next Friday for the murder of Marian Parker, Los Angeles school girl, was transferred today to the death chamber. The move was in keeping with the prison routine.

In the death chamber Hickman must remain in solitude except for visits from close relatives, his lawyer and a prison chaplain. He may read if he wishes, and may have what he wants to eat. A guard will remain on duty until the end.

COOLIDGE THANKSGIVING IN BLUE RIDGE MOUNTAINS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(AP)—President Coolidge will spend a brief vacation over Thanksgiving day in the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia in the Swannanoa Country club about four miles from Waynesboro.

President Coolidge plans to leave Washington on November 23 to return the following Sunday December 2.

The Swannanoa Country club was offered to President Coolidge for a summer residence last spring, but was turned down in favor of Cedar Island lodge on the Brule. The board of governors of the club renewed their offer for a Thanksgiving holiday.

The club, a substantial masonry mansion, is situated at an altitude of 2,400 feet and within extensive and thickly wooded grounds of its own. It is about twenty miles from Charlottesville and Staunton.

NEW BRITAIN GIRL WAS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

NEW BRITAIN, Oct. 17—(AP)—Miss Helen Robinson, 11, of 24 Maple street, is in a critical condition at New Britain General hospital with a fractured skull sustained early this morning when a sedan was hurled up on the sidewalk at Washington and Myrtle streets by a collision with a truck. Nellie Robinson, 16, her sister, and Howard Wilcox, 69, of 31 Woodruff court were also struck and taken to the hospital for minor injuries. Louis Frey, 25, of Allentown Road, Bristol, driver of the sedan, is under arrest pending the outcome of Helen Robinson's injuries.

The three injured persons were on their way to work in factories when the collision occurred. They were bowled over by the sedan which cracked a fire hydrant before it struck them.

4 YEAR OLD BOY SUING HIS AUNT FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

NEW BRITAIN, Oct. 17—(AP)—A four year old boy is plaintiff in a suit for $10,000 against his aunt. The boy is Francis McNamara. The defendant aunt is Julia Ackerstrom. LARGE NUMBER ATTEND SERVICES FOR RAMPOLLA CHILD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 17—Impressive funeral services were held this morning for Congetta Rampolla, ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rampolla, who was killed when struck by a motor truck Sunday morning while on her way to attend church services. The cortege left from the family home, 20 Mansfield avenue and a requiem high mass was celebrated in St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. Francis Duch. The funeral procession, which consisted of many friends and relatives of the deceased and the family was led by the Italian Citizens' band. Little friends and classmates of the deceased who marched in the procession were: Dorothy Hodis, Martha Axelrod, Dorothy Harrington, Nellie Macione, Frances Ractona, Mary Polak, Tessie Hirchycia, Mary Sullivan, Alice Hirchycia, Lillian Gordon, Mary Pipnick, Anna Leta, Anna Jordan, Lucy Ferriner, Esther Cameleo, Hazel Adino, Erycie Jordan, Anna Jordan, Rose Jordan. The offertory and waiting hymns were rendered by Mrs. Henry J. Mathieu with Mrs. E. R. Portelance at the organ. The bearers were Anthony Ferriner, Vincent Luciani, Leo Moore and Silucci Toroni. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Henry E. Quinn conducted the committal service. The band also played a funeral march at the cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of The Hurteau-Bosse Corp.

Charles J. Bennett of Hartford, former highway commissioner gave a most interesting talk on Odd and Quaint Corners of Connecticut at a meeting of the Woman's club held Tuesday afternoon. The entertainment was provided by Mrs. R. G. Remington and Mrs. George E. Williams who scored in two renditions, Roses of Picardy and Whispering Hope. Mr. Bennett, who had occasion to gather the material for his talk in his travels throughout the state as highway commissioner enriched his descriptions of quaint places and incidents with humor and human interest. Among some of the places which he mentioned was the birthplace of Eliphalet Nott in Westford, town of Ashford. The early life of Mr. Nott, who was president of Union college in Schenectady for many years bears considerable similarity to that of Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Bennett is a graduate of Union college. The Gurdon Cady monument at Central Village, on which is carved the cow and violin, was also mentioned. Mr. Bennett said that Connecticut was full of interest, industrially, geologically and he commended the state on setting aside as state parks some of the many places of beauty, so that the commonwealth might continue to enjoy them.

Miss Alphonsine Boucher died at her home, 25 Milk street, early this morning after an extended illness. She was born in St. Antoine, Canada, June 17, 1866, a daughter of Renie and Philomene Marchand Boucher. She leaves one sister, Miss Eugene Boucher, and three brothers, Joseph Boucher of this city, Leo of Springfield, Mass., and Eugene Boucher of Marlboro, Mass. The deceased was a devoted member of St. Mary's church.

In an unsuccessful attempt to avoid striking a large police dog owned by William Flaherty of South Coventry, Phillip Trembley, 20, of 469 Pleasant street lost control of the machine he was driving Tuesday afternoon and was injured when the car partly mounted a stone wall some 18 inches in height and crashed into the T. H. Wood company plant garage after travelling some 20 feet in that partially capsized manner. Trembley was driving a Chevrolet coupe owned by James W. Kegler of Windham Road and was going through South Coventry in the direction of Hartford when the police dog ran out into the road. Trembley made an effort to avoid the animal but it was struck and killed. The car then mounted the low wall and was badly damaged when it struck the garage. The double doors of the garage were also damaged. Trembley sustained a severe cut on the forearm, just above the right wrist. He was treated by a local physician but his condition grew worse and he is now a patient at St. Joseph's hospital. The cut is believed to have been caused by glass from the broken windshield. The wrecked machine was towed to this city.

Arnold of the local chamber of commerce is a member of the committee of five of the State Secretaries' association of the state chamber in charge of the program for the state-wide conference on chamber of commerce work to be held in Hartford Thursday afternoon at 12:45 o'clock. A group of chamber members from this city are planning to attend the conference.

Seine nets set in the city of Willimantic supply reservoir in the town of Mansfield by state fisheries and game department employes have netted several thousand perch, bass, pickerel and eels. The removal of fish from the reservoir is part of a project of the state department to discourage violation of the law against fishing in reservoirs as a source of contamination. Most of the fish caught have been placed in cans and brought to other streams and ponds in this section. Large quantities have been placed in Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry and in the Ten Mile river which runs through Coventry and Mansfield into the Willimantic river. One of the eels caught was claimed to be blind and its age was estimated at 25 years. Several of these eels were very large, one of them weighing nine pounds and measuring nearly five feet in length.

Edwin J. Donnelly of this city presented the issues of the present political campaign from the republican viewpoint at the Lyceum meeting of Windham high school held this forenoon. The democratic viewpoint of the campaign had been presented to the student body last week by Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, candidate for lieutenant-governor. It is planned to take a "straw vote" at the school in the near future. Earl Potter, president, was in charge of the Lyceum meeting and Anna Lou Ferguson, secretary, read the minutes.

A charge of buckshot fired into the air is believed to have prevented a raid on chicken coops, it was reported by Wilfred Dore of Mansfield Four Corners today. Dore said that after milking a cow he was returning to the house when he heard a voice calling to his poultry. He recalled that several hundred chickens have been stolen in Mansfield during the past few weeks and securing his shot gun he blazed away, pointing the weapon in the air. Constable Harry Morse was called but the would-be thief had apparently made his getaway.

The centennial celebration program of the Methodist Episcopal church which calls for reunions and group meetings Friday and Sunday has been completed. Special emphasis has been placed on the Sunday activities and services. A reunion communion service will be held at 10:45 o'clock Sunday morning with a reception to the membership and Sacrament of the Lord's supper. A reunion rally will take place at 12:10 and public worship at 4 p. m. The sermon at this worship will be by Rev. Robert S. Moore, pastor here ten years ago. The climax of the celebration will be in the nature of a union community service at 7:30 p. m. when Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston university will deliver the address. The musical program includes music used in the Christian church in each period of the century.

MATE LINTON WILCOX HOME FROM CALIFORNIA

Mate Linton Wilcox of the steamer Mexico has arrived from the west coast, visiting California and all the big sea ports. The trip took 14 weeks. Now Mate Wilcox has two weeks' furlough. Telling several fellows at the waiting room Tuesday evening about the trip, he said: "We hit a storm 500 miles out. The steamer was only crawling along about four knots an hour. The ship's pet, a monkey from South America got seasick and catching it was more fun than a woman at a baseball game! Several of the sailors got sick. We never thought we would reach land, but we made the port in California and were taking in the sights along Main street, killing time. I saw a man who looked like a Noank fellow and it was Fred Deveau. He was pretty glad to see some one from his home town. The good old days were talked over, it is 18 years since Deveau has paid a visit to his home town." Mate Wilcox told him the village is getting like a city—Main street all dolled up with a new store and several new buildings; but the shipyard has seen its best days and the only thing to do for a young fellow is to go fishing. After a two-hour talk with them Deveau had to go for he owns a large orange farm and wanted to see how his men were getting along. "Don't forget my regards to the mail carrier, John Ashbey, who has worn out over a hundred pairs of shoes! So long!" were his words as he was leaving. Mate Wilcox talked for a long while and said he was glad to get a dish of his mother's boiled dinner with Prospect Hill pumpkin pie.

BIG HORSE MACKEREL CAUGHT OFF BLACK ISLAND

Mackerel are running again and it is good sport to catch them. Fifteen boats are trying their luck. The boat Alice M. had 15 barrels of mackerel and no bulls eyes Tuesday, also landed a 200 pound horse mackerel that got in the way of the boat. Capt. Billie Chappell's good right arm threw the iron a distance of 40 feet and got the big fish. It is not very often that horse mackerel is up around the shore of Block Island so late in the season. Mackerel are bringing a big price in New York only for getting the wrong signal Capt. Chappell would have had a 298 pound sword fish that was scouting near shore for something to eat. He threw the iron but it went short.

Boat Ethel E. had 10 barrels of mackerel also boat Come Again had 12 and Tuesday over 90 barrels of mackerel were forwarded to New York. Fishing has picked up during this month and the catches have sent many an old or young sea captain home with a smile, after their day's work is done. Next time out the fish might be gone, that is the way fishing runs.

EIGHT BLACK DUCKS DROP AFTER TWO SHOTS

Frank and Ben Chesebro, two good marksmen with the shotguns, have hit many bulls eyes, are great hunters after wild game over to Mumford Cove Tuesday morning to see how the black ducks were flying they found the wind right. A flock of ten ducks came over and Ben said I will pick the second bird. As the flock came by the guns went off with a bang, several shots going into the black duck flock. Eight of them dropped, all bound for the hunters' coat pockets. They are the first two hunters to bring home any black ducks this season. A side bet is on between Quick Aim Chesebro and Eagle Eye G. Clark that Clark will get more game by the end of the season than his rival Chesebro will. The loser will have to buy the hunting club to which about 20 members belong, a turkey supper on New Years day. The two hunters shook hands on the bet is on.

EXTRA WAR EXPLOSIVES ARE USED IN INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON (AP)—TNT, the terrifically destructive explosive used in the world war, has been domesticated.

The department of commerce reports that more than 126,000,000 pounds of TNT and other explosives manufactured for military use have been successfully used for industrial purposes, such as the construction of dams and reservoirs draining swamps and clearing land.

The suggestion of the bureau of mines that the great stores of explosives left over after the war be used for peace time projects at first met with adverse criticism, and the bureau was forced to demonstrate the practicability of such use. Destruction or continued storage of the explosives would have involved heavy expense.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

Look at your TONGUE every morning!

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

A GUARANTEE UNCHALLENGED FOR TEN YEARS

1918

When the PENROD Cigar was first introduced to the smokers we offered a $1000 REWARD to anyone who could prove that we did not use 6 lbs. of imported Havana Tobacco to the 1000 Cigars to which was added an amount of fine old mellow domestic Tobacco rolled by hand into a Connecticut Broadleaf Binder, (Grown right here in our Valley), wrapped with a light imported Sumatra wrapper which we believe produced a Cigar equal to the higher priced brands and the reward offered was made only to prevent competition from belittling our claim as it seemed impossible at that time to produce for 10c a Cigar of such high quality in view of the high cost of material and labor and with a Government tax which amounted almost to 1¾c per each Cigar.

1923

Five years later the immediate popularity, large sales volume, reduced overhead, declining market and large purchasing power made it possible to increase the proportion of choice imported Havana Tobacco from 6 lbs. to 10 lbs. per 1000 Cigars which resulted in the skillful PENROD blend becoming smoother, milder and more satisfying than ever before and again our guarantee remained unchallenged.

Good—

to the Last Puff

1928

AND NOW AFTER TEN YEARS OF LEADERSHIP and because of Tax reduction of almost ½c per Cigar we again startle the community by now offering for your approval a large, solid, free burning, hand made Perfecto shape, 100% FULL LONG FILLED IMPORTED HAVANA CIGAR with the same genuine Connecticut Broadleaf Binder and the light imported Sumatra wrapper with the unchallenged guarantee of $1,000 reward.

$1,000 Reward

The Manufacturer of PENROD Cigars guarantees that each PENROD Cigar as made and shipped by him now contains 100% full imported Havana filler and offers $1000 reward to any person (Including own employes), who can prove his statement incorrect.

THE NEW ELECTRICAL RATES

Without a question Mayor Robbins has voiced a popular sentiment in his communication to the board of gas and electrical commissioners when he suggests the advisability of a "public hearing (concerning the new electric rates) where those interested may learn your side of the question and present to you instances where the application of the new rates appears to be resulting in hardship."

Before the new rates went into effect there was much difficulty experienced on the part of those who were concerned with house rates as well as those who had to consider power rates due to just what was meant. Since the rates have gone into effect and bills have been received there has been even greater confusion. Some have been charged more when using a smaller amount of electricity. Some have been charged less and there are some who have experienced such large increases in their bills that they have entered strenuous protests. Some mistakes, it is understood, have been made in the application of the new rates which when corrected have reduced the increase, but there is a feeling of dissatisfaction expressed which in every way justifies the plea which the mayor has made to the commissioners.

There can be no question but what the people are entitled to a better understanding of what they are being charged and why such a system has been adopted. If it is possible for the commissioners to justify the rates they should be eager to do it. If there are changes which are not warranted and are unpopular the owners of the plant certainly ought to give consideration to the sentiment of the public concerning them.

We have no doubt the gas and electrical department has received expressions against the new rates in keeping with those made to the mayor. It is believed, however, that the mayor's plan is aimed at getting that enlightenment which the public has the right to seek and could have. The mayor suggests a full, fair and free discussion. Let's have it!

A PLEA FOR BEAUTIFICATION

Many a person on driving through the country is impressed by the distressing conditions which are encountered, impressed to the point of making an outcry against the billboards, the various practices by which the countryside is defaced and by other indications of untidiness. This may be due to a comparison with other days when such things did not exist, or it may be due to a disposition to take notice of such conditions wherever encountered. It is, however, in keeping with the belief that there should be a greater general interest in maintaining better conditions.

On her trip to this country from England, Lady Nancy Astor has been making a visit to her native state of Virginia. She was particularly devoted to that state and was therefore all the more inclined to notice changes which grated on her ideas of what should be, and which displayed a strong contrast to what used to be. In speaking to a group of friends at Richmond, she called attention to this by saying, "I have talked in England to about the beauty of Virginia—for you know it is the most beautiful place in the world—but after seeing its unkempt appearance I feel as if I would be afraid to let some of my English friends come here. They wouldn't be able to realize it is beautiful. People who stay here always seem to forget that it isn't tidy" and she expressed horror at finding in her travels that the landscape was so cluttered with gasoline cans and other rubbish.

Perhaps if she were as thoroughly acquainted with other states as she was with Virginia she might say the same thing after a lapse of years. Changes have certainly taken place. There are certain definite efforts being made in behalf of beautification by states, by organizations and by individuals, but there are likewise other and very conspicuous efforts in the other direction. This is noticed by larger numbers today because larger numbers are using the highways than ever before. Certain untidiness can be checked by the individual. He doesn't need to make the roadside the receptacle for his discarded rubbish and litter, while organizations and states are bringing pressure to bear upon roadside conditions which should be beneficial. If Virginia isn't doing as much as this perhaps the reminder it has received will produce the needed interest.

COOLIDGE ECONOMY

When Alfred E. Smith selects the Coolidge economy as the object of his attack in his campaign speech in Missouri it was an effort of desperation. That Coolidge policy and what it has accomplished is too well known by the people from one end of the country to the other for Mr. Smith to try to decry it.

There are too many people who know that they are not paying an income tax today where they were a few years ago. They know that the national debt has experienced a reduction amounting to nearly $7,000,000,000 under republican administration in the last seven years. And there are those who while still paying an income tax know that it has undergone several reductions. They know through the insistence of the president there has been practiced economy and efficiency of a most commendable type to the great advantage of the nation. They know what efforts have been made to resort to extravagance and how effectively they have been suppressed. They likewise know what all this means in the conduct of the nation and what a contrast it discloses, for instance, to the manner in which the business of the state of New York has ben conducted.

They know that there has been a decrease in federal expenditures in the past seven years of more than $1,600,000,000, while in the state of New York there has been an increase from $70,000,000 to over $322,000,000 in the past ten years, and in addition there has been a huge increase in the bonded debt of the state.

All that is needed is to make a comparison of the manner in which the federal government under President Coolidge has been conducted and the state government of New York under Governor Smith as to economy and the talk that the latter indulged in in Missouri falls of its own weight. In a state where the people demand that they be shown the Smith attempt to decry Coolidge economy must have registered as a fizzle.

HOGGING THE ROAD

Failure to grant the right of way figures among the causes of fatal accidents in the highways of Connecticut. It probably is the cause for a greater number of accidents where death is not caused.

It is one of the causes of accidents which frequently brings a stiff penalty from the courts, for it displays a disposition to disregard the rights of others and to indicate that either there is improper attention being given by the driver to what he is doing or else he is insisting upon crowding into that part of the highway which by the rules of the road belongs to another.

There are repeated instances of those who fail to respect the rights of others. They depend upon luck, the speed of their car or the inclination of many to neglect their rights. To many the idea of disputing the right of way is looked upon as foolish. The point isn't worth quibbling over and many take advantage of it. Nevertheless there are times when such is not the case and when the "road hog" finds himself in trouble, not only through broken bones, or smashed cars, but in the prosecution that follows.

It was not long ago that a judge in Hartford county awarded substantial damages to the estate of a woman who was killed when struck by a violator of the right of way rule. It was the view of the court that drivers should watch for cars coming from the right, which imposes enough responsibility upon them without trying to watch both directions at intersections. If every driver was mindful of that requirement and saw to it that the right of way rule was respected there would be a valuable contribution to the much needed reduction in the highway accidents of this state.

It is unfortunate, but none the less true, that many drivers permit the habit of taking chances and disregarding the other fellow's rights to grow upon them until they become confirmed violators and highway terrors, whose practice is too seldom penalized.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hickman says he is a sinner. Does anyone dispute it?

Only the politicians seem to find much to complain about in October.

The man on the corner says: Have you received your electric bill for October?

Mr. Hoover never fails to impress by the way he sticks to and deals with the issues of the campaign.

To see them today no one would ever surmise that the shore resorts were such hives of activity only a few weeks ago.

No one is obliged to listen to a political talk over the radio but such a speaker is effectively protected against all hecklers.

Have those particularly interested in leap year given due heed to the fact that there are but three sheets left on the 1928 calendar?

Newburyport is getting a lot of publicity because its mayor is in jail, but Newburyport would prefer advertising of a different kind. Possibly it has also changed its ideas about mayors.

It seems rather late to start a fight on mosquitoes, as a Massachusetts town has done, but they are a pest that deserves all the opposition they get and considerably more.

SOMETHING BORROWED.

The first time I ever saw Fay Carter she came hurtling out of the telephone booth waving both her long arms and wailing, "Alice, Elsie, everybody! Walter Webb has asked me to the formal and I haven't a thing to wear!"

Even a freshman knows that "haven't a thing to wear" is just the other half of any sentence about going anywhere with a man. But with Fay it was the absolute truth. Fay's father ran a funny little hut of a store in some remote corner of Wisconsin, "up where Paul Bunyan left his hat at." Fay always called it, and goodness only knows whether it had any other name.

But Fay had packed a suit of winter underwear and a jug of maple sirup into a telescope, tied it shut with string and come to the university for an education. She walked down Main street just once, darting her gay, dauntless eyes here and there—and men began climbing over each other to get her phone number.

Fay honestly didn't have anything to wear anywhere. But when she came bursting out of the telephone booth and charged down the corridor of the dormitory lamenting that it was the most wonderful date a girl ever could have—and she with nothing to wear—doors all along the hall popped open and voices took up the chant like a well-trained chorus.

"Wear my yellow." "You can take my evening wrap." "Want my beads?" And twenty minutes later Fay, gay and grateful, would step forth into the social whirl of the college town like the only daughter of a cool million.

The next time I saw Fay—I mean after college—I heard, rather than saw her. Breezing back from New York my second year out, I opened the door of the sorority alumnae house in Chicago just in time to hear the click of the phone receiver and a familiar voice:

"Dorothy, Marv, everybody! David has a chance to go to Spain for his company and he wants me to marry him—right away, this week, before he goes. But I haven't a thing to wear." It was Fay, all right. For the next few minutes doors on all three floors popped open and myriad voices began: "You can have my necklace, my toque, my white gloves." For the moment it made me homesick to be a freshman again.

Then came the crash in the sudden appearance of David.

"I've just phoned mother and she says we've got to have a church wedding, and a reception afterward. She insists. Everybody in our set does." Fay's voice rose like a soaring gull.

"Day-vid. We just can't! We'll have to elope—I've my wedding outfit and I'm all ready to be married in the little chapel at St. James'—but a big church wedding—and a hotel——" For the first time in her whole life Fay was utterly baffled. She could borrow clothes for a trip to Spain on five minutes' notice, but a white dress and veil—she subsided into tears.

But Mary Ellen knew a man whose roommate had a sister who sang in concerts. She would have a white dress. Dorothy knew a girl who had white satin slippers. Alice remembered about gloves. Lisbeth's sister-in-law's aunt owned a point lace bridal cap and veil. We all contributed white linneris. And when Fay stood, slim and shimmering, before the mirror on her wedding day, she tossed a chuckle over her shoulder.

"The stockings are mine—I bought 'em. And so are the garters—I have to have something old!"
